EDITOR'S EYEWITNESS REPORT OF IRAQ REVOLT

Army's 'Remarkable' Control Cut Casualties

By TALBOT PATRICK
Editor-Publisher of the Evening Herald, Rock Hill, S.C.

ROME (AP) — The death list of the Iraq revolution totals several dozen instead of thousands—and perhaps I am alive to write these words—because of the remarkable control taken over Baghdad's million people by the army group which put through the revolution.

And I believe one reason the army could maintain such control was because the mass of people apparently welcomed the revolution.

On the morning of the revolution I woke to hear in the distance the sound of rhythmic shouting. It was as if someone arriving late to a college football game heard outside a stadium the sound of a cheering section. Then the sound died away in the morning noises of a city where business starts in hot weather at 7.

At 8:30 a knock at my door. Half-dressed, I cracked the door open. It was an Iraqi newspaper friend. Excitedly he burst in.

"You got here the right time," he almost shouted. "There's been a revolution. It started at 4:30 this morning. It's all over now. A group of army officers did it. The king is dead. The crown prince, his uncle, is dead. You better stay here in the hotel. I'll come back later for you."

I had him repeat. Just the afternoon before, my first day in Baghdad, I had had a long talk with the director general of the Information Ministry. This same morning, he had told me, the king and various ministers were to go to an international conference at Istanbul.

"He's out now," my friend said. "All the old government are out. I think some of the ministers may be dead. People are crowding in the streets. I think you better stay inside until I come for you."

He left. Finishing dressing, I went to the lobby of the hotel. Strangers, Americans and Europeans, were standing around. At the reception desk the clerk said, yes, there had been a revolution. It was announced over the government radio. Everything in Baghdad was closed. The telephone system was dead. Stay in the hotel.

A tall American carrying a small camera came up the steps from the street floor entrance. "When I stepped outside," he told a friend, "a man pointed at my camera, shook his head, and then pointed his two hands toward me as if he were holding a submachine gun and waved them back and forth across my stomach."

Little by little strangers began to speak to each other. A small gray-haired American woman said, "I woke up early and when I looked out I saw soldiers on the roof of the four-story building across the street. They seemed to be searching a couple of small penthouses on the roof. Then one of them came and looked over the side of the balcony of the floor below. Then the soldiers went away."

Hearing shouting, I looked out. Up about a quarter of a block the hotel street ended at one of the city's main streets. A group of shouting men walked past. Later more came by truck.

I ventured out onto the sidewalk. The few people on my street paid little attention to me. I drifted cautiously toward the corner. More people were on each side of the street.

Another crowded truck came by. Held high at the front of it was a big photograph of Egypt's Nasser. The shouting men in the truck were mostly young. People along the street clapped.

None of the usually numerous white-uniformed police with white spike-topped helmets were in sight.

Along came a group on foot, young men, older boys, carrying a picture of Nasser. They stopped at the intersection as one of their number shouted a short talk, then waved their arms in the air, shouted and went on.

On the sidewalk I saw apparent friends meet each other, beam with smiles, sometimes embrace and kiss each other on the cheeks.

Another group of young men and boys came dancing down the street. Groups of spectators who had climbed onto the second and third floors of a reinforced concrete building began a rhythmic clapping of their hands for the dancers.

Up the street, horn blowing, came rushing a private car with women leaning out the windows from the back seat and the seat beside the driver. They were Iraqis, dressed in European clothes, their faces wild with delight, shrieking out to all who might hear.

One crowd, bigger than most, had been dragging something dark along the pavement. Not until the next day did I realize it may have been what was left of a human body.

After a while what evidently was a celebration of great emotional intensity for the walking and riding groups, for the women in occasional automobiles and even for the onlookers began to grow a bit monotonous for me. I went back to the hotel, and was there when my friend returned at noon.

"Everybody is going to have to get off the streets," he said. "There is going to be what you call a curfew from one o'clock this afternoon until five o'clock tomorrow morning.

"Yes," he answered a question from me, "there is a whole new government. Maybe tomorrow I can take

'Space' Pilot Perishes in Jet Crash

Test Flier, Ace Had Been Chosen to Fly Secret X15

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — Capt. Iven Kincheloe, chosen by the Air Force to be one of the first pilots to fly into space, was killed Saturday when his jet fighter crashed while on a routine flight.

His F104 Starfighter slammed into the ground and exploded shortly after taking off from this air base in the Mojave Desert.

Kincheloe, who held the American altitude record of 126,000 feet, ejected himself a moment before the impact.

The Air Force said the ruggedly-handsome jet ace apparently was trying to turn back to the field after a low-altitude flameout.

* * * *

"IT LOOKED LIKE he was gliding in for a landing on the desert," said Steve Michel, a nearby rancher.

Just before the plane hit and exploded, Kincheloe catapulted from the cockpit. His body was badly burned from the explosion's fireball, sheriff's deputies said. Wreckage was spread over a half mile area.

Kincheloe, 30, had taken off to fly as "chase" plane for another jet being tested, the Air Force said. It was considered a routine hop for the Korean war hero, who flew many such flights as one of the United States' top test pilots.

* * * *

KINCHELOE, AN aeronautical and mechanical engineer, was a member of the select three-man Air Force team training for flights into the fringe of space in the secrecy-shrouded rocket plane—the X15.

The X15 was described by the secretary of the Air Force as "a step toward a manned satellite."

Kincheloe entered the Air Force from the Air ROTC program at Purdue University. He received his wings at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., in 1949. In Korea during 1951-52, Kincheloe flew 101 combat missions. He completed the course in the School of Aeronautics, Empire Test School, Farnborough, England.

In September, 1956, he flew

New, Heaviest U.S. Moon 1st to Fly Over Russia

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The Army's Jupiter C rocket has put an American moon over Russia. Explorer IV was swinging around the earth once every two hours Saturday night on a "Cook's tour" course that would cover its most populous areas.

The new and heaviest of U. S. satellites at 38.43 pounds carried aloft the most delicate instruments ever devised for radiation detection to help prepare man for space travel.

Late Saturday, it was learned that the low point in the satellite's orbit is 177 miles above the earth and the high point, or apogee, is 1,368 miles up. It circles the globe once every 110 minutes and its lifetime is estimated at "a few years."

* * * *

PROF. GEORGE LUDWIG, head of the University of Iowa team which designed special instrumentation tucked inside the little moon, said it attained a "very large elliptical orbit" which would enable it to make a much more complete measurement of the intense radiation outside the earth's atmosphere.

"The general indication is that we have a good orbit," announced Dr. James A. Van Allen, State University of Iowa scientist representing the International Geophysical Year committee in Washington. He commented after Explorer IV had completed two circuits of the globe.

It was to make its first pass over southern Russia about 10 p.m. and would cross Russia four or five more times before its course slanted away.

* * * *

IN ITS VERY first circuit the new moon passed over American soil in Southern California and Texas and also covered Mexico and Newfoundland. It sent forth a steady beep on two frequencies, 108 and 108.3 megacycles. Its passage was recorded by the tracking station at Temple City, Calif.

The new Explorer will be the first U. S. satellite to fly over Russia. The others were put in orbits which covered a broad band of the earth's middle between latitudes 34 north and 34 south.

The new orbit was picked to give Explorer IV's delicate instruments an opportunity to measure radiation in space over a larger part of the planet.

* * * *

EXPLORERS I and III had run into a belt of radiation, starting about 600 miles up, 1,000 times more intense than expected. Their instruments

West at Odds on Summit Parley Plans

LONDON (UPI)—The Western powers differed Saturday night over where and how to hold a summit conference with the Soviet Union on the Middle East crisis.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French Premier Charles De Gaulle both sent letters to Russian Nikita S. Khrushchev on the proposal to hold the summit meeting within a United Nations Security Council framework and Khrushchev's suggestion that the council meeting be held in New York.

* * * *

MACMILLAN WAS all for the New York location. De Gaulle opposed it.

President Eisenhower, in his letter to Khrushchev this week, reluctantly went along with the British position.

In a terse, three-paragraph note, Macmillan said he would "certainly be ready to go to New York" for a council meeting at the summit on the Middle East.

De Gaulle said he wanted the meeting held at Geneva "or any other town of our continent." He opposes New York.

De Gaulle also said he preferred a regular summit parley as originally planned which would mean it would be held outside the U.N. But he did not refuse to go along with a council meeting if that was the only way, and provided Israel, Turkey and Iran were represented.

* * * *

MACMILLAN JOINED President Eisenhower in demanding that the council determine under its own rules the date of the meeting and what other states should attend.

Khrushchev had proposed next Monday—a date now impossible to keep—and the presence of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and "rep-

Yarborough, Gov. Daniel Renominated

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' conservative Democrats Saturday renominated Gov. Price Daniel. Liberal-backed U. S. Senator Ralph Yarborough also won nomination. Conservatives dominated the precinct conventions.

At 10 p.m. the vote for governor gave Daniel 220,817 votes, State Senator Henry Gonzalez 61,225, former Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel 69,391, and Tom Irwin, Dallas businessman, 8,584.

A vote of 1,300,000 was expected to be cast out of Texas' 2,050,000 potential. A poll tax receipt is a Texas voting requisite.

The 10 p.m. count in the U. S. Senate race gave Yarborough 57 per cent of the vote tabulated and a total of 199,870 ballots. His opponent, William B[illegible]ley, oilman-industrialist, had 149,613.

'IT IS LIKE A DREAM'

'Too Tired to Think,' Says Miss U, but She's Happy

By BRYAN HODGSON

A very pretty, very happy and very tired teenager from Colombia still was trying Saturday to get over the shock of being named Miss Universe.

"It is like a dream — I can't believe it," said Luz Marina Zuloaga, 19-year-old winner of the coveted beauty crown.

Her brown eyes glistening with excitement and fatigue, Luz confided her joy in rippling Spanish through an interpreter during her first press conference as the world's reigning beauty.

"I am so tired I cannot think," she said. "But who could sleep on such a day?"

For Luz, "such a day" meant a farewell to a sheltered life in which she never has been kissed and never has been out on a date, according to her mother, who accompanied her here. It also meant $11,000 in prize money, a brand new convertible, and contracts worth $6,000 from pageant sponsors.

Saturday, the full-bosomed Latin beauty was mobbed by crowds of newsmen and spectators and was surrounded by a flying wedge of muscular policemen as she trotted through an exhausting schedule of appointments.

* * * *

BETWEEN ROUNDS, she managed to give some charming answers to a great many rather trite questions.

What were her first thoughts on awakening after the two-hour nap which followed her coronation?

"I thought that I must dress very quickly because there was so much to do," she said.

And the man in her life?

"There is no man—yet," she replied. "But he must be an ordinary-looking man, and neat. A good man, and a hard-working man."

Asked if she knew that her country had exploded into such wild celebration of her victory

Sharp New Battle Erupts in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP)—Sharp fighting broke out Saturday night between Lebanese security forces and opposition rebels near the presidential palace and government buildings in the heart of Beirut.

U. S. troops who landed in Lebanon last week were not involved.

The security forces and the rebels exchanged mortar and machinegun fire across Capitol Square where the postoffice is located.

Small arms fire and the chattering of machineguns also broke the quiet in the Sinayeh quarter, just three blocks from the presidential palace.

In the Zarif sector, there was small arms fire from three directions. The Associated Press building was in the center of lines of fire.

Early reports said the only casualty in two hours of shooting was a girl wounded by a stray bullet.

Youth, Stricken at Party, Dies

A 17-year-old youth died mysteriously Saturday night after being stricken at a birthday swimming party at the home of friends, police reported.

Balloonists 'Televise' Space at 80,000 Feet

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP) — A pair of cheerful balloonists floated high above the edge of a thunderstorm area Saturday night, chiding tracking crews who were waiting out a severe weather forecast.

Navy Cmdr. Malcolm Ross and M. Lee Lewis, a former Navy balloonist, were lofted to 80,000 feet by the balloon launched near Crosby, Minn., before dawn. In their glistening gondola, they floated across quiet Minnesota skies sending back to earth America's first stratosphere television pictures.

By 9:30 p.m., CDT, the balloon had drifted 130 miles west of the launching site.

Ross and Lewis are carrying out a maze of technical experiments aimed at paving the way to space travel.

The gleaming white aluminum gondola, is a round ball about seven feet in diameter. It is equipped to provide them with ground level pressure, a facility called a necessity for future space travel.

Riding quietly with them were 10,000 insects, sent up for cosmic ray tests.

Plans called for the balloon to stay up all night and descend near Aberdeen, S. D., about noon today.

L.A.C. Says:

Comprehensive Medical Insurance

In a series of three articles the Saturday Evening Post has outlined the latest development in over-all medical insurance. It tells of the rapid growth in such insurance over the past several years. The new plan for Long Beach city employes is an example of the way medical insurance has changed the past five years.

Some of our readers will recall that over 10 years ago this writer advocated a deductible medical insurance plan—like deductible insurance on an automobile. We suggested policies which provided that the insured family pay the first 5 per cent of its income in any year for its medical bills and that all above that be covered by a comprehensive policy. There were no such policies available then.

Now the Post articles show many of our best insurance companies are offering deductible policies. Broadly they provide that each person insured pay up to $50 a year of total medical bills and thereafter the insurance would pay 80 per cent or 85 per cent of all costs above that. The insured can use any doctor or hospital.

Under the Long Beach plan provided by local doctors and the CPS fees are set for all doctor charges. It is estimated over 85 per cent of all local osteopathic and medical doctors are members of this plan. The system of setting fees for all categories of medical treatments is spreading from the initial system set up by Long Beach doctors.

The Post articles give instances where insurance is misused by some doctors and patients. It tells of doctors who raise their rates when they know the patient is insured. They tell of patients insisting on unnecessary medical care and hospitalization because they say "I have paid for this insurance for five years and intend getting some of my money back." The length of time in hospitals for insured is longer than for those without insurance. It is pointed out that very seldom is it found a person sets his house on fire to collect for insurance. But there are many instances of misuse of medical and unemployment insurance.

These are factors which have caused the cost of such insurance to be continually raised. Under a plan submitted to the city employees the comprehensive policy would cost annually $81.36 for the employee—$178.68 for the employee and one dependent and $210.36 for the employee with two or more dependents. Thus, the cost for the coverage of three or more in a family would be more than 5 per cent of a $4,000 income. The city can pay only the portion for the employee—not his dependents.

This type of insurance written by many companies is protection against catastrophic illness or accidents which have impoverished many families. It is not available to individuals at present. Only groups can secure such coverage. But as the plans are perfected and experience gained it is reasonable to believe such plans will soon be available to all individuals who are insurable.

The great danger is that government will attempt to provide plans which will in effect mean socialized medicine. Plans are now before Congress to provide medical care for all who are on old-age retirement. The cost would come out of reserves of the OASI funds which are now running short of meeting old-age pensions from annual social security taxes. It could mean the start of regimented medical services which very few Americans would like. However, plans must be provided to cover the retired people before we can say the problem has been solved.

The growth of present comprehensive plans has been spectacular. It is doubtful many people realize how they have progressed the past five years. It is a challenge to insurance companies, doctors, hospitals and patients. Unless the plans are honestly and wisely used they will collapse because of their cost. If they are properly used the goal of protection from catastrophic medical bills will soon be reached. This can be done under free enterprise and the freedom of the patients to choose their doctors and hospitals—which does not apply under state medicine.—L. A. C.

New Yorker Inherits X15 Flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (UPI)—The death of Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe in a plane crash Saturday places the burden of being the Air Force's first man in outer space on a dark-haired, 34-year-old flier from New York City.

He is Capt. Robert M. White, an eight-time winner of the Air Medal.

White was the "back-up" pilot behind Kincheloe in the Air Force's outer space training program being conducted here.

There were only three men in the program. The third is Capt. Robert A. Rushworth, 33, of Madison, Me. He was until Saturday the "follow-on" man, according to an Air Force spokesman.

* * * *

THE SPOKESMAN said that White, as Kincheloe's successor, will try to crack outer space with North American Aviation Inc.'s X15, which has not yet been tested.

The initial test will be made by North American Pilot Scott Crossfield, who, according to the spokesman, will "demonstrate its performance in the known regimes of flight."

Then it will be up to White to crack the barrier.

Born in New York City, White was graduated from New York University in 1951 with a degree in electrical engineering.

He joined the Air Corps in 1942 and flew on 52 combat missions in Germany and France during World War II with the 355th fighter group.

* * * *

IN FEBRUARY, 1945, he was shot down and spent the remainder of the war in Stalag 7A in Muesberg, Bavaria, Germany. Freed at the end of the war, he left the service in December, 1945, but was recalled to active duty during the Korean conflict in May, 1951.

In January, 1952, he was sent to Japan, where he remained until July, 1953, flying with the 40th Interceptor Squadron. He came back to the United States in 1954 to attend the Air University, of Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

He was graduated from the experimental flight test pilot school here in January, 1955, and has been a test pilot ever since.

* * * *

HE IS MARRIED and has one son, Gregory, 3.

Rushworth, a veteran of 14 years in the air force, saw duty in the China-Burma-India theater in World War II. He is a graduate of the University of Maine, holds a degree in mechanical engineering and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal twice.

A graduate of the U. S. air force institute of technology in Dayton, Ohio, in 1955, he is married and has a daughter, Cheri, 1.

Kincheloe had said many times that he wanted to be one of the first men in space.

* * * *

"THE X15 WILL BRING back data for orbital flight," he once said.

When asked about someday flying around the earth in orbit like a satellite, the big blond jet ace said:

"I definitely want to be part of orbital flying."

Kincheloe, born in Detroit, Mich., lived near the base with his wife and year-old son, Robert Carl. His wife is expecting another child.

Kincheloe, whose face was once described as belonging on an Air Force recruiting poster, became the United States' 10th jet ace in Korea. Before his combat tour ended, he destroyed 11 Communist planes.

His medals included the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster and four Air Medals.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Iven C. Kincheloe, live near Cassopolis, Mich.

KINCHELOE WAS a member of a three-man team of space pioneers training to take the X15 into the inky never-never land on the fringe of space.

The others are Scott Crossfield of North American Aviation Corp. and Joseph Walker, senior pilot for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

They were the "first team" in the United States' project to send a manned aircraft into the mysterious void beyond the earth's atmosphere.

CAPT. IVEN KINCHELOE
Dies on Routine Hop

* * * *

AT CASSOPOLIS, MICH., Kincheloe's father, Iven, said his son always was "more or less fatalistic about the danger of flying." He said he did not know what funeral arrangements would be made but added that his son had expressed a wish to be buried in the family plot at Cassopolis.

The elder Kincheloe said his son took his first airplane ride when he was four years old after talking his father into letting him go up with a stunt flyer who had landed on the family farm.

By the time he was 14 Kincheloe was taking flying lessons.

He was Michigan's only jet ace.

Von Braun Delivers Rush Job

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—The Army's successful launching of Explorer IV was another rush job.

Dr. Wernher von Braun told reporters after Saturday's shoot that the Army received the go-ahead on the special radiation experiment for the satellite late in April.

"We were given permission to dig deeper after Explorer III relayed back some surprising data on an intense field of radiation some 600 miles in outer space."

"We had to come up with an entirely new instrumentation system for this satellite, and we did it in eight weeks."

HE ALSO announced that the Army has been authorized to work on three more satellite projects — another radiation test, a balloon flight and a cosmic ray experiment similar to Explorer I.

Dr. William R. Lovelace, a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and a pioneer in man's space research, said the Explorer IV test should show medical specialists how to protect man from the severe radiation.

America's newest satellite contained two geiger counters and two scintillated instruments which should give scientists a complete picture of the radiation phenomena at different intensities.

The instrumentation system was conceived, developed and built in the short span of time by Dr. James Van Allen's physics department at the State University of Iowa.

U.S. Explorer IV Flies Over Russia

were not "sophisticated" enough, however, to provide certain identification of the radiation.

Extremely small recorders will report for the first time just what the radiation hazard is.

Scientists said Explorer IV's orbit is the steepest (farthest north) that is possible to achieve in firings from Canaveral, although the "ideal orbit" would be over the poles.

On its first flight around the earth, Explorer IV's radio broadcasts were recorded at Woomera, Australia; San Diego, Calif.; Temple City, Calif.; Pasadena, Calif.; Huntsville, Ala.; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Fort Belvoir, Va., and Blossom Point, Md.

THE NEW moon's orbit will carry it over the lower quarter of Russia, all of the United States, and most of the Southern Hemisphere.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German scientist who helped develop the Jupiter C Missile, said "all indications" are that Explorer IV is operating normally. Von Braun told a news conference held several hours after the launching that the missile was pointed in the northern-most course possible without sending it over the United States immediately after firing.

It traveled in an orbit ranging from 51 degrees north to 51 degrees south, covering all of the United States, most of South America, and parts of Canada, Africa and Australia.

* * * *

AFTER RISING above its launching pad on the banks of the Atlantic Ocean here, the missile turned northeast. It passed just east of Cape Hatteras, N. C., and the New England coast.

Explorer IV joined the United States' Vanguard I and Explorer I—both on a more equator-hugging orbit — and Russia's Sputnik III in circling the earth.

Dr. W. R. Lovelace II, of Albuquerque, N. M., a medical member of the National Advancement Committee for Aeronautics, told newsmen that his group is trying to figure out the hazards a man will have to undergo in space. He said "we could not go ahead with the design of a space survival capsule for living creatures until we know what is involved in the radiation problem."

" . . . a great new American style," said House and Garden Magazine in describing this beautiful collection of over 50 living, dining and bedroom items. Inspired by the grace of traditional American designs, the California team of Stewart and MacDougall have created a fresh new look in home furnishings. The subtle beauty of richly grained hand-rubbed walnut highlights the group which also features such luxuries as rosewood inlays, built-in lighting, porcelain pulls, latches that click securely shut and open at a finger's touch. Even more important, quality-constructed "Declaration" by Drexel is moderately priced.

Busy, Busy Day for New Miss U

Enough to test any Miss Universe contestant — and especially the new Miss Universe the day after being crowned— is the full round of activities with little time for rest. Leaving her hotel room for a morning breath of fresh air (upper left), Luz Marina Zuloaga is surrounded by newsmen. A pre-breakfast dip is delayed momentarily (upper right) as she chats with Gladys Zender (in black suit), Miss Universe 1958. Emil Kollhopp serves the hungry beauty queen (left) ham and eggs. He's executive chef at the Lafayette Hotel. Getting ready to make personal appearance at Long Beach Fiesta Days float, Miss Universe takes time (at right) to squeeze hand of Eurlyne Howell, (Miss U.S.A.). Hurrying back to the hotel, the queen of the universe dresses quickly and in time (below) to receive corsage from her escort to the Coronation Ball. Big Morongo Canyon Ablaze

MORONGO VALLEY (AP) — A brush fire broke out Saturday at the 4,500-foot level of Big Morongo Canyon in San Bernardino County and quickly burned up steep walls to 6,000 feet.

Forest Ranger W. W. Skinner said 300 acres of brush and scattered light timber had been consumed by evening.

Because of difficult terrain, he estimated it might take two days to control the blaze. The area is desolate and no structures were endangered.

Boy, 16, Recalls 10 Burglaries, Then Loses Count

Police have arrested a 16-year-old youth who recalls burglarizing about 10 West Long Beach homes and then "losing count."

The boy was taken into custody on a tip supplied to officers who found he was linked to as many as 19 burglaries. He was booked in Juvenile Bureau for investigation.

Detective Insp. Charles C. Sullans said the youth may have worked with a man on almost all the burglaries.

Miss U Girls Packing Today

Miss Universe contestants—some with aching arches—today begin packing to go home.

The frantic, but joyful, 10 days of the seventh annual beauty competition ended in a swirl of pretty dresses, rhumbas and fox trots at the Miss U Coronation Ball Saturday night at the Lafayette Hotel.

Prettiest girl at the ball—according to the judges Friday—was Luz Marina Zuloaga (Miss Universe 1959).

The new Miss Universe and the 79 other girls who competed in the biggest beauty extravaganza in the world were escorted to and from the ballroom by Naval Air Cadets from Pensacola, Fla.

* * * *

MISS UNIVERSE, object of the judges' searching glances before winning her title Friday night, Saturday got down to studying a few figures herself.

The dollars - and - cents kind, that is.

Pageant officials reported the brown-haired, brown-eyed beauty has agreed to a $6,000 contract to travel for Max Factor, Hollywood, for six months in South America, and a $5,000 contract to tour the United States for Catalina, Inc., next year.

That's a few dollars above the minimum contract wage guaranteed the new wearer of the Miss Universe crown. About $2,500 more, in fact.

Eurlyne Howell (Miss U.S.A.) was said to have been offered movie screen tests and Geri Hoo (Miss Hawaii) was said to be considering a possible contract with Max Factor for personal appearances.

Miss Universe also will receive a $2,500 cash award from Max Factor and a Chevrolet V-8 convertible from the Long Beach Chevrolet dealers.

* * * *

ADALGISA COLOMBO (Miss Brazil), who was named first runner-up, will receive $1,500 cash plus an additional $1,500 contract for a personal appearance outside the United States, from Max Factor.

Miss Hawaii, second runner-up, will receive $1,400 cash from Max Factor.

Miss U.S.A., third runner-up, receives $1,000 cash, from Max Factor, and Alicja Bobrowska (Miss Poland), fourth runner-up, will get $600 cash, also from Max Factor.

The other 10 Miss Universe semifinalists will receive $100 cash each from Max Factor.

Miss U.S.A. runners-up also are taking home cash.

Marcia Valibus (Miss Florida), first runner-up, gets $500; Judith Carlson (Miss Alabama), second, gets $400; June Pickney (Miss Illinois), third, $300, and Diane Gail Austin (Miss Georgia), fourth, $200, all from Max Factor.

KISSED ONLY ONCE!

That prettiness runs in the family of Luz Marina Zuloaga (Miss Universe) is shown here. The 19-year-old dark-eyed beauty is pictured with her mother who was present when judges ruled her fairest in all the world. Mrs. Zuloaga told newsmen the new Miss Universe has never had a date and never been kissed—except by actor Hugh O'Brian when the contestants toured the 20th Century Fox film studio last week.—(Staff Photo).

New Miss U Can't Believe It--'It Is Like a Dream'

that many thought another revolution had occurred, she laughed and said:

"I am glad they are so happy. It makes me very proud."

From her mother came these details of Luz's past:

She is one of five children from an upper-class family. Her father, a cattle and sugar-cane rancher, died 10 years ago. Until a month ago, she was a student at the Colegio de la Presentacion in her home town of Manizales.

"She is also an excellent cook and housekeeper, a very good equestrienne and tennis player," said Senora Zuloaga.

* * * *

"AND IT IS TRUE that she has never been kissed—except by that actor last week."

"That actor" was TV Westerner Hugh O'Brien, who merely brushed her cheek for a publicity picture.

Luz ended the interview when pageant officials became impatient with newsmen's question's But before she left, she turned, stretched out a hand, and spoke her only words of English:

"Thank you veree much," she said.

* * * *

THEN SHE FOLLOWED her armed guard to the Lafayette pool to display her beauty for photograhers.

And as she posed, another beautiful girl climbed onto the diving board at the other end of the pool to survey the milling crowd of cameramen and spectators.

There was a sound of freedom in Gladys Zender's voice as she waved and called out, "Hello, Miss Universe!" before diving gracefully and disappearing beneath the cool water.

1-Hour Strike Hits Mexico Railways

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's government-owned railway system was paralyzed Saturday by a one-hour nationwide strike. The strike was called by rebellious labor leaders to force the ouster of union officials recognized by the government.

Demetrio Vallejo, who headed the rebellion, said the one-hour strikes will continue daily until his group is recognized as the legal representative of the railroad workers.

resentatives of the Arab states concerned."

Macmillan proposed that the permanent council members—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Nationalist China—begin work "without delay" on a date and the makeup of a summit parley. This work should be in close cooperation with U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, Macmillan said.

DIPLOMATS AGREED after a survey of the Macmillan and De Gaulle notes that differences between the Anglo - American and French positions were mostly "procedural."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who arrived in London Saturday night for Baghdad Pact talks with Britain, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan heads of government, discussed the Mideast crisis in Bonn with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

According to a high Communist source in London, Russia is working on a summit proposal to "neutralize" parts of the Middle East through a small, international supervisory body.

KHRUSHCHEV REPLY DUE

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is expected to fire an outraged reply to President Eisenhower's latest note on a summit conference within the United Nations.

The tone of Soviet reaction to Eisenhower's note was indicated by Tass News Agency, which accused Eisenhower of trying to back out of a summit conference.

Simultaneously, the official news agency accused the Western press of trying to scare Khrushchev away with stories of possible hostile demonstrations if the Soviet premier goes to New York.

In a report from its New York correspondent, Tass said Eisenhower wants to back out of a summit conference "in such a way that blame for the breakdown falls on the Soviet Union."

U.N. CIRCLES SEE N.Y. MEET

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — U.N. Security Council delegation sources expressed belief Saturday night the council will hold a summit meeting in New York on the Middle East crisis despite French Premier De Gaulle's preference for a big power conference in Europe.

Some said the meeting may start in a week or two.

Two such sources, talking with a reporter, pointed out that in stating his preference Saturday to Soviet Premier Khrushchev, De Gaulle did not rule out a high-level meeting of the 11-nation council.

Oil Rights Granted

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Enrico Mattei, president of the Italian Petroleum Group, signed an agreement with the Moroccan government Saturday for oil prospecting rights and exploitation and the construction of an oil refinery in Morocco.

Beach Bird Not Florida Flamingo

Note to Florida: the flamingo reported seen near Tin Can Beach here is not one of the pair presented to Long Beach Mayor Raymond Kealer by Miss Florida last Saturday.

The long-legged red bird was reported seen in the marshes near the Bolsa Chica Gun Club today by Seal Beach Police.

A check revealed the two birds given Mayor Kealer had been turned over to Marineland of the Pacific. Both are thriving and apparently happy at the Palos Verdes aquarium, Marineland officials said.

Where the Orange County flamingo came from is anybody's guess. The birds are natives of the semi - tropical Florida everglades.

$284 Loot in Compton Robbery

COMPTON—A bandit wearing a silk-stocking mask held up the woman manager of a Western Union telegraph office here Saturday night and looted a cash drawer and safe of $284.

Jinx Swoboda, 27, night manager of the office at 207 W. Compton Blvd., said the man pulled out a small - caliber pistol.

When she offered him the money in her purse, he ordered her to open the cash drawer and safe. After collecting the money the robber ordered her into a back room and told her he would kill her if she didn't remain there for 10 minutes.

Miss Swoboda described the bandit as 25 to 30 years old, six feet, one inch tall, and weighing 190 pounds.

Six Injured in Collision of Three Cars

James W. Orr, 34, of 16879 A St., Huntington Beach, one driver, was tossed from his car. He was taken to Hoag Memorial Hospital in critical condition.

Also hospitalized was Mrs. Mrs. Marjorie Siefkin, 24, of Yorba Linda, who was in a car driven by her husband, Henry, 26. Siefkin and Paul J. Richards, 17, of Whittier, driver of the third car, and two of Richards' passengers, Phillip Kirk and Michael Stover, both 16, of Whittier, all were treated and released.

Police said Orr's automobile ran a boulevard stop and crashed into the side of the Siefkin's car. The impact pushed the second car into the path of Richards' auto.

Yugo Beauty Doesn't Get 'Miss' Title

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia Saturday night elected its most beautiful girl of the year but she will not be known as "Miss Yugoslavia."

This Communist country disapproves of the western custom of "Miss" contests, and it will call its queen simply "Lepotica 1958," meaning "Beauty 1958."

A jury of 11 men and women, including theater stars and sculptors, had the job of picking the beauty from 16 girls who paraded before them in bathing suits and evening gowns.

A majority vote gave the title to 20-year-old Sasha Dabetic, a raven-haired Zagreb student.

Postpone Thrift Shop's Opening

The shop is a project of Community Rehabilitation Industries, 1438 E. Anaheim St., nonprofit organization which trains handicapped persons for jobs in industry.

Symington Riles Democrats

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington's campaign billboards have irritated city Democratic leaders and they have decided a big fund-raising dinner here Sept. 20 will not be in his honor, as first planned.

The campaign signs include a large portrait of the Missouri Democratic senator and the terse message: "Re-elect Senator Symington." His party affiliation isn't mentioned.

Several members of the Democratic City Central Committee protested heatedly against the billboards in a meeting. The committee then adopted a carefully-worded resolution, redrafted several times, specifying the dinner shouldn't be in honor of any "national candidate."

The $25 and $100-a-plate dinner was first announced as a testimonial to Symington, boomed in some quarters as a possible candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

The committee chairman, City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, said Saturday that when the matter of the senator's billboards came up, "I had to agree that when a man runs as a Democrat he ought to say he's a Democrat."

150,000 Witnesses Swarm in N. Y. City

NEW YORK (AP)—Those tireless preachers—Jehovah's Witnesses — blanketed New York City Saturday, and turned two huge baseball parks into idyllic gardens of trees, flowers and streams.

On many a street corner, you could hear a sermon.

And at Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, both of which are being used for the organization's mass international assembly opening today, the ball fields look more like Elysian fields.

From this country and abroad, the proclaimers of the "New World Kingdom" flooded the city—approximately 150,000 of them.

Busloads rolled into terminals at an overwhelming clip of 120 buses an hour much of the day. Sixty-five chartered planes, in addition to regular flights, landed at airports.

• • • •

THOUSANDS came by ship, including two transatlantic vessels chartered especially for the affair—the Swiss liners Arosa Star and Arosa Kulm. They docked Friday.

Eight entire chartered trains brought other contingents, and a caravan of 18,000 automobiles threaded its way into Manhattan. The influx packed hotels, and overflowed them.

Convention spokesmen said about 60,000 participants were lodged in hotels, and more than 70,000 quartered in private homes.

Sticking to their year-around evangelistic pursuits, the visitors lost no time in going to work on the big city.

Every full-fledged member is considered a minister, and in the style they've made a trademark, they fanned out to declare their message on street corners, in plazas and parks.

• • • •

WHEN THE curtain rises this morning on their gigantic "divine will" convention, it will be an arresting display—not only in numbers but in stage effects.

Both baseball parks, linked by an elaborate sound system, have been transformed into scenes of pastoral splendor.

In Yankee Stadium, a waterfall splashes down from an artificial mountain range and flows into a lake over third base. A rustic bridge arcs over it. White columns stand behind the brick-like main stage.

In the Polo Grounds, a simulated marble wall, 26 feet high, runs along the park-like setting, with its leafy arbors, smooth pink benches and large outdoor vases like something out of the palace grounds of ancient Rome. There's a pool, and an old-fashioned well with a bucket and rope.

Colorful native costumes blended with western dress among the delegates, who come from 120 countries, about 36,000 of them from overseas.

THE ORGANIZATION, legally constituted as the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, has about 716,000 active ministers, 208,260 of them in this country in 3,718 congregations, or "Kingdom Halls."

The society's president, Nathan H. Knorr, is the lifetime successor of Judge Joseph F. Rutherford, who died in 1952, after serving from 1916, when the founder, Charles Taze Russell, died. The organization dates from 1878.

Followers are avid students of the Bible, and also have various distinguishing beliefs. They spurn such titles as "reverend," "father" and rabbi" as unscriptural.

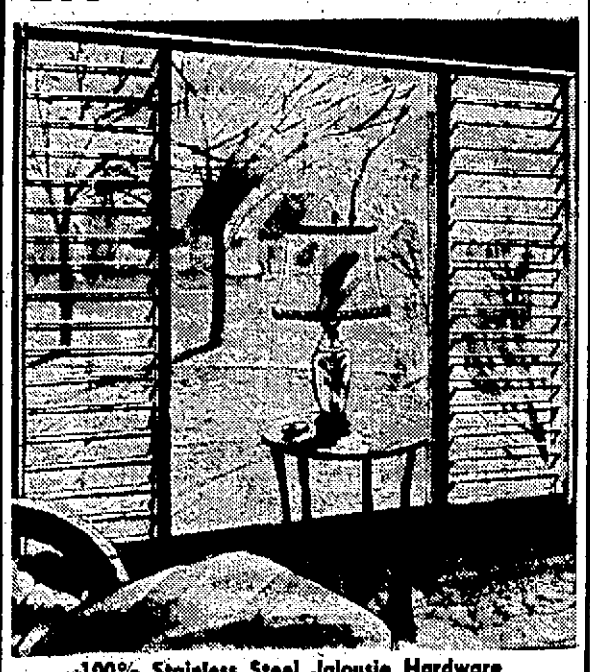

Because of their conviction that they owe allegiance only to God, they repeatedly have come into conflict with the law, as in their refusal to bear arms or salute the Flag.

Waxworks to Get Premier at Last

LONDON (UPI) — London's famous Madame Tussaud's waxworks may at long last have a model of a postwar French premier on display.

"We are making a model of premier Gen. Charles de Gaulle," a spokesman said. "He may be the first in exhibition since the war. None of the others has lasted long enough. If we had tried to keep with the changes, we would have had no time for anything else."

Nixon Won't Campaign for California's GOPs

By BILL BROOM
of I.P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Vice President Nixon has ruled out a big campaign tour in behalf of Republican candidates in California. He believes he can do more good by raising funds and masterminding from headquarters here than by fighting from the trenches.

The Vice President's plans are outlined in a confidential memo prepared for the guidance of GOP candidates, obtained exclusively by The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau.

While Nixon believes it imperative for the party to reverse big gains made by the Democrats in the primary election, he will confine his assistance to a major fund-raising effort. His goal is $1 million. Appearances at $100-a-plate dinners in early October at San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego have been scheduled.

The Vice President is said to feel that he personally cannot be decisive in the California campaign because he will not be on the ticket as a candidate.

In his analysis, the party's candidate for governor, Sen. William F. Knowland, is the key to GOP fortunes. And Nixon has prepared a blueprint for the Knowland campaign, even to the extent of outlining a "basic speech" for the senator.

Nixon also plans to work on Gov. Goodwin Knight in an effort to heal his personal breach with Knowland and thus restore harmony to Republican ranks. The Vice President has consistently hammered at the "unity" theme in frequent conferences with members of the state's congressional delegation since the June 3 primary.

NIXON
He'll Raise Money

The confidential memorandum, prepared by one who has been in close and intimate contact with Nixon for the past two weeks, maps out a campaign emphasizing the personal shortcomings of Knowland's opponent, Atty. Gen. Edmund (Pat) Brown, and the "ultra-liberal" background of California Democratic leaders.

It calls for Knowland and other Republican candidates to destroy "the public image of Brown as a safe man" who can attract support from conservative Democrats and liberal Republicans. As a corollary, the memorandum concludes that Brown should be challenged to "repudiate fanatical left-wingers in the CIO-ADA crowd who control the Democratic party and wish to socialize California."

The Vice President is also said to believe that Knowland has won all the support he is going to win from the "right to work" issue. This could now be soft-pedaled, it is said, and emphasis placed on the senator's 13-point program for "union democracy" through new state labor laws.

Staying above the battle, so to speak, would be a new role for Nixon. As the party's most dynamic spokesman, he led the attack on Democrats by taking the stump in the 1954 off-year elections.

His decision was said to have been influenced by the large number of appeals for help from Republicans all over the nation and by the necessity to remain close to Washington throughout the Middle East crisis. Invitations have come in from 18 states. Wherever possible, Nixon will attempt to help in the same way as in California—through fund-raising efforts.

Boron Smuggled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department Saturday named boron as the U.S.-produced strategic commodity most often diverted to Communist countries in violation of the export-control law.

The Bureau of Foreign Commerce said this item, used in rocket fuels, has been illegally shipped behind the Iron Curtain in the form of borax and boric acid.

Editor Reports Revolt Details

you to the Ministry of Information and you can get news to send to The Associated Press. But I must go now because of the curfew."

That afternoon the strangers who were cooped in as fellow guests began exchanging the reports and rumors they had heard:

The British Embassy had been burned out; British, Americans, some other foreigners had been killed. Some of the reports came from the Iraqui government radio, whose continuous statements about the revolution were translated by the Iraquis who had the less-skilled jobs in the hotel and whose English was rather inadequate; some came from European members of the hotel staff who had been outside part of the morning; some came from guests who had seen Iraqui acquaintances or people at other hotels.

* * * *

THE BIG UNCERTAINTY was whether the army division which had taken control of Baghdad and begun the revolution would receive support or encounter opposition from the greater part of the army, most of it to the north. Some of us with experience in other countries realized only too well that a fight between different units of the army, or anything else which lifted army control from Baghdad, would result in the lowest elements of the city running wild in an orgy of looting, murder and destruction. Foreigners would be prime targets.

The streets emptied gradually that afternoon. Individuals and small groups up to three or four were seen long after the one o'clock curfew. The radio announced that the next day everything was to be business as usual. But in the hotel the night was uneasy.

The next morning, the vacant lot across the street from my room was a tangle of parked cars. Many people were on the street. But the people stood talking together, often with excited gestures, instead of moving about normally. About 9:30 my friend came in his automobile for me.

"We'll see if we can get to the Ministry of Information," he said. Several blocks along we came to a traffic circle, where a street coming from a bridge over the Tigris River intersected the one we were on. Two tanks were parked at the circle: Crew members sat on top of the tanks and sprawled on the grass of the circle nursing sub-machine guns and rifles.

* * * *

UP AHEAD of us, several men started running in the direction we were headed. In a moment, it seemed, the movement spread our way. Hastily, my friend turned up a narrow side street.

We got onto a street parallel with the first one, to try to continue in the direction we wanted. Once again something beyond our sight started the formation on the run of another crowd. Again my friend took to a narrow side street.

"I don't think we better try to go to the ministry now," he said.

"We'll go to a newspaper office." I followed him into a winding lane so narrow that if I had spread my arms wide I would have touched the walls on each side at some places. From the corner of my eye I watched nervously the people we met. But, as they seemed to pay no particular attention to me, I relaxed. "This is a part of the old city," my friend explained as we turned off into another lane in which overhanging enclosed balconies almost met at places.

* * * *

THE NEWSPAPER office was in small rooms on the second floor of an old building. My friend took me into one office where I met a couple of men who could speak a little English. One was a sports editor, another some sort of departmental editor. I was asked to sit down. From time to time other men came into the office, several of them apparently connected with the papers but others not.

I was offered an American soft drink. The editors settled down to work, one writing Arabic with a pen from right to left on coarse copy paper. My friend said it would be all right if I just stayed there while he went off on an errand.

PRESIDENT NASSER
His Picture Was Paraded

Interruptions came frequently for the working editors. Men who came in beamed, sometimes embraced those already there. One newcomer and a man in the room kissed each other noisily on the lips. The feeling between them seemed to be of intense jubilation, perhaps somewhat quieted since the day before but still intense.

* * * *

ANOTHER ROUND of soft drinks. In pauses, men talked to me about the government that had been overthrown, of corruption and "thieves" in high places, that the rulers of the Hashemite family had been imposed on Iraq by the British after World War II when Iraq supposedly was to be a free nation.

"It was a police state," they said again and again. "They had spies on the people. A report by even an unimportant policeman against you could mean a stop to your business, maybe you would be put in prison. Our written constitution has in it the same freedoms you have in America; but the people who controlled the government did not carry out what was in the constitution."

The radio had offered a 10,000 dinar ($28,000) reward for information leading to the capture of Nuri Said, former prime minister.

* * * *

"I THOUGHT HE was supposed to be an honest man," I said of this Iraqi, who had been the strongman of his country. "Perhaps so," was the answer, "but he defended and kept in high places men he knew were crooks."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because he needed them to keep his power," was the answer.

Another editor came in with a small camera. "The pictures in here are worth a million dollars," he said, as he slapped the camera. He took out the film and gave it to someone to be developed. Then he took out of a drawer a picture which he passed to those in the office and which caused much talk in Arabic. I finally held out my hand.

* * * *

IT WAS A PICTURE across the heads of a crowd in a small plaza, apparently taken from the second or third floor of some building in dim light. "What is it?" I asked.

"The naked body of the Crown Prince Abdul Ilah is hanging there on the other side."

"I couldn't see where, until it was pointed out to me: a darkish thin oval whose lower end was about even with heads of the crowd hung from a rope attached to an upper balcony.

Explorer IV Expected to Live 5 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. scientists estimated Saturday that on the basis of preliminary data, America's newest satellite, Explorer IV, might remain aloft four or five years.

From satellite radio signals monitored by stations on earth, scientists estimated Explorer IV's orbit at between 80 and 100 miles at the lowest point and approximately 1,300 miles at the highest.

Defense Department scientists said an altitude range of 120 to 1,300 miles would mean a five-year life for the new satellite — an 80-inch tube weighing 38.43 pounds.

Dr. James Van Allen of Iowa State University, one of the new satellite's leading developers, said, however, there is a possibility it could be short-lived—depending on the orbit finally achieved.

* * * *

EXPLORER IV was launched at an agle intended to give it an orbit ranging from a minimum distance of 180 miles to a maximum of 1,200.

Van Allen said initial data indicated the satellite is circling the earth in approximately 112 minutes at speeds ranging from 14,000 to 18,000 miles an hour, depending on the altitude.

At a news conference shortly after the launching at Cape Canaveral, Van Allen said the launching angle would assure much wider geographic coverage of the earth than by previous U.S. satellites. This, he said, is highly important in the satellite's No. 1 task—collecting data on deadly radiation in outer space.

Other scientists at the news conference said the particular launching angle used was as steep as could safely be made from the East Coast. But Dr. Herbert York of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency said that eventually satellite and other launchings will be made from the West Coast. However, he added "I can't say whether these will take place this year or not."

Van Allen and others said they would have preferred an even steeper orbit for Explorer IV as an aid toward more extensive study of the radiation. But they said the one chosen was the steepest they could employ from the Cape Canaveral site.

* * * *

WHILE EARLIER Explorer satellites had shown the presence of the strange radiation, Van Allen said a good deal more needs to be learned about it, including the energy of the radiation particles and their intensity—meaning the number of rays that strike a given area in a given time.

He said newly devised instruments aboard the new satellite would be capable of recording intensities between 1,000 and 5,000 times greater than those in the previous Explorers.

One of the devices aboard Explorer IV, Van Allen said, consists of a pair of radiation counters, one unshielded, the other protected by lead one millimeter thick. The difference in readings is expected to provide a measure of lead's effectiveness against the strange emanations.

Here is an official Department of Defense cutaway drawing of Explorer IV which was launched Saturday at Cape Canaveral, Fla. The 38.43-pound satellite was the largest put into orbit by the United States so far.—(AP)

UTAH CITIES INVADED BY STINK BUGS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Hordes of foul-smelling stink bugs invaded Utah cities and towns Saturday from nearby desert regions.

The bugs first were reported in Tooele, about 40 miles southwest of here, but later began moving into Salt Lake City and other areas of north central Utah.

Policeman Lynn Henwood said the bugs arrived about 2 a.m. and within an hour the main street of Tooele was crawling with the green-tinted insects.

SALVATIONISTS IN CAMP MEETING

5,000 'Soldiers' Invade L.B.

REVIVAL MEETINGS AT AUDITORIUM

Sounding the call for the Salvation Army's annual old-fashioned revival camp meeting, under way at Municipal Auditorium, are Marjorie Deeth and Tom Petersen, both of Long Beach. The nine-day meeting will feature internationally known religious speakers and music by the well known New York Staff Salvation Army Band, one of the finest brass groups in the nation.

An old-fashioned revival camp meeting—almost a thing of the past in this generation—is under way at Municipal Auditorium.

Sponsoring the meeting is the Salvation Army. An estimated 5,000 "soldiers" has invaded the city—on a mission of peace and good will.

Delegates to the sessions, which end Aug. 2, are here from every state and Canada.

Meetings are scheduled daily, 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., in the auditorium Concert Hall.

Featured are such well-known Salvation Army officers as the national commander, Commissioner Norman S. Marshall; eastern territorial commander, Commissioner Holland French; western territorial commander, Lt. Commissioner Samuel Hepburn; divisional commander for Southern California, Lt. Col. William J. Parkins; Mrs. General Albert Orsborn, wife of the Army's former general, and Col. Albert Dalziel, Toronto, Canada, evangelist.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHT of the opening weekend services is the appearance of the New York Staff Band of the Army. The all-brass group, believed to be finest of its kind in the country, will play at a Festival of Music at 3 p.m. today.

Holiness meeting is set for 10:30 a.m. and a salvation meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Monday night, a program billed as a Great Music Festival featuring the New York Staff Band begins at 8 p.m. The band, which appeared earlier at Disneyland, returns to the East Tuesday.

A women's rally is slated Tuesday night. Speaker will be Mrs. Orsborn, of London, England.

A youth rally is slated for Wednesday night and speaking will be Sr. Capt. Robert McNally, dynamic young Salvation Army officer of New York City. He has won acclaim for his boys' band in the metropolis.

Congress Aspirant Rips Ike's 'Mideast Blunder'

By BOB HOUSER

Dr. Harry S. May, Democratic nominee for Congress in the Long Beach-Lakewood 18th District, attacked the Eisenhower Administration's "Middle East blunder brawl" Saturday.

"Today we are in the awkward position," May said, "of begging Great Britain and France to prop us up while we sit uncomfortably on the Middle Eastern powder keg. Today we rationalize and try to justify military actions which we condemned in our allies in 1956.

* * * *

"IT MUST BE deeply embarrassing to the men around Ike to admit today that they should have acted two years ago during the Suez crisis, and acted resolutely and firmly when there was an opportunity to stop Dictator Nasser of Egypt who had written a Hitlerian blueprint for the entire Arab Mediterranean basin. At that time, via an ultimatum no less, we forced Great Britain, France and Israel out of Suez while Nasser's head was already on the block. We reprieved him and saved his neck. Today he has become a pain in the neck."

May charged that Eisenhower's "vacillation and indecision on domestic issues, his lack of international vision, have created a situation that can end only in disaster. Both 'modern Republicans' and Knowland dissenters, with the present congressional incumbent numbering among them, share in the blame for this present impasse of our global dilemma.

"Regardless of whether we back our hastily conceived overseas adventure, we must formulate a foreign policy that will salvage American prestige abroad, that will renew efforts of collaboration between real and sincere friends and democratic peoples everywhere.

* * * *

"IF WE HAD BEEN honest for the last six years, we could have saved the Middle East for the democracies, through our Point Four and technical assistance programs we had a chance to encourage Arab nationalism of the kind Bourghiba, a friend of the West, represents in Tunisia, and other democratic elements to escape the shackles of semifeudalism.

"Instead we courted and coddled the wrong few potentates, the harem keepers, slave traders, dictators and would-be tyrants.

"Our appeasement, indecision and makeshift blunderings have only been signs of weakness which gave aid and comfort to all those Middle Eastern aggressors who flirt with Communism and make a shambles of the Eisenhower Doctrine and our traditional alliances."

Relief Offered Wearers of Thick Lensed Glasses

Thousands of people who are wearing unpleasant appearing, thick lensed glasses can now enjoy improved vision and freedom from the burdensome weight of the spectacles, according to vision authorities. They explain that extreme far- and near-sightedness, astigmatism, keratoconus (swelling of the cornea), and postoperative cataract are conditions for which contact lenses are especially good. The field of vision is much greater, and the vision is keener with contact lenses. The thinness and lightness of the new plastic lenses have tremendous cosmetic and functional value, and the psychological effect on the wearer cannot be overemphasized. With a diameter no larger than an eraser tip, modern plastic contact lenses are easy to apply, and they are designed to be worn around the clock. Easy terms. Come in, or write for fascinating booklet. DR. J. M. SOSS, Optometrist (32 years in Long Beach), 37 Pine Avenue. HE 5-6219; HE 6-6739. Offices in Wilmington and Torrance.

POST-PAGEANT PATTER: Latin America continues its conquest of the North. The neighbors down there are just passing the Miss Universe crown around.

Three years ago there was some bitter complaining south of the border, where it was felt their dark-haired beauties weren't getting a fair shake at Long Beach. Now lovely Miss Luz Marina (light of the sea) Zuloaga makes it two in a row for Latin America, which ought to take care of that . . .

It evened the score with the Far North, too. Two from the north Europe (Finland and Sweden), two from South America (Peru and Colombia) two from the U. S. (Carolina and Iowa) and one from France—that's the Miss U record so far . . .

As for me, I wouldn't have minded a victory for Miss Japan this time. She was not only a worthy aspirant — as were all the girls from over the Pacific—but I drew her name in one of those pools. Oh well, I also had half of Miss Colombia, so I'm not complaining. . . .

It would seem what has happened in Long Beach ought to build some improved relations in South America. They'll have to admit their girls were treated better here than our VP was down there . . .

* * * *

BY THE way, the international good will aspect of the Miss Universe event, so much in evidence to observers close at hand, hasn't really gotten through to other parts of the USA yet. It's really a United Nations of Feminine Beauty, and it does a lot better along the lines of international amity than does the UN operation at New York. Making that evident to other areas calls for a good selling job in behalf of the Long Beach pageant.

Some people from the Northwest, here this week, attended the pageant and watched on TV. They reported they had no idea it was anything more than a glorified bathing beauty contest. They're going home, singing the praises of the event as something that carries a real international goodwill wallop . . .

* * * *

BY AND large, it seemed to me that this year's pageant was more smoothly and efficiently operated than any so far—which, I suppose, is the result of experience. More careful supervision from the standpoint of the rules prevented any such blowups as occurred last year, when one girl was disqualified after winning a title, and another title was in jeopardy for a while.

Every detail of the operation was carried through smoothly this time, and the shows, both for the audience in the auditorium and that for TV, were great. The favorable L. B. publicity, of course, is terrific.

* * * *

A CARAVAN has the proverbial "follow the leader" qualities of a band of sheep, a fact that was never more admirably exemplified than by what happened here the other day. In that case, however, it followed the wrong leader.

It was right after they opened the Long Beach Freeway. When the ceremonies closed, a long line of cars formed, carrying various state and city officials and other dignitaries into Long Beach for a luncheon sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Kealer was in the lead car. Right behind him was a car carrying Harbor Commission President Joe Bishop and Harbor Mgr. Charles Vickers. The others were strung out behind.

As the second car came into Ocean Blvd., Bishop told Vickers, who was driving, to break out of the caravan and take him to his place of business. The press of other affairs made it impossible for him to go to the luncheon.

Vickers swung out as requested and was heading for Bishop's office when he happened to glance into the rear-view mirror.

"Do you see what I see?" he asked Bishop.

Sure enough, there was the whole danged caravan, following Bishop-Vickers car. There was nothing to do but to change signals and guide the caravan over to the Lafayette for the luncheon.

When they arrived, Mayor Kealer and companion were standing at the entrance of the parking lot, scratching their heads.

"Where'd everybody go?" the mayor asked.

Blind Children Swim, Play Softball

HE WHO HESITATES . . . But Mark Stokes Is Not Lost

IN THE SWIM . . . 'Look Out Down Deep Below.'

LIFE CAN BE BRIGHT . . . Even Without Sight

By LOU JOBST

There's a world of brightness outside the darkness around Mark and Marcia Stokes, 9-year-old twins, and they want to live in it.

Mark found it in his first awkward dive from a swimming-pool board, and Marcia in the promise she can learn to rock-and-roll when she's old enough.

"Dad calls doing these things 'shelter-busting'," explained the freckle-faced Mark.

"You know how people always say we live a sheltered life," added Marcia, tugging on a white bathing cap with a pink carnation pinned to the strap.

Their swimming instructor, Mrs. Anne Simkins, shouted, "Come down to this end, kids!"

The sister and brother paused uncertainly, felt for the edge of the wall and headed off toward the voice.

Mark and Marcia are blind.

But you'd have to be told to believe it.

And that's a tribute to the Blind Youth Activities Club, a Long Beach-area organization dedicated to adapting sightless children to a normal society.

The BYA was formed a year ago by the Parents of the Blind, a local organization of adults that grew out of the need for group discussion of the problems faced in rearing blind children.

"We soon discovered that the need for physical exercises and recreational activities for normal, healthy bodies and a way to give the children a sense of belonging were repeated concerns," explained Dr. Roy Stokes, president of the parents' group and father of Marcia and Mark.

"Society views the blind with pity, but is reluctant to accept the sightless on an equal basis," added Norris Anderson of 4614 Lavante St., Long Beach, a professional soldier who gave up his military career and moved to Long Beach when he learned that his son, Wayne, 9, was going blind. "Since we can't change the culture, we decided to adapt our children to it."

The results have been amazing. By capitalizing on the keen development of the other senses—hearing, touch and smell—the BYA has been able to teach sightless children a wide range of normal and complicated activities such as dancing, swimming, archery, charm-school modeling and softball.

The latter is typical of the ingenious innovations. An oversized ball with a bell attached is used and each player is given a wooden stick to rap on the wooden bases with. Fielders and runners must yell when moving.

Realizing the wide differences in interests in preadulthood years, the 105 members of the BYA have been divided into two groups, one for pre-teeners and another for teenagers.

Counseling is the key to both programs. One adult instructor is needed to each three children as compared to the 1-to-30 ratio for sighted youngsters. Most of the counselors and instructors are parents of blind, but several are volunteers from outside the organization.

One such volunteer is Mrs. Anne Simkins of 3209 Studebaker Rd., the mother of two normal boys and director of the BYA swimming program. Although she had taught swimming for years, it was necessary to devise an entirely new means of instruction.

Mrs. Simkins uses sound and touch extensively. For instance, children are told to whistle into their hands to communicate the idea of bubbles caused by breathing in the water.

Many obstacles must be overcome and the process is often slow. The inherent fear of water is accented when children have no visual conception of what causes the pressure around their bodies.

"But they have their own advantages," explains Mrs. Simkins. "They don't mind being jostled in a crowded pool. They're used to being bumped into."

For the patient and persistent student there is the reward of independence when he becomes competent enough to swim in a public pool without direct supervision.

Summed up Counselor Simkins:

"These children have a remarkable desire to excel and a heart-touching need for recognition and acceptance.

"When I approve of their performances they won't just take my word for it.

"They have to feel the smile on my face."

1,500 Southland Reservists Train as Army Logisticians

Special Unit Solves Problems of Supply for Defensive Force of 400,000 Soldiers

By JAMES ALLEN
I, P-T Military Editor

Fifteen hundred Southern California Army reservists have been solving problems of supply—the bugaboo of military commanders for 2,000 years—in a huge summer exercise during the past two weeks at Camp Roberts.

The reservists, many of them from Long Beach, are attached to the 311th Logistical Command, largest Army headquarters reserve unit in the nation. Their training is part of a specialized logistics program which the Army has conducted since 1949 to avoid supply errors which have plagued armies in the past.

* * * *

THE LOGISTICAL problem assigned this year by the Continental Army Command was concerned with providing complete support for a combat army of 400,000 men which was repelling a European aggressor force.

Long Beach units which took part in the exercise are the 207th Field Press Censorship Detachment, commanded by Lt. Col. Bill Wray, manager of the advertising plans department of The Independent, Press-Telegram; the 889th Quartermaster Company (Petroleum Depot), commanded by Capt. Robert S. Walling, Anaheim, and the 736th Transportation Company, commanded by 1st Lt. Casey N. E. Shim, Midway City.

Nineteen Southern California industrial and business leaders were briefed on the mission and capabilities of a logistical command in a one-day visit to Camp Roberts last Thursday.

Brig. Gen. F. C. Mencaccy, commanding general of the 311th, told the visitors that the logistical command, in wartime, would obtain, store and issue about 940,000 separate items required by a field army.

These would include all subsistence items, clothing, fuels and lubricants, ammunition, engineer construction materials, signal equipment, vehicles, ordnance materials and medical supplies.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, he said, it would operate general supply depots, railroads, seaports, petroleum pipelines, general hospitals, convalescent centers, communication centers, training areas, recreation areas and decontamination centers.

Today's field army consumes 8,500 tons of supplies daily, Brig. Gen. Mencaccy said. Moving this mountain of material would require 195 railroad cars, 660 12-ton cargo trucks or 990 C123 air transports.

Taking a look at military history, Brig. Gen. Mencaccy said that the Battle of Hastings in 1066 was "a glaring example of complete disregard for the importance of the relationship of supply to combat."

* * * *

HE SAID THAT William the Conqueror fooled the English king into waiting four months for the cross-channel invasion of the Normans. At the end of that time, English supplies were exhausted and Harold's army was disbanded and sent home. William made a desperate gamble and crossed the channel with 7,000 men and three days' supplies. His timing was perfect. It was Sept. 27 and local crops were abundant. The English king rallied his forces, but it was several weeks before they were organized for battle.

* * * *

"THE OPPONENTS met Oct. 14, three weeks after the Norman landing," Brig. Gen. Mencaccy related. "By nightfall, the English king had lost the battle, his country and his life. If Harold, the English king, had properly related his supply requirements to his tactical plan, which included surprising the Normans immediately upon landing, he should have continued to maintain his forces intact until the Normans appeared. He should have known that the fall crops would soon be harvested."

The general said that in Napoleon's Russian campaign, "accurately planned suport for the combat soldier was lacking and the French eventually were defeated by lack of communications, hunger and fatigue."

* * * *

"IN OUR OWN Civil War," Brig. Gen. Mencaccy said, "almost every campaign developed a supply system of its own. The only conspicuous lesson was that the preponderance of industrial capacity in the North overwhelmed the enthusiasm of the South."

In World War I, the general said, the staging system was found more effective in positional warfare than in mobile combat and the German supply system was re-examined. He said litle progress was made by either side in developing supply systems, with the exception of the huge overseas shipments made by the United States. This became the blueprint for overseas shipments in World War II.

THE GENERAL told his guests that the U. S. Army's pentamic concept of combat units, designed to concentrate on attack, rapid dispersion and regrouping, plus the introduction of thermonuclear weapons, has further complicated the logistician's problems.

"However, U. S. Army planners propose to avoid the supply errors of the past 2,000 years by training individuals and having available logistical commands capable of supporting conventional or atomic tactical situations," he said.

Chest Sets 'Austerity Goal'

An "austerity" goal of $953,953 has been set for the United Neighbors Campaign, James G. Craig Jr., president of the Community Chest, announced Saturday.

"Despite an obvious need to provide more services in our growing communities," said Norbert W. Dean, budget committee chairman, "the Chest budget committee has had to recommend that additional personnel and greater allowances for repairs, replacements and new equipment be cut out of nearly all budgets."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH agency statistics show nearly every other family in our four communities (Lakewood, Signal Hill, Dominguez and Long Beach) is receiving direct services from one or more Community Chest agencies, the higher basic operating cost necessitates cuts in agency requests," said Dean.

"The budget committee was given a total of $1,111,563 in agency requests—$244,867 more than was allocated for this year and over $267,000 more than was raised last fall," Dean said.

Dean reminded budget committee members that it has been necessary to use part of the Chest reserve funds for family-child agencies, emergency financial aid and medical assistance because the community failed to contribute sufficient money for agency operations in the last drive.

* * * *

THE AUSTERITY "minimum goal" this year represents 12.9 per cent more than was raised previously, Craig noted.

"It is apparent that hundreds of firms and employes not contributing in past drives must be shown how Chest services benefit them."

Now under way is a compilation of agency reports on places of employment of persons receiving agency services. The information will be used to prove to businesses, emloyes and their families how the various health, welfare, community and youth services are provided them and the cost.

A Hair-Raising Drama of the Lower Depths

By HARRY KARNS

IT'S HARD TO FIND duller words than "repressurization" and "unitization."

Yet, every day for the past three years an average of 2,200 persons have streamed eagerly into the Richfield Oil Corp. show at Disneyland to see and hear these terms explained.

"The World Beneath Us" rates without doubt as the simplest, most fascinating, and most instructive explanation offered.

* * * *

THE SHOW HAS SPECIAL attraction for Long Beach viewers.

The central action takes place in—or more precisely, under—their city.

Long Beach wants to apply to oil operations in its harbor area the same sane principles illustrated by "The World Beneath Us."

The city wants to prevent land sinkage and promote conservation of a vital natural resource—and engineering experts think "repressurization" under the "unit" plan will accomplish both aims.

The Richfield show is in two parts.

The first part, a Walt Disney animated cartoon-documentary film in technicolor, traces the geological history of the earth to the present.

The second part continues the story, focussing down on the subject of oil and problems involved in its production.

The latter part, produced by La Brea Productions, Inc., of Hollywood, features an oil dome beneath the city and harbor of Long Beach.

In this "Hole-in-the-Ground Theater" the Professor, acting as stage manager, presents the story, highlights of which are illustrated in the panels reproduced herewith. In this "typical oil pool deep in the earth" the Professor introduces three members of his cast: Mr. Salt Water, Mr. Oil, and Mr. Gas.

All three are prisoners. Sluggish Mr. Salt Water doesn't care any more, and Mr. Oil has been overcome by heat and pressure. Mr. Gas has a lively interest in escaping, but can't find a way out.

Some new actors are introduced to relieve the situation. They are property owners. They drill wells. Mr. Gas rushes out and carries some Oil along with him, backed up by Salt Water. But after all the Gas has rushed out, there are still a lot of the Oil brothers left in the trap. The oil pool is sick.

* * * *

THE PROFESSOR CALLS in Dr. Unitization, who examines the patient—the oil pool—and intones gloomily: "Enemia of the hydrostatistics . . . incipient porosity . . . low pressure areas overlying the adiabatics . . . virus W . . ."

The only hope, warns Dr. Unitization, lies in cooperation among the property owners. They must restore pressure to the oil trap. He prescribes that ALL the land owners take part in the program of repressurization by pumping Gas and Salt Water back into the oil pool to lift Oil up to the wells.

The land owners take the prescription. The oil pool gets well again and produces. Everybody is happy.

"COOPERATION BY THE OWNERS," the Professor concludes, "added to the work of Gas and the support of Salt Water will result in getting about three times more oil out of the trap than would have been possible without such cooperation.

"Nature made an oil pool a single unit, and Nature says it should be operated as a single unit.

"It's wise to unitize."

* * * *

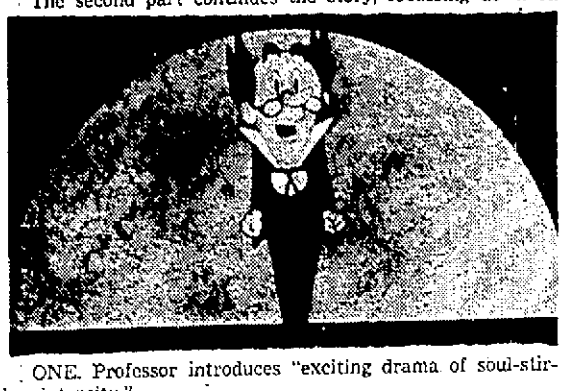

FROM THE STANDPOINT of Long Beach the wisdom of unitization lies not only in the good it does as an oil conservation measure, but also in the hope it offers for ending the nightmarish problem of subsidence in our harbor area.

Reduction of underground pressures due to oil production has caused as much as 25 feet of land sinkage in the harbor, creating a threat to lives, property, and the economic health of the area.

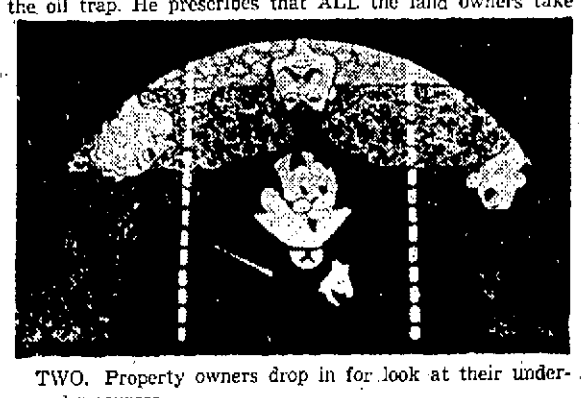

To halt this sinkage, pressures must be restored, not piecemeal but by cooperative action among all the operators.

In the absence of unitization, the world beneath us is going to sink even farther beneath us.

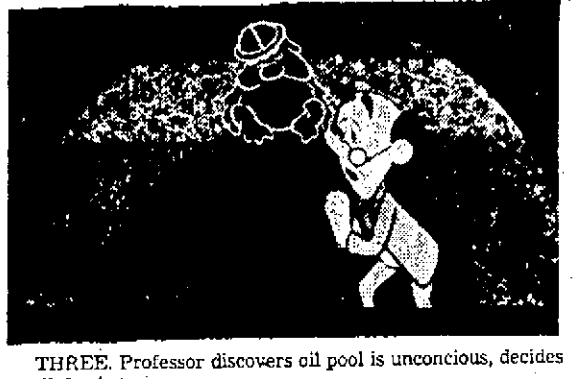

The sequel could be something hardly suitable for treatment in an animated cartoon.

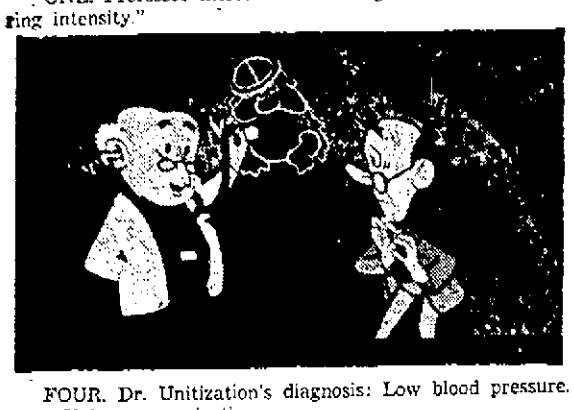

ONE. Professor introduces "exciting drama of soul-stirring intensity."

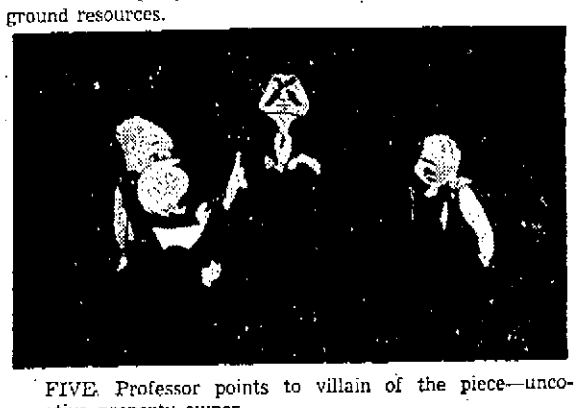

TWO. Property owners drop in for look at their underground resources.

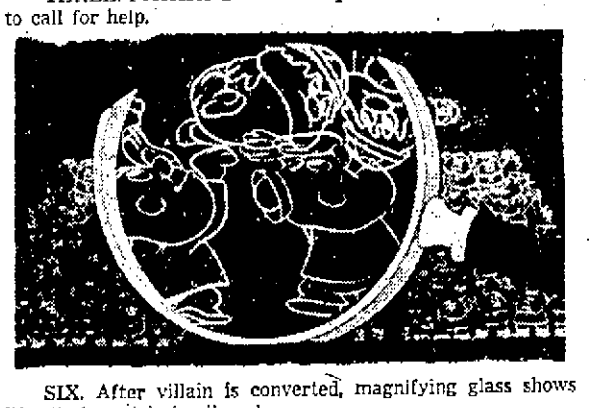

THREE. Professor discovers oil pool is unconcious, decides to call for help.

FOUR. Dr. Unitization's diagnosis: Low blood pressure. Cure: Unit repressurization.

FIVE. Professor points to villain of the piece—uncooperative property owner.

SIX. After villain is converted, magnifying glass shows life stirring again in oil pool.

L.B. Should Shed Timidity, Seek Legal Settlements

TWO YEARS HAVE PASSED since the California Legislature approved Assembly Bill No. 77—a compromise bill designed to hasten settlement of questions of state and municipal rights in the Long Beach tidelands.

Did or did not the bill mean what it said?

Here, to refresh memories, is a passage from that legislation, now Chapter 29, Statutes 1956, First Extraordinary Session:

A purpose of state-wide interest and benefit will be served by the determination of the respective rights and interests of the city and the State in and to past and future hydrocarbon revenues derived from the Long Beach tidelands. Such determination will so fix and clarify the respective entitlement of the State and the city as to permit the early termination of the pending litigation by means of stipulations between the State and city and, so far as necessary or appropriate, through the entry of court orders, decrees and judgments. Such a disposition of the litigation will permit early liberation and utilization of the impounded sums for urgently needed public purposes and will avoid the public detriment incident to protracted litigation between the State and one of its major municipalities.

Despite the clear meaning of that passage, which provides for early settlement of problems, very little progress has been made.

Of the numerous undetermined questions, the city has initiated litigation on but one—the propriety of financing the construction of the Armed Services YMCA building from the tidelands oil fund. Superior Judge A. Curtis Smith ruled on Dec. 2, 1957, that the city may legally use tideland oil funds for the purpose. The state appealed the decision. Now, almost eight months later, the outcome of that case remains in suspense.

MEANWHILE, THE CITY has not even started legal action on other problems that cry for settlement. What are our rights with regard to spending tidelands oil money for:

—Construction of marina bridge approaches.

—Construction and repair of seawalls in the Alamitos Bay area.

—Construction, repair, and maintenance of beach facilities including bath houses, parking lots, beautification, comfort stations, roadways, and other public conveniences.

—Construction of the auditorium annex.

—Beach cleaning and maintenance, lifeguard protection, and beach patrol services and special beach policing?

At present the general purpose fund of the city finances $500,000 yearly for operation and maintenance of tidelands beach facilities. A favorable decision on the question of using tidelands funds for this purpose would greatly relieve the general purpose fund. Long Beach should request such a decision, pointing out several precedents for such use of tidelands funds. Tidelands revenues are spent, for example, by Newport Beach for payment of lifeguard services on tidelands. Can't we do the same? Let's find out.

BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL now is the question of whether to start immediate litigation on the numerous undecided questions.

We believe it is time for the city to quit being timid in these legal matters and to act boldly to secure what it is entitled to—prompt decisions on how and whether it can spend money which this city has produced on its own initiative from local tidelands.

Every day of delay increases the danger that covetous outsiders will seek again to slice into the tideland fund, which grows temptingly larger because of lack of authority here to spend it on badly needed projects of public benefit.

It is time to act positively and aggressively.

The City Council should establish a policy ordering immediate action to settle all of the diverse legal questions. It has the authority; it has the responsibility.

The City Attorney should carry out that policy promptly and vigorously.

The California Attorney General should, in the spirit of AB 77, give the city all possible cooperation in granting or in expediting determination of Long Beach's requests.

Too much time has been lost already.

R-W Issue Threat to GOP Harmony

THE STATE Republican Convention must make public by 6 p.m. one week from today its platform stand, or lack of one, on right-to-work.

Although many political observers belittle R-W as a campaign issue, there is no doubt that it has posed the greatest threat to GOP party harmony through out the state ticket.

HOUSER

When State Treasurer A. Ronald Button stated his opposition to R-W last week, he joined the club of go-it-aloners which already included Senate aspirant Gov. Knight and incumbents Lt. Gov. Powers, Controller Kirkwood and Secretary of State Jordan. Only attorney general nominee Patrick Hillings remained as an advocate of a campaign of unity behind Sen. William Knowland.

Delegates to the state convention Aug. 2 and 3 in Sacramento include state officeholders, nominees for those offices, the state's senators and congressmen and members of the State Legislature. Each of these delegates appoints three persons to be members of the State General Committee.

The last convention platform in 1956 favored the union shop. Considering the presently indicated sentiment against R-W by this year's delegates linked with the urgent need for a harmonious party front in November, the likelihood of adopting a "hands-off" plank on R-W is great.

* * * *

CONVENTION endorsement of R-W would be a vote of confidence for Knowland. But at the same time it would provoke a promised minority report from Gov. Knight who opposes R-W. It would also run counter to the positions already assumed by other state incumbents and who were strong on the GOP ticket in the June primary.

Despite the breach in attitudes on R-W among office seekers, Republicans are generally agreed that it need not be a hassle at the convention. They say the measure's qualification on the November ballot has put it in the hands of the voters, outside the realm of platform.

Convention leaders attach far more importance to the selection of a chairman of the State Central Committee. Since the retiring chairman is Alphonzo Bell, of Los Angeles, the new chief must, by law, be from the North. He is important because of the challenge the GOP faces in the wake of its primary vote deficits.

Letter of the Week

Better Way to Spend the Money

TO THE EDITOR:

In your paper we find this item:

"U. S. Almost $3 Billion in Red for Fiscal Year."

We also find this item:

"$7,500,000 to Be Spent in Philippines by U. S. on Hero Tribute."

To common people, whose husbands, brothers and sons have been through World War II, it would make more sense to spend the $7,500,000 to prevent World War III and the necessity of erecting another monument for those who are dear to us.

We need no monument to remind us of loved ones gone, but we do need stable government which thinks of the needs of those now living and of those yet to be born.

We say apply that money to preventing another clash and to caring for the present living.

Progress Report on the Summit

DAVID LAWRENCE

Talking Better Than Fighting

WASHINGTON — It's better to be talking than fighting. Nor does America have any good reason to fear a battle of words. So, the more "summit" conferences, the better. For the United States will thereby have an unexampled opportunity to tell the whole world just why international peace is threatened not merely in the Middle East but everywhere else.

The widespread idea that a "summit" conference really means a serious "negotiation" is fallacious. The machinery of informal, private negotiation through diplomatic channels has long been available but has lain dormant because the Soviets don't want to negotiate. They are confident that they can win by threats and propaganda manuevers.

LAWRENCE

The single and all embracing issue is whether free governments shall be preserved or whether totalitarian governments shall continue their conquests by infiltration and subversion.

Nikita Khrushchev can make all the grandstand plays he wishes, but he cannot by ostentatious gestures or honeyed words erase from the minds of the people of the world his record of murder and assassination inside the Soviet Union and inside the neighboring captive states.

To confine the security council discussions to the problems of the Middle East would be to deal with a manifest symptom rather than the disease itself—totalitarianism on the march.

* * * *

THE MEMBER nations of the Security Council should do their utmost to bring about a meeting with Khrushchev but should not humiliate themselves by accepting his dictation on procedures or rules about attendance.

It is most important that Khrushchev come to New York. It will afford the many nationalities represented in this country a chance to express themselves through their spokesmen and to say openly what it would be fatal for any of their kinsmen living in the captive countries in eastern Europe to say out loud.

A great opportunity lies ahead to do a constructive job of explaining to the whole world that it is Communist imperialism that is threatening peace.

Insurance Money Joins Tilt Against Gore of Tennessee

WASHINGTON — There's an interesting illustration down in Tennessee right now of what happens to some of the money people put into insurance policies. It also illustrates why it's difficult to get some senators to fight for the public interest rather than big business interest.

IN MARCH, Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee had the courage to oppose a special tax concession for the insurance companies. He argued that with 5,000,000 people unemployed and the government certain to go into the red heavily for defense, there was no reason why the insurance companies should get a special retroactive tax cut of $124,000,000.

So he waged a tough battle against the insurance companies, demanded they be given the same tax treatment as other groups.

"Are the senators aware," Gore asked his colleagues, referring to Metropolitan Life, "that one insurance company has assets equal to those of General Motors, the Ford Motor Co., and U. S. Steel all added together?

"We always hear about the widow who has a policy. The president of one company draws a salary of $134,500," said Gore, referring to L. W. Dawson, president of Mutual Life of New York. "I suppose that is approved by the widows who hold policies. The 10 largest insurance companies have total assets of more that $62 billion."

Gore then proceeded to show that these 10 would get a tax benefit of $81,400,000 under the tax law which Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, the multimillion-dollar oil man, was trying to rush through the Senate.

SEN. GORE
In Bitter Campaign

In the end, the big insurance companies and Sen. Kerr won. Sen. Gore lost. And today insurance money is being spent in Tennessee to defeat him. The insurance moguls know that if Gore stays in the Senate he will lead another fight next year to prevent any more special tax concessions.

The campaign against Gore is bitter. It is also well-heeled. It is so well-heeled that Tennessee highways are littered with billboards urging votes for Gore's opponent. However, the people of Tennessee are getting suspicious of so much money spent against one man. The campaign against him may reelect him.

DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

PENNEY'S PROVES YOU GET MORE...

YOU SAVE MORE IN PENNEY'S WHITE GOODS

Get more? Because you always get first quality at Penney's. Never seconds, never manufacturer's rejects . . . nothing but sure laboratory-tested sheets, towels, blankets, draperies . . . everything! Save More? Penney's prices are much lower than most to begin with. And since these prices apply to only first quality at Penney's you get big, real savings!

no matter how you use sheets in your house

THEY'LL SERVE YOU BETTER AND COST YOU LESS IF THEY'RE FROM PENNEY'S

A sheet that lives with a family finds itself in close contact with all sorts of things: children and with the children, sand and crayons and blocks and cap guns and pets. It's a rugged test you put a sheet to. We know our sheet can take it because we laboratory test them even more than you test them.

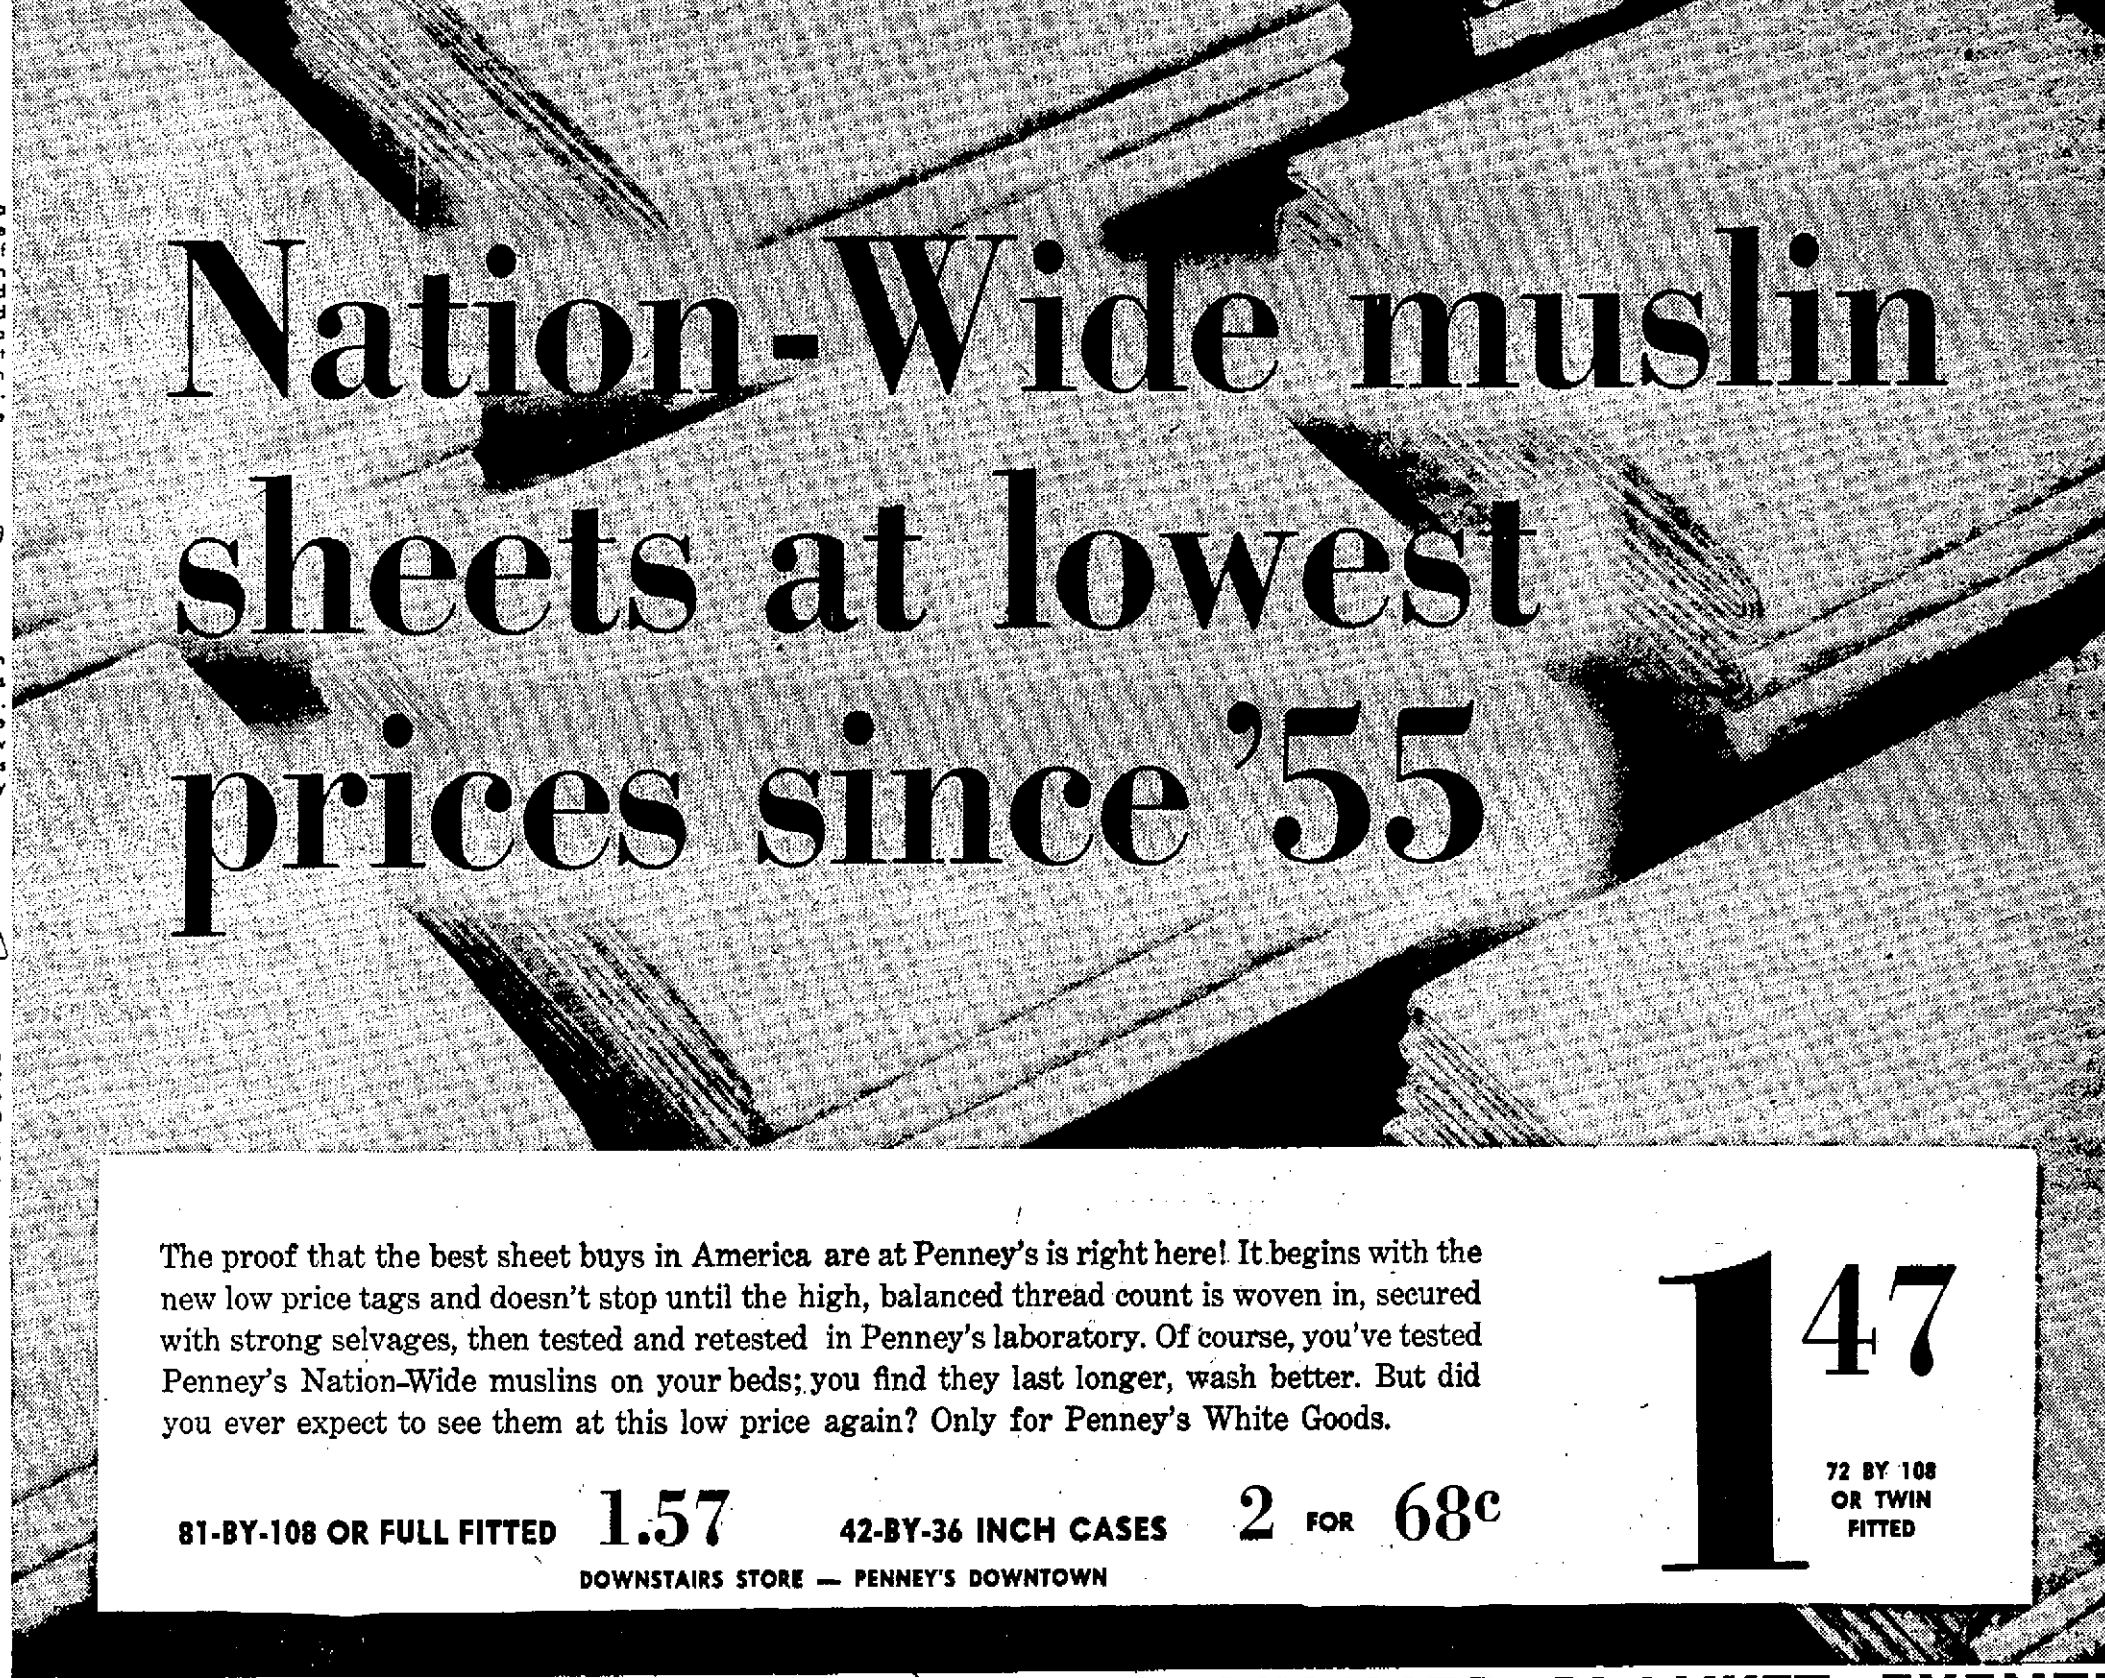

For instance: you stretch a sheet to drum-tightness when you make your beds. We put our sheets into the grip of a mechanical jaw with a "pull" of 55 pounds and all our sheets stay whole in spite of it.

And it's the same with every sheet, towel, blanket and piece of bedding we sell. We laboratory test them in a realistic way . . . subject them to the same sort of "punishment" family living does. They all stand up and take it . . . just beautifully.

It pays to buy Penney's first quality . . . it is actually priced less than most. That's why we can honestly say: No matter how you use your sheets . . . your towels, your blankets . . . They'll Serve You Better and Cost You Less If They're From Penney's.

The proof that the best sheet buys in America are at Penney's is right here! It begins with the new low price tags and doesn't stop until the high, balanced thread count is woven in, secured with strong selvages, then tested and retested in Penney's laboratory. Of course, you've tested Penney's Nation-Wide muslins on your beds; you find they last longer, wash better. But did you ever expect to see them at this low price again? Only for Penney's White Goods.

$24 Million in Public Works

KITTY WINS CUPCAKE

Robbie Cobb, 7, nestled his kitty, a docile little thing with the ferocious name of "Tiger," in a miniature sombrero and won a first place at a pet show on the Barber City playground Friday. The prize? A cupcake for Robbie.—(Staff Photo).

City Sets One-Year New High

By GEORGE WEEKS

Public works valued at $24,546,535 were processed through city offices during the fiscal year that ended June 30, a report just issued by City Engineer Jess D. Gilkerson revealed.

It was by far the busiest year in the citys records for public improvements. The highest figure for any previous year was the 1956-57 total of $13,139,056.

Last year's volume was swelled by the contract-letting and construction stages of many of the major improvements authorized in the $29,219,000 bond issue approved by the voters in February, 1956, Gilkerson pointed out.

Of the $24,546,535 total, $13,340,702 was allotted for the financing of 28 buildings and structures.

* * * *

LARGEST PROJECT on this list was the $6,308,350 Memorial Hospital, which also was the biggest contract ever awarded at city hall.

It was bond financed, as were two other major contracts awarded during the year—the $3,075,200 Public Safety Bldg. and the $2,352,146 Community Hospital addition.

Acquisitions of right of way and real property accounted for $2,985,764. Most of these were for the Memorial Hospital, the Long Beach Freeway Terminus and east beach lots.

* * * *

SIXTEEN water-front projects came to a total of $2,884,330. Most extensive of these was a $1,873,285 contract for a boat basin and other shoreline improvements incident to the permanent Navy Landing at the foot of Magnolia Ave. A second contract in the same project involving an offshore fill amounted to $692,170.

Miscellaneous materials and services contracted for by the Engineering Dept. totaled $1,252,207.

Improvements valued at $1,504,895 were financed by private interests with city supervision. The largest category was pipeline installations, for which 36 permits were issued. The estimated cost was $621,289.

* * * *

A SEPARATE section of the report gave this summary of progress on the bond-financed improvements:

Municipal Airport runway extension—New runway opened to a length of about 9,300 feet, and additional land acquired for extension to 10,000 feet.

Hospital projects — Work in progress on the new Memorial Hospital and addition to Community Hospital. Preliminary plans for the Osteopathic Hospital addition have been prepared but are being withheld pending a solution of legal problems related to a lease agreement between the city and the osteopathic group.

Branch libraries—Bret Harte, Ruth Bach and Dana Branches completed and dedicated. A small branch in MacArthur Park is scheduled for early completion, and a contract will be awarded soon for the Bay Shore Branch.

Long Beach Freeway Terminus — Negotiations are complete, or virtually so, for 76 land parcels required for right of way. The city has obtained possession by court order of the balance of the 81 needed parcels and is proceeding to demolish buildings in the line of the freeway extension. The major portion of the project lying between Broadway and 7th St. is scheduled for completion in May 1959.

Public Safety Bldg. — Work started on Feb. 24, 1958, and is proceeding on schedule.

Park and recreation improvements—Development has been completed as planned at 12 parks and is in the final stages at four others. In addition, the Blair Field Stadium has been constructed and is in use. More than 60 per cent of the $4,900,000 bond issue has been encumbered for engineering and architectural services and for construction contracts.

Wins Second

Second place trophy for bands in Saturday's Ranchero Days celebration at Torrance went to the Long Beach Youth Band, directed by Don Hern. Rita Lynch is head majorette. Forty musicians made the trip to Torrance.

School Band's Loss Revised Upward

Sixty-nine musical instruments were taken in Friday's burglary at the Woodrow Wilson High School, 10th St. and Ximeno Ave., according to a revised loss list given to police Saturday.

Alfred M. Ash, special officer for the Board of Education, said total value of the instruments—enough to equip a complete band—is about $7,000.

The thieves broke a glass door to gain entrance.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Charles Named Prince of Wales

CARDIFF, Wales (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth Saturday named her son, Prince Charles, the Prince of Wales, the royal title last held by the present Duke of Windsor. The 9-year-old future king of Britain heard the news over the radio at his boarding school.

PRINCE CHARLES
Heard It on Radio

The queen announced her decision in a tape-recorded statement to thousands of Welshmen attending the final day of the Empire Games in Cardiff. The audience greeted the news with cheers and burst into traditional songs.

Prince Philip attended the games in place of the queen, who is suffering from sinusitis. But he made no mention of the elevation of their son in his address. He left that to the queen's recording.

"I intend to create my son, Charles, Prince of Wales today," she said. "When he is grown up, I will present him to you at Caernarvon."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—New postal rates enacted by Congress go into effect at 12:01 a.m. local time next Friday. Mail postmarked after that time must carrying the following postage:

Four cents instead of three on first class letters, seven cents instead of six on air mail letters, three cents instead of two on postcards, and four cents instead of three on airmail postcards.

The department repeated a warning issued earlier. There will be no period of grace for letter-writers who put only a three-cent stamp on their letters.

The post office has no alternative but to collect postage due when the new rates go into effect," an official said. But the department will defer until Oct. 31 collection of a new five-cent penalty for handling mail with insufficient postage.

Warner, 76, died Friday night of a heart attack at his home in this fashionable Hollywood suburb.

Services will be at 2:00 p. m. in Wilshire Boulevard Temple, with some of the leading film personalities of the past half century attending. Rabbi Edgar Magnin will preside.

Warner's death followed those of Louis B. Mayer, Harry Cohn and Jesse Lasky, all within the past year. All were major figures in the development of the motion picture industry.

'Clean' H-Test Canceled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Saturday canceled a "clean" H-bomb test which had been specially planned for foreign observers and American news and cameramen.

The test had been scheduled for next month at the Eniwetok proving ground in the Pacific. A "clean" bomb is one in which dangerous radio-active fall-out is supposed to be reduced to a minimum.

The State Department announcement said delays in the current testing series caused by poor weather were to blame for the cancellation.

Almanac Shows N.Y. Top in Beer Making, Drinking

NEW YORK (AP)—New York topped all 48 states in the making and drinking of beer and ale in 1957, the Brewers Almanac said Saturday.

New Yorkers consumed 10,421,700 barrels of beer and ale and breweries here turned out 11,900,000 barrels of suds. The latter figure gave the Empire State an edge over Wisconsin, the 1956 champion, which brewed 11,700,000 barrels of malt beverages.

Pennsylvania placed second in consumption by downing 7,240,360 barrels of the foamy stuff and Californians were third with 6,559,636. In production, New Jersey was third at 7,600,000, followed by Pennsylvania, 7,300,000; California, 7,000,000; and Missouri, 6,600,000.

Mystery Woman Bests Men in Space Tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An effort to determine why ladies appear to be leading the way into space turned up the disconcerting fact Saturday that Wickie, the last space traveling mouse, was male instead of female.

At the same time, however, it was learned, despite Air Force secrecy, that a mystery woman who cannot be identified has far outdone more than three dozen male volunteers in certain tests to determine suitability for space travel.

The woman stayed in a completely blacked-out chamber for seven days in a "sensory deprivation" test. The Air Force said this "far exceeded" the endurance of the men. The subrosa information was that none of the males remained in the chamber more than three days.

This appeared to give the female sex a clean sweep, since the first two space rodents were lady mice and the Russian satellite dog was of the same sex. But at the last minute Wickie's designation had to be changed. The reason proved to be a story in itself.

It seems that the star performer and passenger for this week's 6,000-mile Thor-Able rocket shoot from Cape Canaveral, Fla., was to have been a lady mouse. She was deprived of her place and her name, and a male alternate got aboard in an inadvertent sequence of events.

First, Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates held a news conference at Cape Canaveral to brief reporters in advance on the Thor-Able firing.

Wickie, the real female Wickie—was wheeled out during the conference to be shown off and photographed. The mouse had a couple of wire electrodes attached to the back of her head for recording her heartbeat. Although these are no more painful than the connections to an electrocardiograph, Yates thought they might not look good to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

So the general cut the electrode wires before any photographer could close his shutter. This discommoded that particular mouse setup, and a substitute was required.

Wickie the female consequently got her picture in the papers, but Wickie the male got the ride through space.

Dr. Al Heatherington, technical adviser to the directorate of life sciences in the Air Research and Development Command, was inclined to share Yates' view that the switch in mice made no difference. He commented, however, that females are usually preferred for laboratory experiments because they are less ferocious and more easily handled.

He said this is true of mice, and even more true of monkeys. He stopped short of discussing human beings.

The mystery woman, said to have been a civilian, underwent her "sensory deprivation" tests at Wright Air Development Center in Dayton, Ohio, last spring. The chamber in which she spent a full week was built to stimulate conditions that might be encountered on a space ship.

Word of her achievement got out at the time but not until Saturday did the Air Force say that "38 to 40" male volunteers preceded her in the chamber for much shorter periods.

The Air Force said the woman cannot be named because "the case study of the experiment in which this volunteer was involved has not been completed." In addition, identifying her would jeopardize the findings.

CONSCIENCE TRAPS HIM

Bar Killing Told by Tormented Man

PORTERVILLE (AP)—A slim haggard man walked into the sheriff's substation at Porterville Saturday and said he wanted to confess a killing.

Russell Eugene Roberson, 35, an Inglewood aircraft worker, told Sgt. Lawrence Johns he shot a man in the Bomb Shelter Bar in Inglewood the night of July 10.

Johns said Roberson handed him a gun and a note which read:

"I find it very hard to try and convince myself I have killed a man. I always thought a murderer was something I read about in the papers but now I find I am one. It happened so fast I'm not sure of the details. When the two of them came at me, I saw red. I wish to God now that it had never happened but it is too late."

* * * *

ROBERSON SAID the note had been intended as a suicide message but he changed his mind and decided to give himself up.

Johns said Roberson claimed he had an altercation with two strangers at the bar and then shot one of the men with a .45 caliber service revolver.

Roberson said he left Inglewood the next day but was tormented by his conscience. "I couldn't eat, I couldn't sleep. I've been going crazy," he said, "so I decided to give myself up."

ROBERSON WAS taken to the county jail in Visalia where he was held for Los Angeles County police.

Sheriff's Homicide Detective Sgts. George Walsh and Jim Wahlke went from Los Angeles to Porterville to return Roberson.

They said he is wanted for questioning about the slaying last July 11 of Henry J. Deragon, 31, who was shot to death in an Inglewood bar after an argument.

REVOLUTIONIZES THE WORLD OF SOUND!

What is stereophonic hi-fi on records? Till now, true stereo sound was only available on tape (at very husky prices). Now—the record industry has developed an amazing new stereo disc. It looks like the old LP record, but has two complete sound tracks. Your Telefunken record changer combined with Kaiser and HI-FI and stereo mate in turn has a special pickup that receives music from each track. These two separate streams of sound go to two separate speakers. The sound combines in your room to give you the most brilliant, 3-dimensional music you've ever heard!

*STEREOPHONIC SOUND Stereophonic reproduction creates the illusion that the orchestra is in the room playing just for you and your guests. It offers a wonderful spatial dimensional quality which completely envelops the listener—it seems as though the whole room is producing music—not because of volume, but because of realism in recording. You have to hear it to believe it!

✓NOTE...
You will never want to buy any other Hi-Fi after you once hear full dimensional stereophonic. Come in to any Dorn's Store for a demonstration; listen to the history of recordings for 50 years, now perfect High-Fidelity with Stereophonic.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Dear Hank:

In answer to a recent question of yours comparing my fight Aug. 18 (Floyd Patterson vs. Roy Harris) with the fistic promotions of Rademacher-Folley and Basilio-Aragon, my first inclination would be to accept the assignment with avidity and alacrity.

But would it be fair to the others?

I am presenting a world champion, the best fist-fighter in the whole wide world, a man who has won 33 of his 34 fights, 24 by knockout, against a man who is untied and undefeated as a pro.

How can I compare such a promotion with others in which nothing is at stake, save winner and loser? But you have seen the statement in print, many a time and oft, that comparisons are invidious. Even odious.

Rather would I devote this space to stressing the importance of my own promotion. To make comparisons would of necessity detract from or denigrate the others.

THERE IS NO SPORTS EVENT in any field, Hank, which in point of interest—international interest—tops a world heavyweight championship battle. I have already received requests for press coverage from overseas: half a dozen from England, two from France, and even one from Mexico City, where the aficionados are reportedly interested only in Mexican fighters. Obviously this is untrue in the case of a heavyweight title.

It took a heavyweight title fight to create the million-dollar gate—something no other weight division in boxing has ever done. Heavies have topped the million mark EIGHT times, and I'll list them for you:

1921—Dempsey vs. Carpentier	$1,789,238
1923—Dempsey vs. Firpo	1,188,603
1926—Dempsey vs. Tunney	1,895,733
1927—Tunney vs. Dempsey	2,658,660
1927—Dempsey vs. Sharkey	1,083,330
1935—Louis vs. Baer	1,000,832
1938—Louis vs. Schmeling	1,015,012
1946—Louis vs. Conn	1,925,564

Two of these—those with asterisks—were non-title affairs. Over 12 million dollars in eight fights. Need I say more?

Here we have Floyd Patterson, who has lost but one of his 34 pro fights, and that one bitterly disputed, against a kid who has had 22 scraps, won 22—9 by knockout.

Who has Harris beaten? Well, Willie Pastrano, then regarded by many as the foremost contender for the crown; Bob Baker, long a member of the "top ten"; Willie Besmanoff, the German who whipped highly regarded Pat McMurtry a few months ago in Seattle; Charley Norkus, the man who wrecked Charley Powell's fistic career; Claude Chapman, of the Al Weill stable, who holds a win over Julio Mederos; and Joe Rowan, who holds a win over Wayne Bethea.

THE WHOLE STATE OF TEXAS has gone gaga over the Cut and Shoot battler. Recently, the town of Conroe, 4½ miles east of Cut and Shoot, and some 40 miles north of Houston, got out a "Cut 'N Shoot, Texas, Special Edition" of the Conroe Daily Courier, which boasts a circulation of 14,188, in which every one of the 16 pages carried either a story, picture, or ad concerning Harris—the ads welcoming a junket of 20 New York scribes who attended Roy's workout.

This same town of Conroe bought $6,100 worth of tickets for the Harris-Pastrano fight in Houston last year, which drew a gross of over $46,000 to set a new Texas record for receipts.

This same boy is now fighting for the world heavyweight title.

Why, this town of Los Angeles will be a sea of 10-gallon heights on the night of August 18.

As you know, the Diners' Club, which has 120,000 members in the Southern half of California, is furnishing members with the opportunity of buying tickets and charging them. We have, in two days of this sale, disposed of nearly 600 $30 seats. That's our top price; then we have the $20 and $10 seats, reserved, and a few thousand general admission tickets which go on sale the day of the fight, at $5.

My show is geared for a $600,000 gate.

ONE OTHER POINT I'd like to drive home, which shows clearly the relative merits of the three attractions above listed.

My deal with TelePrompTer is this: a minimum guarantee of $210,000 for the closed-circuit telecast. The Basilio-Aragon rights for TV were sold for $35,000, according to a report in one of the papers.

In other words, the heavyweight title fight was rated SIX TIMES as important as the other.

Please, Hank, do not think of my fight as a purely local attraction. We'll have hundreds of newspapermen here from all parts of the United States.

I could go on like this for three or four more pages, but I think I've made my point.

My sincere thanks to you for this opportunity to present my side of the situation.

Sincerely,
BILL ROSENSOHN

Lemon Posts First Coast League Win

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Bob Lemon, late of the Cleveland Indians, received credit for his first Pacific Coast League victory Saturday night as San Diego defeated Sacramento 6-2 in the first half of a doubleheader.

Lemon went seven innings, allowed six hits and two runs, then retired after batting in one run with a line single in the first half of the eighth inning as the Padres came from behind by scoring five runs.

Sacramento gave Bud Watkins a 2-0 lead over Lemon in the seventh inning.

But Watkins' lead lasted no longer than the time required to change sides.

BURDETTE LEAPED MIGHTILY, BRAVES DROPPED SLIGHTLY

Braves Fall to Tie for NL Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, backed up by the tack-sharp relief pitching of Marcelino Solis who hurled four-hit, shutout ball for 6⅔ innings, beat the Milwaukee Braves, 7-4, Saturday.

The loss, coupled with San Francisco's 1-0 decision over Pittsburgh, dropped the Braves into a tie with the Giants for the National League lead. Each team has an identical 51-41 record.

A County Stadium crowd of 31,450, including Braves' owner Lou Perini, watched the 28-year-old Solis register his first major league triumph in relief of starter Dick Drott.

The loser for the sixth time without a victory was Gene Conley, who spelled starter Lew Burdette in the second and gave up the Cub's final three runs. Conley clipped Drott for his first major league homer in the second. Bobby Thomson hit his 12th for the Cubs.

The Cubs mounted a 20-hit attack against Burdette and Conley, but left 15 base runners high and dry. Tony Taylor, Alvin Dark, Lee Walls and Ernie Banks — the first four hitters in the Cubs' linenup — and Dale Long collected three safeties apiece. Banks drove in three runs.

Rams Start Two-a-Day Workouts

Los Angeles Ram rookies get down to serious business today as they start two-a-day drills at their University of Redlands training site.

Coach Sid Gillman indicated workouts would be held at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. and the rookies can expect contact drills with their very first workout today.

However, assistant coach Jack Faulkner said Saturday that he had never seen so many football players that appeared to be in such good shape this early.

"There's not a paunchy guy in the lot," said Faulkner.

* * * *

MEANWHILE as the rookies step up drills, the Ram veterans, an expected 26 in number, are due to arrive Monday. They'll be processed the first day, photographed Tuesday and start battling for their jobs Wednesday.

Six rookies, those participating in the All-Star game in Chicago, will not join the Rams until the night of the annual charity game with Washington. They are Lou Michaels, Bill Jobke, Jim Phillips, John Baker, Jim Jones and Clendon Thomas.

Among Ram stalwarts of past seasons who have been traded or decided to quit and will not be reporting are Norm Van Brocklin, Bob Boyd, John Hock, Bob Dougherty, Tank Younger, Jesse Whittington and Corky Taylor.

Coach Gillman announced the first Ram scrimmage will be held next Saturday night with the public invited.

JOHNNY ANTONELLI
Posts 11th Victory

Antonelli, Grissom Cool Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The San Francisco Giants, shut out in their last two starts, turned the tables on the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday with a 1-0 triumph.

Southpaw Johnny Antonelli got his 11th victory against eight defeats but needed help from veteran Marv Grissom. The loss ended a four-game Pirates' winning streak.

Singles by Bob Schmidt and Antonelli, a sacrifice and a long fly ball by Willie Kirkland produced the lone run for the Giants in the third.

* * * *

IN THE seventh, Hank Foiles led off with a double and moved to third on a sacrifice. Antonelli got Billy Virdon on a grounder but was yanked after he walked Bob Clemente.

Grissom promptly struck out rookie home-run slugger Dick Stuart. The veteran right-hander faced seven batters and struck out three.

IN FLATBUSH, 'L.A.' MEANS LOST ARTICLES

PHILADELPHIA — The Dodgers still have some rooters in Brooklyn and a few of the Flatbush faithful come to Philadelphia when the Dodgers play the Phillies.

A group of girls most of them between 18 and 22, has followed the Dodgers to Philadelphia for the last three years. "We're still Dodger fans," one of them said. "But not Los Angeles fans. To us, L. A. stands for only one thing—Lost Articles. And the Dodgers are just that—lost."

Sir Ruler Triumphs at Del Mar

Sir Ruler wore down the front-running Father John in the last eighth to win the $15,000 - added Oceanside Handicap Saturday.

The race, with a gross value of $16,100, was the first stakes program of Del Mar's summer meeting.

Sir Ruler saved ground in the early going and put on his stretch drive to finish 2¼ lengths ahead of the favored Father John. Times Ace was third in the six-horse field.

* * * *

THE WINNER, ridden by jockey George Taniguchi, covered the six furlongs in 1:09 3/5 and paid $14.40, $4.10 and $3.10. Father John returned $2.60 and $2.40 and Times Ace $3.20.

Johnny Longden was aboard Father John and Louis Leon rode Times Ace.

Father John was made the heavy favorite at 60 cents to the dollar after The Shoe and Aliwar were scratched.

IN THE preceding race, a claimer for three-year-olds and up, Northern Spy nosed out the front-running Postscript to post a whopping payoff of $100.10, $41.40 and $13 across the board.

The daily double, Pelina in the first at $6.40 to Silver Pat in the second at $63.40 returned $315.90.

The attendance was 13,794 and the mutuel handle on the nine races $1,026,596.

Hodges Collects 4 Hits, 5 RBIs in Snapping Slump

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

PHILADELPHIA—Gil Hodges got started Saturday night.

The big Dodger first baseman did what manager Walt Alston had hoped for all year. Hodges started to swing and he swung with authority. When it was all over, he had connected four times in five trips, driven in five runs and made southpaw Sandy Koufax an easy 10-4 winner over the Philadelphia Phillies.

It was the first time this year that any Dodger knocked in five runs in one game and the first time in 1958 that Hodges had four hits. His first inning single provided the Dodgers with their first run, he belted a two-run homer in the sixth, a single in the eighth and a two-run double in the ninth.

Quite an evening for a guy who, before the game, took a lot of ribbing about his "freshman jinx" in the Coliseum. But Gil isn't discouraged easily. He was benched for almost four weeks and since June 30 had only four starting assignments.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH he had never been benched, Hodges took it in stride. He was subjected to eye tests and his vision was found to be perfect. His main trouble, Alston believed, was that he was taking too many pitches. He was standing too far from the plate and the pitchers began to feed him a steady diet of outside pitches.

Friday night, Alston decided to have another look. Gil went 0-for-5, struck out once, but went down swinging. In his last at-bat Friday, he was robbed of a hit when third baseman Willie Jones speared his line drive.

* * * *

SATURDAY morning, Alston was satisfied with the result. "Gil looked much better. His swing was improved, but his timing was off just a shade," Alston commented.

Saturday night, his timing was perfect.

A four-run first inning started the Dodgers toward their 10th victory in 17 games with the Phils. They made short work of Jack Sanford, last year's "rookie of the year," who had never lost to the Dodgers as a starter.

Sanford retired only one batter and dragged his glove to the dugout a loser for the fourth straight time and 10th time this year. He has won only six games after breaking in with a 19-8 record.

Jim Hearn followed and held the Dodgers in check, save for Hodges' homer in the sixth. It

MISS U GIRLS AND 'MR. TOUCHDOWN'

McDOUGALL 'GREAT PRO,' KNOX COULD BE

Miss U Judge Football Boss

By JERRY WYNN

"Most women don't know anything about football," asserts J. G. (Jake) Gaudaur of Hamilton, Canada, a man who has the remarkable distinction of being called an expert on both women and football.

President and general manager of the Canadian national professional football champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Gaudaur has just completed a nerve-wracking week in Long Beach as a judge in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Can one compare the streamlined figure of the beauty contestant to the granite build of the gridder?

"I guess not," he replies with a smile, "however I can vouch that it as difficult to eliminate these girls in the contest as it is to cut a good player from a team's roster."

While a comparative newcomer to beauty judging, Gaudaur has long been one of Canada's leading sports figures.

A national champion rower, a standout lacrosse and hockey player, and an outstanding 13-year veteran of professional football as an annual all-league center, the handsome 6-3, 245-pound Princeton graduate became Tiger-Cat president in 1953 and general manager in 1956.

"I suppose I was the only club president ever to be an active player when I had to return to the field in 1953 because one of our U. S. imports did not show up."

Under Gaudaur's direction, Hamilton has never finished lower than second while winning two Grey Cups, symbolic of the national championship.

The sparkplug of the 1958 title team was Gerry McDougall, the Poly High, Long Beach City College and UCLA product who Gaudaur calls "undoubtedly one of the greatest backs in pro football, U. S. as well as Canada."

"There's no doubt at all that Gerry would be just as outstanding in the National Football League as he was for us last year when he led the league in rushing even though he missed the first three games."

Earlene Toast of Sports-Mad Russ

MOSCOW (AP)—Earlene Brown, 220 pounds of joy, is the toast of Moscow just as she was the most widely known of U. S. athletes in the Olympic Village during the Melbourne Games in 1956.

JOE GORDON
Uses 20 Players

Mrs. Brown, 23 and the mother of a three-year-old child, was surrounded by a throng of autograph seeking, sports-mad Russians Saturday, on a Moscow street. It is a thing that happens every time the U.S. girls do a bit of sightseeing.

Saturday her companions became impatient when she was stopped again.

"Now just wait a minute, honey, I'm making friends for Uncle Sam," she answered their pleas to hurry.

* * * *

AT MELBOURNE the Compton, Calif., housewife was the unofficial rock 'n' roll instructor for the 5,000 athletes in the village.

In practice this week she has been throwing the 8-pound shot well over the listed world record of 54 feet, 11¾ inches.

Meanwhile, an epidemic of light colds and sore throats among U.S. male athletes has been stopped.

TRAINERS discovered that the 42 athletes living in one dormitory were sharing four glasses at the drinking faucet. The four glasses also were doing double as containers for soft drinks.

"The fellows were passing germs around faster than batons in a relay race," said head coach George Eastment.

Several athletes were given penicillin shots. Shotputter Parry O'Brien of Los Angeles spent Saturday in bed and Tom Courtney, former Fordham half-miler, had a slight temperature. Both are expected to be in tip-top shape today.

MAJOR LEAGUE GYMNASTICS: ONE SUCCEEDS, OTHER FAILS

Reds to Use Own Scoring System

By ROBERT MUSEL

MOSCOW (UPI)—The United States meets Russia today in the most important track and field meet since the Olympic Games, with the Soviet team insisting on counting points its own way—a method certain to give the largest crowd ever to watch a dual meet a chance to cheer a hometown victory.

Already worlds apart politically, the American and Russian teams turned out to be just as far apart in their ideas of what constitutes a dual meet as they inaugurated an annual series which may—politics willing—become the "Little Olympics" before a crowd of 102,000 at Lenin Central Stadium.

Spokesmen for the world's two leading track and field powers smilingly agreed to disagree before the colorful opening ceremony this morning.

* * * *

THERE ARE 22 men's events and 10 women's events in the two-day program, The United States is heavily favored to take the majority of the men's events and Russia's amazons the bulk of the women's events.

Although Americans disagreed, Russian officials issued notice that points in all events, both men's and women's, would be tallied together to decide the winner of the meet.

Coach George Eastment of Manhattan College, who heads the U. S. track forces, said:

"This will be a-lot closer than most people expect. The Russians look very good and we're not underestimating them.

The Yanks are expected to win every event up to the distance races.

Bob Richards, former Olympic pole vault champion who watched the team work out, said:

"Everybody thinks this is more important than the Olympics and it will be a terrific fight."

N.Y. Hikes Lead to 15½ Games

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The New York Yankees swept to their seventh straight victory and stretched their American League lead to an outlandish 15½ games Saturday by crushing the Cleveland Indians, 8-3.

Cleveland manager Joe Gordon used 20 players and tied a major league record by employing five pinch hitters in the seventh inning.

Duke Maas was credited with his first victory since coming to the Yankees on June 15 although he was lifted in the seventh inning.

Harris Works Three-Rounds

ARROWHEAD SPRINGS, (UPI)—Heavyweight contender Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., entertained a crowd of 500 fans with fast three-round boxing drill Saturday at his training camp here.

Harris worked two rounds with a new sparring partner, Tony Borton, of Los Angeles. He also boxed one heat with Howie Turner, his regular spar mate.

The Texan was very pleased with his sparring session with Burton and said he planned to keep him at camp for the rest of the training sessions.

Harshman Hurls, Bats Oriole Win

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Jack Harshman notched his eighth win of the season Saturday night for the Baltimore Orioles who made it seven straight over the Kansas City Athletics 4-3 with Harshman's fourth homer this season the deciding factor.

Baltimore opened the scoring off Bob Davis when Bob Boyd walked, was forced by Gene Woodling, and Gus Triandos hit a home run. That was the only hit off Davis until the fifth when the Orioles put together singles by Billy Gardner, Harshman and Boyd for a run.

Kaline, Bengals Awaken

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers ended a five-game losing streak, Saturday, beating the Washington Senators, 9-1, behind rookie pitcher Herb Moford's first American League victory and Al Kaline's lusty hitting.

Kaline drove home three runs with his 11th homer, a single and a double.

The side-arming Moford won one game in a brief 1955 stint with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Unbeaten since last August and holder of a 10-0 record, Delock was knocked out in a five-run fifth. He had won 13 straight since the same White Sox defeated him Aug. 24, 1957.

Dressen's Sunday Sermon: 'Modern Players Too Soft'

By GEORGE LEDERER
I, P-T Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Nothing, not even a mosquito bite, gets under Charlie Dressen's skin more than the manner in which modern day major league ball players are coddled and the courtesies they extend to opposing teams.

The pet peeve of the Dodgers' third base coach is the habit of some batters to pick up an opposing catcher's mask after fouling a ball into the stands.

"They not only pick it up," roars Dressen, "but they wipe it off on their clean white uniforms before handing it back.

"Nuts to that! All clubs should make a rule to fine a player if he picks up a mask. In the first place, the idea of this game is to get the other team exhausted. Let the catcher bend over to pick up his mask. Besides, I tell the guys that it costs $2.50 to get a uniform cleaned.

"When I played ball, a batter was likely to kick a mask half way down the first base line while the catcher wasn't looking. And when it was common to leave gloves in the field, we used to throw the second baseman's glove into right field.

"YOU DON'T PICK up a guy in football after making a tackle. That's the way this game should be played. There isn't enough fire and competitive spirit today."

It is usually Sunday when Dressen gets on one of these "back in the good old days" kicks and Jolly Cholly puts on quite a show in the Dodger dugout.

Most of the players sit back and enjoy the performance; others will kid him about living in the past, that the old timers drank, weren't in shape and didn't obey curfews, if there were any.

"Yeah, Charlie, everything has improved except baseball and it's sliding back all the time," said Gil Hodges, trying to swallow a smile.

"I didn't say that," countered Dressen. Then he pointed to the diamond and said, "Look, Doubleday laid this thing out 120 years ago and it hasn't changed a bit. The bases are still 90 feet apart and it's 60 feet, six inches from the plate to the pitching rubber.

"But you guys." And he indicated with a sweeping motion that he meant the entire bench. "You aren't as tough as the oldtimers and you don't last as long because life is made soft for you.

"Air conditioning in the dugouts (in Cincinnati). No wonder you pitchers get sore arms."

Cushions on the bench! Brother, I'd like to see Ty Cobb sitting in one of those."

DRESSEN'S ACT GAINED momentum as he paced in front of the bench, picked up a couple of gloves and said:

"Here, look at these big nets. How can you miss a ball?

"And that rabbit ball they use today. That thing takes off like it's got a hydrogen bomb in it."

Hodges interrupted. "Didn't Ruth hit a rabbit ball?"

"Maybe so," Dressen shot back. "But he didn't need a rabbit ball. When Babe Ruth hit a home run it was out of any park in the country."

Dressen paused for air, surveyed the other team taking infield practice, then turned back to the bench.

"LET'S GET ON these guys a little today. Let's have some noise. I haven't seen a good bench jockey in years. (Dressen and manager Walt Alston agreed that the Dodgers' best bench jockey in recent years was Dick Williams, an outfielder now with the Baltimore Orioles.)

"Now, you talk about vitamins. You get what, eight dollars a day meal money? Yeah, and you go out and spend $2.50 on asparagus spears. Eat plenty of meat and potatoes. That's what'll make you strong.

"Let one of the modern day pitchers match (Walter) Johnson. He pitched (and Dressen counted on his fingers) Friday and Saturday. They let him go to church on Sunday and he pitched again on Monday.

"How do you like that?"

And Jolly Cholly trotted to his third base coaches station, ready to direct traffic in the modern manner for another game.

Pro Gridder Livingston in Shape With Volleyball

By AL LARSON

Who said volleyball was for girls only? Cliff Livingston, hawking linebacker for the New York Giants, credits volleyball as the best leg conditioner ever.

The former UCLA star, who calls Belmont Shore's beach courts his home during the early summer months, expects to report in the best shape of his career when he leaves Monday for the Giants' camp at Salem, Oregon.

Livingston will be playing his fifth year of professional football with the Giants after four successful campaigns at UCLA and Ft. Ord. The giant 6-3, 215-pounder, gained his first fame when he was converted by Red Sanders from fullback to end in 1950-51. The next two years he starred at Ft. Ord. In 1953, he was the key lineman as Ollie Matson and Co. won the national service championship.

For the past two seasons Cliff has been troubled with pulled thigh muscles. He feels he didn't check into camp with his legs in good enough shape. But this year he's been playing volleyball in the sand nearly every day and figures this should solve his injury problems.

Livingston, whose real home is Montebello, had the greatest performance of his pro career against the Rams last season when he blocked two Van Brocklin punts in the Coliseum. He's looking forward to playing before another Southland audience Aug. 22 when the Giants meet the Rams in exhibition play at the Coliseum. Of course, the 1956-NFL championship game stands out as his most memorable game.

The 27-year-old veteran lineman looks for the Giants to be stronger this season, due to several important backfield trades and the return of Roosevelt Grier from the Army in September.

* * * *

ASKED IF the Giants let down last year after sweeping to the division and playoff titles the previous season, Livingston didn't think so.

"When you're the champions, everyone is gunning for you, and naturally it's hard to be up for every game."

Cliff comes from a renowned football family. His older brother, Howie, played 10 years in the NFL with the Giants, Redskins and 49ers. He has two younger twin brothers now attending Arizona State. He says they both look like excellent end prospects.

As an added leg conditioner, the deeply-tanned Livingston has been peddling a racing bike 40 miles a day between his volleyball rendezvous at the Bay and Montebello. Friday, a motorist cruised along side him and yelled:

"Do you know you're going 25 m.p.h.?"

"Certainly," Cliff replied. "That's the speed limit, isn't it?"

Volleyball may never replace night baseball, but its great for building up legs. Just ask a pro, like Livingston, who knows.

Cowboy Star to Pilot Boat in Marathon

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Cowboy star Roy Rogers, Jack Ward of Compton, Jack McBeath of Long Beach and Ray Leger of Paramount headline a topflight field of over 125 stock outboard runabouts for today's 100-mile marathon race off the Long Beach strand.

Each runabout will carry a crew of two men and starts will be flights (two minutes apart) from Pacific Landing. First crew is slated to go at 8 a.m.

The race will consist of 10 trips around a course to a point off the Alamitos Bay jetty and back.

In the recent Avalon to Long Beach race, Ward set a record while nipping 1957 winner Leger by a slim, 10-second margin.

EDDIE LEACH 64 POUNDS OF TENNIS CHAMP

Little Eddie Leach, who at 10 years old stands just 4 ft. 6 inches tall and weighs only 64 pounds, is a man among men today.

Eddie turned in a convincing 6-0, 6-4 victory over Bill Davidson of Bakersfield Saturday to win the 11-years and under boys' singles tennis title in the Metropolitan Tennis Championships at Griffith Park in Los Angeles.

The Long Beach youngster is a product of net pro Clyde Walker, who has tutored such up-and- coming local stars as Billie Jean Moffitt and Jerry Cromwell.

Miss Hopps, a member of the U. S. Wightman Cup team, defeated Pat Yeomans of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-1, and Miss Browning won from Pamela Davis of Anaheim, Calif., 6-4, 6-3, in the semi-finals.

They will meet for the women's title today. Miss Hopps is top-seeded, Miss Browning No. 3.

Canadian Grid Champs Seeking NFL Exhibition

lege player while at UCLA, McDougall set the Canadian pro league on fire in his first season by gaining 1,053 yards in 11 games for a 5.9 average.

How come the startling transition?

"It isn't always possible to say what makes a great pro," answers Gaudaur. "For one thing, Gerry is a fullback and not a halfback. He has all the physical requirements of the great player . . . 225 pounds, bulging legs and a great pair of hands.

"He has the unique ability o staying upright. Linebackers hit him, but he doesn't go down. Right there is the mark of the great fullback."

Gaudaur feels its difficult to compare one player with another but rates McDougall the superior runner to Alex Webster, who was a Canadian sensation before going to the Giants with which team he has been one of the NFL's top rushers.

* * * *

"STRANGELY, one of the best things we discovered about Gerry is that his father was a Canadian who never dropped his citizenship. Under the laws of our countries, that gave Gerry dual citizenship and he was automatically eligible to become a Canadian citizen, which he has. This strikes him off the 12-man list of U. S. imports a team is allowed."

Turning from runner to passer, Gaudaur was the man who signed Ronnie Knox to a Hamilton contract when the headline kid was still on the UCLA campus in 1956. Knox's stay in Canada was a short but typically exciting one, and his departure in mid-season as sudden as his arrival.

Why did he leave?

Gaudaur's face lit with a grin.

"It happened that before one game I was instructed by — what else can I call him besides Harvie—that Ronnie would be our starting quarterback or else. The else was the result."

* * * *

GAUDAUR'S evaluation of Ronnie is on the ecstatic side, but the appraisal is always marred by the word potential.

"He had more pro potential than any player I have ever seen. Don't let that baby face fool you. He's a big, strong boy with great coordination and a real desire to win. He was an outstanding tackler as a defensive halfback for us, and I've never seen a more accurate long and short passer.

"Moreover he's an electrifying player and the fans filled our park to see him. It's a shame if a boy with that potential does not play professional football."

Why hasn't this potential ever been fulfilled?

Gaudaur paused, smiled, laughed, replied:

"No comment. That should speak volumes."

* * * *

GAUDAUR'S observations on other players in Canada:

Bob Davenport of Winnipeg (the former Jordan High and UCLA fullback star) is an excellent runner and an outstanding back.

. . . Hal Patterson, a Montreal offensive end and defensive halfback from the University of Kansas, is the greatest two-platoon player and finest all-around athlete in pro football today, U. S. as well as Canada. A 17th draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles three years ago, he could not be bought today by an NFL team at ANY price.

. . . Sam Etcheverry, veteran Montreal quarterback from Denver U., could be a first stringer on almost every NFL team.

. . . Paul Cameron, Pete O'Garra, Hardiman Cureton and Lou Elias are among other successful former UCLA players in Canada. Red Sanders has an uncanny ability to turn out the tough, two-way type of player perfect for Canadian pro football.

* * * *

GAUDAUR'S comparison between Canadian pro and NFL competion:

Hamilton would probably lose to an NFL team by two to three touchdowns.

. . . However, a picked all-star team from Canada could play a similar NFL squad even.

. . . The NFL would be wise to install the Canadian single point scoring system for punts into the end zone that are not returned. It would bring back the emphasis on punting.

Gaudaur's comments in general:

. . . Hamilton is very willing and anxious to play an NFL team in an exhibition in the U. S. (Ed. note — Hear this, Pete Rozelle!)

. . . The stories about fabulous salaries offered U. S. players in Canada are exaggerated. The highest ever paid was $15,000 to George Ratterman by Montreal.

Relaxing by the Lafayette Hotel pool as some of the Miss U girls frolicked in the water, Jake Gaudaur — the beauty judge—seemed a universe apart from the world of football.

PETERSEN, SHIRK AMONG 'IRON MEN' FOR SHRINE GAME TEAM

Five South Stars to Go Both Ways

By JACK TEELE

Fullfilling their promise to go with their absolute best at all times, coaches of the South team have named five players as starters on both offense and defense for Wednesday night's battle with the North in the seventh annual Shrine High Game.

Two of the 1957 prep stars who will go both ways for the revenge-bent Southerners are from the Long Beach area.

Wilson end Kent Petersen and tackle Marshall Shirk of Anaheim have been so impressive in scrimmages that they will stay on the field when the ball changes hands.

The other "iron men" will be Manual Arts lanky Jim Bates, who will start at offensive end and defensive halfback, San Diego's Cal Fackrell, who goes at offensive guard and right line backer and center Ronnie Hull of L. A. Wilson.

Poly's 230-pound Jim Smith will start as middle guard on defense and Excelsior's Harold Gray as right end. Both are expected to see duty with the offensive team too as is Banning's fleet Lynn Gaskill, who will open at defensive safety.

The Long Beach area will be strongly represented in the backfield where Downey's Pete Yoder will practice his special brand of slight-of-hand at quarterback and Mater Dei's Henry (The Horse) Enriquez will open at fullback.

Enriquez has been one of the most pleasant surprises in the first week of drills. South coaches Gus Headington, Rollie Ellerts and Paul Huebner claim the Mater Dei man-handler is the strongest runner in camp.

The South, which will be out to avenge a 32-0 upset loss in 1957, has only one injury of note, Coronado's Hal Tobin, a 200-pound fullback, is nursing a hamstring in his right leg and will see little if any action.

Tobin's loss could be a big one. The border star converted 25 of 28 extra points for his team last fall on runs up the middle. With extra points going two for the price of one on a pass or a run, Tobin might be sorely missed.

Tickets for the game are available at all Shrine offices.

Player Holds Lead in Eastern Open; Snead, Littler Hot

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Young Gary Player, the smooth invader from Johannesburg, South Africa, fired a par 72 over lengthy Mount Pleasant course Saturday to maintain his lead in the $20,000 Eastern Open.

The 22-year-old scrapper has a 54-hole total of 208, one stroke better than three veteran circuit riders, Art Wall, Jr., Jack Burke, Jr., Bob Rosburg.

Right behind these four was Sam Snead. Putting brilliantly, Sam stroked in six birdies on the front nine to set a course record of 30 for the front side.

Two of Snead's putts were 50-footers during his birdie run but he cooled off on the home half with one birdie and two bogeys for a 67. Matching Snead's 67 was Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif.

* * * *

PLAYER, who had put together two 68s earlier, lost the lead when he went two over par 4 on No. 15, which he alone had birdied the previous two rounds. Trying to recover with a No. 4 wood after driving into the rough, he lost his ball in a stream protecting the green of the 447-yard hole. He dropped a new ball for a one-stroke penalty, chipped onto the green and two putted.

He later said he had considered playing a safe shot out of the rough but discarded this possibility.

"I'm always attacking," he chuckled.

* * * *

WALL WHO WENT one stroke up at the 15th, bogeyed the 16th to throw the issue back into a deadlock.

After both he and Player also bogeyed the par-3 17th when both their drives were trapped, Player's 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole made the difference.

Snowbirds in Newport Sail

The 23rd annual flight of the Snowbirds will be sailed over a six-mile course in Newport Bay today starting at 1:30 p.m.

Dick Ward of Newport will be defending his title against 163 competitors, largest in the event's history. Awards will go to the youngest and oldest as well as first girl skipper to finish.

BERRY WINS LEGION MAIN

Berry, 138, was too fast and too slippery for Firpo, 138¾. The 28-year-old Indiana fighter fired a steady barrage at Firpo's face and by the end of the seventh had opened up cuts under both eyes. Referee Charlie Randolph scored it 99-90 and Judges Joey Olmos and Costello Cruz had it 99-93 and 99-90, respectively.

Bob Kelley Says---

Columnist Hollingworth is still looking for a fat lip, I see.

Before departing on his vacation, Henry revealed he would have a glowing list of guest columnists in his absence. Then he made a crack something to the effect that Art Aragon and Harvey Knox would not be among them.

Not letting it go at that, Hollingworth referred to me as their ghost writer. Which steamed me.

But I'll guarantee Henry a lot more people read a column about Knox or Aragon, whether it burns them or not, than chew their way through one of those nifty "guest" columns he arranged in his absence.

BOB KELLEY
Defends His 'Style'

He calls them guest columns, I call them publicity handouts.

Why, he had every press agent in town on his "all-star" list—one guy was pitching his racetrack, another pitching his ball club, etc. I was terribly dsappointed, in fact, that Hank didn't work the press agent for Marineland into his lineup somehow.

I'VE TRIED to make peace with Hollingworth, but it does no good. He's always sniping at me. And a guy has to protect himself, even if he's armed with nothing but a typewriter.

Last time I saw Hollingworth was at Hollywood Park.

"What's with all these cracks about me in the column, Buster?" I asked him.

He tried to soft soap me. "Aw, come on, Bob," he said, patting me on the shoulder and giggling self-consciously.

"Sure, I take a few pokes at you in the column. I kid you. I make you look like a bit of a boob. But you know why I do it?"

I shook my head.

"Because," Hollingworth explained gently, "I don't like you!"

I wept softly and sympathetically and turned away. He had been a man about it.

GETTING back to the other thing, people always ask me why I talk and write so much about Aragon and Knox. Do I really like them that well? Or do I do it because they're good copy?

I tell them honestly it's a combination of both. Although if Harvey doesn't stop popping off about wrecking the NFL (that's the game I love) I'm not only going to drop him from the column, but also right off the Malibu pier.

One of the most widely-read columnists of all time was Westbrook Pegler. I never missed him. Yet he used to vilify regularly one of my idols, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It burned me to read it, but Pegler did write provocative copy, and I never missed him. Neither did millions of others.

I have pretty much the same theory about Aragon and Knox. It steams people to read about them, but they read it. Of course, what else can I write about?

I don't have an "in" with those press agents, like Hollingworth.

Hagge Ties Pung With 4-Under 70

FRENCH LICK (UPI)—The battle for the Women's Open golf title was thrown into a five-day fight Saturday when rotund Jackie Pung, who had led the field by three strokes, soared to a three-over-par 77.

Little Marlene Bauer Hagge, who tips the scales at less than half Mrs. Pung's 225 pounds, fired a four-under par 70 to go into a first-place tie with the San Francisco swinger. Each had a 225 total for 54 holes in the 72-hole tourney which ends tomorrow.

* * * *

MRS. HAGGE might have broken Mrs. Pung's course record of 69 if she hadn't had a double bogie on the par 13 and a bogie on 17 as she toured the back nine in one-under par 36 following a three-under-par 34 at the turn.

Elliott 'Breezes' to 3:59 Mile Win

CARDIFF (UPI)—Australia's Herb Elliott broke the four-minute mile barrier for a record seventh time Saturday in winning the feature event of the British Commonwealth Games, but poor weather and a spike wound kept him from breaking the world record.

Elliott, 20-year-old clerk from Perth, eclipsed fellow Aussie John Landy's mark of six sub-four-minute miles when he blazed home 20 yards ahead of Merv Lincoln in 3:59.0.

That was two-tenths of a second off the meet record of 3:58.8 set four years ago by England's Roger Bannister at Vancouver. And it was a full second behind Landy's accepted world record of 3:58.0. A steady drizzle of rain and gusty winds helped make it one of Elliott's greatest triumphs, despite the failure of his record plans.

Here are Elliott's seven "miracle" miles:

Time	Site	Date

Althea Whips Moore for Penn Tennis Title

HAVERFORD (AP) — Althea Gibson, New York's U.S. and Wimbledon champion, won the Pennsylvania Women's Lawn Tennis title Saturday and teamed with Karol Fageros, Miami, to win the doubles championship at the Merion Cricket Club.

She defeated Sally Moore, Bakersfield, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4, for her second state title. She last won it in 1956.

Miss Gibson and Miss Fageros outstroked the veteran pair of Mrs. William duPont Jr., Wilmington, Del., and Margaret Varner, El Paso, 6-3, 6-2. The duPont-Varner combination was runner-up in the Wimbledon doubles.

In a men's semifinal, Peru's Alejandro Olmedo surprised Sam Giammalva, Houston, 6-1, 6-2, to enter the finals today against Barry MacKay, Dayton.

Miss Gibson staved off a Moore rally in the third set to wrap up her title. Miss Moore fought from a 4-0 deficit to trail 5-4. The U.S. champion finished the game with a drop shot to the right side. The 18-year-old Miss Moore is Wimbledon Junior titleholder and was seeded seventh in the tournament.

MISS FAGEROS, who shucked her famous gold lace panties for more commonplace garb, played an outstanding hand in the double triumph. She and Miss Gibson broke through Mrs. duPont's service for a 5-2 lead in a duece game of the second set.

Bold Ruler Beats Only One Horse as Cohoes Romps

NEW YORK (AP)—Bold Ruler found 136 pounds and six of seven lightly-weighted opponents too much to handle Saturday and ended up badly beaten as Greentree Stable's Cohoes won the $57,000 Brooklyn Handicap at Jamaica.

The Ruler, giving from 22 to 31 pounds to his rivals in the mile and three-sixteenths test, defeated only one horse in going down to his worst defeat in a 32-race career. The 1957 horse of the year previously had finished out of the money only three times. Saturday, however, he was beaten by 15 lengths.

Bold Ruler was bothered some by Sharpsburg a quarter mile from home but, although the interference cost Sharpsburg second money, it wasn't bad enough for Eddie Arcaro, aboard Bold Ruler, to claim a foul.

"We were pretty well beaten when it happened," said Arcaro.

Cohoes ran the mile and three sixteenths in 1:55⅘ and pair $25.70, $10.80 and $8.70. Third Brother, awarded second, paid $10.30 and $7.20. Inside Tract returned $11.30 to show.

Longshot Scores at Arlington

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Dragon Killer, a bay 3-year-old who never before won a stake, dashed out of a pack of 12 in the final 16th Saturday to win the $146,575 Arlington Classic by a nose in a photo finish with Talent Show.

A Dragon Killer, ridden by James Combes, was a 17-1 shot, overlooked by the crowd of 28,513 in preference to Calumet Farm's Kentucky Pride and Claiborne Farm's Nadir.

But Kentucky Pride never was a factor, running no better than third at any time, and Nadir, making a bid at the head of the stretch, barely took third in a photo over William H. Bishop's Discordant.

A Dragon Killer paid $36.20, $16 and $7.60, and Talent Show, half of the Mrs. Ada L. Rice entry, returned $12.40 and $6.20. Nadir paid $4.60. Time for the mile was 1:36 2/5 and the winner's share was $101,100.

Watch Your Step Snares Sapling

OCEANPORT, N. J. (UPI)—Watch Your Step gained a four and a half length triumph over previously unbeaten Intentionally Saturday to take the $58,900 Sapling Stakes at Monmouth Park.

Watch Your Step paid $11.40, $4.80 and $2.20 for his 1:10⅘ triumph. Intentionally returned $3.60 and $2.20, while Restless Wind paid $2.20.

Swoon's Son Pads Bankroll With Win

DETROIT (UPI) — Swoon's Son moved from seventh to fifth place among the top money winners in racing Saturday by capturing the $50,000-added Michigan Sweepstakes. Mister Jive was second by a head and My Night Out was third.

Swoon's Son now has lifetime earnings of $851,000. He ran the mile and one sixteenth in 1:43⅗ and paid $4.60, $3.80, $3.20. Mister Jive paid $7.20, $5.20 and My Night Out returned $3.80.

Delaware Handicap to Endine

STANTON, Del. (AP) — The Christiana Stables of Wilmington, Del., kept the big money at home Saturday when Endine captured the $143,562 Delaware Handicap in an exciting finish which saw the King Ranch's Dotted Line miss by a bare nose.

This is the richest race in the world for fillies and mares, and 16 of them took off in a cavalry charge that produced a surprising result after a hectic mile and one quarter gallop. Third place went to Mrs. William H. Veeneman's Woodlawn, with the Mooring Stable's Tempted fourth.

* * * *

THE WINNER, carrying 111 pounds, was clocked in 2:03 compared with the record of 2:02⅘ set by Parlo in 1955. Endine paid $24, $8.80 and $6. Dotted Line, packing 116 pounds, paid $8.80 and $6.60, after taking second place by a length over Woodlawn.

Casals Asked to Play at Brussels

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pablo Casals, the famous cellist, has been invited to play at the Brussels World Fair in honor of his newly-adopted homeland, Puerto Rico.

If he accepts, the 81-year-old musician would give a substantial fillip to the much-criticized U. S. program at the fair.

* * * *

THE PUERTO RICAN exhibit is part of this country's although it was set up independently by the island's state department, symbolizing the home-rule relationship it enjoys with the United States.

Puerto Rico's music-loving Gov. Luis Munoz Marin recently wrote Casals suggesting his appearance at the fair would be a major contribution to the prestige of Puerto Rico and the United States. Munoz himself plans to attend the fair in September and proposed that the two be there together.

Officials here feel that a recital by Casals would go a long way to help this country match the massive array of musical talent assembled by the Soviet Union. Such renowned soloists as violinist David Oistrakh and pianist Emil Gilels teamed with top Russian orchestras for weeks of concerts, and the Bolshoi Opera and Ballet dazzled capacity audiences with outstanding performances.

* * * *

BECAUSE OF LACK of funds, the United States was limited to only a few concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra, with violinists Isaac Stern and the Juilliard School of Music's youthful ensemble.

Munoz had this uneven display of talent in mind when he wrote Casals. But he deliberately left the invitation sufficiently vague so that Casals may comfortably decline should he be tied up through previous commitments or too tired to make the trip.

Reserve Troops Leave for Camps

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Some 1,800 Reserve Officers and enlisted men left Los Angeles Saturday for two weeks of training at Camp Roberts.

The reservists boarded trains at Union Station in the first major railroad troop movement from the Southland since the Korean war.

Commanding the 2,500-man 63rd Infantry Division is Maj. Gen. Henry K. Kellogg of Hollywood. The "citizen soldiers" return Aug. 9.

Minnesota Meeting

It Happened Last Night

By Earl Wilson

A PICNIC WITH SOPHIA

NEW YORK — There's a Hollywood in Paris, and a Hollywood outside London and Rome — and after I'd visited all three a couple of times, I came at last to Hollywood-in-the-Bronx.

It was about a $3 cab ride up to the Gold Medal Studios, and when I got there, the building looked like a school, but the trip was worth it, because there I saw one of my heroines, Sophia Loren.

SOPHIA

Before I finished my visit, Sophia was lying on the floor of her dressing room.

Her husband, Carlo Ponti, was sitting on a chair, bending over her, talking to her.

Sophia was resting. I suspected she was about to have a siesta.

For Sophia had just played hostess to a big Italian-type luncheon in this same dressing room, with the cast as her guests.

It was a feast. "Hollywood was never like this," said Barbara Nichols, one of the performers in the picture, "That Kind of Woman."

"Rome was never like this, either," Sophia said, yawning.

* * * *

IT SEEMS that a couple of days before, the cast had gone out to various restaurants in the neighborhood. It was probably Keenan Wynn who thought of it—that they should have kind of a box lunch — a picnic — right in the studio.

"Do you know any place around here where we can get some Italian bread?" he asked a boy in the neighborhood.

The boy knew just the place.

Chianti, salami, sliced ham, cheese and more chianti were aquired. When I arrived in the dressing room, strictly as a reporter, I found a table groaning with all those edibles—and everybody applying the well-known boarding-house reach to get a portion before it was all gone.

Sophia had as long a boarding-house reach as anybody.

Also pretty good was director Sidney Lumet, who in levis, and a strange floppy old cap that he considers a good luck omen, didn't remind you a bit of his wife, Gloria Vanderbilt.

"CAN I MAKE you a salami - and - cheese sandwich?" asked Sophia, who was on the floor on her knees, wolfing down the vittles pretty enthusiastically.

"You certainly can," I replied courteously.

"Can I pour you some chianti?" asked Keenan Wynn.

"You certainly can," I answered.

"Can I make you another sandwich?" asked Barbara Nichols, whose two French poodles were running around the dressing room.

"You certainly can," I glubglubbed.

"Can I pour you some more chianti?" inquired Jack Warden.

"You certainly can — and may I say you're not only a wonderful actor but a gentleman . . . and also a great wine-pourer " I said.

I cannot remeber that Sidney Lumet, Carlo Ponti or Tab Hunter served me anything . . . but then there's a lot that I don't remember about that luncheon. I do recall that at one point Sidney Lumet said, waving his cap, "I will kindly request all my cast to sober up and get back to work!"

* * * *

IT WAS ABOUT that time that Barbara Nichols reported one of her dogs was lost.

People got down on their knees and looked for Hi-Fi, who, however, remained elusive so long that people began hoping that he hadn't made himself a part of the luncheon by mistake.

"Hi-Fi is one of my boy friends," Barbara said gloomily. "I would hate to lose him. Boy friends are very hard to find nowadays."

"You should come to Italy," Sophia said. She was now lying down on the floor, stretched out very comfortably.

"Would you find me a boy friend?" asked Barbara.

"Of course!" Sophia was looking up at Carlo, her husband, who was looking adoringly at her.

Barbara, who was down on her knees, searching for Hi-Fi, suddenly said, "You don't have to. I just found my boy friend." He was hiding under the table, afraid he was going to be devoured.

Sophia looked so siesta-like that I decided I'd better leave. I did with the fondest recollections of Hollywood-in-the-Bronx.

THE WEEK-END WINDUP "DON'T PRINT THAT!": A famous singer described his latest million-record seller: "I hated it when I made it and I hate it even more now —it's the worst piece of trash ever put out!" . . . A big-name athlete is trying to hush the fact his ex-wife was admitted to a mental hospital.

Dorothy Lamour, appearing on B'way in "Oh, Captain," got this opening night wire: "Glad we're not appearing with you. You've stolen enough scenes from us. — Bing and Bob" . . . A forthcoming show, "Nine O'Clock Theater," will serve its audience after-dinner coffee before curtain time and drinks during intermission. . . . Gene Kelly recommended his pal, comic Jack Durant, to play the Mayor of Chinatown in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Flower Drum Song."

* * * *

ACTRESS EVA BARTOK —who is reported due to wed the Marquis of Milford-Haven — will be here next month to ballyhoo her sexy new film, "Circus of Love." . . . With the Latin-American dances still the rage, they tell of the cafe owner who dashed into the street, shouting, "Help, my place is on fire, cha cha cha!" . . . A singer complained to the boss of a Manhattan cafe that her salary check had bounced, and he snapped, "Well, why not? Everybody else here got one!"

Edsel Visits Las Vegas Strip

Gay Town Still Reigns as Nation's Fun Center

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

The word "Vega" translates into "star of the first magnitude . . . brightest star of the constellation." Las Vegas, then, is aptly named with many scintillating stars a-twinkle night and day in this greatest of entertainment constellations. For, recession or no, Las Vegas still reigns as undisputed queen of the world of fun and fantasy, high-style pleasure center of America.

Whether you want to lie poolside in the sun, nightclub in formal attire, or cavort around the tables of chance in levis or shorts, fabulous Las Vegas still is your best bet for a multi-thrill vacation.

Take that word "fabulous." Certainly it's greatly overworked as applied to supermarket openings or dollar-day sales, yet there's no other adjective to so aptly describe this glittering entertainment spa where thousands of $$$ change ownership on the capricious bounce of a numbered cube, where the greats of show business perform for picayunish salaries of up to $50,000 a week, and where curvaceous chorus cuties perform wearing no more than a smile north of the equator. Small wonder it's fabulous, fabulous Las Vegas.

And Lost Wages, as some are prone to call this city of glitter—and grief—was the scene of our latest I, P-T motorlog which saw us traveling via a brand new 1958 Edsel, a car which impressed us considerably on the 600-mile round trip.

Harbor Lincoln-Mercury of 1633 American Ave. is the new Edsel dealership in Long Beach so it was Chan Simonds, genial general manager of the place, whom we approached for the loan of the Edsel. Chan agreed immediately to the use of the car with this proviso. "You can take the Edsel all right, but the pink slip stays right here. After all, hitchhiking can be most unpleasant in that fiery desert sun." And having been up Vegas way before, we knew exactly what Mr. Simonds meant.

Talking to Chan in a more serious vein while the big white Citation was being made road-ready for our tour, we queried the general manager as to the future for Edsel.

"Well, I'll tell you this, Art," Simonds enthused. "Edsel has put 50,000 cars on the road in the first 10 months of production and that's a new record for any first-year car in this price class. And if you don't think there are a lot more Edsels on the road, while you're on this Vegas trip, just notice how many of those distinctive fronts you'll see coming at you along the highway."

And I must admit Chan had a point; we did see a good many Edsels on our motorlog trip. And although one has a tendency to spot the same make of car you're driving, we noticed more Edsels than on any of our previous motorlog trips. Of course, you can spot the cars a mile away with that unique front-on view, which is just what the designers had in mind.

Leaving Long Beach at an early 6 a.m. to escape the desert heat (next time, Chan, air-conditioning, please) we turned our brand new Edsel, only 44 miles on the speedometer, toward the San Bernardino freeway and Fontana. Here a left turn took us over the mile-saving Devore Cutoff, onto Highway 66 through Cajon Pass where the early morning temperature was cool and pleasant. Soon we had by-passed Victorville and shortly after eased to a gas-stop in Barstow's 100-degree heat. Here we left 66 for State Highway 91, next lemonade stop, Baker, sun-scorched oasis in the center of the Mojave Desert.

Now as we rolled along we could observe some of the qualities of our big Edsel. I had driven the car once before in Detroit last August when the newcomer was introduced to the press, but only for a few miles at the Dearborn test track. Here, cruising along the desert floor, our motorlog party universally agreed on two things—the feel of extra roominess and comfort in the car. Of course, this was the Citation, the top of the Edsel line. It was a big, big car and it did give us a luxury ride as we sped toward never-never land.

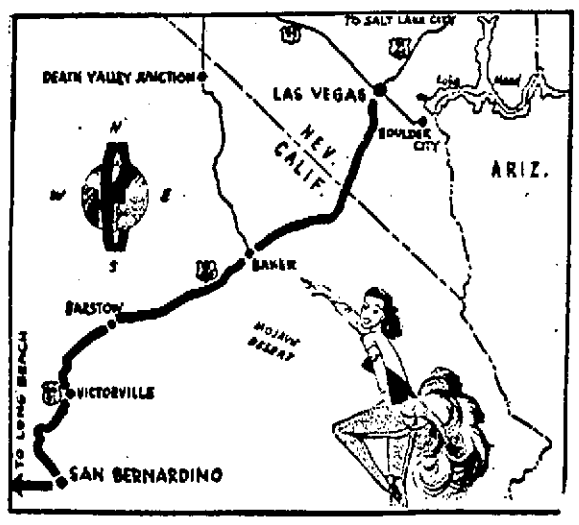

SUN-FUN AT DESERT INN

EDSEL ARRIVES AT LAS VEGAS
Right, easing to a stop at Desert Inn, Edsel motorlog party anticipates two-day fun tour of Las Vegas Strip resorts.

'World of Wheels' MOTORLOG

And we noticed other little things exclusive to the Edsel. Like the very practical gear-selector buttons located in the center of the steering wheel, the radio dial-type heat and cool-air selector which lets you select your inside weather with the flick of one dial instead of fumbling around with several different knobs, and the easy-to-read, airplane-type instrument panel.

As to engine performance, the car was practically new and I took it fairly easy on the accelerator but now and then, in passing a grade-climbing truck, I would give the throttle a healthy shove and you could feel there was plenty under the hood as the four-barrel carburetors flashed the word to the 345 horses below.

But the Edsel wasn't the only thought as we neared the Nevada border. Here, over the monotonous desert highway was the time for more basic thoughts. Like... this time I'll play the don't pass line, I'll go along with the house.... no, I'll stick with blackjack and stand on 12 or over and let the dealer go bust ... or why not roulette?... why not wait till red comes up three times then chunk it on the black... why not this, why not that, till suddenly we're in Vegas and Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn, six hours and 50 minutes from home.

Several years ago when the Mobilgas Economy Run took us to the Grand Canyon via Las Vegas, we were guests at the Desert Inn, and with memories of their lavish hospitality we decided to again make this swank hotel our stopping place for the two-day jaunt. A few minutes saw our party settled in two adjoining rooms, tastefully decorated in desert motif, air-conditioned, of course (it was 110 at three in the afternoon), complete with piped-in music and telephones. And the best part was the tariff of only $7 per room. Believe me, this plush comfort has to be the biggest bargain in Las Vegas.

When on these tours I usually try to meet the hotel operators, mentioning our motorlog, etc., so while other members of our troupe languished poolside after the hot desert ride, I chatted with Eugene Murphy, public relations director of the Desert Inn, who pointed out the many recreational facilities of the famed Strip resort.

Ed Sullivan and his entourage were headlining the Desert Inn entertainment that weekend and after suggesting to Mr. Murphy we would like reservations for the show that evening that genial gentleman fixed up our party with a ringside table, and I do mean ringside. You know, it's rather hard to keep your mind on your shrimp cocktail when a line of chorus cuties kick up their heels a foot or two above your head, but then again, that's fabulous Las Vegas.

And Sullivan did put on a show. Nine stellar acts from busty singers to mystic magicians kept the Desert Inn patrons away from the gaming tables for more than an hour and a half and that means the entertainment has to be good.

Next day I introduced myself to Mr. Sullivan as he was strolling through the casino, suggesting he pose before our Edsel for our motorlog page. However, "Smiley" declined politely, noting that even though Edsel was a member of the Ford family, he was sponsored on TV by Mercury dealers and he felt he'd better not drape himself over an Edsel. The TV tycoon did mention he has a cousin in Long Beach, Emmet Sullivan, one-time member of our Board of Harbor Commissioners, so if you read this, Emmet, Cousin Ed says hello from Las Vegas.

Time never lags on the Vegas Strip. Besides intermittent trips to the casinos (good thing Chan didn't give me the pink slip) we ogled Jack Benny over a steak at the Flamingo, dug the Louis Prima-Keely Smith show at the Sahara, and got a big laugh at the antics of Pinky Lee at the Dunes where the near-nude showgirls perform a la Minsky, complete with sparkler. (This you have to see to believe.)

And one of the highlights of our Vegas voyage was an interlude at the Desert Inn's new Sky Room Lounge, high above the hotel. Opening at dusk, this is the loviest place in Las Vegas to watch the distant mountains change into soft shades of blue and purple as the fiery sun slips into the desert. Here, tall cool one in hand and soft piano meanderings in the background, a man can almost forget what happened at the blackjack table a half hour before.

Suddenly our two days in Las Vegas were gone. Tuesday evening found us once more back in the Edsel, beach-bound. And as the big Citation purred along in the hot desert night we couldn't help but muse . . . Las Vegas is fun, fantastic . . . and for the seventh or eleventh time . . . fabulous!

Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

"The Purple People Eater," in person, is billed for the "Ed Sullivan Show" (2) at 8 p.m., or at least the most reasonable facsimile in the person of Sheb Wooley. He wrote the song and made the hit record.

All is not peace and quiet in Wooleyland. Long before he made the big hit song he signed for a role on "Rawhide" and agreed to help exploit the show by personal appearances. Now he has to clear everything he does with CBS, even appearances to sing his famous song.

Other acts billed tonight include such topliners as Ernie Kovacs, Mickey Rooney, Gisele MacKenzie, Gordon MacRae, The Goofers, George Givot, Bobby Van, the San Francisco Four and a Grandmothers' Orchestra.

Show originates in Hollywood's big TV City of CBS.

Big Home Building Boom Nearly Ready to Launch

By KEN CHILCOTE
Independent, Press-Telegram Business Editor

Southern California is near another gigantic housing construction period, declares Leo J. Volk, president of the Building Contractors of California.

"And," said the builders' chief, "this upswing in construction will pull the general economy of the area along with it into a new era of prosperity."

Dormant for months, housing construction in the Long Beach-Orange County area has been slow to get renewed this summer although thousands of homes are on the planning boards of major building firms.

* * * *

FINANCING PROBLEMS, an earlier pinch on money, government demands for heavier down payments and big increases in building costs have been the barrier confronting the tract developers.

A survey of the nearly 2,000 members of the Building Contractors Assn., reveals that plans are being completed to get many housing projects under way shortly and the construction will be in full swing early in 1959.

However, warns Volk, that with the increase in home building will come higher prices and many of the new homes will lack the extras found in the new homes now on the market.

* * * *

GEORGE TOLL, manager of the Long Beach office of the State Employment Service, said an early revival of home construction would be a welcome cut in the unemployed rolls. He estimated there still are 4,000 persons in the building trades out of work.

Heavy construction has taken some of the unemployed in that group but housing tracts always provide far more jobs for carpenters, plasterers, roofers, painters and similar trades, than heavy construction, he added.

Toll reported that for the past three weeks his office has received several large orders for skilled workers and he expects to show 1,200 such placements for the month. Jobs for youngsters are showing a big gain with at least 300 being put to work this month, he added.

* * * *

AMONG THE BUILDING TRADES the brightest picture this month has been the call for many painters, said Toll.

Volk in speaking for the contractors, pointed out that although construction economists have generally predicted that the next housing boom in Southern California will occur sometime from 1960 to 1962, evidence is emerging that indicates it may get under way shortly. He reported that a survey of the members revealed an almost universal trend to accelerate their building operations.

Many builders will concentrate on lower cost housing in suburban areas achieved largely by the elimination of many so-called "extras" that are commonly included by builders today, Volk said.

"They will attempt to hold the line or possibly lower prices of new homes without reducing construction quality by returning to the practice of having the buyer add extra conveniences as he can afford them rather than compelling him to assume their cost in the original price," Volk predicted. "These extra conveniences will still be available but will be optional to a greater degree than in the recent past."

* * * *

COSTS OF LAND, materials, labor and financing will become somewhat higher as the new housing boom gains momentum, he warned.

"It is entirely possible that these increases may offset or more than offset any cost reductions achieved through elimination of non-structural "extras," he said.

"It is obvious under these conditions that the prospective home buyer who can make his purchase now will receive substantially more for his building dollar than he will if he waits for the boom to hit," Volk asserted.

The builders chief predicted that the upswing in construction would pull the general economy of the area along with it into a new era of prosperity.

MORE PARKING COMING

Two Long Beach landmarks will be torn down to make room for a parking lot, at W. 3rd St. and Cedar Ave., near the new civic center. The old frame structure at 226 W. 3rd St., built more than 50 years ago, will be demolished at once. Recently, it was sold by Mrs. Lora V. Outhier, of 232 Belmont Ave., who had owned the property since 1922. The buyer was B. Everett Gobel, of 835 E. Carson St. Gobel also purchased the adjoining property at 256 W. 3rd St., on which there is an old frame structure. The sellers were Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Ferry, of Waterloo, Iowa. Charles H. Blaylock was the realtor in the two transactions. Gobel, a member of the National Parking Assn., will convert each property into a parking lot.

Home Builders Eye $100 Week Workers

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UPI)—The housing industry is turning its attention once again to low-cost homes that fit the budgets of the nation's average wage earners.

Industry spokesmen say the man making between $70 and $100 a week has become the almost "forgotten" market of housing.

In recent years, the housing industry has been concentrating on homes in the higher price brackets — $20,000 to $40,000 and higher.

The $100-a-week man can only look at $25,000 split levels and $35,000 ranch homes. He just can't afford to buy.

* * * *

THE AVERAGE wage earner is able to purchase a home in the $14,000 or under class. He could meet the monthly payments without too much strain.

David O'D. Kennedy, president of Kentile Inc., a leading manufacturer of floor tile, said surveys showed that plans for low-cost housing projects are rising sharply this year.

"According to government and private statistics," he added, "present indications are that homes in the $7,000 to $13,000 range will hit 400,000 this year —a more than 50 per cent jump over 1957."

He said it is likely that a minimum of 600,000 homes will be built in the $13,000 to $20,000 bracket.

Kennedy said "ample mortgage money, lower down payments and the adjustment of interest rates to the reality of today's market are helping to get the housing industry back on its feet."

* * * *

IN RECENT YEARS inflation has played havoc with the average wage earner's dream of owning his own home.

A spokesman for F. W. Dodge Corp. estimated that the cost of the average home has more than doubled in the postwar period. Rising prices which threaten to price the indutry out of its biggest market still constitute one of the major problems facing builders today.

However, housing starts have begun to perk up and this has been one of the important factors cited by economists as evidence the nation is coming out of the recession.

Sol Vista Homes in Santa Ana Appeal

Heavy attendance at the Grand Opening of Sol-Vista Santa Ana Homes with the sale of 18 homes in first 10 days, was reported by Al Solomon of Alco-Pacific Construction Company, Inc., builders.

Combination of moderate price, ($13,500), sturdy construction, and customized features of Sol-Vista Santa Ana Homes, presents an excellent home-value, according to Solomon. No down payment is required of veterans; impounds only. FHA terms require $450 down, plus small impounds.

* * * *

SOLOMON LISTS prime features of Sol-Vista Santa Ana Homes which include 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, with stall showers and colored fixtures, large 2-car garage and laundry space, plenty of wardrobes with sliding doors, and forced air heat. Mahogany paneling, natural finish mahogany doors, sculptured wood room dividers, sliding glass patio doors, old and ruffled brick fireplaces with log lighter, and professional color styling add to desirability of these homes. Family-size kitchens provide convenient breakfast area, Formica counter tops, Vinyl floors, natural finish ash cabinets, and garbage disposals.

Prop-Driven Trains Seen

WOOD-RIDGE, N. J. (UPI)—Propeller-driven trains that could hurtle from New York to Washington in two hours are being discussed on a hush-hush basis by the Pennsylvania railroad and the Curtiss-Wright Aeronautical Corp.

Spokesmen for both firms admit they have been talking over the "possibility" of a "high speed train," but refuse to clarify reports that an aircraft engine would be used to power the train.

However, it was learned that the use of a 3,700-horsepower airplane engine made by Curtiss-Wright formed the starting point for discussions in Philadelphia.

The engine—a turbo-compound manufactured here—is used to power giant commercial aircraft such as super constellations.

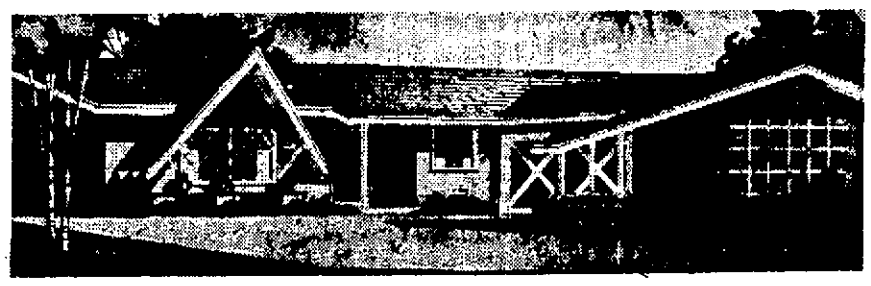

Its use on a train, it was reported, could clip 85 minutes from the three hour and 25-minute trip between New York and Washington.

IN LEMON HEIGHTS WEST NO. 2

High light of today's grand opening at Lemon Heights West, Schwartz-Yedor's new community of luxuriously appointed custom residences in the exclusive Lemon Heights district of Santa Ana, is a display of four furnished models.

Lemon Heights West Opening Second Unit of Luxury Homes

Today's grand opening of Lemon Heights West Unit 2 in Santa Ana will be highlighted by the first public showing of four furnished models with decor by Newton S. Leichter, creator of interiors of homes in the $100,000 bracket, according to Schwartz-Yedor, builder-developers.

"Pre-opening response has been nothing short of terrific," reports Tom Yedor. "Even before this formal opening, one-third of the homes have already been sold."

Today's opening introduces the "Custom Series," expressly designed for those who require a minimum of 2,200 square feet of living space. Architect George Vernon Russell designed these spacious residences in a wide variety of diverse architectural stylings and highly individual floor plans with 3 and 4 bedrooms and 3 baths.

* * * *

ALL OF THE CUSTOM detailing and luxurious appointments that won Schwartz-Yedor the 1958 "House and Home" award of merit, have gone into the planning and construction of these homes.

Fully priced from $32,750, these homes offer sunken playrooms, spacious family rooms, separate dining rooms as well as separate dining areas, powder rooms and master bedroom suites with private baths.

Completely appliance-equipped kitchens, with each appliance selected from the best in its field, are included in the price of the homes. These list built-in wall oven, counter rangetop, sink-installed disposer, automatic dishwasher, washer and dryer and combination refrigerator freezer.

* * * *

OTHER TOP QUALITY components include custom fireplaces each styled to the home's individual decor, indoor barbecues, built-in custom bars, Hi-Fi wiring and properly engineered heating and air conditioning systems.

Nylon's tremendous wearing ability (from 5 to 15 times that of wool by actual scientific tests), plus its excellent resilience, stain resistance and ease of cleaning, make it the best buy in carpets.

Nylon is also moth-proof, allergy-free, non-inflammable and has no more static electricity than wool.

All nylon, however, is not alike. For example, there is waste nylon, discarded nylon, nylon from cord tires, nylon adapted for hosiery, etc., all of which are not recommended for carpet use. The carpets offered by us are virgin nylon with no waste or unsuitable nylon used.

Assistance Leaguers Hold Key to Teen Hearts

COOKIE AND MILK time is observed at the Girls' Club every afternoon at 1 o'clock with Mrs. William B. Eastmaan, league Girls' Club chairman, doing the honors in the above picture. A part of the $1-per-year membership fee goes to defray snack expenses, and snack time also gives members working for "camp points" an opportunity to serve. Points are given for numerous chores around the clubhouse and go toward week's vacation at summer camp.

Girls Club Boasts Membership of 450

By JOYCE KENT

Junior High School age girls, informally attired in shorts, slacks and Capris, stream in a ceaseless flow to the contemporary exteriored building at 2640 Santa Fe Ave.

The girls are members of the Assistance League of Long Beach sponsored West Long Beach Girls Club participating in a full summer program of sports, crafts, cooking, sewing, first aid, drama, charm, music, dancing, television and reading.

Open to all junior high school age girls, more than 450 today enjoy one-dollar-a-year membership in the club, an increase of more than 100 per cent since the club moved from Truman Boyd Manor to its handsome new quarters in late April.

An average of 118 girls take part in activities from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays, and from 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday. During the school year the club is open from 3 to 5 p.m. each afternoon and on all school vacations.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to daily activities, special events also dot the club's large calendar. Included are a roller skating party sponsored by Rick Rackers, the league's junior auxiliary; a 9th grade beach party given by the Harold G. Appletons at their 25 Laguna Pl. home; monthly dances and mother-teacher parties.

Mrs. Madeline Goldsmith, the club's amiable and alert executive director, has been with the organization for six years and has seen many of her "girls" grow to womanhood. In addition to her directing duties, she is looked upon as second mother and dearest friends to many of the girls who go to her with their problems and successes.

Aiding in the program are Coni Dandrew, assistant director, League, Rick Racker and community volunteers. Many of the Girls Club "graduates" go back to the club as high school counselors, helping with the program and with the homework of younger girls.

A popular function at the center is its monthly cloth-

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

SOMEWHERE there's a river bank a-waitin' with a big rock in the sun just right for lazy sitting. Going hunting for it now. Time to trade this rock 'n roll rhythm of parties 'n people for that somewhere else. Hankerin' to glide awhile to a wind in the willows waltz. In other words, this river rat's going on vacation!

"River Rats Farewell!"

No matter how much hullabaloo we make at midnight every Dec. 31, it always seems vacation time cleaves one year from another more deftly than the surgery performed by a calendar. Reminiscing comes kind of naturally right now.

In the welter of memories both sentimental and humorous we recall reporting such events as when the sophisticated crew of the So. California Symphony Assn. met at the old Petroleum Club one cold early morning last January only to find that the heating system had taken French Leave sometime during the night. There was one warm spot in a frosty world and chairman Vivian Yunker found it for her committee! She lead them all right out to the club's kitchen range and they planned what had to be planned to the tympani of pots and pans.

THEN CAME THAT sad day when Dick Zehms (and still our favorite redhead) retired after 33 years as a P-T Sports Dep't wheel to accept the offer of Another Paper and we couldn't have been more jealous if it had been Another Woman! That, sigh, was in January, too. Just for the record, we keep track of him through his wife and our Women's Editor, Mary Lou, who says he's sleek and sassy and minds the commuting not one bit.

OR OUR MIND harks back to March 11 and Assistance League's truly gala world premiere of "Long, Hot Summer"—and the happy smiles that night of Dorothy Dunlap, chairman, and Mildred Wing, then president, Polly Chace, and every other leaguer.

AMONG FEBRUARY'S don't miss dates was Alpha Phi's Table Topics Tea which Betty Lou Hayter chairmanned at Virginia Country Club on the 27th. Oh, lucky timing! Not only did the sun shine but it was a positively balmy day (that's polite for hot!) marvelous contrast to the 1957—and first—tea when the Chamber of Commerce boys hid their heads in shame during one of the wildest wind and rain storms of a decade.

HOW COULD we forget the horror of having to be honest and report Doris and Vern Brinkman's dastardly reaction to Florida when they visited there. They liked it!

DID SHE get a medal? Don't know. But Georgia McCord should have for that time in April when she recruited 33 volunteers for the door to door Cancer Fund Drive, rounding them all up in less than 24 hours!

REMEMBERING, too, the big buildup followed by the sodden let-down when a group of newly banded together Long Beach Marina yachters planned their grand maiden voyage and the day turned up so foggy the cans of pea soup in their boats kept calling the sky "Mammy." Among sailors who groped their way to the sea to see if they could see the sea and wound up feeling like Columbus about the 58th day before they could even find their boats were Joan and Dr. Ed Beebe, Marjory and Mossie Kent, Eleanor and Art Howard, Lucille and Conrad Lueke, LaNelle and Ray Fosholdt and many other misty-eyed mariners.

Although the ball won't take place until Nov. 8 these gals are working like it was going to be Aug. 8 and Elizabeth Rex had promised to compete wearing the Crown of England. Geneva has had three in a series of "work" luncheons already—two at the new Petroleum Club, where the ball will take place, and one at Victor Hugo's.

THE BARON AND Baroness William T. Von Guilleaume of Johannesburg, So. Africa, and Natal, are distinguished guests in Long Beach this week and loving every minute of the freedom of good, old informal Mr. and Mrs. America living. The titled couple are guests of Marilyn and Doug Graham who are thoroughly enjoying repaying the hospitality the Von Guilleaumes lavished on them when they entertained them in their home in Johannesburg. This weekend the four good friends and the Grahams' daughter and son-in-law, Mardel and Tom O'Brien (here from Austin, Texas), are exploring local sea lanes and ocean currents aboard Marilyn and Doug's sleek cruiser, "Mardel."

"DOWN TO the Sea in Sunglasses"—or—"Return of the Native"—or—"Gee Whiz, It's Good to Have You Home!" The title isn't important but the plot of this story is because it concerns Nancy (Lower) Lobdell who is here from Poland, Ohio, visiting her mother, Marion Heedwohl, for the first time in a year and a half. Naturally she has the youngsters with her: Teresa, 5 years old, and John, 3 years old. Big excitement yesterday with Nancy's husband, Bob, arriving to vacation visit, too, until time to head back for Poland mid-August. Big excitement Thursday as well when Marion entertained at luncheon for Nancy and gathered about 30 of her former school friends from all over Southern Cal. for the merriest reunion since their pledging days.

Fine assignment, apparently. He's been placed in topography work and nothing in the small print in his orders indicates it won't be permanent.

HOW COME those TV cameramen during the Miss Universe telecasts this week, all supposedly experts at keeping the world's most beautiful girls in the center of their cameras, kept goofing. Why else would they let a video view of Bob Reid, chairman of the judges committee, sneak into focus every once in awhile? For contrast? There's one thing to be said for Bob, though. He's no ham. Not once did he ogle back at the camera. He was always too busy ogling the beauties!

Predict Party Will Be Real Confection

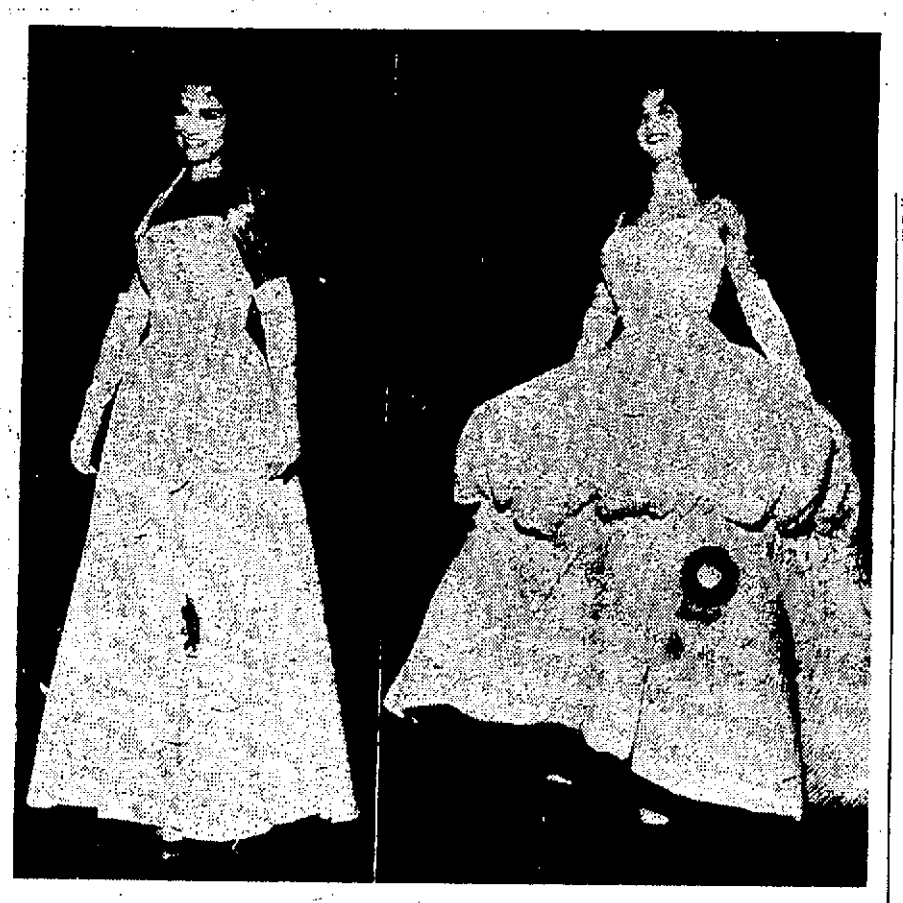

What double chocolate malted milks with whipped cream and maraschino cherry toppings do for the small fry set, Helen (Mrs. Edson) Davis' parties do for her friends. They love em!

"Hmm, yummy!"

And we do, indeed, intend to infer that Helen's parties are real confection type fun. She's having just such a "double chocolate malted milk" on Aug. 14 at her Country Club Drive home. But because her guests, about 125 of them, are somewhat beyond the corner soda fountain age she'll serve brunch (double good even if not chocolate) from 10:30 until 1 p. m.

Guests will be able to chat over tables in the garden, as pretty a city glade as you'll find. The hostess is asking Virginia Mitchell, Katharyn Edwards, Ruth Cree, Ruth Rowan, Ann Settle and Della Lewis to assist her.

THAT FASHION BRIDGES international boundaries is evidenced in these two gowns worn by Miss Universe contestants—either of which might easily invoke the comment, "Why, it's just what we wear here!" At left is Miss Norway in an Oslo-designed gown of rich brocade satin fashioned on princess lines while Miss Cuba wears an Angelita of Cuba, extremely bouffant dress of silk organza.—(Staff photos by Skip Shuman.)

Stylish, These U Girls!

By JEAN MOORE AND JOYCE KENT

Fashion speaks an international language. Even the casual observer would acknowledge that after seeing gowns chosen by foreign contestants in the Miss Universe Pageant Thursday night.

Where the foreign contestants differed in facial structure and figure proportion, the elaborately beautiful gowns they selected for their pageant roles could make a dramatic entrance at a ball anywhere in the world.

Fabrics were beautiful — heavy satins, gossamer sheer silks, delicate cottons, rich taffeta, flowing chiffons, classic crepes.

Lines, whether from the sketching board of a designer in Scandinavia or South America, were similar, leaning toward the bouffant in Europe and the sleek in the Latin counties.

Dutch cap and wooden shoes were NOT worn by Miss Holland, but her blond loveliness conjured up that illusion as she paraded down the runway in a gown of green crushed taffeta. The scalloped hemline disclosed an underskirt of tulle, and a darker shade of green velvet traced the strapless neckline and was repeated in the cummerbund sash which tied in back, falling into long streamers. At the bow in back were two pink roses and she also wore pink elbow-length gloves. Her gown was American made, loaned her for the pageant.

One look at Miss Hawaii's gown, and you felt like rushing to the nearest reducing salon. Well, not the gown, but what was in it. Svelte, streamlined. Side poufs that could make anyone slightly hefty eligible for the fat-lady-in-the-carnival role merely accented Hawaii's curves poured into white brocade.

Miss Peru wasn't going to be caught short. She brought three evening gowns, designed for her by Peru's top couturier. One, a handsome coral draped number, had a shoulder panel which she kept swathed casually about her throat until, at a dramatic moment when she was alone on the runway, it was released to flow in sweeping elegance.

Noted Cuban designer Angelita took silk organza, bits of lace and iridescent sequins and came up with a show-stopping gown for her country's lovely entry, Miss Cuba. By far the pageant's most bouffant gown, the silk organza was sheared at the bustline and held by tiny spaghetti straps. It nipped into a fitted waistline, poufed out into a voluminous tier, pulled in again with a band of lace, and ended in a sweep of diagonal tucks. Scattered over the waistline and poufed tier were intricate patterns of lace, traced with iridescent sequins.

Hard to say which sparkled the most — the sequins and rhinestones in the contestants' gowns, or their eyes. Speaking of jewels, it was dangly earrings versus none at all for the majority of contestants.

Miss Germany's strapless gown of puckered platinum white satin brocade drew male nods of approval. Nods? They nearly shook their heads off!

Elsie Margaret, leading fashion designer of Oslo, Norway, would have been delighted to see the poise with which Miss Norway wore the

It's Golden Year for Mr., Mrs. Case

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Case, who have lived in Long Beach all their married life, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Monday, noting the day with a quiet dinner at home for members of their immediate family.

Seldom in the annals of any city has one couple helped mold the civic and cultural history of a community through so many long years with the unselfish zeal and dignity which has marked the Cases' contributions to Long Beach.

It is with true pride and admiration the Independent, Press-Telegram joins their hundreds of friends and acquaintances at this memorable time in expressing gratitude for their part in building this city and extending warmest greetings to them on their 50th anniversary.

* * * *

MR. AND MRS. CASE were married in Los Angeles on July 28, 1908. Their three sons were born here and all grew up in the family home at 3102 Vista St. where the couple has lived for almost 40 years. Their children are Nelson, nationally known television and radio announcer of New York; Roger T. Case, who conducts his own advertising business here, and Walter Case Jr., who resides with his parents. They have four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren: Elizabeth Case Zwicker of Hollywood and her two boys, Walter and Keith; Nelson Case Jr. of New York; Roger Case Jr. and Dennis Case of Long Beach.

Mr. Case was born in Kansas and is a graduate of Baker University where his father, Nelson Case Sr., was president of the board of trustees for many years. A newspaperman all his life, he worked on the Kansas City Star before coming to Long Beach in 1905 to join the staff of the Daily Telegram as a reporter and then progress to become its managing editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Case

* * * *

HE THEN WAS editor of the old Long Beach Sun before and after its merger with the Press-Telegram and remained on the editorial staff of the Press-Telegram until his retirement in 1947. For many years he authored a widely read column in the local papers titled, "Did You Know That—", which recorded the early pioneer days of this city. For this as well as four history books of Long Beach he wrote (now used in all the junior and senior high schools as reference textbooks) he became known as the historian of Long Beach. In addition Mr. Case served on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and was a member of the city book committee for the public library.

Mrs. Case, nee Ethel Christine Thompson, was born in Iowa but spent most of her girlhood in Salt Lake City where she was graduated from the normal school of the University of Utah. She taught for two years in Salt Lake before moving to Long Beach in 1906 and subsequently taught in both El Centro and Los Angeles schools prior to her marriage. Before their first child, Nelson, was born, Mrs. Case remained a careerist as a society news reporter for the old Telegram.

* * * *

SHE JOINED Ebell Club in 1911 and was among its most active members serving as president in 1929-30 in addition to many other elective and appointed posts including yeoman work with the building committees both for the original clubhouse and for the rebuilding of the structure after the 1933 earthquake.

From 1941 to 1948 Mrs. Case was volunteer service chairman for the Red Cross and contributed a gargantuan amount of volunteer time—a total of 14,000 hours—during the hectic, difficult war and postwar years. After this she served as secretary of the Red Cross board of directors for an additional four years, retiring from active volunteer work in 1952. Another major civic contribution was her service on the mayor's committee for public improvements for two terms, a total of six years.

* * * *

THE LONG and continuing success of the Long Beach Day Nursery is due, in large part, to the staunch, steady work of Mrs. Case who served on its board of directors for 45 years and held many offices including those of president and treasurer.

As great as her civic contributions have been perhaps Mrs. Case is best and most fondly known for her part in the cultural growth of Long Beach through the Long Beach Community Players. A charter member, she literally has been the group's backbone since 1929. She was vice president of the board and business manager from 1931 through 1934 when she went into the presidency to remain in that post for 23 consecutive years, retiring this year to devote her full time to the players as administrative business manager. In addition to her local little theater affiliation, she organized and was charter president of the League of Southern California Little Theaters and has been regional director of the National Association of Community Theaters.

This, in part at least, is their record and stands as a testimony not only to Mr. and Mrs. Case but to all others like them who have worked with faith and industry to build big and prosperous cities, nurturing them from infant village days to strong and knowledgeable maturity. A city is what its citizens make it. We can be proud of Long Beach.

Gamma Phis Get Out Picnic Baskets

The scene is similar in hundreds of homes throughout Southern California this week. Picnic baskets are being checked, thermos bottles brought down from shelves; hot dishes will bubble in the oven later in the week and chilled watermelon will be taken at the last minute from their icy homes for a ride along the freeways to Griffith Park.

There, on Aug. 5, on the lawns surrounding the Greek Theater, Gamma Phi Betas, their husbands and guests will sip and sup in early evening prior to strolling into the open air amphitheater to see the lilting operetta, "La Perichole," starring Cyril Ritchard.

Many Gamma Phi alumnae in Long Beach are enacting the scene above. Some are taking the easy way out in transportation and have chartered buses to whisk them theaterward.

* * * *

USING such a mode of getting from here to there are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Drew, whose guests that night will be Messrs. and Mmes. Jack Green, Richard Berry, John Kolyer, Bruce Nelson, Lee Davis and John Curtis.

Box lunches tied with pink ribbons will be placed on a pink tablecloth strewn with confetti at the Drew picnic table on the greensward. Pink carnations, the sorority flower, will be at each place setting, to be worn later at the premiere. Mrs. Drew is president of the Long Beach alumnae.

Another chartered bus will bear guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Lovell. Around their picnic table, set with beige and brown place mats that night, will be Messrs. and Mmes. Carl Spath, Edwin Wilcox, George Hedley, Ken Derryberry, John Walker, Don Spring, Jules Brady, Kenneth Walker, Al Beach, Jack Fawson, Robert Bailey, George Richards, William Bennett, Charles Van de Water and Robert Wood; Messrs. Fred Hudson Jr., Robert Risman and Waugh Smith, and Miss Elizabeth Tucker.

* * * *

STEAKS SIZZLING over a hibachi will spell appetizing enchantment for Dr. and Mrs. John Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cullen. Their "bewitchers" are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. F. Cullen, whose idea it was to transport outdoor cookery from Long Beach to Griffith Park.

A birthday cake will dominate the center of the table occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Johnson's guests, for the premiere benefit performance falls on Mrs. Johnson's birthday anniversary.

Sharing the box lunches with the Johnsons will be Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Axtell, Ralph Graffi and E. F. Newton.

Among the other Long Beach alumnae planning to attend the operetta are Mr. and Mrs. James V. Shirley, who have asked Dr. and Mrs. Geza Krempels to accompany them.

Miss Joanne Schumacher will arrive on the mainland in the nick of time to see the operetta. She will fly in Aug. 4 after an exciting summer's stay with Keiki Payne of Honolulu. Both are Gamma Phi Betas at the University of Arizona. Joanne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Schumacher, 3913 California Ave.

Tickets in the Long Beach area may be obtained from Mmes. Edward Lovell, 3916 Pine Ave.; Walter Drew, 3375 Iroquois Ave.; H. W. Newman, 5573 Sorrento Dr., or Dale R. Leisy, 3171 Oak Knoll Dr., Los Alamitos.

* * * *

SO MUCH concentration on the gala night, which will benefit the Gamma Phi Beta Nursery Guild of Good Samaritan Hospital, calls for a certain amount of relaxation, so on Tuesday Long Beach alumnae and actives will have a luncheon, swimming and bridge party at the University Club.

Swimming will be the diversion at noon, and luncheon will follow at 1:30 p. m. Actives invited to the alumnae function are Mrs. Philip T. Clock (Gayle Andrews, UC, Berkeley); Marie Bell and Carol Crosby, UCLA; Cathy Cottrell, University of Colorado; Jennesse Thompson and Martha Brightman, USC; Carolyn Gibbs and Joanne Schumacher, University of Arizona; Linda Hossom, UC, Berkeley, and Virginia Crager, San Jose State.

FORECAST: CHUCKLES, STARS AND PICKLES

Situations befalling Cyril Ritchard in "La Perichole" amuse Long Beach Gamma Phi Betas and their husbands who will attend the operetta Aug. 5 at the Greek Theater, Los Angeles. Discussing the plot and planning picnic fare preceding the show are, from left, Mrs. H. L. F. Cullen, Walter Drew, Mr. Cullen, Mrs. Drew, president of Long Beach alumnae, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale R. Leisy. Gamma Phis and friends from throughout Southland will patronize the pre-premiere benefit.—(Staff photo.)

Fete Marilyn Sherman at Bridal Showers

Marilyn Sherman, who will become the bride of Bill Jensen Aug. 1, has been feted at a number of showers during recent weeks.

The engaged pair was feted by 25 young couples at a Hawaiian buffet supper and kitchen shower given in the clubhouse of the trailer park home of Bob and Nadine Kirkpatrick, 6541 Atlantic Ave. Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Kirkpatrick were co-hosts; Mr. and Mrs. Don Hodges and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Williams assisted.

* * * *

NASTURTIUMS AND garden flowers combined with decorations of turquoise, yellow and copper to harmonize with colors of shower gifts. Special guests were the Roger Shermans and Carl Jensens, parents of the couple; Roberta Sherman and Nancy Jensen, their sisters, and Mrs. Irene Unmack, an aunt.

A tea and surprise shower was given at the home of Marilyn's aunt, Miss Elma Sherman, 2490 Olive Ave. She was assisted by Mrs. Lee Sherman and Mrs. Bill Powder, artist cousin who handpainted invitations in a fan motif.

* * * *

MRS. RONALD HAMBLEN, who will be matron of honor, entertained 24 young school and church friends at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Watt, 1601 E. 65th St. Gifts for the bride-elect spilled from a pink tulle parasol placed in a picture window.

When Mrs. Ernest Forsythe, 3732 Lewis Ave., entertained neighbors at luncheon, each brought favorite recipes and presented Marilyn with a group gift, an electric mixer.

Women members of the staff of First Baptist Church and close friends were bidden by Mrs. Aldo Molinari, 1291 Taper Ave., to a personal shower for the bride-to-be.

* * * *

SOME 80 GUESTS, including First Baptist Church choir members and many friends of both mothers, were entertained at an evening garden party and dessert given by Mrs. Lewis Van Winkle, 4218 Linden Ave. Mmes. Charles Barber, Harvey Bradney, Sam Davis and Orlo Rolo were co-hostesses. Several milk glass pieces, favorites of the honoree, were among gifts at the miscellaneous shower.

Marilyn shared honors with Judy Grimm, who also will be married in August, when Mrs. John Farrow, 1032 Amelia Dr., assisted by her young daughters, Linda, Jean and Bonnie, entertained 35 girls of the World Fellowship Guild at a swimming party which became a surprise pantry shower.

* * * *

A FINAL SHOWER Thursday honored both Marilyn and Barbara Swanson, whose marriage to Jack Jensen will take place in mid-August. Relatives and friends of the three families brought miscellaneous gifts to the garden buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Martin Erickson, 517 W. 9th St. Yellow birdcages with lovebirds decorated the outdoor tables. Mmes. Richard Clements, Al Saunders, Paul Walker, Don Loucks, Don Pratt, Hubert Crozier, Frank Morris, Walt Arrowood and James Maddux were cohostesses.

LBSC Zeta Graduates Entertained

Recent Zeta graduates of Long Beach State College were guests of Long Beach alumnae of Zeta Tau Alpha at a summer buffet supper and garden party in the home of Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, 3845 Lime Ave.

Mrs. Joseph H. Shoemaker, vice president and program chairman, was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Harry Lee McCumber Jr., president, announced committee appointments for the coming year, and each member was assigned as a "volunteer" on one or more committees. Mrs. Shoemaker reported that the group will meet the first Thursday evening of each month in Ebell Clubhouse, September through May, climaxed by installation of officers at a dinner meeting.

Check your Jewelry for the Summer for Summer's outdoor living is hard on jewelry and makes it vulnerable to loss. A necklace or bracelet is only as strong as its weakest link. A new prong on your ring will forestall the possibility of losing a precious diamond. An oiling or adjustment of your watch - now - might save the fine mechanism.
Leave your jewelry at our Service Departments for a check-up - and with the utmost confidence that it will be put into first class condition to withstand the wear and tear of an active, outdoor Summer.

Moeller-Owens Vows Sealed

Picturesque Wayfarers' Chapel nestled in the hills above Portuguese Bend was setting last Saturday evening for the marriage ceremony uniting Diane Louise Owens with Alvin Chris Moeller.

The double-ring ritual was read by the Rev. Andre Diaconoff and was followed by a reception for 350 guests at the Wilton Hotel which the bridegroom serves as manager.

* * * *

THE ATTRACTIVE bride, daughter of Mrs. N. J. Garver, 4421 Myrtle Ave., and Len Owens of Rio Vista was given in marriage by her father. She wore a bridal gown of pale pink peau de soie with embroidered lace bodice outlined in tiny seedpearls. A headpiece of embroidered peau de soie held her veil of bridal illusion and she carried gardenias on a prayerbook.

Costumes of pink satin and organdy with insets of embroidery were selected for Mrs. Donna Dumn, maid of honor and Mmes. Thomas Moyer and Donald Harcourt, bridesmaids. Their ensembles were completed with bouquets of pink spider chrysanthemums. Candles were lighted by Miss Diane Rene.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. A. C. Moeller of Chicago, Ill., asked David Tallichet to serve him as best man and ushering duties were assigned to Dennis Moore, Larry Lennon and Hy Leff.

* * * *

MR. AND MRS. Art Rene hosted the reception which followed. Assisting were Mmes. Bertha Jaques, Velma Hair and Brook Horace and Messrs. and Mmes. Marvin Davis, Harold Beckley, Don Berry, Elmer Decker and William Abrams.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Las Vegas and will establish residence this weekend at Wilton Hotel. They plan a trip to Honolulu in September.

The new Mrs. Moeller was graduated from Progress School and attended Occidental College. Her bridegroom received his schooling in Chicago and serves as president of the Hotel Assn. of Long Beach.

Affairs Honor Miss Israel

Lovely Mariam Hadar, Miss Israel in the 1958 Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, is being presented to the community by her sponsors, Long Beach Chapter of Hadassah, at seven post-pageant affairs for paid-up Hadassah members.

Miss Hadar is a law student at Hebrew University in Tel Aviv. To enable her to meet the greatest number of local residents, each of the chapter's seven groups has planned an individual party, says Mrs. Martin Wolfson.

Members of the Business and Professional Group opened the round of events with a brunch last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kolsky, 1031 Amelia Dr., arranged by Miss Marion Goldman, president, and Miss Marian Smith, membership chairman.

HENRIETTA Szold Group will entertain Miss Israel Tuesday at a tea and fashion show at 1 p. m. in the Wilton Hotel Pageant Room planned for its paid up members by Mrs. Max Stotland, president, and Mrs. Sam Roska, membership chairman.

The pool at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Arthur, 12012 Montecito Ave., in Rossmoor, will be setting for an aquacade Wednesday evening, according to the president, Mrs. Marvin Arthur, and membership chairman, Mrs. Sidney Sharzer.

Mrs. Stanley Goldin, president of Aviva Group, announces they have planned a discussion and demonstration on beauty culture at 8 p. m. Thursday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Cohn, 1480 Marshall Pl. Mrs. Harry Wolfe is membership chairman.

Saturday evening has been selected by Elenah Group to entertain the Israeli beauty at a poolside champagne party in the Santa Ana home of the president, Mrs. Fred Berkowitz and Dr. Berkowitz. Mrs. F. Gabler, membership chairman, is assisting with plans.

* * * *

CONTINUING into next week, Hadara Group has planned an evening social Aug. 5 at the Palms Restaurant in Anaheim under the direction of the president, Mrs. Jerome Rubin, and membership chairman, Mrs. Jerome Gurevitch.

Concluding the party whirl for Miss Hadar will be a garden party Aug. 6 in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Tarre, 1118 Burlinghall Dr., arranged by Mrs. Pearl Surlow, president, and Mrs. Wilson Gittleman, membership chairman.

The party series is being coordinated by Mrs. Al Katz, Hadassah membership chairman.

Newlywed Pair in Lancaster for Summer

Newly married Mr. and Mrs. Grady F. Paine (Elinore Joanne Calkins) are spending the summer months in Lancaster prior to establishing their home in Long Beach this fall. The bride is a teacher at Emerson Elementary School.

The pair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Calkins, 5349 Monlaco Rd., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady C. Paine of Lancaster, exchanged wedding vows in a recent ceremony in Lakewood Village Community Church with the Rev. Wallace Benson officiating.

Escorted to the flower-banked altar by her father, the bride was gowned in Chantilly lace and nylon net over taffeta. A headdress of lace and pearls held her illusion veil and her bouquet was of white glamelias, stephanotis and ivy.

* * * *

BALLET-LENGTH dresses in mint green chiffon and lace were chosen for bridal attendants, Rosemary Calkins, maid of honor; Barbara Harrison, bridesmaid, and Janet Hewitt, junior bridesmaid. They carried cascade arrangements of pink carnations.

Dr. Eugene Cahill was selected to serve as best man and ushering duties were performed by John McGee, Bernard Griffith and Jack Williams.

The new Mrs. Paine received her early education in Fillmore and was graduated from Long Beach City and State Colleges. Her husband is a graduate of Whittier and Iowa State Colleges.

Late Afternoon Ceremony Unites Young Local Pair

A late afternoon ceremony in Lakewood Community Methodist Church united in marriage Shirley Ann Weston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Weston, 2360 Heather Ave., with Ronald T. Hagerman. The Rev. Marvin Johnson officiated before 150 guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a bouffant skirted gown of misty tulle over ruffled tulle enhanced by Chantilly lace. Sequins studded the lace bodice and V neckline and were repeated in the headpiece holding her net veil. She carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a white Bible.

Mary Johnson, maid of honor, wore a blue chiffon gown with satin cummerbund and carried feathered pink carnations on a pink fan. Bridesmaids Pat Rolph and Betty Kennedy were attired similarly in pink chiffon gowns and carried tinted blue carnations. Gloria Rudosky was flower girl.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Hagerman of Lakewood, asked Mal Kennedy to serve him as best man and Richard Weston, Frank Devenely and Rod Lien to usher.

Mrs. Frank Perfield was hostess at a reception which followed in the church hall, while Mrs. Marvin Hamley and Mrs. Richard Young entertained close friends and family members who gathered later at the bride's home.

Summer Art Shows Abound

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

The Museum Collection of work by 57 Southern California artists and an exhibition of paintings by Dorothy Brown of Santa Barbara will close at 5 p. m. today in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Many reservations have been made for Art Loan through August and reservations will be accepted through Monday. The paintings, drawings and prints reserved by residents may be picked up Tuesday and kept until Sept. 16.

The Museum will be closed for repairs during August and will reopen Sept. 14 with "Arts of Southern California—IV: Indigenous Indian Art" and an exhibition of work by internationally known artists.

BATIK silk pictures and Japanese crest designs in wall scrolls by Vernice Vickery (Ve-Vi) Adam, 431 E. Broadway, are displayed in the California Gift Show in the Brack Bldg., Los Angeles.

The silk pictures, no glass over the picture, have grass cloth matting. The crest designs, on grass cloth, have designs in black, gold, red and metallic green.

The crests represent a wide range of subjects from crabs to dragons, from waves to bamboo. Many of the subjects have symbolical meanings. The pine tree, for instance, denotes stability of character; the bamboo, constancy; the tree peony, wealth; the tortoise, longevity.

A VARIETY of mediums and approaches is used in 20 paintings exhibited at Bret Harte Branch Library, 1595 W. Willow St., in the 18th one-woman show by Fran Soldini, Long Beach artist.

The new show includes "Metamorphosis," an encaustic which hung in the regional show of Los Angeles artists and vicinity at the Los Angeles County Museum. This painting is a free form of iridescent grays with scriffito through to brown masonite. A melted encaustic is on an off-white luminol base. Its quality of patina gives some resemblance to the ancient look of the aged Egyptian fresco. Other paints are casein on glass, opaque media, pressed color, water colors and collage.

Seven of the paintings have received honors in museum juried shows.

An exhibition by 35 artist students of Mrs. Soldini will be at the Ruth Bach Branch Library, 4055 Bellflower Blvd., until Aug. 9.

SAM MICHAELS will have an exhibition of prints and drawings in Arts Workshop, 624 E. 4th St., until mid-August. Hours are 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday, 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday; closed

Seethaler was born in Austria, studied in Vienna, Budapest, Bremen and Pola. He became a U. S. citizen in 1931 and has taught, painted and lectured in Southern California since 1942. He has participated in many group and one-man shows, local and foreign. His academy, founded in 1946, has exhibited locally and in Japan (through UNESCO) and in Mexico, Honduras, Guatemala and in the Dominican Republic through the Pan American Union in collaboration with the National Academy.

FOUR THOUSAND years of art are spanned in the Pageant of the Masters, nightly feature of the Festival of Arts in Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach. Twenty-eight "living" pictures and sculptures are presented, from a 2000 B. C. Egyptian mummy cloth production to Salvador Dali's "Madonna of Port Lligat."

Howard (Hap) Graham is producer-director; Russ Potter returns as narrator and script writer, and Cleo Allen Hibbs, for the 18th year, brings background music to the pageantry.

Grounds chairman Mogen Abel and supervisor Virginia Wooley are responsible for the six acres of art displays. Painters, sculptors, ceramists, photographers and handicraft artisans show their wares and many demonstrate art techniques.

The Festival of Arts opens daily at noon; the Pageant of the Masters is given at 8:30 p. m. The Festival and Pageant will run through Aug. 17.

TWENTY THOUSAND persons are expected to see the sixth annual three-day Los Angeles All-City Art Festival, which closes at 7 p. m. today in Barnsdall Park, Vermont St. and Hollywood Blvd. More than 2,000 paintings, drawings and sculptures comprise the exhibition.

Fifty paintings from the fourth international Hallmark Art Award Competition will go on exhibition Aug. 8 in the Municipal Art Gallery in Barnsdall Park. The exhibition, open to the public without charge, will be on display in the gallery through Aug. 31.

Selected for the first prize of $2,000 is a watercolor by Edward Hopper, New York artist, whose entry, "California Hills," presents a view of the Pacific Palisades.

Millard Sheets, director of the Los Angeles County Art Institute, is represented by a religious painting, "The Gift Bearer."

TO APPEAR IN BOWL

Marilyn Horne, Long Beach soprano, will sing the role of Marguerite in "Damnation of Faust" Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. in Hollywood Bowl. Roger Wagner will conduct the orchestra and his famed Chorale. Appearing with Miss Horne are David Poleri and Harve Presnell.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

In listening to the wonderful soprano, Jennie Tourel the other night at Hollywood Bowl, I fell to reminiscing about the few really great singers I have heard in recital through the many years of concert going.

The first that leaped to my mind was Elena Gerhardt, the greatest Lieder singer of my day, and I think of any day.

She still lives and teaches in London. Born in Germany, she had a magnificent training at the Leipzig Conservatory. She also had the rare good fortune of an early meeting and a life-long friendship with Arthur Nikisch, the famous conductor and pianist.

He played the accompaniments for her first recital at the conservatory. This was indeed an honor as Nikisch was not only the head of the conservatory, but was also the conductor of the famous Gewandhaus Symphony Orchestra.

* * * *

THEREAFTER HE played for her concerts all over the world, and she sang with his orchestra. It was a rare and wonderful combination.

I had the good fortune to hear them both in a recital in Berlin. It was the first time I ever heard her but I missed few of her concerts thereafter. The only other recital that even approached it was one I heard in San Francisco in the Opera House not so many years ago when Lotte Lehmann sang a Lieder program accompanied by the famous conductor and pianist, Bruno Walter. But in this concert there were two great soloists dividing our attention. With Gerhardt and Nikisch there were two in one!

* * * *

ELENA GERHARDT was a huge woman, but well proportioned. As she placed herself before the grand piano there was not much left to be seen of the piano. She always dressed in black velvet with simple lines and wore exquisite jewels. The jewels that poured from her throat carried one far beyond the visual! Not only was the voice rich, warm and vibrant of mezzo quality but the personality behind it lovingly embraced all mankind. She was my favorite recital singer.

Another German who thrilled me to the core was the tenor, Richard Tauber. I heard him first in Berlin after World War I in a musical operetta, "Land des Laecheins" (Land of the Smiling Ones).

What a lover he was on the stage and how the German frauleins swooned when he sang that still popular song "Thine Is My Heart Alone."

Later I heard him often in Town Hall in New York City in recital. He was wounded in the first World War and wore an artificial leg. But he came on stage in true Prussian fashion, like a soldier! He had a thrilling tenor voice of luscious quality. His art was impeccable. He died suddenly of pneumonia in London only a few years ago.

* * * *

THE RUSSIAN basso, Feodor Chaliapin, stands out in my memory as a never-to-be-forgotten recitalist. He was equally great in opera and his performance of "Boris" in "Boris Goudonoff" as I heard it at the "Met" has never been even approached by other bassos.

On the recital stage he stood like a god. He was over six feet tall, had a magnificent carriage, and his head with its blond wavy hair was not more stunning or arresting than the very blue eyes that held one magnetically. He was the quintessence of charm. And when that deep sonorous voice rolled out in ear-caressing sound you were on your knees before him.

In conspicuous contrast was the tenor Edmond Clement. Small, dark and handsome, this Frenchman had all the suavity of his race. He even wore white kid gloves when he sang! But on one occasion when I listened enraptured as he sang, as no other tenor ever will, "Le Reve" from "Manon" by Massenet, there were demands for not only one encore of it, but three! This is an experience unique in my annals.

* * * *

BIDU SAYAO, the Brazilian coloratura, is an exquisite bit of Dresden, vocally and physically. But her art is great and her singing intensely moving. Lily Pons is another great coloratura recital singer, who has a warmth unusual in that type of voice.

John Charles Thomas, baritone, was the greatest baritone recital artist of my time. He hard a rare gift of communication, the art of making you live with him the events of the song.

And now, Jennie Tourel has made me live again these sublime moments of musical memory. How rare is great singing!

Settle Back, Listen to Records-Ah!

The delight of early western music is being discovered through many longplaying records today. Recent discs the Public Library has made available for lending are: Boccherini, "Concerto in D Major for Violincello Obligato"; Buxtehude, "Cantatas" (Helen Boatwright with the choir of St. Thomas's Church, New Haven); "Harpsichord Music" (old dances of the 17th and 18th centuries, played by Alice Ehlers); Lassus, "Eight Latin Motets"; Marenzio, "Six Madrigals"; "Music of the Medieval Court and Countryside"; Praetorius, "Eight Geistliche Tricinien" and Purcell, "Songs by the Counter-tenor Russell Oberlin."

* * * *

OTHER MUSIC for summer listening is Arlen, "Jamaica" (original New nork cast starring Lena Horne); "Banjo in Hi-Fi" (Paul Martin and his Old-Timers); "Belmonte Plays Latin for Americans", "The Heart of Havana" (Orquesta Aragon); "Bon Voyage" (Al Nevins and orchestra); Rodgers and Hammerstein, "South Pacific" (original soundtrack and also the Al Goodman orchestral version).

Recording may be borrowed from the Main Library in Lincoln Park.

Why Not Take a Vicarious Trip to Japan?

An unusual glimpse at the art and music of Japan will be offered at dusk Thursday at a 70-minute Patio "Pop" Concert at Burnett Branch Library, 560 E. Hill St.

"The Japanese Koto," a recording by Shinichi Yuize, will open the program.

Films scheduled are "Arts of Japan," showing scenes from Noh and Kabuki dramas as well as traditional arts and crafts and "Japan" a color film by Julian Bryan showing major aspects of the social and economic life of Japan today.

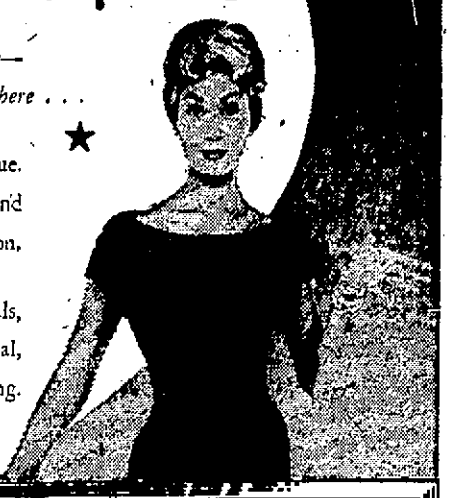

The public is invited. No admission.

Fashions Win at Miss U Fete

princess style gown she had designed for her. Telling a "fabric story" the gown was in richest heavy powder blue satin brocade, set off by pleated powder blue satin in halter effect neckline and back streamers.

Miss Denmark confessed her white strapless gown with scattered bead trim was from Sweden; but red-tressed Miss Canada dreamed up her own design of layers of chiffon petals falling from a shirred bodice. She didn't make it, herself, but did sew on the sequin trim. ("Sounds very farm girlish, doesn't it?" she commented.)

Miss West Indies, following the dictates of centuries of fashion in her own land, appeared in a Navy blue mandarin gown of silk crepe with intricate hand beading in light blue and silver forming an interesting pattern down the gown front from high neckline to hemline. Leg room was given the slim skirt by slits to the knees which disclosed the skirt's lining of light blue satin.

Took a little poll of male opinion during intermission. Full skirts or sheaths preferred in formal attire? Straps or sans straps? Long Beach State collegians were quick to answer, but not to agree. Said Richard McEwen: "I like the full skirts." Said Ennis Fairchild: "I'll take the form-fitting ones." Richard likes strapless gowns; Ennis doesn't care.

Said another observing gent, twice the age of the college lads: "Some of the gowns are too sophisticated for the girls. But take Miss Louisiana—she looks like a southern belle. She wears what you'd expect her to. If a gown fits a girl's personality, she rates 25 points higher with a man."

Like an exotic butterfly, Miss Korea floated onto the runway in anthurium pink silk embossed with flowers of silver threads. Looked as if it were so fragile it could dissolve at the touch.

It was a gown a Long Beach bride might cherish—in traditional bouffant lace and net—and it was designed in Alaska for Miss Alaska who represented her country for the last time as a foreign entry. Hightlighting the entry's raven tresses was a white fur shoulder piece and a tiny crown.

Remember Jayne Mansfield's wedding gown? Sort of a mermaid effect. Miss Costa Rica was decked out in something similar. Pink, sequins, fish tail of net. Swish!

Miss Sweden, looking like the girl next door all ready for the senior prom, was delightful in an empire gown of white organdy traced with rose centered white daisies. The rose shade was duplicated in the strapless bodice, circling to the back. By a Swedish designer, the gown's hemline was ankle length in front, dipping to floor length in back. And just as the girl next door might do, she wore a single strand of dainty pearls at her throat, and tiny pearl button earrings.

Using our extensive knowledge of Spanish, we said "Buenos noches" to Miss Uruguay?" "Hm?" said Uruguay. "Ask her if her gown was made in Uruguay," we appealed to the hostess. "I don't know how," said she.

We tried again. "Hecho in Uruguay?" we queried, plucking at the heavy oyster satin gown, calf length in front, sweeping to a train in back. A panel of satin, almost a cape, streamed from just below the shoulders the length of the train. Pink lining of the skirt was picked up again in gloves and shoes.

Uruguay nodded in sudden understanding. "Si! Hecho in Uruguay!" "Oh - ree - jheenal?" we attempted again. Once more the quick look of comprehension. "Yes, Si. Original. Adios."

Svelte orange sculptured velvet showed to good advantage the charms of Miss Surinam, whose figure-hugging, floor-length sheath gown nipped from strapless bodice to an incredibly thin waistline. A panel of the orange velvet billowed on the right side, marked by a jeweled pin and softening the austerity of the sheath skirt with kick pleat.

Enthusiastic wows greeted Miss Colombia. Little wonder. Diagonal bands of rhinestones accented the skirt of her ivory satin sheath in just the right places, judging from masculine complimentary whistles. Another slim strand of rhinestones semi-circled her neck.

The Latin penchant for form-fitting gowns was epitomized in Miss Mexico's black sheath blazing like a million bonfires with red sequins. Of the south-of-the-border beauties, Miss Brazil, cool and aristocratic, was the only one to choose a full skirt. Hers was a dream in pale blue with sequin trim.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

Wire Club Members End Year at Party

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Wire Club members (all women in real estate) closed their club year with a gala evening recently, tabling all but a little "business as usual" in favor of a buffet supper party in the home of Elsie Zoeller, 1425 E. Wardlow Rd.

Clubwise, most important matter on the agenda was the election of new officers. The slate presented and unanimously approved includes Thelma Chigaras, president; Olive Sorensen, vice president; Phyllis Elmendorf, secretary, and Elsie Zoeller, treasurer. They will be installed at a dinner meeting Aug. 26 to be conducted at the University Club. Mary Marotte is chairman of arrangements.

Outgoing president Bess Lyne gave an informal word sketch of activities during her year in office and expressed appreciation for the teamwork of all her officers and committee chairman. In turn those present accorded her sincere and hearty applause for a successful term.

National BPW

Members and guests of Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club gathered at Lakewood Country Club for their annual midsummer breakfast, traditional event of long standing. President Mrs. John Mundal officiated and introduced such special guests as her own daughter, Mrs. Laure Deeming, Messrs. Louis M. Field, Harry E. Murphy and Dale Potts and Mae Dixon, chairman of the Harbor Section.

New members officially presented to the membership at this time were Mmes. Ann K. Newton, Thelma M. McCown and Hallie Bridges.

A charming program featuring the Japanese Folk Dancers under direction of Robert Komai was the highlight of the morning. The troupe of six dancers appeared in native costume including the youngest member, little Linda Miyagawa, just 4 years old, who completely won the hearts of all present for her artistry and stage presence.

DUV Tent to Meet

Anna Etheridge Tent 58, Daughters of Union Veterans, will meet at 12:30 p.m. Monday in Veterans Memorial Building with Elsie Chase presiding.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Don't Tell Your Husband

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Should I tell my husband? We fought for 12 months after we were married. He beat me many times until I was black and blue for weeks. So when another man made love to me, I didn't resist. I needed someone.

A year later my husband and I found each other and now we are really in love. We have a small baby and are very happy. But I didn't tell my husband all that happened that night.

I know he would never forgive me and it might break up our home. It happened four years ago and I have suffered deeply for my mistake. He has a temper and a half and might kill the man.—MISTAKE

DEAR MISTAKE:

Let the mistake teach you not to let it happen again and then forget it. You have too much at stake to chance the gratification of confession now.

But let me congratulate you two on finding each other again. Bravo!—M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My father doesn't trust me. He won't even let me look at a boy. I rode home from a drive-in with some and he bawled me out and I've been in the doghouse since.

My friends are allowed to go for rides with boys and invite them to their houses. I am not. I hardly get to go anywhere with the girls. What can I do to make him trust me? — UNLUCKY THIRTEEN

DEAR UNLUCKY THIRTEEN:

A home is not, or shouldn't be, a doghouse. Maybe your dad doesn't mistrust you, but does mistrust teen drivers. Whatever the reason why, at 13, must you go riding with boys? And be away from home?

If your dad will let you invite the gang to the house when he's home, maybe he'd know you're safe and not going to the dogs.—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been married for two years and love my husband madly. Just today I found out I can't have any children. I am beginning to believe my husband doesn't love me any more and to make matters worse is going out on me.

Would you give him up or try to make the marriage last?—CHILDLESS

DEAR CHILDLESS:

I'd make that marriage last with the fertile use of every feminine wile known. So you can't give him a child! He can't give you one, either. But you can give him a bigger portion of everything else.

And if you both really want children, arrange your affairs so you can adopt some. Waifs without homes have a way of sneaking into hearts as readily as the labor-room variety. They're just as cute and just as ornery and just as much yours. —M. M.

CONSTRUCTION of the clubhouse was spearheaded by determined Leaguers who are not content to rest on their laurels, but continue to prod themselves in developing an ever-increasing scope for their programs of the future. One typewriter is on hand for the girls to do their homework. The committee, headed by Mrs. William B. Eastman, wishes the club had one or two more. Piano teachers have volunteered their teaching services, but there is no upright piano for the music room. These are the program and equipment needs being considered today. Tomorrow will bring new challenges.

Pick Silhouette You Want for Fall

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Editor

The California fashion story for fall is as exciting and choice as any we've seen thus far. There is silhouette diversification in the sportswear picture and cocktail and evening dresses. Practically any silhouette of your choosing will be found this next season in clothes by our own California designers.

In dress silhouettes you may take your choice of dresses in which the body line is shaped softly to a smaller and higher bustline, given empire underscoring via a high-waisted belt, a bow, or set-in bands of fabric, trim or ribbing; or choose another silhouette that gently follows body contours from shoulder to thigh, then breaks away into a trumpet flare or a flounce. The third is a positive blouson . . . dresses with more natural waistlines, delineated by wider, real belts of leather or self fabric.

Talk of fall silhouettes brings up the word "skimmers," used in describing dresses that skim the body contours. These easy sheaths become a dominant dress trend, with their mere hint of shaping through darts or front seams . . . frequently above the natural waistline to achieve an empire effect. But the two silhouettes which emerge as leaders are the blouson and the empire.

* * * *

IN THE SPORTSWEAR picture you will find pants that are slim and tops that are not. All jackets, blouses, shirts and tops in general are avoiding a tucked-in look. Instead they are noted as loose-back overblouse styles.

News in California-designed pants is not a new shape (popular Capri lengths and trim fit still characterize the pants story), but in the color. You will see pants emerge in an abundance of large and brilliant plaids, rich-toned paisley prints and even gayer, brighter solid colors and stripes have taken over the pants picture. Coordinated to them are tops in solid colors, frequently overlaid with a sleeveless vest or jacket patterned to match these pants.

* * * *

THE TRAPEZE influence is felt strongly in "after-5" fashions. We see it evidenced in evening dresses with a line that conforms slightly to a bustline before spreading downward and outward into a floating look. This effect is carried out in some styles through net panels over a slimmer sheath, but always worn distinctively short. Also for evening wear is the straight, long-torso dress with flounced bottom.

For cocktail dresses, the skirts are short! And harem hemlines are being featured as one of many versions of the puffed or bubble skirt . . . an innovation usually worn even shorter than dresses designed for daytime wear.

* * * *

COATS ARE a beautiful part of the California fall fashion story from the luxurious fabrics to the draped and shaped silhouettes. Styles include the full, rounded shape of the cocoon, with fullness falling from a yoked back then gathered in close at the hemline. There also are slim tapered shafts, reflecting the variable waistline trend with the placement of low, low belt treatments and extra-low or extra-high pocket detailing.

Color runs rampant throughout all California fashion collections . . . an abundance of reds and blues. Fabric creators have put some color combinations together that are described as "wild."

Fabric interest runs to soft wool jerseys, a newly important wool crepe and some textured mohair surfaces. Cottons and cotton blends disguise themselves with silky surfaces. Pleated skirts are pleated to stay and almost all transitional dresses of cotton and blends are able to boast little or no ironing claim.

CALIFORNIA FASHIONS for fall are being previewed this week in Los Angeles and will soon be in your favorite Long Beach department store or dress shop. We predict these three styles will be among the more popular designs for the season ahead. At left, is a checked wool jersey sheath (completely lined) with an easy waist line by Vago, Jr. of California. Here is a new fashion feeling—the deep, deep collar with striped inset. Center, is a new look for evening as designed by Mancini of California. This cocktail dress with slim, slim torso and bodice top is designed to give a pretty, flowing look. It is of Onandaga printed sheer wool. At right, Miss Pat of California creates a two piece double-woven cotton knit that looks like wool. White linen sailor collar is detachable; skirt is set on an elastic waistband.—(Photos courtesy California Fashion Creators).

Hinge Skirts Higher in Italy Shows

By SUE CARDOZO

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—How high is high? How far above the waist, how near to the bosom?

That is the nuance being determined at the Florence fashion shows now that Italian couture has declared itself in favor of the high demarcation line between bodice and skirt.

Veneziani, whose collections received ovations last week at the historic Pitti Palace, hinged her skirts above the level of the second rib.

* * * *

VENEZIANI'S models seconded other fashion trends noted here and in the Rome showings: The high unadorned neckline with sleeveless or cupped shoulder, the back decollete and fullness below, the flattened, foreshortened front.

Skirts are either short or long, with no middle ground between knee and floor. For evening Veneziani makes them long. And wraps to wear with them are of horizontal mink or ermine. Vertical pelts will never do!

FOR AT HOME entertaining, Sir James of California has designed a ruffly, feminine blouse of drip dry dacron and cotton and teams it with slim, tapered ankle length pants of pettipoint embroidered Italian velveteen.

Gay Surprise on Birthday

Long Beach Lancers and Lancerettes staged a gay surprise birthday party for Donald Lehman, son of Capt. and Mrs. Arvery Lehman, after the troop's drill Monday.

A huge cake, resplendent with the shield of the equestrian group done in frosting, formed the centerpiece. Music and games around an outdoor fire, and the opening of beautifully wrapped gift packages climaxed the evening.

Guests included Dr. and Mrs. Albert Molle with daughters, Sonya and Paula; Messrs. and Mmes. Paul Peterson and Cheryl-Ann; Wesley Badger and Sherry; Howard Green and Valerie; George Pinkind and Robin; Mmes. Donald Malcolm, William Knapp, Curt Smith, Gerald Pfanstiel, Arthur LeMond, Duchess Domrose; Messrs. Elmer Michaels, Glen Outler; Misses Pat Lara, Beatrice Meary, Madeline Johnson, Martha Peck, Marilyn Morrow, Darlene Trippe and Blanche Collins.

Party Monday

Nazareth Shrine 8, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, will have an elective officers party Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Morgan Hall. Visitors will attend from other shrines within a 60-mile radius.

Why Can't Ol' Dad Study for Success?

By TED KREC

We went out to dinner the other night with Dapper Don Culpepper and his charming wife, Lenora. Don, as you know, is the outdoor editor of these newspapers and typifies the well-dressed man.

In fact, Don is so well dressed that he holds the distinction of being the only man ever to land a muskellunge while wearing a full-dress suit and top hat!

Seriously, though, during dinner conversation worked around to men, their habits and what they wear, and Lenora said, "I wish there was some place men could go to learn how to act and dress correctly!"

I couldn't believe my ears when I heard her say this, for it's a thought I've had many times myself. In fact, Mary Lou Zehms, our women's editor, and I were discussing this just last week.

All the emphasis these days seems to be on developing a race of ultra-charming women, which is fine in itself, but nobody gives a thought to poor old Dad.

* * * *

MAYBE IT'S because men are a funny breed of critters. For example, when they are young, their parents can tell them something for years and the kids won't believe it. But when they go to school and meet a teacher they admire and the teacher tells them the same thing, it's automatically true. The same seems to be the case when they get married. Their wives can talk and talk, and the men won't listen. But if the boss or a co-worker says it, then it's true.

This idea of a school for men isn't as ridiculous as it may sound to you at first, Albert.

Consider, for example, the case of a young man who suddenly lands a junior executive post. It's important that he know the fine points of etiquette if he's going to be a success. In fact, many aspiring young men have lost out in jobs strictly because they didn't have social grace.

If there were a place where these young men could go to learn, for example, how to introduce people correctly, how to take a dinner check gracefully, how and when to buy a drink for a customer, how to conduct themselves when taking a mixed group of men and women out to dinner and which wine to order with dinner, I should think many of these young men would jump at the chance.

In my own field I have seen many businessmen who spend a small fortune on clothing yet always dress incorrectly. These men could be taught how to buy for much less and still be correct under all conditions.

A couple of examples? That's easy. Did you know that a man is correct in wearing a colored shirt in the daytime but not at night? Colored shirts should not be worn after 5 p.m. And did you know that it's bad for a young man seeking a position to smoke a pipe? Most executives seeking capable young assistants will turn down pipe-smokers because they are, by nature, a more contemplative and lethargic lot than cigarette smokers.

* * * *

WOULD YOU hire a man who wore an out-of-style suit or a discordant necktie or a soiled and unpressed outfit if you were looking for a sharp assistant? And would you consider a man if his hair were shaggy? You bet you wouldn't! This man would be YOUR representative to the public. No unshined or run-over shoes, either, please!

It seems to me that this is one thing our culture could use—not a "charm school" for men, but rather a place of dignity where men who aspire to get ahead could hear experts in different fields of grooming and etiquette and LEARN the basic things which would insure success.

Motion picture actor Adolph Menjou started a school of this sort in one of our nearby cities not too long ago, and it was heralded widely. But that's not Long Beach—and Long Beach men could stand some sharpening up and success, too.

You doubt it? Well, Charlie—how long has it been since YOU got YOUR last promotion?

More Than Vanity

Smoothing on hand lotion is more than vanity for women. It actually aids the hand skin which has little natural oil. Creams and lotions, especially those with lanolin, help restore the skin to its natural, protected state.

Dear Abby

Better Lose This Brute

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a fellow who said he loved me too.

I have a very jealous nature and I know that he was once in love with a girl and they went together almost two years. He would never let me hum, or whistle, or sing "SWEET SUE" because that was her name and it was "their song." I got mad at him one night and I started to sing "Sweet Sue" He lost his temper and knocked the filling out of my tooth. He left me (we were in a tavern) and I had to hook a ride home. I called him the next day and he said he didn't ever want to see me again. How can I get him back?

BLUE GIRL

DEAR BLUE: If you intend to "get him back" you should take out BLUE CROSS. You asked for it when you sang "Sweet Sue" —but a man who would knock the filling out of a lady's tooth needs to be "filled in" on how a gentleman behaves. Lose this brute.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I recently was a guest in AMERICA and was invited to a formal dinner. The hostess was served first. It appeared rude to me, but perhaps it is your custom. If this is correct in America I would like to know the origin of this custom.

FROM ACROSS

DEAR FROM: The custom of the hostess serving herself before her guests never was "correct" but it was practical and accepted at one time. In the old frontier days when rough and unschooled guests were invited to dinner, the hostess would help herself and eat first in order to show her guests which silverware to use. The need for such a demonstration went out with the Chicago fire.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that my husband just had his driver's license taken away from him for the second time and it is serious as he is a truck driver. The judge was very hard on him because he had had a few beers this time and the charge was DRIVING WHILE DRUNK. He drives OK, beer or no beer, but the judge said he was a danger to the pedestrians. How can he get his license back? His living depends on it.

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: So do the pedestrians. Sorry, but he will have to learn the hard way.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been annoyed for a long time by this, "We're taking up a collection for Mary" business. She is either having a baby, is leaving the city, getting married or has been with the company for 10 years. As far as I am concerned it is way overdone. The "amount" of the contribution is usually set by a committee who think a dollar here or there doesn't matter. They always see to it that the one who "asks" is your immediate superior so you can't refuse. I resent having to donate just so I won't look cheap. What is your opinion? FED UP

DEAR FED: Tell the person who is taking up the collection that your budget doesn't include this kind of giving. Once you take this stand, you will find plenty of others who will admire your courage and follow your example.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister has been having her mail sent to our house so her husband won't know she is writing to a certain married man. I feel like a sneak, hiding the letters away and then slipping them to her behind her husband's back. Would it be wrong to tell her right to her face (in front of her husband) that I am through covering up for her?

TIRED OF COVERING

DEAR TIRED: Tell her privately first. If this doesn't penetrate, let your husband (her brother) tell her to either cut out the extra-marital correspondence or face exposure. Double exposure, that is.

Duplicate Fascinating

"Why don't I give up duplicate?" moaned the unlucky expert.

"Why don't you give up bothering me?" I moaned right back. "Let's hear the tale of woe anyway!"

"I sat West and opened one spade," he said. "My partner jumped to four and South who was vulnerable and had passed originally took a deep breath, sat back in his chair, gulped a couple of times and bid five diamonds.

"Everyone passed and as you can see the club king was in back of my ace and the heart ace and queen in back of my king-ten. He wrapped up his contract."

* * * *

"WHAT'S SO bad about that?" I asked. "Five hearts makes also and counts more for them."

"So it does," he replied. "At all other tables South chose to open with some number of diamonds. Invariably, we got into the bidding and landed at four spades. This time no North or South player carried the ball any further. Some just let us play four spades undoubled for minus 100; some Norths doubled and made the score 300; but no one came near to this lucky so-and-so's score of six hundred for bidding and making five diamonds."

Rear Adm. Walter H. Price

Chef of the Week

Adm. Walter Price Is a Handy Fellow!

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

It could well be concluded that the "do-it-yourself" idea was inspired by him. Today's chief "cook" among the Chefs Anonymous, Ltd. crew, Rear Adm. Walter H. Price (he's the new Naval Base commander) is completely proficient at both conjuring up and executing anything from laying a brick terrace, hoisting a split cedar fence or a cinder block wall; installing a bath, or paneling a playroom. He's a top-flight cement mixer and carpenter, too, but a bit frustrated at present. Redoing a government house has been declared off-limits.

The admiral has some problems, though. When it comes to driving a car . . . well, the "boss man" is much better at guiding the destiny of a ship. The ocean "gives" a bit, you know.

And while he very much enjoys fishing and golfing, both the fish and the low scores seem to elude him. He wouldn't be caught dead eating a banana or an apricot, but calls no halts on any other foods. He has a temper to match his sandy hair —but the explosion is no more damaging or prolonged than the burst of a skyrocket. And . . . can he dance!!!!

* * * *

ADM. PRICE is fundamentally a Hoosier (Shelbyville, Ind'); however, Washington, D. C., became his home port at the age of 2. He completed his elementary and high school education there, then proceeded to Annapolis and the Naval Academy. He decided if "he couldn't beat 'em, he'd join 'em." The girl he was trying to date preferred the Navy, we're told. Graduating with the class of '27, he later completed courses in the post-graduate school at Annapolis and at the Naval War College. He went in for football, but mostly to be assured of a ringside seat on the bench.

His naval career has placed him atop battleships, cruisers and destroyers . . . but mainly destroyers. It also provided him close-up, in-the-middle participation of the South Pacific battles in World War II. As commanding officer of the USS Wilson, he took part in the initial landings on Guadalcanal, the first battle of Savo, the Russell Islands campaign and bombardment of Munda. Completing that detailed assignment, he commanded the USS Morrison in such operations as Palau, Hollandia, Saipan, Tinian and Guam.

Adm. Price also has made a name for himself shoreside. He has served in the office of the governor of Panama Canal; in the office of Chief of Naval Operations, Washington, D. C., and as headmaster of the Mathematics Department of the U. S. Naval Academy. Since World War II, he has commanded Destroyer Flotilla 3, the cruiser Newport News, and Destroyer Flotilla 2. Just prior to reporting to his present duty station, he served as deputy commander in chief, U. S. Naval Forces, Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, with headquarters in London, England.

* * * *

OUR NAVY Department can be proud not only of our "chef," but of his family, as well. Mrs. Price, the former Clarice Brooks Yates, can reminisce about the graduation of both her Dad and her Granddad from the academy —the latter with the class of '63. Their son, Lawrence, is following in his father's footsteps and presently is a midshipman at Annapolis; while their daughter is the wife of a naval officer and currently residing in Hawaii.

Though strictly a seafaring man, Price is eagerly anticipating his duties in the Long Beach Rotary Club, and a few flings over the kettle. Today he's whipping up a Beef Teriaki.

BEEF TERIAKI

½ cup soy sauce
(for 3 lbs. of beef)
Scant tablespoon sugar
Minced clove garlic
½ tsp. powdered ginger
¼ cup sherry

Into this mixture, soak the beef for at least one hour. Then, either broil or barbecue.

Very tender beef which has been marinated in this sauce and broiled makes an excellent hors d'oeuvre when cut into bite-size cubes and served on toothpicks.

Bachelor of the Week

Life in a Whirlwind World

By IOLA MASTERSON

The whirlwind world of politics, public relations and bachelorhood is Dave Crowther's bailiwick. He's so fond of the first two he devotes almost as much of his "free" time to them as he does during working hours.

And the third category? Well, so far he's spent his lifetime investigating its advantages and disadvantages and still hasn't made up his mind just which way to vote. Claims to be non-partisan. Planks in the platform for the Sovereign State of Marriage give promise, he thinks, of a fuller, more companionable life. On the other hand, the Declaration of Independence insures him certain unalienable rights and he isn't sure yet but what the greatest of these is liberty!

* * * *

LET'S SETTLE down to some fact finding. Dave was born in Long Beach in 1930 and has called it home ever since. In addition to owning a public relations firm (Crowther and Associates with offices in the Security Bldg.), he is field representative for Congressman Craig Hosmer, the 18th District GOP leader. Dave won his appointment to the Hosmer staff last year after managing the 1956 election campaign which resulted in Hosmer's re-election. His break-through into working politics began when he was selected for the competive Congressional Fellowship Program in 1955, a protege of the Republican Party.

Personality-wise, Dave is an unusual blend of quiet dignity and warm friendliness. Like many big men (6'3"—185 pounds) he moves at an easy-going rate but with the steady dependability of an electric clock plugged into the main line.

* * * *

HE'S A graduate of Wilson and Long Beach State and has taken additional studies at Long Beach City College and American University in Washington, D. C. State provided him with a tri-subject bachelor's degree in business, economics and political science—known in the educators' lingo as a three-field major. Add his bachelor's degree in bachelorhood and call it a "play the field" major!

If he does decide to matriculate in marriage, the girl most likely to "graduate" with him will be tall, slender, quiet, intelligent and, if she just happens to be good looking, to boot, so much the better.

* * * *

HE MAY BE quite an able orator when it comes to his favorite political beliefs, but about his personal life Dave proved to be second cousin to the clam. You don't serve as a platoon leader in an infantry tank battalion in Korea and win a Silver Star, Bronze Star and Purple Heart without a few notable battle experiences. We soon discovered, however, that if we wanted more information about the lieutenants' war record, we'd have to get it from somebody other than the lieutenant!

Staff Photo

Dave Crowther

Dave and his chow pup, "Rip," live in a bachelor's haven way out east on Ocean Blvd. in the peninsula area. His apartment is the lower level of one of the first big homes built in the area and is right on the beach facing the ocean. It's a beautiful old building, he thinks, and it suits him to a "T" with its rugged, rock-enclosed patio open to sun and the natural airconditioning of brand new sea breezes.

* * * *

THE PREFERENCE for beach living isn't just for the view. Dave has been a swimmer for many years. In fact, he was a lifeguard during his student days. In the winter he trades sand for snow and heads for the best ski slopes, usually Mammoth Mountain near Bishop. For spectator sports he prefers football, especially as it is played by the L. A. Rams.

This brown-eyed, dark-haired lone wolf likes to spend informal evenings with small groups of good friends and while the hours away in conversation—not small talk. A dinner dance or a good show serve fine for those nights when something besides the use of vocal chords is called for.

* * * *

AS HOSMER'S field representative, Dave goes to Washington, D. C., at least twice each year to keep in touch with the capital and its famous people. It's an exhilarating city and rubbing elbows with its famous, cosmopolitan and mercurial citizenry never fails to be an exciting and challenging experience.

Now a man who feels that way about that town on the Potomac and loves the intellectual wrestling match of politics is, whether he knows it or not, bound to throw his hat in the ring eventually, according to the way we figure. And there's nothing helps a young politician more (whether he knows it or not!) than a young, attractive and diplomatic wife.

BESIDES, even if Dave never does aspire to office, eventually he's going to grow too tired of those frozen dinners—the only kind of speciality he knows how to cook. It's a waiting game, girls, but for one of you it will be worth it!

Andy's Hot Cake HOUSE
"Particular Food for Particular People"
Open 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., Serving Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner

Old-Fashioned Buttermilk Hotcakes

There are many kinds of hot cakes, pancakes . . . or what-have-you . . . fat ones, thin ones, tough ones, gummy ones, soggy ones, doughy ones, hot, cold or indifferent ones. And they go by many names, blankets, sinkers, disks, doughboys, ringers.

But here at Andy's you get the true old-fashioned buttermilk hotcakes . . . a result of much study, patience and supervision to perfect what we think are America's most famous hotcakes.

Many things make it so . . . we choose the largest, freshest eggs and real churned buttermilk, fresh creamery butter, and a batter that is made from our own recipe in small, measured quantities several times a day to insure freshness and flavor. Andy's hotcakes are cooked on special equipment to insure freshness and perfection and are served with Log Cabin maple syrup and large quantities of butter. If, after eating these hotcakes, you are not satisfied, you'll get your money back! We serve them every day from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Step up for your hotcake treat!

OUR COVER

Rated by many as one of the world's most beautiful and fascinating women, Eva Gabor (Zsa Zsa's "little sister") reaches new acting heights as a lovely and amorous Parisian in MGM's sparkling musical "Gigi" (see Page 12) which will be coming this way soon. Always serious and earnest about her career, Eva has divided her time among films, stage and television. West Coast audiences have seen her in "Strike a Match" and "Present Laughter," stage plays co-starring Noel Coward. Her latest Broadway appearance was in "The Little Glass Clock." She has appeared in half a dozen important movies and on any number of big TV shows. She speaks four languages — German, French, Hungarian and English. Unlike most actresses, she declares she has never visited a beauty parlor in her life. She does have a fabulous jewelry collection but wears only a 15-carat diamond (see cover) which her father gave her when she was a child in Budapest . . . her other gems rest in a safe deposit vault!

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give information on HUGHES—E. M., J. H., Long Beach.

E. M., J. H.,: The ancient Welsh HUGHES lineage traces ancestry back 32 generations to Rhodri Mawr (Roderick the Great), King of Wales, 843 A.D. The family name was taken from the English "Hugh" meaning "of brilliant mind," a Teutonic given-name brought to Britain by the Saxons. The Hughes coat-of-arms is the same as that of Roderick the Great, a black rampant lion on a silver shield. The titled branches of the family lived in Anglesey and Merioneth.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would much like the analysis of FERGUSON—Mrs. S. S., Lakewood.

Mrs. S. S.: The Scotch Clan Ferguson lived many centuries in Argyllshire. This clan descended from a Gaelic chief called Fearghais whose name had the quaint meaning, "finest child of all." The vast clan lands were acquired in the 1300s in Aberdeen, Galloway and Dumfries. King Robert the Bruce granted the Fergusons of Ayrshire their estates by charter in 1307. Annie Laurie of Maxweltoun, one of the most famous women in Scotch history, married a clan descendant, Alexander Ferguson. The clan coat-of-arms has a silver buckle between three gold boar heads on a blue shield, with the motto "Dulcius ex asperis" or "Sweetness after difficulty."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell history on the name Hoffman—B. J., Long Beach.

B. J.: HOFFMAN originated among the nobility of German states in the Middle Ages. It meant "court attendant." An ancestor who achieved a position of high responsibility assumed his title as a surname.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the coat-of-arms and meaning of DUNCAN—Mrs. C. M., Long Beach.

Mrs. C. M.: Duncan the Stout, heir of the ancient Earls of Atholl, was the founder of the Scotch clan DUNCAN. He and his clansmen fought with King Robert the Bruce, defeating the English in 1314. The Gaelic name Duncan meant "brown warrior." The Duncan estates were in Forfarshire, east Scotland. The clan chief in the 1700s was an admiral who won a great naval victory against the Dutch. The Duncan coat-of-arms has on it the gold medal received as an award for this victory, backed by a red shield. The family motto is "Upright in peril and prosperity." Among descendants in America were John, Robert, Thomas and James Duncan of York County, Pennsylvania, 1771.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze the surname JAMES—Mrs. M. C., F. J., Mrs. F. J., Long Beach.

The English JAMES family derived their name from the Biblical given-name James or Jacob meaning "the supplanter." One of the ancestors was Lord Mayor of London in 1479. The coat-of-arms has three golden, standing lions and three black seashells on a chevron across the center of a blue shield. John James, born in Rhode Island in 1743, fought with the Minute Men in the Battle of Lexington, 1775, at the start of the Revolutionary War.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give brief genealogy on the Irish name O'DRISCOLL—E. D., Long Beach.

E. D.: The primordial Irish ancestor of the well known O'DRISCOLL lineage was called Eidirsceol. This was indicative of his occupation, for it meant "the interpreter." The progeny of this talented gentleman assumed the clan name O'Driscecil. The family owned a large part of County Cork in the Middle Ages, and held several manorial castles.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the analysis of PARKER—C. F., A. L., Long Beach; J. P., Bellflower.

C. F., A. L., J. P.,: A "PARKER" was hereditary custodian of a deer park owned by a nobleman in medieval England. His duty was to protect the forested enclosure. William Le Parker was so efficient that he was granted a Lancashire estate in the 1300s by King Richard II. He adopted as the Parker coat-of-arms three gold leopard heads on a red shield. Among early American settlers was the Rev. Thomas Parker, rector of the church at Newbury, Berkshire, England. He settled in Massachusetts in 1634.

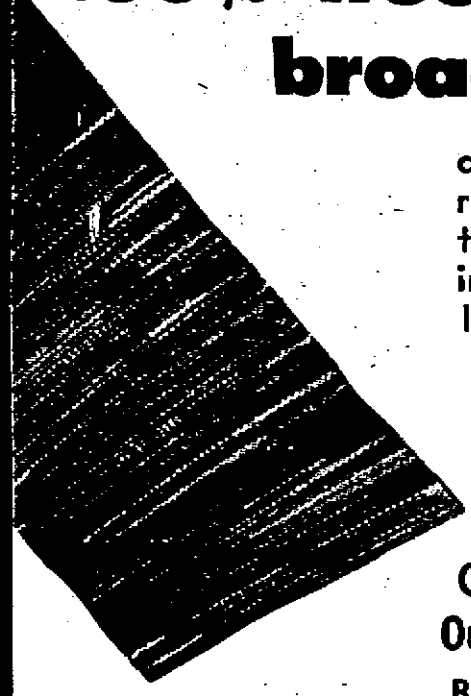

For E. E., Mrs. E. O., the name ESTES was included in this column for July 14, 1957, procurable at the offices of this newspaper.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

BOOK REVIEWS

Naming the Land

FIRST bestowal of a name in the subcontinent now known as Alaska came July 20, 1741, when a Russian ship sailed in among the many islands there. The name chosen was Cape St. Elias, because anchor was dropped on St. Elias' Day. Alaska itself was first called "Alaschka" by the Russians, generally supposed to mean "great land." Naming of the mainland coast really got under way in 1778 when Capt. Cook sailed into the area.

George R. Stewart, a Californian, supplies many new and important facts about the hunk of land twice as big as Texas — which this month was voted a state — in "NAMES ON THE LAND" (Houghton Mifflin, $6) and in doing uncovers little-known episodes in Alaskan history.

The longish chapter on Alaska, plus another on Hawaii, comments on recent events and a number of illustrations, brings up-to-date this reissue of Mr. Stewart's book, first published in 1945. The original text discusses place names from Bangor, Me., to San Diego, from Seattle to Key West, refreshing the reader with historical lore and supplying bizarre anecdotes from the past. How Long Beach, Pasadena and other California cities came by their names is included in a chapter devoted to the Golden State.

Mr. Stewart, who admits to a weakness for names and their meanings, says that writing of the original edition began in 1941 and was completed in 1944. But it would be more like it to believe his confession that "I spent all my life on it." For, in truth, the amount of research that went before the writing must have been astonishingly long and tedious. Readers will say the effort was well worth the result.

ASHLEY MONTAGU

A noted anthropologist, Ashley Montague, writes a witty and erudite analysis of the qualities of culture, plus a method of testing the reader's "culture quotient" in "THE CULTURED MAN" (World, $3.95).

"THE SUMMER LOVERS" by Hollis Alpert (Knopf, $3.95): This easy-to-read, sophisticated novel is set at East Nines, a semi-plush summer resort on Long Island. Though other characters weave in and out of the story, it is mainly about Andy Wells, a 43-year-old professor in a rut, his wife, Martha, and Martha's daughter, Sally, Radcliffe undergraduate and voluptuous at 18 who has been in love with Andy since he came to her house to live.

Sally seduces Andy after being intimate with Chris, who's about to go into the Army. Martha senses something's wrong in her house, keeps her thoughts to herself until she learns the truth, while Sally becomes more and more enamored of her stepfather. The climax comes quickly, and as a surprise. Bill Chadburn, an illustrator of children's books who has leased part of the Wells household for the summer, watches developments from the sidelines while renewing a friendship with Louise, from whom he has been divorced six or seven years.

Mr. Alpert has written one of the most refreshing stories to appear during the summer; as refreshing to one, we imagine, as the Long Island climate after being cooped in New York with the heat.

SHORT STORIES: Discriminating readers will like two new collections. "RIVER'S END AND OTHER STORIES" by Anthony C. West (McDowell, Obolensky, $3.50) contains eight compelling tales of a boy's wild, unbridled adolescence, of his attainment of manhood. "THE BRIDES OF SOLOMON" (Atlantic - Little Brown, $3.75) includes 16 fiction pieces by Goeffrey Household. The settings are varied. Each has realistic characterization, and each moves in unexpected ways. The title story tells of the travels of a bishop's representative and an official deep into the jungle to find out how many wives a modern Solomon has. Are they astonished when they learn he has only 89, and not 200!

"THE CALIFORNIA ISLANDS" by Charles Hillinger; photographs by Howard Maxwell (Academy Publishers, Los Angeles, $5.50): Although 14 million people live in California and thousands of tourists flock to the state each year, only a handful of people have visited all eight of the Channel Islands which lie off the coast of the Southland. Hillinger and Maxwell, reporter - photographer team from The Los Angeles Times, not only visited these islands—Santa Catalina, Santa Cruz, Santa Barbara, Santa Rosa, San Miguel, Anacapa, San Nicholas and San Clemente —they thoroughly explored each and brought back with them little known facts and striking pictures. This informative book is the result of their explorations and research, and Southern Californians interested in our coastal waters will find it very much to their liking.

"NONE BUT THE BRAVE" by Frieda K. Franklin (Crown, $3.95): Kansas was the western frontier in the 1850s. There were Indians and soldiers of fortune, cavalry and early settlers. And there were those who had their own idens about the issue of slavery, and an underground railroad by which slaves were shuttled out of the South to freedom. These are the elements of this incisive novel, these and a girl friendly with the cause of the North but attracted to two Dragoons —one who believed as she believed and the other a convert to the cause of slavery. They Live in Germany --and Like It!

By Jane Westover

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY

CAPT. AND MRS. LAWRENCE E. RUFF call Long Beach home. But for two years they've hung their hats in a charming domicile on the vast U. S. Army installation here in Heidelberg.

My SAS plane deposited me at Frankfurt. I journeyed by car on the fast Autobahn, equivalent to our freeways, to Heidelberg. My mission? To see how the Ruffs and fellow transplanted Americans live and like making their home in Europe.

Briefly, they love it.

"We find the German people very friendly and anxious to share their customs and traditions with us," says Mrs. Ruff. "The German-American Women's Club meets once a month in the day time. Four times a year evening parties are sponsored so husbands can participate. One of these is the formal St. Nicholas Ball just before Christmas. It's attended by Americans and Germans from teenagers to elderly people."

Mrs. Ruff greeted me at the door of her home in Patrick Henry Village, Heidelberg, attired in native Bavarian dirndl. The dress had a black background sprinkled with tiny roses. An ample green apron covered the front.

CAPT. RUFF, USN, was relaxed in sport shirt and slacks, it being Saturday afternoon. Although regular Navy he's the Heidelberg representative of MSTS (Military Sea Transportation Service). He explained the integration of the services: "We arrived here May 3, 1956. Our first year was somewhat limited to the Navy. During that time there was a Commander Naval Forces, Germany, with headquarters in Heidelberg. We had 25 Naval officers. The new German Army took over the controls in June 1957, except the Rhine River Patrol which was turned over to the German Army Engineers on June 30.

"Since then there have been only four US Naval officers and two Marine officers here.

"We have been absorbed by the Army, socially—and very pleasantly, too. We entertain frequently in our homes on the base and at the Officer's Club in rather large numbers for honor guests, visiting admirals and generals, for Christmas, various holidays and 'Auf Wiedersehen' parties for departing friends.

"Our life is comparable to life in Long Beach with cocktail parties, luncheons, dinners at our home or in the Officers' Club at Allen Center there."

Mrs. Ruff, the former Mrs. J. Herbert Davies, visits her daughter, Mrs. William H. Winston Jr., and her three grandchildren, Becky, 7, Scott, 4, and Billy, 2, at their home, 3134 E. First St., whenever she and Capt. Ruff are in Long Beach. Capt. Ruff's sons are Rick, college student at Concord, Calif., and Terry, Signalman, third class, USS Washburn, San Diego.

THE RUFFS HAVE A GERMAN maid and enjoy eating German foods in restaurants. Most of their food at home is purchased from the commissary on the base. Much of the milk and butter is imported from Scandinavian countries and flown in by Air Transport.

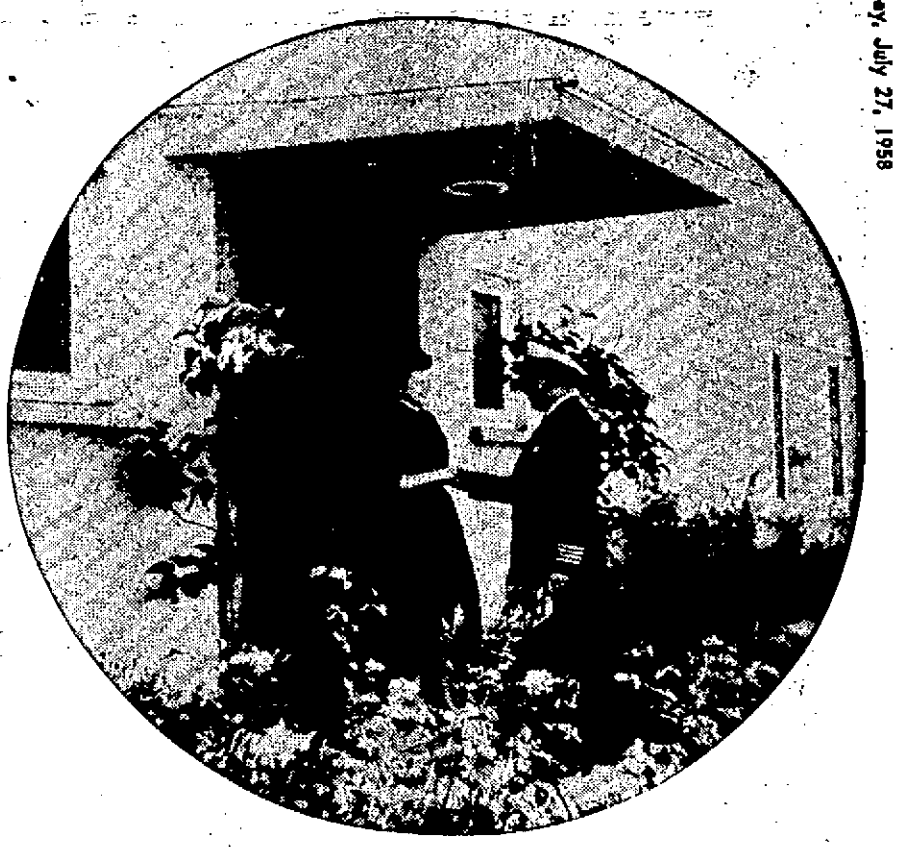

The differences in languages presents a constant stumbling block. Explains Mrs. Ruff:

"The Germans sometimes have difficulty with English, always the Americans have trouble speaking German. As a result, there's a tendency to speak only to your own countrymen. But we try and make conversation with the Germans, sometimes very successfully. For example, the assistant burgermeister attends many parties with his wife, accompanied by an official interpreter. The burgermeister himself is very elderly, and seldom goes out."

Visiting German homes is always delightful. "If the couple is elderly the

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Jane Westover has just returned from a tour of Europe, during which she went to Heidelberg to interview Capt. and Mrs. Ruff.)

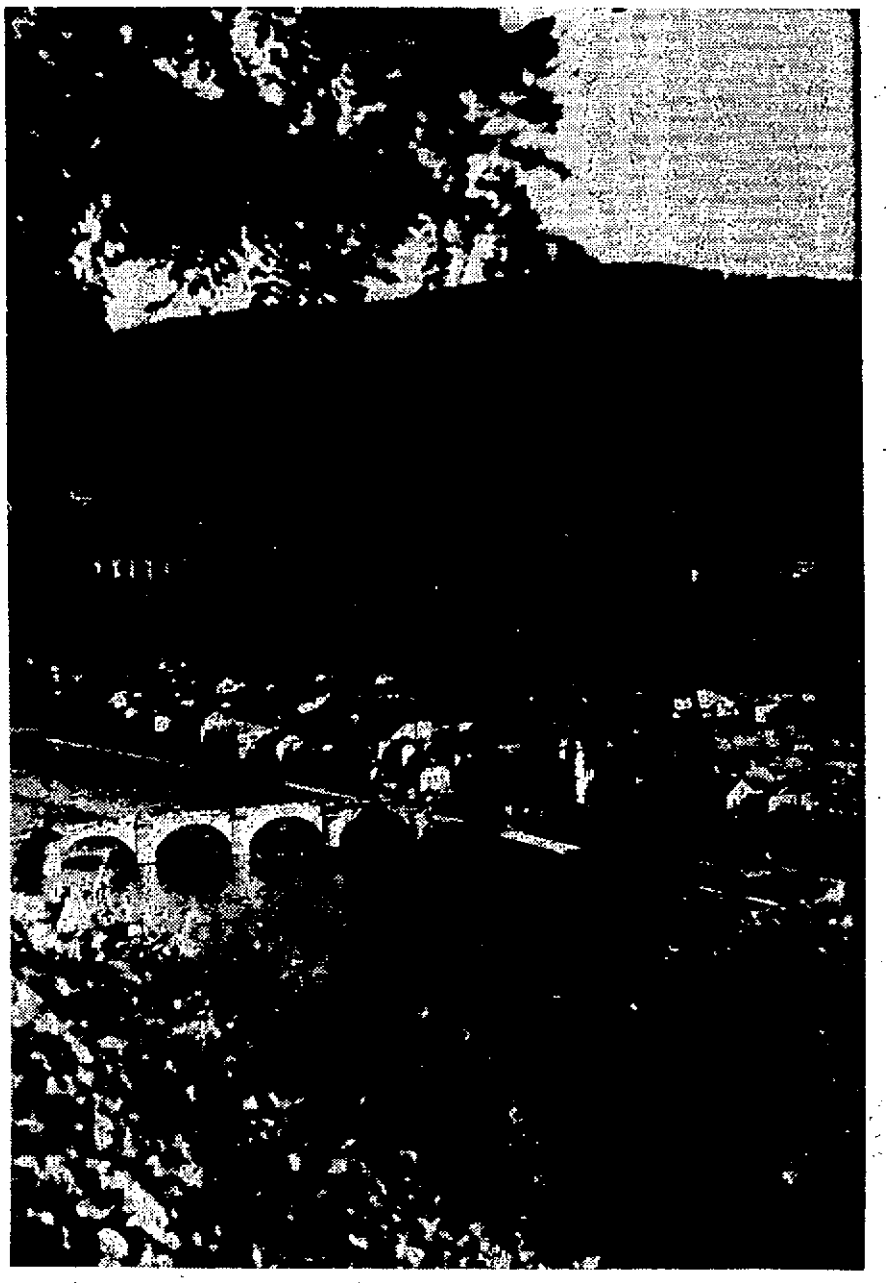

Long Beach is their home, but Capt. L. E. Ruff, USN, and Mrs. Ruff are now in Heidelberg, Germany. Here's homecoming greeting in Heidelberg.

Capt. Ruff appears here in the dress of a German hunter; Mrs. Ruff in native dirndl. The historic punch bowl is one Ruffs use in entertaining.

And this is Heidelberg, which Ruffs enjoy so much as their European residence. City is steeped in romance and traditions of German people.

"Sometimes Mother acts like I were 12. . . . I'm practically 16, which is going on 17."

I Have Problem Parents

By Jill Kane

I WAS BORN JAN. 3, 1943, which means that now in July, 1958, I'm practically 16 which is, of course, going on 17 but most of the time my parents treat me as if I were 12 even though I feel as if I were 18, sometimes even 19.

That's the whole trouble with parents, they're so inconsistent. My mother will say, "Why can't you act grown up? After all, you're not a child. You're nearly 16."

Then, in the next breath she will say, "For heaven's sake why do you think you can stay out until 11? You're only a child."

I ask you. What is a person to think?

I have a small brother who is 12 but who thinks he is smart and acts as if he were at least 15, and I have a sister who is 7. Actually Jan, that's my sister, she's cute and I can tolerate her most of the time except when I have to baby sit with her. (I might add here that my parents are real neat about babysitting and pay me 35 cents an hour so it's not the money I'm complaining about.) Jan, my sister, is, as I said, tolerable. The only thing is when we have an argument like when she gets into my things (like jewelry) my mother interferes with our argument and says that we are sisters and sisters share and share alike. On the other hand when I have to babysit with her I'm told that I should be strict and treat her as if she were my own daughter and she, my sister, still thinks that we are sisters who share alike and I have a heck of a time making her mind due to my mother's inconsistency. But parents are always inconsistent, it seems.

TAKE THE OTHER DAY for example. I asked my father very casually if I could have a cigarette. He nearly flipped. Honestly, he really flipped. Now I don't like to smoke—in fact, I have never smoked but a girl in my club has a boy friend who smokes all the time, at least five a day, and he gave her one the other day and she said it tasted awful and she couldn't understand why anyone smoked.

Anyway, I was curious so I thought that I would see for myself and I figured if I asked my dad for one he would be happy that I tried it at home so I asked him for one. He hit the ceiling as I said. He really did. He said what in the world are you kids coming to and why did I have to be a typical teenager who smoked all the time and no he wouldn't give me a cigarette and if he caught me smoking he would restrict me. I ask you. What is a person to think? Unbeknownst to him I tried one anyway and it was awful and I don't intend to smoke now or any time but I do wish he had understood that I was just curious. I still don't understand how he can smoke a pack a day and seem to like it. Old age, I guess.

And the question about dates. Many of my friends go steady. That's fine for them, I guess. But me—I don't want to go steady because I think going steady should be something you do when you get old—like when you're in college. I like a lot of boys and I like to date different boys for different occasions. For example, I like to go swimming with a boy named Jack because he's a real neat swimmer and looks cool in swim trunks. I mean he has the build for sports and all that. Then I like to dance with this real cute guy named Ken because he's the smoothest dancer I've ever danced with. And as for shows, Jim's the most fun. Like me, he likes those cool pictures that have terrific music and not too much plot but plenty of laughs. So you see I can't go steady really because I'd have to go steady with so many fellows.

But, anyway, as I said, most of my friends go steady. I think some of them are insecure or something according to what I read somewhere not long ago. I'm not insecure, so, in a way, I guess I'm different. I think it was about a week ago when Leo, that's another boy I know who's loads of fun and who has a license so he can drive his dad's car when he has a date, asked me for a date. We went swimming and then to a show and found we had so much in common that he asked me to go steady. I still didn't want to go steady but I thought about all my friends who went steady and figured it might be fun to try it for awhile. When I told mom and dad that Leo and I might go steady because we had so much fun together, they really hit the ceiling, especially my dad. He acted as if we were going to get married or something. I told him not to worry and Leo and I called it off. The only thing is that the very next day almost my mother insisted that I learn how to wash windows properly and how to iron curtains because she said every girl should be prepared for married chores early so that she would make a good wife. I said I didn't plan on getting married early but she said you never know about those things. I ask you. How inconsistent can you get?

DON'T GET ME WRONG. I think my mother and father are tops. In fact they're really swell and not at all old-fashioned in looks. My mother even owns two new sack dresses. But the way they act at times! Mom often talks about manners, which are ok, in fact, pretty important maybe, but sometimes I don't see her point. She'll ask me to say "yes, mother" or "no, mother," instead of "yeah" or "uh huh," but on the other hand when I ask her to do something she frequently says "uh huh" or something like that depending on her mood. I guess that's parental privilege. Besides she's nearly 36 and I realize that people get forgetful when they're middle-aged. I do know one thing. When I have children I'll try to remember not to be inconsistent, especially when I ask my children to have manners I should set an example of.

I have a terrific problem with clothes. All of my friends have cashmere sweaters and just loads of girls I know who are old enough to drive have their own cars. But when I asked if I could have my own car when I'm 16 or even 17 my mother said for heaven's sake we haven't finished paying for the new dryer yet and did I think we were made of money. Since we don't even own a swimming pool as most of my friends do I am sure we must be fairly poor.

And about the sweater—when I asked for a couple of cashmeres my mother said even she didn't own a cashmere and all I ended up with was a lecture. But in the next breath she tells me I should polish my flats each night because people judge you first by your appearance and it pays to look nice. How can a person look neat when everyone else is wearing cashmeres? Frankly, I'm going to have a whole lot more understanding with my children because I realize how important cars and cashmeres can be. Maybe since I know what it is to go without I'll try to give them everything I never had if I'm ever lucky enough to get married which I probably won't since my parents don't even want me to go steady.

ANYWAY, WITH ALL my problems with my parents, it's kind of fun to be a teenager nowadays although I wish you wouldn't hear the word delinquent so often. Actually, I have never known a single delinquent except a boy (and I don't really know him) who went with a girl friend's sister of mine whose name was Sue and even he didn't do anything except drive his dad's car too fast when his dad didn't know he had it. You might know his parents put him on restriction and my dad said he'd even do more than that. But then, only yesterday, my dad came home and waved a ticket to my mother saying "guess what, I finally got picked up in that" (he used a censorable word here) "area where I've driven up to 55 any number of times." My mother laughed with him but I guess that's parents for you. I know what would have happened if I had gotten a ticket.

Oh, well, I've learned a lot from my parents. Mainly that I'm going to be very very consistent with my own kids if I'm ever lucky enough to get married. And I'm really not too worried because, believe it or not, I find that all my friends have identically the same problem parents that I have, except, of course, when it comes to cashmeres and cars. And I think that even my parents are gradually maturing in their point of view because my dad has agreed I could have a new formal this fall—strapless at that. How neat can you get!

Now They're Fishing From the Air!

By Donnell Culpepper

Tony (Bimbo) Marinkovich (inset) spots a school of fish (lower picture) from his Piper Cub and then radios its position to anglers in sports fishing boats like that at left. The boat then moves in among the school for a fine catch. Fish-spotting has provided fun for all.

LET'S GIVE a thought to the poor fish! Tempting baits and colorful lures are tossed at him on the surface, spears are fired at him underwater and now, heaven help him, the airplane is diving at him from above!

With all of that, perhaps things are getting a bit out of hand for the fish.

Just how does the airplane fit into a quaint seascape of tangled lines, undersea skin-diving weapons, anchor chains and fins?

It's all very simple for a smart pilot like Tony (Bimbo) Marinkovich, who has been spotting schools of fish for six years and telling boat skippers what to expect—sardines, anchovies, mackerel, bonito, barracuda, albacore, yellowtail and even marlin and broadbill.

UP UNTIL JUST RECENTLY Bimbo's efforts have been strictly for commercial fishermen, but today he's keeping watch for the sportfishermen—those weekend monofilament-crazed lads who toss a 10-dollar bill on the ticket counter and expect a bag full of fish before the day ends.

When thousands of Southern California anglers descend on the ocean landings daily, it isn't always so easy for the boat operators to guarantee one fish, to say nothing of a sackful.

When a fully loaded pleasure fishing boat leaves a landing, the skipper's first job is to obtain bait. Then comes the task of locating fish. He knows that certain fishing banks—the Horseshoe Kelp, Huntington Flats, Rocky Point, various coves around Catalina Island—are places where fish hang out.

BUT FISH ARE VORACIOUS eaters and when food isn't available at the regular eating places, they school up and head for another lunchroom. When they are on the move, it's difficult for a skipper to find them.

True enough, there are certain signs: disturbances on the surface and birds winging overhead to pick up what the fish didn't finish. Mostly, however, a skipper is handicapped in that he can get just so high on a boat and then he is stymied. His vision is impaired by waves. He can climb to the highest place on his boat but he can't see far enough to observe fish that may be moving a few feet under the surface.

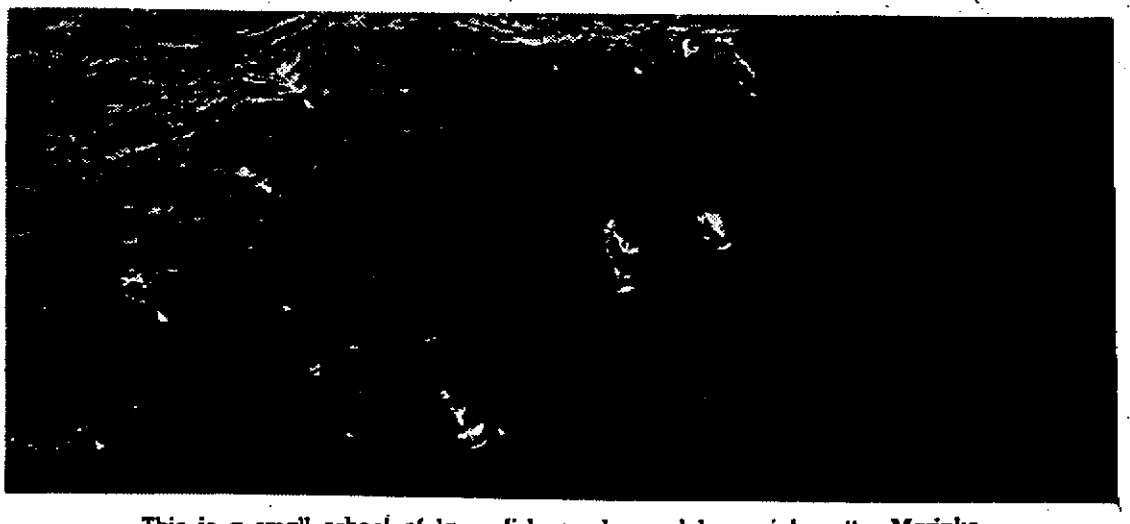

That's where Bimbo enters the day's program. Tony comes winging out in his Piper Cub, flying from 500 to 3,000 feet and looking constantly for any disturbance in the water.

WHEN HE SEES a commotion on or near the surface, he drops lower to investigate and determine what kind of fish is there. Tony has been at this business long enough to tell the difference between a school of anchovies and a school of sardines. Rather amazing when you know that the fish vary only an inch in length. He can spot other schools the same way and name each one simply by circling and observing every movement. You'd think that bonito and small tuna would be similar in action, but not to Tony, drifting in a tight circle a few hundred feet in the air.

When Tony decides it's a school of game fish, he radios the nearest boat and tells the skipper to move in slowly. He can watch and tell by the school's action just how the boat's engine is affecting the fish. If the fish start scattering, Tony tells the skipper to cut the engine and drift into the school.

IN A WAY, THE plane pilot is like a general directing the attack, and it works beautifully. Pier-

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Home With a Two-Room Bonus

By John O. B. Wallace

HERE'S A HOUSE with a bonus of two rooms. The extra living space comes at no extra cost because the eight rooms, including three bedrooms, have been designed into the same area usually required for a six-room house.

This "dividend" house was based on a study of many homes of approximately 1,300 square feet—a size that falls into the category of a small, economy priced dwelling.

All homes of 1,300 square feet reviewed by the architect responsible for this House of The Week plan, designated HW-93, invariably contained no more than six rooms.

HOW TO GET two extra rooms into the same area, the architect asked himself. Good design and imaginative use of space provided the answer. The successful plan thus incorporates as many useful rooms as possible into a one-story, in-line ranch house of the modest, 1,300-square-foot size.

In addition to the eight rooms being cleverly shoehorned into 1,300 square feet, the house also boasts of a 40-square-foot front foyer—a luxury not usually afforded in a house of this size.

Overall dimensions of the house are 71 feet by 24 feet 8 inches, including the garage area. A lot 90x100 feet is recommended. Excluding the brick veneer and the garage, the house has 1,299 square feet. Add 39 square feet for the veneer and 282 square feet for the garage.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern, who created this bonus home after long study, points out:

"The room that usually suffers in size, in a minimum

house, is the bath. It is brought on the drafting board to the minimum size of 5 by 7 feet, or 35 square feet—and the tub is placed under the window.

"There is a marked trend today, however, for larger, more luxurious baths—and this design follows this trend. The bath is 9 by 7 feet, or 63 square feet."

THE BATH in HW-93 thus falls only 7 square feet short of being twice the size of a minimum size bath.

The bath has a vanity, a double lavatory, a towel cabinet and a screen in front of the water closet. And the tub is on the side wall, where it belongs.

"Circulation in this home is excellent," Matern adds. "Nothing suffers from its compactness. No room must be used as a passageway."

THERE IS A FULL basement except under the area occupied by the garage. With the exterior basement door, the architect explains, the cellar space becomes a wonderful area to finish later as a rumpus or recreation room.

The 40-square-foot front foyer has a guest closet below the height of the ceiling. This arrangement creates a platform above for plants. The family room has a folding screen partition which permits the foyer to be closed off or opened to provide a 20-foot view to the sliding glass doors and beyond to the rear terrace.

THERE ARE BUILT-IN cabinets on the left wall of the family room and a low planter extends through the rear wall of this room and out onto the terrace.

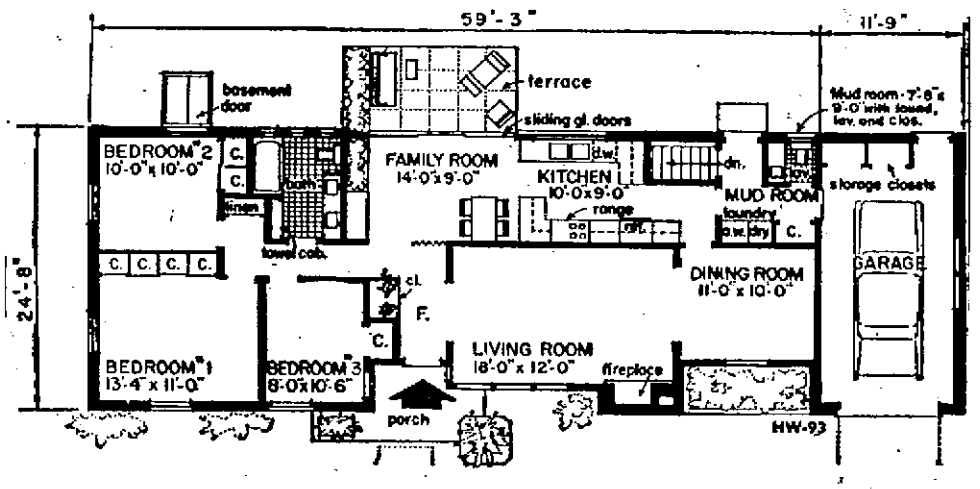

Additional features of the bathroom include picture-frame type windows, large mirrors back of the double lavatory and vanity—and fluorescent-lighted ceiling panels.

Brick veneer has been used as exterior material around the entire house except at the front entrance. Wood finish has been used to flank the front entrance and flush boards have been used at the left with flower pots and brackets hanging from them.

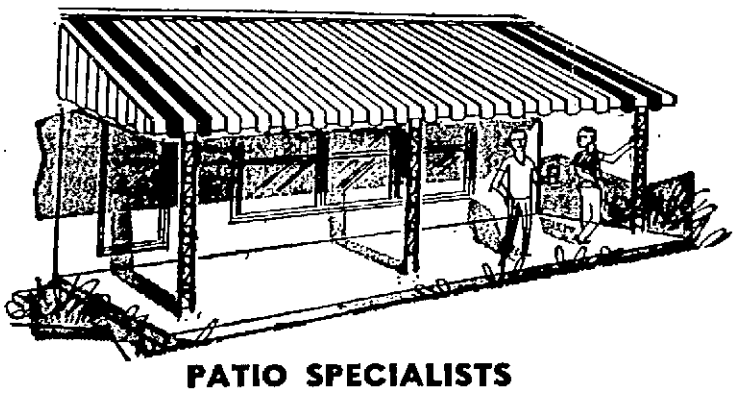

Deep, vertically-grooved plywood is used on the right of the front entrance under the living room windows. The chimney, 7 feet wide, rises to its full height to become an exterior feature. Planters flank the porch and there is another planter under the dining room window.

The rear terrace is of scored concrete. Asphalt shingles are used for the roof and all windows in the house are double-hung aluminum. There is a setback over the dining room and the roof at this point has open rafters, to allow natural light to come in.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 35 cents and request House of the Week, Study Plan, Design HW-93.

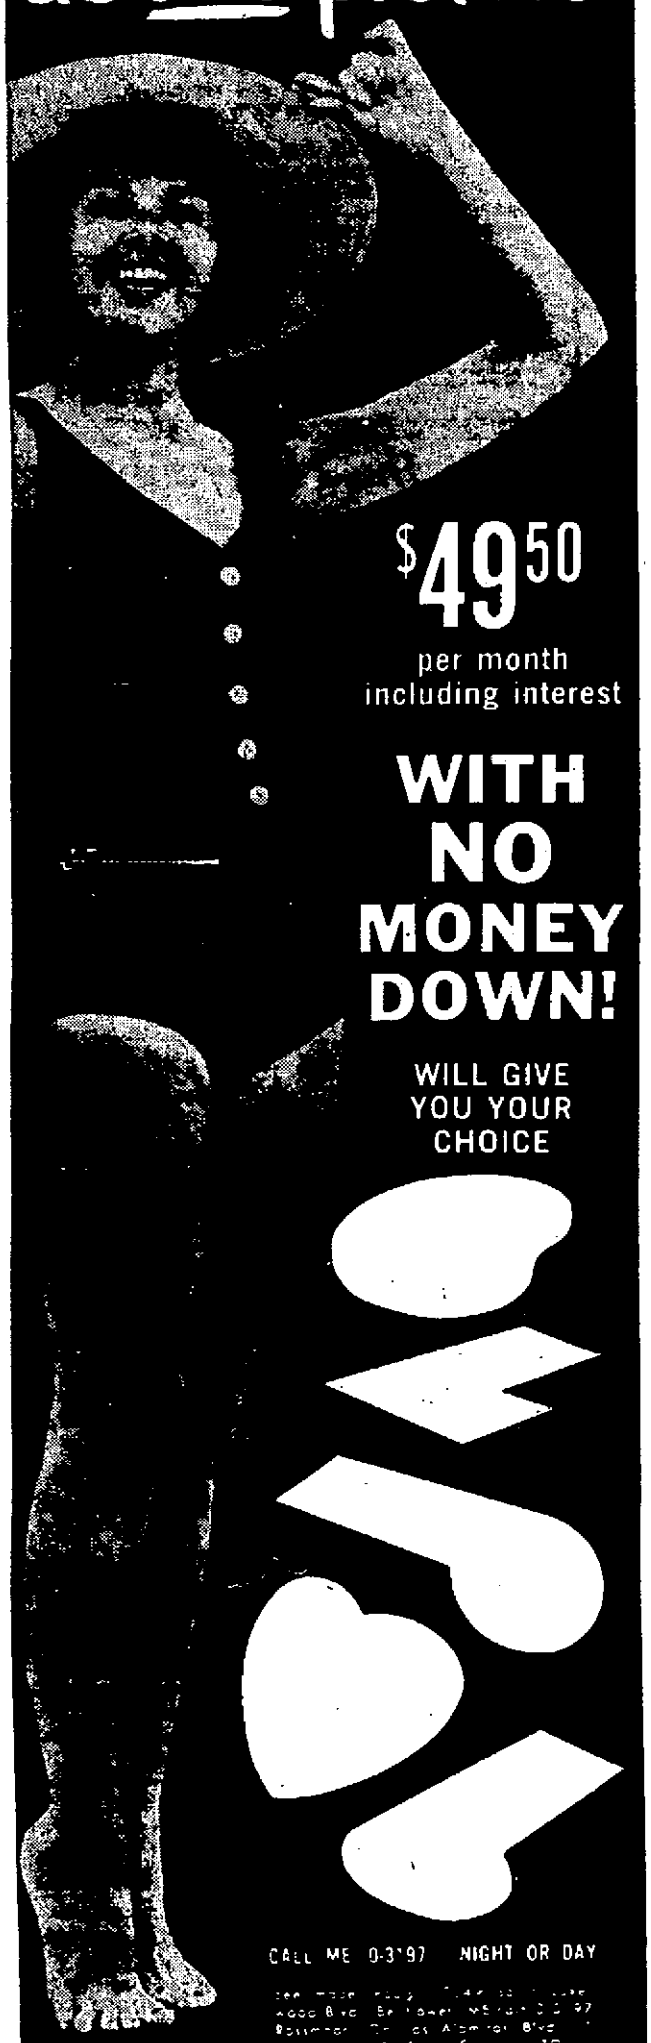

Study this floor plan and you will see that excellent circulation is provided. No single room must be used as a passageway in moving about.

Vertical venetians

Revolutionary New
"DOUBLE ARC" Slats
Make All the Difference

Now you can have vertical venetians that look and operate just like draw draperies . . . with all the advantages of venetians, besides! With the new double-arc slats, Eastern's Star has a flowing "one-piece" appearance when closed . . . looks for all the world like the luxurious folds of fine draperies. It opens and closes as a unit, too.

What's more, Eastern's Star verticals are so sturdy they don't need tapes or bottom tracks. And to add to their "drapery-like look," they feature a magnificent textured finish and are available in a galaxy of lovely colors.

Plus all these advantages!

★ Complete control of ventilation, light, view and privacy. Perfected mechanism of turn cord assures even turning of slats. When they are wide open, you have a far clearer view through fewer, wider, stronger slats.

★ Full closure of slats in either direction. The double arc slats don't just overlap . . . they interlock to lock out light, and to give wall-like privacy when used as room dividers.

House That's Attuned to Milady

Provincial and modified contemporary blend in the living room of the home of Harold Guiver family. Mrs. Guiver enjoys a moment of relaxation here.

By Eileen Ball

WHEN the interior decorator for the Harold Guiver home, 5107 Vista Hermosa, was commissioned to select furnishings and color schemes for this attractive 2,400-square-foot residence, he took into consideration all the usual factors — his clients' style preferences, their mode of everyday living and entertaining and, of course, their decorating budget. But, beyond this, he evolved the interior plan around still another factor: the personality, stature and coloring of Mrs. Guiver, who, he reasoned logically, should be flattered by the background of her home.

And this were determined the delicate mauve-to-pink color schemes for the living room, dining room and kitchen. These areas, with their pastel tones, most becomingly complement Mrs. Guiver's petite blondness. Assuming a decidedly more masculine air is the family room, where Guiver and the two youngsters find themselves a more robust decorative theme.

A DELIGHTFUL preamble to the heather tones of the living room and entry is the exterior planting, which is a showcase of lavender and purple flowers. Driftwood board-and-batten siding, a cedar shake roof and an abundance of used brick are attractive exterior specifications for this gracious corner house.

Waxed red tile floors the entry and a lofty, driftwood, open-beam ceiling soars above it. To the left is a large living room with blended French provincial and modified contemporary furnishings. A nutria-toned wool carpet contributes a delicate heather-hued underfooting. Dusty pink walls pay it delicate compliment, while the ceiling of facepowder pink plays a still paler counterpart in this monochromatic scheme.

Standing before a large front window is an oversized Lawson sofa upholstered in dusty-pink linen tweed. Italian silk pillows in jewel tones of turquoise and cyclamen provide brilliant accents. Before the sofa is a large oval cocktail table, its massive top a beveled piece of white imported marble.

A LARGE club chair joins this grouping with mauve damask fabric unusually patterned with tiny charcoal geometric motifs. Facing it from the opposite side of the cocktail table is an Oriental-inspired occasional chair that adds a distinctive note of contemporary simplicity to the room. It comprises a black lacquered teakwood frame with a natural cane back and a cushioned seat upholstered in a Persian silk stripe in tones of turquoise, pink, mauve and cyclamen.

Dressing the windows are sheer silk slub casement curtains under Italian hand-blocked cotton draperies with stylized floral motifs in charcoal, mauve and gold against a facepowder pink background.

Standing at a right angle to the fireplace are two low, upholstered, armless chairs which flank a simple but handsomely crafted French provincial table in fruitwood. The chairs are covered in a charcoal and mauve damask stripe, the fabric woven to match, identically, the colors in the damask lounge chair across the room.

OTHER FURNITURE for this large room includes several smaller case pieces of French provincial styling in mellow fruitwoods, a regal black grand piano and a small brass-grilled console in black lacquer trimmed with gilt.

In the separate dining room, furniture of French provincial styling sets the scene. This includes an oval table, a magnificent brass-grilled hutch and a company of side chairs. Their upholstery is a silk-and-linen tweed blending tones of turquoise, charcoal and pink.

Above a wainscot of chair-rail height, the dining room walls are papered in Chinese grass cloth — the pale-pink, woven fiber mounted over a deep charcoal paper. The resulting muted mauve tone is absolute perfection for this room that employs the same carpet and drapery treatment as the adjoining living room.

Natural mahogany cabinets distinguish the large kitchen that carries out the color plan of the other two rooms. Here, tile and built-in appliances are petal pink, and sill-length, turquoise cafe curtains are banded in pink to match.

THE FLOOR is a heather-and-beige speckle-patterned linoleum that has been intricately inlaid, as a central motif, with a linoleum inset that portrays a turquoise blue flower pot and pink leaves. This design in the floor repeats the pattern of dinette wallpaper that features the same pink-and-turquoise design against a soft cocoa background. Dinette chairs are upholstered in a turquoise and cocoa tweed. The oval table is pale birch.

A doorway from the kitchen leads directly into the family room — a huge area situated to overlook, through an entire rear wall of glass, the terrace and the garden beyond. This fun-for-all room is where the family spends most of its "at home" hours. No wonder! For this room has been specifically designed for lounging, entertaining, card-playing, dancing and televiewing. The color scheme does a complete about-face with vibrant curry-colored draperies dressing the glass wall and a random-tweed wool carpet in harvest tones to further emphasize the robust scheme. Heavy plank-and-peg floor, birch-paneled walls, massive wood beams and natural wood ceiling contribute the warmth characteristic of wood tones.

A PROVINCIAL pine game table, captain's chairs, a knotty pine bar and occasional tables are part of the family room furnishings. Above a large, quilted, polished-cotton sofa in chocolate and amber tones hang three of Mrs. Guiver's handmade, cross-stitch samplers, attractively encased in heavy maple frames.

Deep bookcases and built-in storage cabinets flank the handsome — and massive — used-brick fireplace with its raised seat-height hearth.

Kathy, aged 9 years, and Shelly, who is 7, have front bedrooms — each decorated to suit each little girl's specific tastes. Kathy's room is buttercup yellow with cocoa, white and gold-patterned provincial draperies hung in double tiers from gleaming brass rods. Shelly likes pink, so her room assumes a pastel scheme. Walls are dusty pink, her linen draperies match. Narrow, delicate bands of turquoise and cocoa print cotton satin trim the draperies with a discreet touch of pattern and color.

The master bedroom is highly distinctive for the fact that, despite its French provincial furnishings with typical fluid lines, the room achieves a tailored, almost masculine air of simplicity. Certainly, the fault of having a master bedroom far too frilly for a husband's taste is not the case here!

Two chairs and a table are placed at right angle to the fireplace in a simple but effective arrangement.

point and Pacific Landings in Long Beach have been using Tony on a part-time basis for several weeks and there's no doubt that his services have increased the take of yellowtail, barracuda and bonito.

Tony puts it this way:

"Sometimes I fly over a boat and see that there is no action. Yet, within 500 yards there may be a school of fish that would number two or three thousand."

Tony has become so expert at spotting schools of fish that he is planning a weekly service to owners of small boats and cruisers, giving them in map form where fish are migrating and the general area in which they may be found on a certain day.

JUST HOW DID TONY become such an expert in aerial fish spotting when others have tried it and failed?

Tony, now 28, and a bundle of energy, was born in San Pedro. He started his commercial-fishing career in 1946 and became the harbor's youngest skipper in 1950. He operated his father's boat for three years.

It was during that time that he learned the value of aerial spotting. Often, he would climb high in the crow's nest, then even balance himself on the rail to look down upon the sea. He always felt that he was not high enough. One day, while searching the ocean for fish, he decided that a plane would be the only way.

Giving up commercial fishing, he entered training and got his pilot's license the hard way inasmuch as the job he planned for himself called for a commercial license.

HE BOUGHT HIS Piper Cub and went into business, but it wasn't easy selling the oldtime commercial fishermen on the idea. Tony admits he lost everything except his shirt and plane in the first six months, operating at no profit whatever.

One by one, the commercials turned to him until finally even the old salts of the sea themselves were convinced that he had the right idea.

Tony says:

"The commercial fishermen used to get hump-backed from looking down for fish. Now they are getting sway-backed from looking up for the plane."

Tony on many occasions has practically helped a commercial boat wrap up a school of fish, directing every operation from the air, even to telling the men below when to purse the net.

IS THIS TYPE of fishing going to deplete the schools in the ocean? Tony just laughs at such a question. He says:

"Pessimistic fishermen who talk about how the commercial and sports boats are cleaning out the fish should take a ride with me. I've seen a boat lay a net on a school and I have heard the skipper say, 'Well, we have cleaned out that school.' Then is when he should be aloft with me where I am watching the operation. Perhaps the boat has netted 10 tons of fish, but, from the plane, you can see hundreds of tons that kept moving down ahead, far below the net.

"I can't see why any one gets excited over the possibility of depleting the ocean of its fish—not when I can see thousands of them every day that I am in the air. There's nothing unfair about aerial spotting. It's just a modern way of putting the boats in touch with migrating fish. If the fishermen here don't catch their share, some one else will, or predators will take care of them. That's just nature."

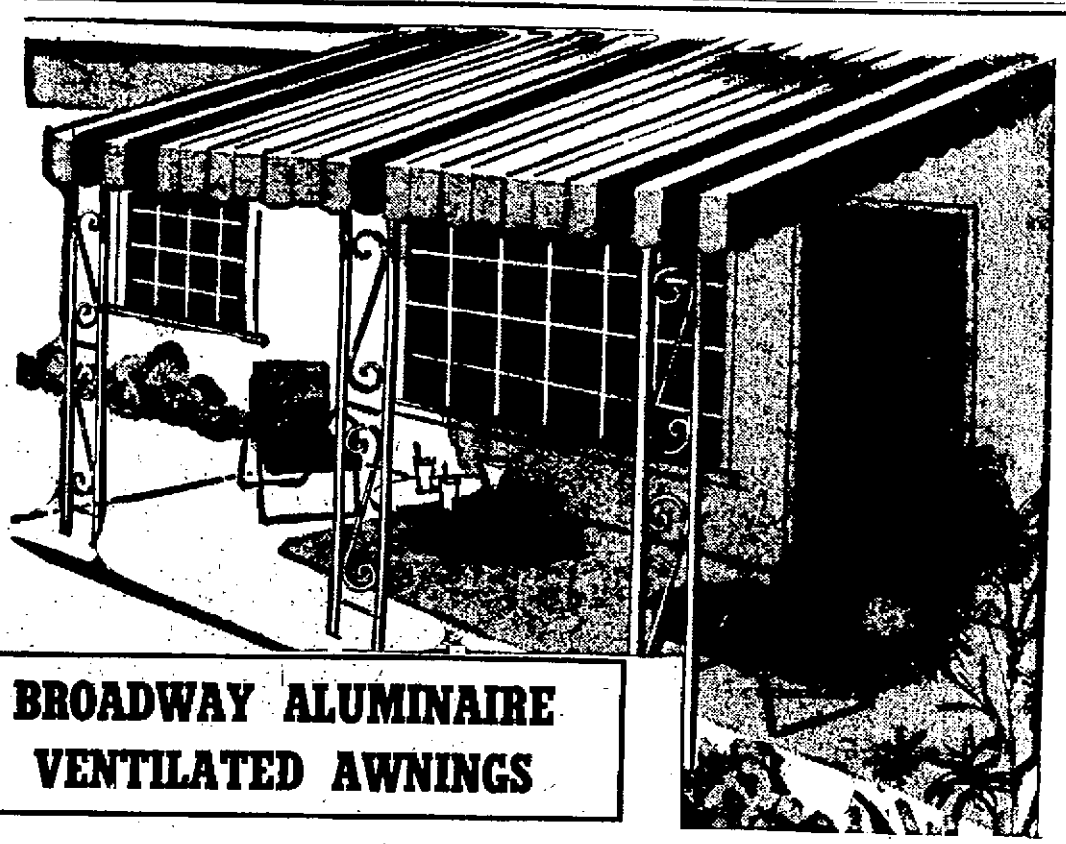

EVEN THOUGH TONY started as a commercial fisherman, he has a warm spot in his heart for the sportsmen. He likes to be broad-minded about what everybody takes from the ocean. He feels that there is room for commercials and sportsmen alike and that together they won't deplete the fish to any great extent.

Tony flies from the Torrance Airport on call from Pierpoint and Pacific Landings, but often he is in the air "on his own," just looking for fish. Often he is in the air for hours and always over water.

He lives at 2409 Faircross, Torrance, is married and has a son, 5, and a daughter, 7. When he's home, he likes to cook, barbecue-style. His favorite for the open spit? Any kind of good ocean fish!

They Live in Germany - - and Like It!

furniture has been in the family for generations, and is beautiful. If the couple is young the home is apt to be very modern and simple. The German people we know," says Mrs. Ruff, "are anxious for us to see their homes. They are very prompt with their invitations to their own homes or to some special restaurant or gasthaus to share their hospitality with us."

Living near the romantic town of Heidelberg with its harmonious scenic beauty, open country and artistic creations of man — castle, town bridge and flowering gardens, coupled with the tradition-laden atmosphere — is an experience in itself. Capt. and Mrs. Ruff sighed happily:

"It's such a change of pace. We're glad and lucky to be here."

THE ARMY installation, Patrick Henry Village, where the Ruffs live, houses about 5,000 Americans. Nearby Mark Twain Village has approximately 2,000. Their two-story home has central heating (a rarity in Europe), wall-to-wall carpeting and the latest equipment.

Living, generally, is expensive in Europe. Mrs. Ruff said:

"For the German people the cost of living is very high. For Americans in the military forces it's actually lower than in the United States because of the commissary privileges. We eat much the same food as at home, including grapefruit stamped 'Coachella' and oranges marked 'Sunkist.'"

One stumbling block is the fact that there's no pasteurized milk in Europe.

Capt. Ruff saw service throughout the Pacific theater during the war. He was at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7 on the bridge of the USS Nevada. His many ribbons show that he has seen action practically everywhere. They include two Bronze Stars and Silver Stars and ribbons for Navy commendation, American Theater, Occupation Theater in Japan, China and Korean Service, American Defense. Space doesn't permit

CAPT. AND MRS. RUFF have seen almost every corner of the world. Like all Americans in the overseas forces, Capt. Ruff is entitled to 30 days' leave a year. He and Mrs. Ruff have taken advantage of being stationed in Europe to see much of this part of the world. When he inspected MSTS ports aboard the USS Patch, Mrs. Ruff met him at Leghorn, Italy. They saw Naples, Tripoli, Athens and Istanbul before returning "home." Another time they visited Paris, London, Sweden, Austria, East and West Berlin.

"Every American should see East Berlin," said Mrs. Ruff. "As you walk through the Brandenburg Gate it's like going to a graveyard. We saw only one child. No dogs or cats. It's depressing."

The Ruffs and all Americans believe the words in Hoelderlin's deathless ode about being privileged to live in the beautiful historic town of Heidelberg: "And home it was to all."

Seven of Mrs. Head's lovely young pupils dance the Sea Breeze hula for the visiting Henry Burmesters of Long Beach. Aku (tuna) boat is seen offshore.

School Is Happy in Hawaii

By Vera Williams

A SHORT YEAR ago she was Ruth Head, Bellflower and Artesia school teacher, wife of Lou Head, regional news editor of the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Today, she is sixth grade teacher in the Kihei school on the island of Maui, the only Haole (white) teacher in the school, and husband Lou Head covers the island of Maui for the Honolulu Advertiser.

Henry F. Burmester, retired editor of the Press-Telegram, and his wife, Betty, recently visited the Heads and the school.

"We are Americans!" the brown-skinned, slant-eyed children proudly told the Burmesters. They raised the Stars and Stripes above their little cottage school building on the southwest coast of Maui, overlooking Malaaca Bay and a beautiful tropical beach. They saluted the Flag, and Hank and Betty noted the Pledge of Allegiance resounded, and the hands going to their hearts were not limp!

THEY RECITED their lessons, sang mainland and island songs for the visitors and danced the hula for them.

When the Burmesters left, they gave the children a big box of candy. The young folk sent a thank-you letter to Hank and Betty at their home here, 3751 Brayton Ave., and it was signed by them all.

What is it like to live and teach on the island?

"First," explains Ruth, "there's a casualness on Maui that is not apparent on the mainland or in Honolulu for that matter.

"At first, school was certainly confusing for me. What names –what pidgin English on the playground! I couldn't pronounce the names, couldn't match them up with the faces and couldn't half understand the kids on the playground.

"BEING THE ONLY Haole (white) teacher felt strange. (There are lots of them in the other schools here and the woods are full of them on Oahu.) But the principal, Wallace Tanake, a native of Maui with Japanese ancestry, and the other teachers were so nice and casual about everything I soon began to feel right at home.

The school, surrounded by palm trees and kiawe (pronounced keave) trees, has an enrollment of 205. Books are the same as those used in Southern California — old friends to Ruth!

Ruth finds the children have a basic kindness and friendliness. School is happy and there is no serious discipline problem, although occasionally a little serious talking must be done!

There are no red apples for teacher—instead she receives a deluge of mangoes, tangerines, lilikoi (passion fruit), kukui nuts and seashell necklaces. And all kinds of flowers and leis — orchids, hibiscus, pakalana, pikaki and plumeria.

Schoolteacher Ruth Head takes lei lesson from two of her Maui students, Dannyette Kukahiko and Neil Uemae.

Fuller House Paint met every rigorous test of weather and wear ... it outperformed the finest house paints.

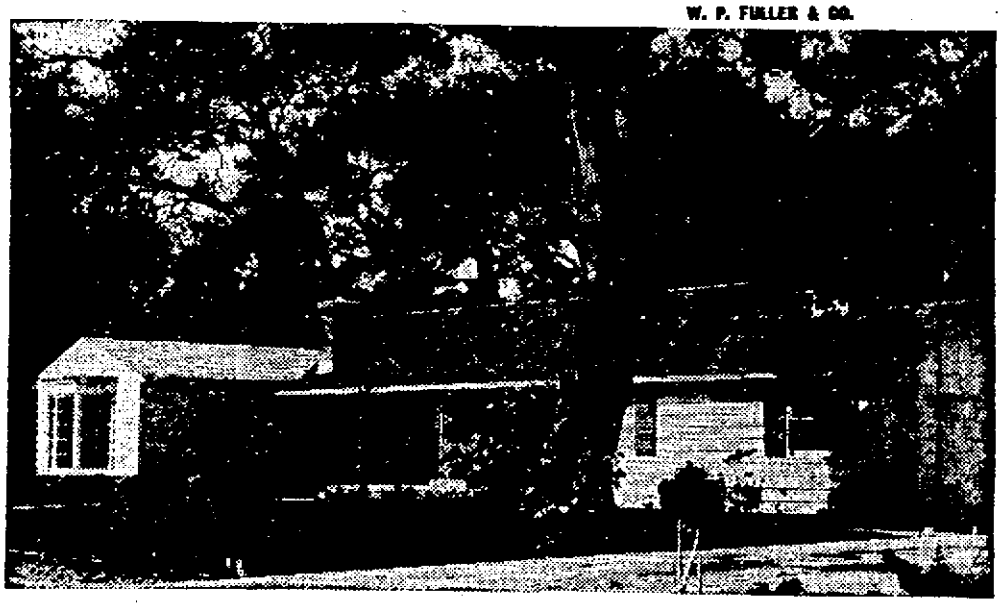

Today, because of this tremendous 7-year field experience, Fuller can offer you this revolutionary new house paint, without qualification, as THE FINEST HOUSE PAINT YOU CAN BUY.

Long years ago, Santa Maria climbed the hill and established itself upon level ground, leaving Point Sal (above, circa 1871) to crumble into ruin.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

Once-Proud Port of the Pacific

By Mabel Veatch Hoadley

MODERN MAPS of California show Santa Maria 10 or 11 miles from the ocean. In the 1870s, however, grain, wool and hogs from the Santa Maria and Los Alamos valleys were hauled to Point Sal for shipment by steamer to San Francisco and other points along the coast. At one time this shipping point was the largest south of San Francisco.

Throughout the grain harvesting season a long line of horse drawn wagons could be seen daily on the trek to the wharf, and again homeward bound after unloading the grain into the ships. With less regularity, livestock and other products of the fertile valleys were brought to the wharf all through the year. The crooked one-way road was rutted most of the time.

North of the harbor, Point Sal thrusts a protecting arm out into the Pacific. To the south, Lion Head Point extends out far enough to reduce the force of the wildest of the ocean's fury, for even the peaceful Pacific has its evil moods. In spite of this geographical good fortune, the harbor is rough, and the tides dangerous. Montainous waves come in to crash against the cliffs that tower above them and send spume flying high in the air. The coastal area is a veritable graveyard of ships.

FROM THIS protected spot, privateers once set out to raid Spanish caravels, and the harbor is lined with rusting cannon, presumably captured from them. Many ships have been lost in dense fogs, or driven ashore by high winds and wrecked along the craggy, storm-battered coast. Rusting pieces of broken vessels litter the clean, rocky ocean floor in the shallow water off the beach.

In 1852, the Yankee Blade was boarded by buccaneers in San Francisco. When they reached Point Sal they beached her and carried away $2,000,000 in gold which she had on board. When the wharf was built in 1871, lumber was salvaged from the wreckage of the Yankee Blade and was used for making walks and other improvements. A one-room school house for the children of the little settlement was built from the cabin of the wrecked schooner, Annie Lytle. The Santa Rosa, the Sybil Marston and other ships also were driven ashore and wrecked.

On three occasions, high tides caused by the January storms washed out the wharf. Each time it was rebuilt, and for ten years it was the only outlet for produce from the nearby farming district. Steamship companies charged exorbitant rates for freighting livestock and other farm products. The farmers formed an alliance and built Chute Landing, and so were able to market their produce independently. Later, gypsum, which had been discovered near the chute, was being marketed profitably, and the Pacific Steamship Company bought the landing.

Long years ago Santa Maria climbed the hill to level ground, leaving the wharf and landing chute behind. This move marked a step forward in the progress of the people, and was accompanied by significant changes. As time unfolded, undreamed of social, civic and economic changes took place.

CATTLE MEN moved the little schoolhouse to Schuman Canyon to use as a shelter for cowboys. Outmoded by good highways and modern methods of land transportation, bombarded by wind and wave, rotting and neglected, the wharf, the landing chute and all the houses standing nearby have crumbled to dust or been moved away.

Oldtimers love Santa Maria's old seaport because of cherished memories. Others love it because of the beauty of its surf, the roaring of the breakers and the grandeur of its rugged coastline, as well as for its early historic connections.

Many ships died on the rocks of the Santa Maria coast. This is one, the SS Santa Rosa, wrecked between Point Sal and Point Arguello July 7, 1911.

Engineered for Outdoor Comfort

By Dorothy Jewell

A CIRCULAR roof which seems suspended in space, a cantilevered barbecue brazier, and a brick fireplace mounted on two fat legs -all give this patio a futuristic look that is enchanting. Engineered for dining and lounging comfort, it is completely enclosed for privacy and is merged with the house by use of walls of glass that slide open.

The patio is part of the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Bay, 3247 Karen Ave. Lighting permits use at night as well as during the day.

On cool evenings a fire can be lighted to take off the chill. Evening when the patio isn't in use it creates an attractive view from inside as lighting installed under the ledge of a planter dramatically outlines tropical plantings.

By day, sunlight is filtered through a circular covering of reed matting. This roof consists of a board frame designed like an oversized wagon wheel. Constructed of 1x4-inch strips, the spokes are bolted together where they meet in the center and on the outer rim. This rim is a double thickness of 1x4s, also bolted to form the circular outer edge of the roof.

This roof appears to be floating overhead because there is no center support, instead it is held aloft by three pairs of slender pipes bolted to the roof rim and anchored in concrete off the edge of the paving where they go unnoticed among the plants.

The fireplace which stands off the paving, supported by two pipe legs, has a base of pre-cast concrete on which yellow firebricks are laid. The corrugated pipe chimney draws efficiently.

THE BRAZIER ONCE had conventional legs but these

Seeming to float free, this patio roof has unusual interest. Fireplace is two-legged, brazier is cantilevered.

Recipes With the Miss U Touch

Skillet shoulder chops Hawaiian add zest and novelty to menus. Can be served with rice and a green salad.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

A DIFFERENT note, one from far afield, will be our theme today. It was prompted, quite naturally, by all the lovely Miss Universe contestants.

The most beautiful girls from many lands have been sharing their gracious charms and talents with us this past week. And many have brought with them foods with strange sounding names and spicy flavors. They're exotic and exciting, yet economical, as well. Each is different, yet each is best.

Which brings to mind an around-the-world buffet. With, soup from the Philippines or Spain, and an entree from either Hawaii, China or Turkey, a vegetable from Holland and dessert from Central America. There are many others, of course, and from time-to-time throughout the year we'll take you on another tour to other lands. Today, we'll start with these:

Meat Soup (Picadillo) (The Philippines)

3 tbs. salad oil
3 cloves garlic, minced
4 onions, chopped
1½ lbs. beef, ground
3 tomatoes, coarsely chopped
4 potatoes, peeled and cubed
2 quarts water
1 cup stock or 1 cup consomme
1 tbs. salt
1 tsp. pepper

Heat the oil in a saucepan. Add the garlic and onions and saute for 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the beef and cook over high heat for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the tomatoes and potatoes and continue browning for an additional 5 minutes. Add the water, stock, salt and pepper. Reduce heat to medium and cook for 25 minutes. Correct seasoning. Serve hot.

Potaje de Garbanzos (Spanish Bean Soup)

¾ lb. Garbanzos
1 onion
1 beef bone
1 chorizo (Spanish sausage)
1 pinch saffron
1½ qts. water
½ lb. potatoes
4 oz. wh. bacon
1 ham bone
2-oz. lard
1 tbsp. salt

Soak garbanzos overnight with one teaspoon salt in sufficient water to cover beans. Before cooking, drain salted water from beans and put garbanzos, beef bone and ham bone in 1½ qts. water. Cook 45 minutes over slow fire. Fry bacon and finely chopped onion; then place in pot, adding potatoes, saffron and salt. When potatoes are done, remove from fire, add chorizo sliced thin. Serves four.

Skillet Shoulder Chops (Hawaiian)

6 pork shoulder chops, about ⅛-inch thick
salt and pepper
1 tablespoon fat
1 can (20 ounces) pineapple chunks
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon flour

Sprinkle pork chops with salt and pepper. Brown slowly in hot fat in skillet about 10 minutes on each side. Drain off fat. Drain pineapple; reserve. Combine pineapple syrup and water; measure ¾ cup of the liquid. Add about ¼ cup of the measured liquid to skillet. Cover and braise over low heat 50 minutes, adding more of the measured liquid as it cooks away. Remove chops; keep warm. Spoon off clear fat; return 2 tablespoons to skillet. Add flour; stir to a smooth paste. Add remaining pineapple-water mixture and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add chops to gravy; top with pineapple chunks. Cover and simmer 15 minutes longer. Yield: 6 servings.

Rumaki (China)

½ pound chicken livers
1 (8-ounce) can water chestnuts
½ pound bacon
Fat for frying

Drain water chestnuts; dry thoroughly between paper towels. Cut chicken livers in ¾-inch pieces. Cut chestnuts in half crosswise. Cut bacon slices in half crosswise. Place a chicken liver and a chestnut half on each piece of bacon. Roll up and fasten with toothpick. (Freeze if desired.) To cook: Heat fat in fryer to 375°F. Fry a few rolls at a time until golden brown about 1 minute. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot as an appetizer. Yield: 3 dozen Rumaki.

Ousen-Kebab (Turkey)

1¼ lbs. beef tenderloin cut 1¼" squares
½ lb. bacon, cut same size

Beef Stroganoff

2 lbs. top sirloin
4 cups chopped onion
1 carton Hampshire Sour Cream
1 lb. fresh mushrooms or 2 cans

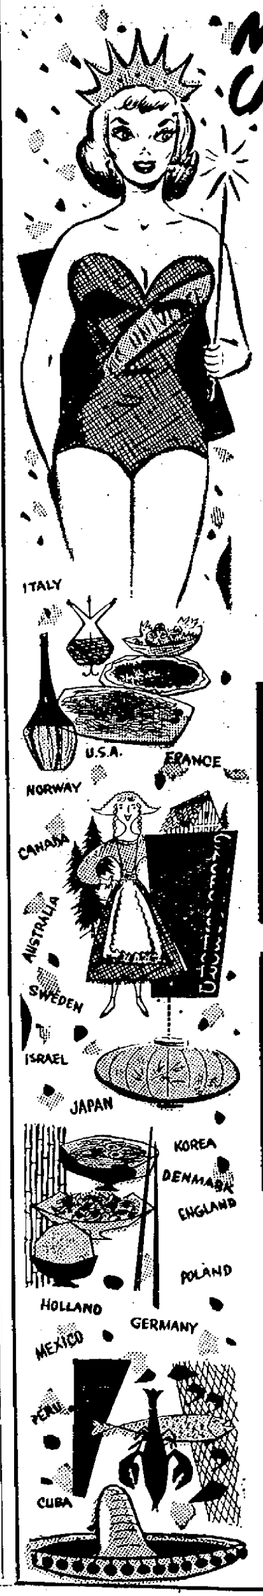

Saute onion in ⅛-lb. butter very slowly and only until transparent. Place meat, which has been cut into bite-sized pieces, in a paper sack of flour, salt and pepper and add to onions. Cook very slowly, turning occasionally until meat is well browned. To that mixture, add the mushrooms which have been sauted in ⅛-lb. butter. Stir in sour cream and cook very slowly for at least 45 minutes or until done. Serve piping hot.

SERVE WITH: Frozen cut green beans which have been cooked to just the crisp stage, a tossed salad, creamed baked potatoes, French bread sticks and your beverage.

She Looks Back 109 Years

Believed to be the oldest living Indian woman in America, Tatzumbie looks back upon 109 full years.

By Margaret Romer

TATZUMBIE, meaning Beautiful Star, is the name of the oldest known Indian woman in America.

Born in 1849, she celebrated her 109th birthday on Saturday. She was a papoose carried on her grandmother's back when the white settlers drove the peaceful Paiutes from their hogans and gardens and out of the Owens Valley that was their homeland. The child's mother had died in an accident only a short time before.

The Paiutes scattered and lived alone or in small groups in the Inyo Mountains, far from the white man. Tatzumbie's grandmother took her deep into mountain country and cared for her. For several years they wandered, always searching for food and a safe place to sleep.

THE FAITHFUL WOMAN finally located a good clear spring in Death Valley and set up a home under some sheltering rocks and planted a garden. There Tatzumbie grew to young womanhood alone with her grandmother. Once a year the older woman went on foot 50 miles to the nearest trading post for supplies. But grandmother feared the white man, so the girl had to remain at home. She learned to be self-reliant, to think, and to take care of herself.

After the passing of her grandmother, Tatzumbie set out alone on foot over the desert trail to the distant village where her father lived. After days of travel, she was almost famished from hunger and thirst. Crossing a white man's ranch, she found his watermelon patch. Here was both food and drink. Thumping the melons, she broke one open and was eating ravenously when the farmer came out and caught her. She tried to run away, but he grasped her by the arm and she could not escape. He led her to his wife — the first white woman she had ever seen.

THE COUPLE WAS kind to her, and there were three little children whom the Indian girl adored on sight. Kindness and understanding dispelled her fears. The farmer's wife took her into the house, made her welcome, bathed her, and dressed her in American clothes. Tatzumbie remained with the family, and learned to speak English and to do housework. She had never been inside a house before, and one terror remained for her — the stairway! At first she climbed it on her hands and knees for fear it would collapse under her weight!

During the next few years, Tatzumbie worked for several pioneer families, and learned to read and write. Then she became ill and was brought to Los Angeles and placed in a hospital. Recovering from her sickness, she remained to work out the cost of her care.

Always cheerful and full of fun, Tatzumbie was so successful in handling patients that the head doctor persuaded her to stay and train to be a nurse. This she did, and followed that profession for more than 30 years.

Meanwhile, she married twice, had five children, twice became widowed — and reared the children alone.

SHE HAD A KNACK for entertaining, and this talent was discovered by Robert E. Callahan who starred her in his series of educational films on Indian life and lore, produced for use in schools and churches. Motion picture producers frequently engaged her talents for Indian parts. She was featured in "Cimarron" and in "Laughing Boy."

Today, Tatzumbie lives in Los Angeles with her daughter. She is still erect and usually walks without a cane. Clear, brown, laughing eyes reveal a keen mind. She talks as well as a woman half her age — and she tells fascinating stories that reveal her beautiful philosophy evolved through 109 years of useful living.

Plant Shade First

In landscaping a new property, shade trees should be planted first, advises the National Arborist Assn.

The reason is a simple one. Shade trees take longer to mature and a few years headstart in planting shade trees may make the difference between a fairly large tree which will give some shade at least, and a small tree which gives little usable shade.

Most shade trees will grow a foot or more a year. On the other hand, plots seeded with grass in the fall will make a lawn the following spring. By planting the slower growing trees first a better overall landscaping effect in framing the house is obtained faster than by reversing the order. In selecting trees consult with a local arborist, or tree expert.

The Girl With Paris at Her Feet

Vivacious Leslie Caron has to rest sometime! She's playing "Gigi" in MGM version of Colette novel. Supporting cast also lists beauteous Eva Gabor.

THEATER-GOERS, music lovers and those who respond to the beauty and the mystery of Paris eagerly await "Gigi," new MGM musical romance that will open soon in Long Beach.

In CinemaScope and color, the picture based on the widely read novel by Colette stars Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier and Louis Jourdan, with Eva Gabor, Hermione Gingold, Jacques Bergerac and Isabel Jeans in co-starring roles.

Leslie Caron, who scored a hit in London in the stage version of the Colette novel, plays "Gigi," the impressionable young girl brought up in Paris at the turn of the century. Taught the "facts of life" by her grandmother and aunt, both of whom have lived rich and full lives without benefit of matrimony, Gigi blossoms from a gawky girl into a knowing woman with Paris at her feet.

GLAMOROUS Eva Gabor plays the role of Liane d'Exelmans, flame of the moment of Louis Jourdan, man about Paris, but who also has an affair with Jacques Bergerac, her ice skating instructor.

When the double romance is unearthed Liane commits "suicide." How? With an underdose of poison.

The role gives Miss Gabor's personality and talents ample opportunity, and she wears some of the most beautiful, feminine gowns of her career, designed by Cecil Beaton.

Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, hit composers of Broadway's "My Fair Lady," composed the songs for "Gigi."

THE LERNER-LOEWE songs include "Thank Heaven for Little Girls" and "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore," sung by Chevalier; "It's a Bore" and "She's Not Thinking of Me," by Jourdan; "Say a Prayer for Me Tonight" and "The Night They Invented Champagne," by Miss Caron; "The Parisians," a duet by Miss Caron and Jourdan; "I Remember It Well," by Chevalier and Hermione Gingold, and the title song, sung by Jourdan after he falls for Gigi.

Filmed largely on location in Paris, with three-time "Oscar" winner Joseph Ruttenberg behind the cameras, "Gigi" offers a backdrop of the world's most beautiful city, high lighted by scenes in the Bois de Boulogne, the Palais de Glace, Maxim's restaurant, the Tuileries and Place de L'Opera. High light sequences are the Masked Ball and the spectacular "Battle of Flowers."

Maurice Chevalier is also given starring role for MGM "Gigi" picturization.

Mystery of the First Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

IF, ON A visit to the San Diego zoo, you see the wild dogs, you may be inclined to be satisfied with the old theory that the dog is a progeny of the wolf. A number of scientists will be on your side, but a lot of them disapprove, among them Darwin who wrote, "A breed, like a dialect of a language, can hardly be said to have a distinct origin."

The whole picture is very confusing. Bones of various types of prehistoric dogs, some differing from anything we know today and also some that bear a close affinity to certain present-day varieties have been unearthed, and speculation has ever since mounted over what their presence really indicates. Evidence so clearly shows that a number of different kinds of dogs existed in early days. And certainly there are remarkably divergent appearances in today's dogs -- the short-faced Oriental dogs, the droopy-eyed bloodhound, the mastiffs, the Irish wolfhound, the fox-like dogs and others.

THESE FACTS would seem to point out that there never has been a common denominator among dogs. Yet the fact that man himself has created new breeds within a relatively few years might just be the evidence that at one time there was a progenitor of all dogs. The pieces of the puzzle have never fallen into place, and undoubtedly all research in the matter will remain in a pretty badly muddled state indefinitely.

One thing that science has proved is that dogs have associated with man thousands of years before the beginning of history, and, for the most of us, this is good enough.

There are some dogs, however, that still live in such a state of wildness that they are removed from the influence and association of mankind. The wild dog that most nearly approaches the domesticated type is the dingo of Australia. He is smaller and more slightly built than the wolf and not as strong. His tail is bushy and his heavy coat is yellowish or soiled-white in color. Often his muzzle is black. Some say he is a mixture of wolf, coyote, and hyena. Others claim there is no reason to believe he is related to the wolf in a closer degree than a German shepherd.

NATIVES have succeeded in taming the dingo for use in hunting, since the dog has a keen sense of smell. A few of these dogs have been shipped to various countries and apparently have proved valuable for herding sheep and cattle. However, the dingo is suspicious of strangers even at an early age, and so he is generally regarded as a rather unpredictable individual, not to be trusted too far.

Possibly the most ruthlessly destructive of the wild dogs is the Cape, or South African hunting-dog. This animal resembles the hyena and is about the size of a large greyhound. He has a short, pointed muzzle and unusually broad, egg-shaped ears.

Efforts have been made to exterminate this fearless dog because of his wanton killing of domestic animals. Since he is nonchalantly curious of man, he makes a fairly easy target for the gunner.

were removed so it could be permanently mounted in place. The one supporting leg is a pipe, set in the concrete paving at such an angle that the brazier appears to be cantilevered out over space. This pipe leg and the other pipes used here have been painted black.

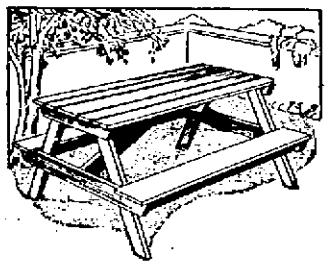

Landscaping enhances the beauty and comfort of this patio. A tree provides shade from late afternoon sun. Plantings of junipers and tropicals are confined to planters where they are easily cared for. A wooden ledge which borders the planting area along one side of the patio provides seating and a cover-up for flood lights attached under it.

Music Took Him 'Round the World

By Charles W. Crutcher

SHOW BUSINESS is a way of life for Gene Conklin, a genial fellow who plays a baritone saxophone and sings with the Long Beach Municipal Band.

His career began in the Franklin High School in Highland Park, Calif.

"They had the ROTC — and I had the choice of lugging a gun or studying music," explains Conklin. "I took music."

After he was graduated in 1921, he played and sang in small bands for three years. Daytimes he clerked in a Los Angeles music store, saturating himself with the music of Paul Whiteman, Herb Weidorf, Rudy Vallee and Marion Harris.

FOR VARIETY, he took a course at Chouinard Art Institute.

"But in a year I got the bad news. I never would make a commercial artist."

He landed his first big job with Earl Burtnett's orchestra, playing and singing in the Los Angeles Biltmore Hotel, recording Brunswick records. He appeared in MGM, United Artists and Warner Bros. pictures and on the Jack Carson radio show.

He appeared in "Patent Leather Kid," and "Sally, Irene and Mary." In the "band playing" scenes of "The Life of Sousa," he made believe he was blowing a clarinet to Philip Sousa's grand marches, which already had been recorded.

GENE CONKLIN and three other fellows sailed around the world on the President Monroe in 1926.

"We called ourselves the 'Dollar Four' because the boat was a Dollar Liner. Another reason was that we each made one dollar a day. We played at lunch, afternoon tea, dinner and for dancing until 11 p.m."

Conklin's first endurance road tour was when he played "one nighters" with Earl Burtnett's orchestra from Los Angeles to Chicago in 1932. Orchestra members drove their own cars.

His wife, Ruth, and their son Gene, Jr., 2½ months old, went along.

"We carried Junior in a basket. In hotels we put him to bed in bureau drawers.

"As soon as the last performance was over, my wife would pick me up in the car. We'd throw the instruments in the back seat, and be on our way to the next city."

ONCE WHEN CONKLIN, playing with the Freddy Martin band, arrived in New York, the American Legion was having a convention, and no hotel rooms were available.

"We searched for hours, found a Turkish bath, and the manager let us sleep in the women's section."

When the band reached Ontario, Canada, the entertainers ran into a peculiar situation. The laws of Canada allowed only a few American band and orchestra appearances each year and Spike Jones already had used up the quota.

"We rented a theater in Ontario, and put on a show. A quartet of band members, called 'The Martian Men' did a few numbers. There were a few piano offerings. I sang some songs, whistled 'Tea for Two' and for an encore did 'Nola' and played on the sax. We stretched the show to last and hour and a half. We had a large house.

"Freddy's band is a good one, with more melody than most jazz bands. Typical hotel music for people who like music and don't like to get their ear drums blasted.

"ROTC or music," says Gene Conklin. . . . "I took music."

"But when Freddy's band was playing near a cowboy orchestra the cowboy orchestra would get all of Freddy's business."

AFTER A DETROIT performance, Freddy told the band members: "We made a profit tonight of 50 cents." The band had played near a cowboy orchestra.

In 1937 Conklin made a memorable tour with Martin, heading for New York by chartered bus. "There were 16 of us in the orchestra. We did 60 nights in succession, without a night off and very little sleep."

How does he like playing in the Long Beach Band?

"Fine. It's wonderful to be home with my wife and kids . . . Anyway, I got tired traveling."

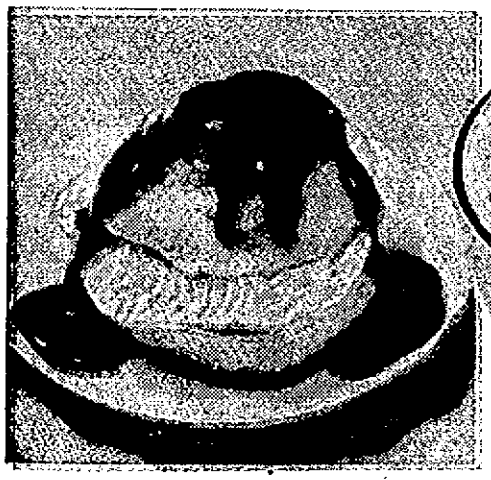

In scene from "Patent Leather Kid," starring Richard Barthelmess (seen at bass violin) and filmed in 1928, Conklin is second from right with a sax.

CAMERA ANGLES

Let's Go Shoot the Fun Zone!

By the Shutterbug

SHOULD YOU want a fun-filled photo project that can give you some exciting, off-beat pictures, try a day at the amusement park, state fair or traveling carnival . . . and come loaded with cameras, extra film and even a tripod. The setting is ideal for a full picture story in movies and in black-and-white or color stills.

If you have your own youngsters or family with you, you have your personal stars who will be featured in a variety of situations. If you're the lone wolf type of photographer, there are other advantages: You can pick and choose from a wide assortment of real life characters that are always found in amusement parks and whose sole purpose is to have fun. On such occasions, they don't mind having their pictures taken no matter how ludicrous they look. Good spirits are contagious and have a faculty of removing normal inhibitions.

Take the amusement park funny mirror for instance. Where else can you get a good looking girl to show how distorted she can appear? While she's chuckling, along with everybody else, you can take her picture.

KEEP IN MIND, however, the precautions in shooting all mirror pictures. The correct focus for the image in the mirror is the distance of the camera to the mirror plus the distance of the subject from the mirror. If shooting with a flash, the camera angle should be such that the flash doesn't hit the mirror and bounce back at the lens.

As an example of proper mirror focusing, suppose the camera position is five feet from a girl who is five feet from a mirror. Her image is 15 feet from the camera; the 10 feet distance of the camera from the miror plus the five feet distance of the girl from the mirror.

The problem, therefore, is to get everything sharp from five feet (the girl) to 15 feet (her image). The correct focus point is about one-third from the foreground or roughly eight feet. If there is enough light to close the lens down one or two stops, the resulting picture should be sharp throughout.

AN AMUSEMENT park is just the place to try some other shooting tricks that professionals use to catch fast action. You've seen pictures of an auto or horse race in which the speeding car or horse is caught in the peak of action while the background is nothing but a blur.

What the photographer did was to pivot his body and camera to follow the fast-moving object, keeping it centered in the viewfinder all the time, until he clicked the shutter. A speed of 1/100th or 1/200th will stop the action, depending on the distance of the subject from the camera. Closer distances require higher speed.

This principle can be applied to many moving attractions at an amusement park such as the roller coasters, the flying airplanes and even the carousel. A good vantage point for proper camera angle and enough light from the right direction will also help get successful pictures. Strong backlighting will add dramatic zing but requires more exposure . . . open the lens from one to two stops.

YOU CAN'T CALL IT a day on taking pictures even at night. Not with the high speed films available today, even in color, and with the grounds glowing with colorful neon signs and strings of lights.

You might try your own version of the whirling ferris wheel. Put your camera on a tripod and take some time exposures from different angles. Vary the exposures from about 30 seconds up to several minutes and keep a written record of which is which. You'll get some unusual patterns and a satisfying finish to a fun-filled day.

FILM GADGETS and movies were combined interests of Long Beach Cinema Club at its annual hamburger fry at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Everley, 4228 Rose Ave. An experimental roll of new Ektachrome movie film by George Cushman, and movies of the Hancock Oil Co. fire by Jack Loyd, were shown. The club meets every first and third Wednesdays at 8 p.m. at Houghton Park Clubhouse. Anyone interested in making better movies is invited.

Recipes With Miss U Touch

1 lb. fresh mushrooms, medium size
Salt and pepper to season
Cooked rice with saffron
Bay leaves

Clean mushrooms, if fresh. Arrange on four 12-inch skewers, as follows: mushroom, bacon, beef, bay leaf, until each skewer is about three-quarters filled. Sprinkle the filled skewers with salt and pepper. Pour over a little melted butter. Broil, allowing 7 to 10 minutes for each side. Turn once.

Serve with hot, dry saffron rice, over which is poured fresh tomato sauce.

Roodekool Met Appelen (Holland)

1 small head of red cabbage, shredded
2 tart apples, peeled, cored and sliced
4 tbsps. lemon juice.
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. brown sugar

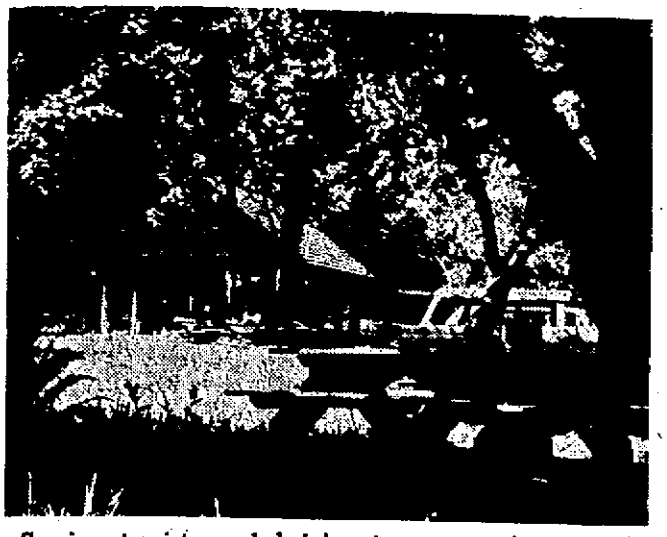

Boil together until tender, being careful not to let cabbage become too soft. Use very little water — only enough to start the cooking.

Heavenly Bananas (Maduro en Gloria) (Central America)

4 tbsps. butter
6 firm bananas
¼ pound cream cheese
4 tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup heavy cream

Melt the butter in a skillet. Peel the bananas and slice each one lengthwise. Brown quickly in the butter over high heat. Place half of the banana slices on the bottom of a buttered pie plate. Cream the cream cheese until very soft. Add the sugar light and smooth. Spread half of the mixture on the bananas. Place the remaining banana slices on top, then spread with the remainder of the cream cheese mixture. Pour the cream over the top. Bake in a 375° over for 20 minutes, or until almost all the cream is absorbed and the top is lightly browned. Do not allow all the cream to be absorbed, or the bananas will be too dry. Serve hot. If desired, some whipped cream may be served with the bananas.

Timber Farms Hang Out Welcome

Serving tourists and helping to prevent forest fires, free camp sites are provided by Northwest lumbermen.

By Ellen Saunders

IF YOU are planning a camping trip throughout the Pacific Northwest this summer you can keep your expenses down by making use of the free camp sites provided by one of the nation's largest industries.

Within the past few years many of the great lumber companies of the Northwest have built recreational parks on their tree farms (wooded areas) which are open to the public with no charge whatsoever for any of the facilities. The Weyerhauser Timber Co. alone has 22 of them scattered throughout Oregon and Washington. Picnic tables, restrooms, firewood and such cooking facilities as fireplaces and outdoor stoves are provided at each location. Most parks also have trout streams, a swimming hole, a playground for the children and a baseball field.

However, you don't have to be a camper to enjoy these parks. They are located so near the main highways that they offer ideal places for a picnic lunch and a bit of relaxation from driving.

WHY HAS INDUSTRY gone to the expense of building and maintaining these areas? For one thing, it has been found that these parks help to overcome the fire problem in the forests. By encouraging people to picnic and camp in supervised places the possibilities of fires in remote sections are greatly diminished.

A letter to the Weyerhauser Timber Co., Tacoma Bldg., Tacoma 1, Wash., will bring a complete list of the company's camp sites with detailed information concerning the facilities available in each one. Information regarding parks operated by other lumber companies can be obtained from the West Coast Lumbermen's Assn., 1410 S.W. Morrison, Portland, Ore.

Copenhagen 'Must'

A Copenhagen "must" is the "World Clock" that, among other things, tells time six different ways, show eclipses, the moon's phases, the position of the stars for the next 3,000 years and the orbits of the planets around the sun. Scandinavian Airlines System passengers will find the intricate timepiece in the city's Town Hall. It represents a lifetime of planning by Jens Olsen, Danish clockmaster and astronomer, who died in 1945 before it could be built. Danish craftsmen, working from his blueprints, spent 10 years putting it together.

"We will spend some time driving in Spain; but do not find much literature on it. . ."

BETTER pick up the Michelin Guide to Spain for one thing. This is like the invaluable Michelin restaurant and hotel guide for France. The ratings are in symbols easy to understand.

"Let's Go to Spain" by Frank Howell is good reading. If you can't get it here, you can call Howell and find out where to get it in Madrid. He's the TWA district manager there.

A few places I thought were great: Merida over by the Portuguese border is an old Roman town. The Roman theater they have uncovered is better than anything I saw in Italy.

The uncovered Roman town of Italica near Seville is worth visiting.

You have to see the Alhambra in Granada.

For relaxed reading at night: "The Oldest Confession" by Richard Condon. This is new. A thrillinger. Laid in Spain. I loved it.

"Your advice on two or three top places to dine in Paris and Rome would be appreciated for two people on their first trip. And what local specialties?"

FOR PARIS: I think you ought to go to Maxim's at least one night. Just for the plush. Or in the same bracket, Tour d'Argent. Where each pressed duck is numbered (and they give you little details like his last words).

A favorite of mine is Ramponneau at 21 Avenue Marceau.

And a very small intimate place, Auberge de La Truite at 30 Faubourg-St. Honore.

The most elegant place in Rome is the Hosteria dell'Orso and any cab driver knows it.

I also like Passetto's. And a hideaway garden restaurant is Romulo's in the Trastevere section.

The way to handle local specialties all over Europe: Menus are usually hand-written in blue ink, EXCEPT the specialties. Which are written in red.

"The best night club in Tokyo?"

THERE ARE supposed to be 5,000 night clubs. I think the most startling is Monte Carlo. What you want is the Wednesday and Saturday nights revue.

They bring in 40 strip tease Queens from all over Tokyo.

Peeking Inside a Utah Peak

By Al Krieg

MAN'S mechanical conveyances will bring you to within a quarter of a mile of Utah's Timpanogos cave, but from that point on Nature names the terms. You walk a mile and a half—up—to comply.

The cave — in Timpanogos Cave National Monument — is in the sharp north slope of 12,000-foot Mount Timpanogos that lies along the abrupt wall of Utah's Wasatch range. It is about 27 miles from Salt Lake City, and there's a 20-mile road around the peak threading through some of the state's best mountain scenery.

The National Park Service pamphlet distributed by Tom Walker, superintendent there, said the cave is reached by a "well graded trail." Just so; it is well graded—steeply. It also said it winds up American Fork canyon for a mile and a half, but it didn't say how far that could be when every step is up. From conveniently located benches for winded walkers we puffed and balefully watched school kids skip up and down the path. At the top, finally, we joined a group about to start through the cave.

TIMPANOGOS is actually three 50-million-year-old limestone caves connected by man-made tunnels. The first, Hansen Cave, is almost devoid of formations. An 85-foot arched tunnel leads from there into Middle Cave; basically a narrow, winding channel with a high, vaulted ceiling. There we got the first real glimpse of the fantastic formations peculiar to a mountain's innards.

Passages, stairs and grilled footways run from one area to the next, and the park service ranger shows the way, explaining how the soft-colored stalactites, stalagmites and delicate helictites were so laboriously formed, drop by drop, over the centuries.

Man-made walks and stairs permit visitors close look at formations made by nature in Timpanogos Cave, Utah.

Helictites, we learned, are the white-to-orange macaroni-like formations growing out of the ceiling. Fine, but it's the remembering of the up or down of stalactites and stalagmites that makes crossword puzzles annoying.

A 190-foot tunnel connects Middle Cave with Timpanogos Cave proper, the showpiece of the tour. Most of the formations bear imaginative names: Chocolate Falls, like a giant, drippy sundae on a hot day; Father Time's Jewel Box and Giant Comb, for example, but probably the most realistic of all is the Great Heart of Timpanogos. Red-lighted from behind, various degrees of opacity of the stone and the shape of the formation make it look remarkably like an immense laboratory model of a human heart.

OTHER SIGHTS include an underground lake, almost 7,000 feet above sea level, that disappears into inaccessible reaches of the cave.

In all, the trail through the caverns is about a half-mile long.

HOW TO Use Levels And Lines

1. DEAD LEVEL. When bubble in spirit level looks like this, work (horizontal or vertical) is level. Standard carpenter's level has six of these bubble vials—four for plumbing, two for level (horizontal).

2. TEST FOR ACCURACY. Set level on flat surface and shim one end until bubble is dead center. Then reverse ends. Bubble off now? If so, your level's not accurate.

3. PLUMB. Hold level like this and move work until bubbles in bottom vial and vial at the opposite end are centered. Plumb one side from each direction so work is vertical.

4. HORIZONTAL LEVEL. It's as simple as it looks. Put level on work and move work 'til bubble settles to level. Read only bubble in bottom vial. If your level has only one vial, turn it (vial) so curved side is up.

5. LINE LEVEL. For grades, hedges, walls, etc., you need a line level. To use it, stretch mason's cord taut between two points and hang level at center. Adjust cord to level.

6. PLUMB BOB. Where you can't use a level for vertical, suspend bob on cord, and wait 'til point comes to rest. Mark this point and cord suspension point; connect both points.

The 'Up 'n' Atom' Brothers

By Jack Lefler
Associated Press Writer

INGLEWOOD — TWO BROTHERS are stirring a mixture of science and magic into a fantastic business enterprise that could only be a product of the space age.

In five years they've made their boundless supply of ideas pay off in a business grossing $400,000 a year.

Robin Stevens, 30, a magician, and Carlile Stevens, 26, a physicist, are owners of Stevens Enterprises and an appropriately named subsidiary, Up 'n' Atoms Enterprises.

They operate out of a drab building jam-packed with electronics equipment, drawing boards and such gadgets as ray guns and death ray posts.

As Stevens Enterprises they design and manufacture science and science fiction gadgets and machines for motion pictures and industry. As Up 'n' Atoms Enterprises, they put on science shows for schools which this year will be seen by 1,750,000 students in 21 states.

EACH BROTHER is doing what comes naturally to him.

"Robin's always been a theatrical bug," says tall, handsome Carlile.

"The first thing Carlile did as a baby was to throw a light switch," says shorter, dynamic Robin.

Robin stuck to theatrics and got his degree in speech and drama at San Diego State College. Then he became a professional magician. Carlile received his bachelor of science degree at Stanford University.

Their business career started while Carlile was a undergraduate at Stanford and Robin was doing graduate work there.

"I built some weird-looking gadgets and set up a show," says Carlile. "With Robin's help we turned it into a play with a lot of hokum like mad professors making disintegrators."

During the Korean war, the brothers booked their show into West Coast military camps to entertain troops.

THE HIGH POINT came, Carlile says, shaking his head wonderingly, when one camp canceled a Rita Hayworth appearance in favor of the mad professors.

After getting out of Stanford, the boys put together a collection of gadgets and devices and toured California county fairs with their science show.

"Then we had to figure out what we could do to keep busy full time," says Robin. "We felt we could make money exhibiting our science show in schools. We got some bookings and found out there wasn't any competition to speak of."

The school show business multiplied like splitting atoms.

In the first year, the show appeared at 400 schools before 250,000 students. This year five shows will have an audience of 1,750,000 in 2,250 schools. Next year eight shows are scheduled to be seen by three million students in 4,000 schools.

THE BROTHERS FEEL these shows are playing an important part in interesting junior and senior high school students in studying science.

"Many times after the shows," says Carlile, "children come up to our director and say they just didn't realize that science was so interesting. Why, one girl told us: 'If I'd known science was like that I wouldn't be taking home economics'."

The Up 'n' Atoms business is terrific, the brothers say, but it isn't a moneymaker. The special effects firm is having to make up the losses.

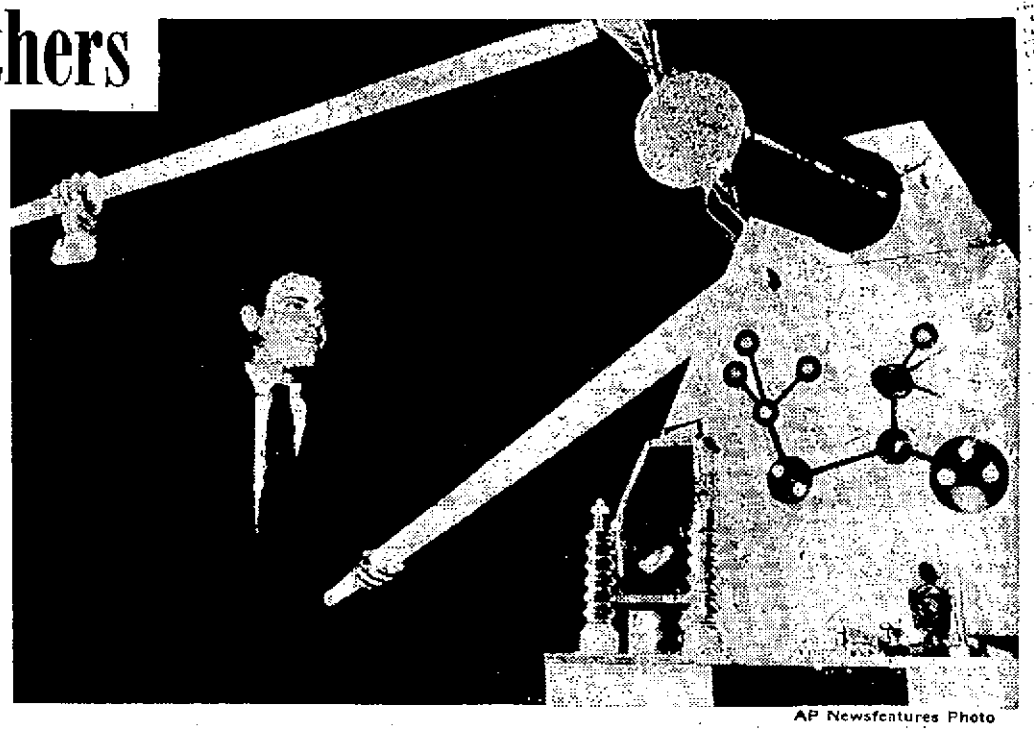

The reason, they explain, is that schools don't have much money to spend on assembly programs.

CARLILE AND the firm's educational coordinator, C. H. Rodger Over, appeared recently before a House education subcommittee in Washington to propose partial government subsidization to enable continuance of the program without loss.

Wading through their cluttered plant, the brothers explain their rapid business rise:

"A lot of Carlile's science rubbed off on me," says Robin.

"And a lot of Robin's magic rubbed off on me," adds Carlile.

GARDENS

Saxifrage Yields Winter Pink

By Joe Littlefield

They call it "Bergenia" now, but saxifrage continues to be an attractive winter bloomer of many garden uses.

VALUABLE as a winter bloomer, saxifrage — now reclassified as Bergenia — has many uses in landscaping and is not too particular about location. It is one of a group of garden favorites that should be divided every three years or so. Iris and agapanthus are two others that need this latter attention.

There are two pink varieties of bergenia, the cordifolia, and crassifolia. Sometimes they are misnamed. Cordifolia variety has clusters of rose pink flowers. The main flower stalks curve downward causing some of the flowers to be obscured by the large leaves.

Crassifolia variety flower stalks are stiff, and bloom earlier in the winter. The color of the flowers may vary somewhat, rose toning to lilac or light purple.

BOTH VARIETIES are "toughies." We've seen some growing as edging plants bordering a cement sidewalk and a dawn. They looked fairly good growing along a driveway. In both instances, plants grew in full sun. They will grow in full shade but half sun and half shade perhaps is best. However, they will tolerate sunny exposures and a considerable amount of cold weather, as well. They'll do well as specimen pot plants, too, for patio or porch. Plant them as edging plants bordering a rose bed or flower bed and in front of shrubs.

However, if the plants are not divided the old growth takes away some of the substance from the new and tends to hold back development and best blooms. If clumps have developed and a woodiness is apparent, if bergenia has not been worked over for the past three years, now is the time to dig them up. Shake off the soil and cut off the old, woody parts. Work some sludge type fertilizer into the soil where plants grew. Replant the younger portions approximately a foot apart. Keep them moist for a week or so. Then water normally.

YOU'RE MISSING lots of winter color from Bergenias, if you don't have any. They're available in tin can containers at your local nursery. plant them out, and you'll have delightful masses of pink-and-rose colored flowers from winter on into spring.

Agapanthus (Lily-of-the-Nile) bloom much better where they get some sun, than in full shade.

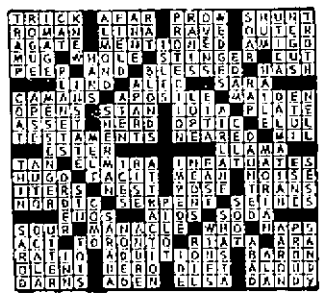

When agapanthus clumps become three years old or older, its a good idea to dig them up, divide and replant. But, before you replant the new clumps, be sure to work some sludge type organic fertilizer into the soil.

ALONG ABOUT NOW is a good time to rework the old iris clumps too. Clumps three years old or older, should be dug up, divided and new plants reset. Cut the leaves back to within six inches of the base. In the case of iris, work some bulb food into the soil before replanting.

The thick, horizontal part of the iris is the rhizome. Roots grow down from the underside of this portion. Part of the top rhizome surface should show, when younger growths are replanted.

A Surprise in Every Packet

By Bob Gilmore

Zinnias are among flowers quickly grown from seeds.

THIS is the time of year when seeds germinate rapidly, and seedlings seem to break into flower almost overnight. Certainly the most economical, and frequently the quickest method of growing a garden is to plant seeds of annual plants. The results will surprise you—this is really an adventure in gardening.

What makes growing flowers from seeds such an interesting pastime is that frequently there is a surprise in every packet. This is especially true of mixed packets, in which there may be dozens of shades that you have never seen before. Seedsmen report that the modern trend in growing flowers from seeds is to start the mixed colors rather than separate shades, so start now on your gardening adventure.

ANNUALS ARE PLANTS that complete their life cycle in a single growing season. This means their growth is swift, and you will get flowers in a hurry. Some annuals, such as alyssum and Virginia stocks, seem to burst into bloom almost over night. Growing a garden by sowing annuals is certainly the easiest and least expensive way of gardening.

The most important factor is to use seeds that have a high viability. Patronize reliable dealers, as seeds do lose their viability over a period of years.

Annuals that can be seeded now include: amaranthus, ageratum, alyssum, aster, bachelor's button, balsam, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, carnation, centaurea, godetia, gypsophila, hollyhock, larkspur, linaria, linum, lobelia, lupin, marigold, moonflower, morning glory, nasturtium, nicotiana, phlox, portulaca, salpiglossis, scabiosa, sweet pea, verbena and zinnia.

When California was a land of citrus groves, very particular attention was paid to the exact and proper time to spray the trees. Scale can be killed most effectively while hatching, and black scale, the greatest enemy to citrus trees, hatches in the warm weather. Constant inspection of the groves was made weekly to determine the time when the hatching or "migration" period of black scale was at its peak.

In your back-yard garden, it is almost impossible to be so completely accurate in your timing but you can definitely plan to spray your citrus trees during the summer months. Don't select a hot day when the temperature is in the 90s. Either choose a cool early morning or late afternoon and then spray thoroughly with an oil emulsion and you will afford your oranges, lemons and grapefruit the best possible protection from unsightly scale as well as spider and other enemies.

Part of the huge Flight of the Snowbirds in past competition. They'll sail again today at Newport Harbor.

BOAT TALK

Snowbirds Fly Again

By Bob Ruskauff

IF YOU ARE disinterested in an activity which interests youngsters, aged anywhere from 7 to 77, spare yourself this column. It concerns the 19th annual Flight of the Snowbirds sailing race on Newport Bay this afternoon.

The start will involve (let's guess) 164 little 12-foot sailboats, breaking by one the record made last year of 163 boats, which were led by Dick Ward in No. 457 (one of the newer "birds") in a six-mile race.

The start will be at 1:30 p.m. from that piece of historic property known as the Balboa Pavilion, so it is doubtful that more than half of the youngsters will have even had lunch before the conflict.

FLUTTERING pre-contest stomachs, y'know. Also fluttering sails, unless it's like last year, when boisterous westerly winds prevented 46 of the entries from finishing, mostly because of swamping, capsizing or disqualification.

But, however regarded, the event, which was once just a flutter in the mind of a visionary man, is now as well-established as the seasonal argosies of Canadian geese.

The Flight of the Snowbirds is a symbol for young America.

Despite the oldsters who race in it, which they do (and are wanted), it's primarily an event for pre-teen and teen youngsters.

IT ALL CAME ABOUT via the efforts of two grand people, now deceased, but whose memories will be long enshrined — Jim Webster and Harry Welch.

Jim, whose sons, Tom and Robb, became and remain top-notch sailors, conceived the Snowbirds as a class for youngsters on Newport Bay in 1922. A nucleus of three of the little boats was built. The class grew.

In 1932, when Los Angeles was host to the Tenth Olympiad, the Snowbirds, with a modified rig, were chosen to be the monotype (one-man) boat for yacht racing of the Olympics. The winner was Jaques LeBrun of Paris, France, nephew of then French President LeBrun.

THE OLYMPICS added to Snowbird luster.

And so it came about that Harry Welch, the progressive secretary of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, dreamed up the Snowbird Flight.

All of the several area yacht clubs pitched in to help conduct the event. A splendid perpetual trophy was posted. The Sunday nearest Aug. 1 was fixed as a perpetual date for the Master Calendar.

The rest is history.

The first Flight of the Snowbirds drew 52 entries. Each year the armada increased.

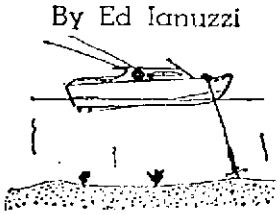

Today, of its kind, it is the greatest event in yachting.

Today, if so minded, drop down and see 'em fly.

BOAT HOOKS: In addition to the Flight of Snowbirds this afternoon at Newport, the boat vista includes, National Skimmer class championships on Mission Bay, with a strong local challenge; United Stock Runabout Assn. 100-mile ocean race off Pacific Landing, 8 a.m.; Mapes Cup meet for Unlimited Hydroplanes, Lake Tahoe.

JACK BASS
Picks 'Em Carefully

ABOUT THE only things lacking at Jack's Corsican Room, 5430 E. 2nd St., Naples, are small, dignified signs over the doors stating:

"THROUGH THESE PORTALS PASS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL STEAKS IN THE WORLD."

Everything else is there—a handsome dining room with deep, comfortable booths, impeccable service by red-jacketed waiters and remarkable entertainment by lyric pianist Frank Day.

Should owners Jack and Rose Bass some day erect such signs, they definitely wouldn't be stretching the truth. The Corsican Room's steaks are indeed things of beauty—beautifully shaped, beautifully charcoal-broiled by Jack himself and beautifully tender.

* * * *

THERE'S A VERY simple explanation for their quality. Regularly, Jack takes time off from his busy duties at the restaurant and visits his beef wholesalers, spending long intervals choosing the exact prime cuts he wants. The cuts are then tagged and aged at the wholesalers for six weeks at a constant 32 degrees in refrigerated rooms which also carefully control the humidity. The steaks are so perfect when they reach the table that many a gourmet patron has been known to go hungry for half a day beforehand so he can more thoroughly enjoy them.

The steaks, of course, are very large, weighing a pound or more each, and they are served on Jack's scrumptious dinner which includes soup du jour (always outstanding), large chilled salad with choice of dressings, huge baked potatoes with cheese sauce or melted butter, beverage and ice cream or sherbet for dessert. The prices, for such quality, are quite reasonable: filet mignon, $4; New York cut, $4.25, and 18-ounce top sirloin, $3.95.

In addition, Jack features such other splendid items as pound-and-a-half cuts of the tenderest prime rib known to man, whole baby lobster, sugar-cured ham, pan fried chicken, trout, shrimp and Triangle Tip a la Jack. (The latter, cooked-in-wine item is only $1.95 on the big dinner.)

The boom in Confederate money....

Articles by Lillian Roth, President Rhee of Korea and Lauritz Melchior

Why women wear those crazy clothes see page 11

REMEDALED AND BEAMING, the author poses (r.) with his "Kleinchen" on their 25th wedding anniversary. The cartoon (above) by musician Xavier Cugat commemorates the Melchiors' unusual meeting.

I'll always remember...

An angel in the trees

by LAURITZ MELCHIOR

Frankly, I had no choice in the matter. My wife was sent to me straight from heaven. That's the truth.

The day it happened I certainly wasn't prepared for an angel's visit. First of all, I had no money. Singing in my native Copenhagen, I had had small success. I already was 34 and had spent many years learning to be a baritone. Then I was told I was no baritone at all, but might make the grade as a tenor.

To try to be a tenor I had quit my job at the Royal Opera and begun studying all over again in Germany. A friend had loaned me his house in Munich.

So there I was sitting in the garden, reading a score and feeling rather low, when I first saw my wife — in the sky! She looked more like a man from Mars than an angel. She wore goggles, a helmet, heavy pants and jacket, enormous boots. She had parachuted from a plane, and a strong wind had blown her off course. Now she landed directly over my head in the top branches of a tree.

It didn't take me long, after I got her untangled, to discover that she was a very beautiful girl. We had dinner in the garden that evening. Where I am large— 6' 3½", well over 200 pounds — she was (and is) small — 5' 1" and 107. Because of her size she was called Kleinchen (Little One).

And she was famous. A movie star, she was known as Germany's Mary Pickford. She always insisted on doing her own stunts in films. That's how she came to be bailing out of the plane.

Six months later we were married. She gave up her career immediately and began managing mine. Things improved right away. Soon I came to America to sing at the Metropolitan Opera. At the same time Kleinchen refused a $3,000-a-week Hollywood contract so she could remain with me.

Now it's 30 years later. In that time she has been everything: wife, business manager, hostess, soother of ruffled feelings, amusing companion, critic, even stage prompter. In my thousands of performances all over the world she has missed exactly two.

Kleinchen has done everything but sing for me. So it's true. She is an angel. And I had no choice.

On Parade

Eighteen months ago, PARADE medical editor, Robert P. Goldman, was "busting out all over." He weighed 199 and was unhappy about it.

After weeks of wrestling with his will power, he sat down one day and decided to do something about all that "rubber" around his middle.

As the photo on page 8 shows, he was successful. He lost 26 pounds — without dieting. You can shed pounds, too, by following Bob's medically-approved advice.

"When the first few pounds come off and your clothes sag just a bit, you feel good," says Bob. "Then your friends start asking questions. They want the 'secret formula.'

"But the best moment of all comes when someone says (as a PARADE colleague did last week): 'You were never really fat, were you? I just can't picture you as being puffy.'

"That's when you know it's all worth the effort," Bob maintains.

Movie fan Mrs. M. J. O'Leary of Bay City, Mich., writes about the article, (June 1) on Hollywood's new "romantic team," Kim Novak and Jimmy Stewart. Says she:

"I must admit I was more than a little amused at Lloyd Shearer's article on Kim and Jim. It seemed difficult to imagine a more unlikely pair. Out of curiosity I went to see their movie. Now I'm happily looking forward to their next film. Thanks to you for arousing my interest."

More and better education, PARADE believes, is vital to the nation. During the past year this belief took form in no less than 16 articles. Now the articles have won a 1958 School Bell Award, sponsored by eight important national educational groups.

Is this the old man of the sea?

As though stamped out by a giant cookie-cutter, the silhouette above strides behind an oil-company supply boat speeding across the Gulf of Mexico from one offshore drilling platform to another. If you tilt the page back and view the photo at a slight angle, the resemblance to a giant, sombrero'd cowboy, arms upraised and legs widespread, becomes even more striking. It's all accidental, of course. The boat's wake just happened to take this form, and an alert photographer just happened to be present. But by snapping what he saw, he produced visual proof that nature, on occasion, does imitate art. ■

I LOST 26 POUNDS

THAT'S 26 POUNDS of books being held by writer Goldman. The equivalent formerly was around his middle.

You can shed weight, too

I LOST 26 POUNDS without dieting. That's a fact. A year ago I weighed 199 pounds. Today I tip the scales at 173. I did it without following a formal diet, without pills, calorie counters; "miracle" foods or exercise machines.

It wasn't easy, but it wasn't terribly tough, either. I didn't feel persecuted. I didn't suffer.

In any case, the results were worth it. I went from a size 44 suit to a 41, from a size 16 (neck) shirt to a 15. My old trousers have been taken in 2 to 3 inches — and they're still big on me. Here's how I did it.

Soon-to-be-published medical studies show that the three keys to weight loss are: 1) motivation; 2) rapport with doctor; 3) the food you eat.

What you actually eat is less important than the other two factors. The trouble with most dieting today is that it stresses food intake to the detriment or exclusion of the more important factors.

What do I mean by motivation — perhaps the most underplayed aspect of weight loss?

Motivation simply means that you must have strong and compelling reasons to lose weight — more than just wanting to fit into last year's suit.

My motivation is easy to explain. After 13 years as a science and medical writer, I am convinced that overweight puts you much closer to heart trouble, diabetes, stomach disorders and a host of other ailments. Studies bear out that belief.

Your Goal Comes First

Of course, weight loss does not buy immunity from disease. It does, however, decrease the chances and helps you (in terms of shorter recovery periods) if disease strikes. That's my motivation.

Other strong motives usually relate to physical discomfort resulting from obesity, fear of social isolation, and fear of losing one's spouse.

The latter two fears are common among women. The fat teen-ager or young adult can be motivated by a fear of being "left behind" — that is, of failing to have a normal courtship and marriage. Or, once married, the wife may feel that her obesity makes her unattractive to her husband and thus unloved.

Her extra pounds are a threat to happiness or security.

Thus, if your desire to shed pounds is strong enough, you will not balk at giving up this or that food. The foods themselves will become less important to you than your goal.

The second factor in successful weight loss is rapport with the doctor — or willingness to follow orders.

Weight loss should be supervised by a doctor because you can harm yourself by reckless dieting. You can invite disaster by not eating the right things — or eating them in the wrong quantities.

The final factor in lopping off poundage is food. With good motivation and rapport, what you actually eat doesn't loom quite so ominously. You do not feel by following the painless 10-step program offered here

deprived. You are willing to act to shed weight.

Where do you go from there? Here's what I did. I said to my doctor, "I want to get down to around 175 pounds." He said, "Fine. It'll take time and effort. I hope you understand why you should do it."

We proceeded to work out a weight loss program. Here it is — in 10 easy-to-digest steps:

1) I tapered off in the fattening food department. I didn't stop overnight. From week to week I cut down. To illustrate: I didn't (and still don't) exclude butter from my daily food intake. I simply stopped eating butter (one pat) at one meal per day. Thus, I saved 80 calories per day. Over a week that adds up to 560 calories, over a year to 30,000 calories. At 3,500 calories to the pound, I kept a potential 8½ pounds off my physique. The same simple arithmetic applies to a slice of bread at one meal (60 calories), cream in coffee (60-90 calories), pie at one meal (300-560 calories) and other fatteners.

The Energy You Use

2) I stopped eating "fat" between meals. Sure, that's easy to say and tough to do. But remember the motivation? To assuage between-meal hunger pangs, I drank or ate non-fattening foods — citrus juices, carrots, celery, and the like.

3) I set up a "food substitution" plan with my doctor's help. I substituted fruits for peanuts and pretzels, carrots, celery and other vegetables for fatty between-meal nibbles. In front of TV, I eat grapes, an orange or an apple. They contain some calories, but far fewer than usual TV snacks, such as potato chips.

4) I started eating one-slice-of-bread sandwiches. This turns you into quite a juggler if the sandwich contains foods that may slip off, but it's worth it.

5) I abide by standing rules for certain foods. I never have potatoes more than once a day. I never have more than one potato at a meal. At cocktail parties I never have more than two of those creamy tidbits. If there's plain celery or boiled shrimp on the tray, I have those instead.

6) I make it a rule to cut off all visible fat on meat. This doesn't mean I've eliminated bacon, ham, pork or other fatty meats from my diet. I simply lean on the leaner cuts.

7) When I'm invited to dinner, I play down foods which add inches to the waist. How to do this without alienating the hostess? If she is understanding, she'll accept your effort to reduce. You needn't harp on it. But be firm.

8) Then there's the "quantity switch." Obviously if overweight is the result of too much intake compared to energy output (most doctors agree it is), you must cut down on total intake. In my case, this meant decreased portions. Instead of three pieces of anything, I have one and a half.

9) I have a wife who can make low-calorie meals look and taste interesting. My wife happens to be an extremely creative person who likes to cook and to eat. But she goes along with my weight control program 100 per cent. Result: she goes easy on the calories (with lots of salads, tasty fish, seafood, fruit and meat dishes), and is long on encouragement.

10) There is one more big consideration. You'll recall that overweight usually results from over-intake in comparison to energy output. This was put in focus for me by Dr. Herbert Pollack, chairman of the Nutrition Committee, American Heart Association.

He told me: if you walk a mile a day, that utilizes about 75 calories. Do it three times a week (as I did and still do) and you burn off 225 calories. That adds up to 11,700 per year — or three-plus potential pounds. If you simply stand (without moving about) one hour a day in which you ordinarily would have sat, you knock off about 60 more calories. Multiply that by five (per week), and that's another four-plus pounds over the year.

Of course, I was helped in the energy expenditure department. About 10 months ago, we had our first child. As you know, with a new baby, you find yourself moving about more and more to do chores.

The Naive Diets

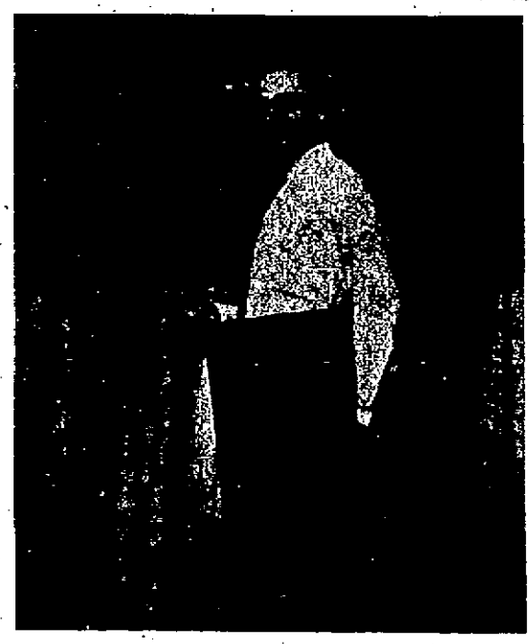

Such, in brief, is my weight-loss program. I took off about a pound a week for the first six months and I've maintained my weight ever since.

Nowadays, when I run into old friends, they do a double-take. "C'mon, tell me," they say, "it's a new pill, isn't it?" Or, "Boy, you must be starving yourself." Or, "You're on some new test diet, aren't you?" Obviously, the answer is "no" to all these remarks.

It also should be obvious that I haven't been wearing blinkers while losing pounds. I've learned something about calories and the nutritional values of foods.

But the facts behind my year-long weight-loss success are not mysterious. They're not out of reach. You can use them to shed pounds just as I have.

Between 80 and 90 per cent of people who try to lose weight fail, over an appreciable period, no matter what the diet. They fail because they approach the problem incorrectly. I feel I have learned what it really takes to lose weight.

THREE INCHES or so have rolled off his waist since the spring of 1957. Before that, these trousers were too tight.

Let me emphasize a few points:

1) Actually, I exclude very few foods from my daily eating. One of my typical business luncheons includes soup, a chef's salad (easy on the dressing), a roll and butter and coffee. Dinner will be: a half grapefruit, small salad, meat course (beef, liver, veal, lamb, or poultry), a cooked vegetable or two, coffee. Late evening snack: an apple or other fruit.

2) I have not given up calorie-jammed drinks. I space them better than before and sometimes substitute fruit juice.

3) In learning the nutritional values of food, I have re-angled my eating — a real necessity in keeping weight off. In other words, I watch what I eat all the time. If I fall off the calorie wagon at lunch, I make up for it at dinner.

4) I use a bathroom scale regularly to keep an eagle eye on my weight. Vigilance is important.

5) I'm convinced that nine-day, two-week or one-month "crash diets" are futile and naive. What do you eat after the nine days or two weeks? Also the "one-food diets" (eat only grapes, lettuce, steak) seem worthless to me. They take the joy and expectation out of eating. Is it any wonder that dieters find them so wearing? All these diets fail to provide the necessary lifetime reorientation in eating.

Of course, I still have a job to do — keeping those pounds off. That means careful eating in the future.

I must admit, however, that I'm a little cocky about my success in losing weight. I've been thinking. My doctor says I can safely drop five more pounds.

Maybe I'll do it in the weeks ahead. You don't feel much like eating on sticky days anyhow. ■

EXPERTS TELL WHY...

Women will wear ANYTHING

by LLOYD SHEARER

Parade West Coast correspondent

There are times when women's dresses look too grotesque and outlandish to be true. But extreme examples of today's chemise, bubble, trapeze and balloon (see cover) actually are being worn by otherwise rational-looking ladies. The question is: Why?

A recent PARADE poll (April 27) intimated that women do not dress to please men. If this is so, why are they charmed by the bizarre? Why, in effect, will women wear "anything"?

For the answer, PARADE consulted top designers here and abroad. The Europeans, disagreeing with the Americans, claim that women — far from wearing "anything" — choose clothes with great discrimination. Hubert de Givenchy, who designs clothes for Audrey Hepburn, says: "The chemise and relaxed sheath do so much for a woman's leg line." Says Guy Laroche, another leading French designer: "A woman's hips and legs are really her most appealing features. Today's designs emphasize them."

American designers, however, with no need to apologize for the Paris creations, believe women will wear anything and for a variety of reasons.

Explains Edith Head, dress designer for Paramount Pictures and winner of five Academy Awards: "When it comes to fashion, a woman is objective about everyone but herself. If something is new, she'll wear it. Women by nature are experimenters. They have fashion-courage — in contrast to men, who are fashion cowards."

Helen Rose, who designs clothes for Elizabeth Taylor and Lauren Bacall, says: "Women will wear anything — but not for long. They want to appear chic, and right now they are sacrificing womanhood for chic. Sooner or later they are going to realize how silly they are, spending so much money to get their bodies in shape, only to hide inside these awful new styles."

PARIS DESIGNER Guy Laroche (seated) shows how ruffle shifts attention from face to legs.

'A chemise gives me a great big psychological lift'

That American women are exceedingly gullible is the belief of Charles LeMaire, who used to design clothes for Florenz Ziegfeld's famous Broadway shows and now does the same for 20th-Century Fox. Says LeMaire: "Our women are slaves to fads. They're quick to adopt publicity gimmicks as style before they've been accepted as fashion."

Sold Down the River

Ruth Albert, one of California's most progressive designers, believes that women who fall for "freak fashions" just don't have the courage to stand alone, even though the "big sell" is "selling them right down the river.

"The new silhouettes," she maintains, "can be very exciting when modified, but to date, they've been interpreted by designers who apparently dislike women. The more grotesque and less feminine they can make them, the more heroic they become to each other. Unfortunately, most women are naive and cannot see that they are being made dupes in a plot against womankind."

What does it all add up to? Apparently, that U.S. women are gullible, aimless and uneducated in the ways of fashion. They suffer from chronic uncertainty and will follow any fashion trend, no matter how ridiculous, so long as it is originated abroad and given "the big sell."

Women themselves suspect this. Why then do they pursue the "latest clothes" with avid consistency year after year?

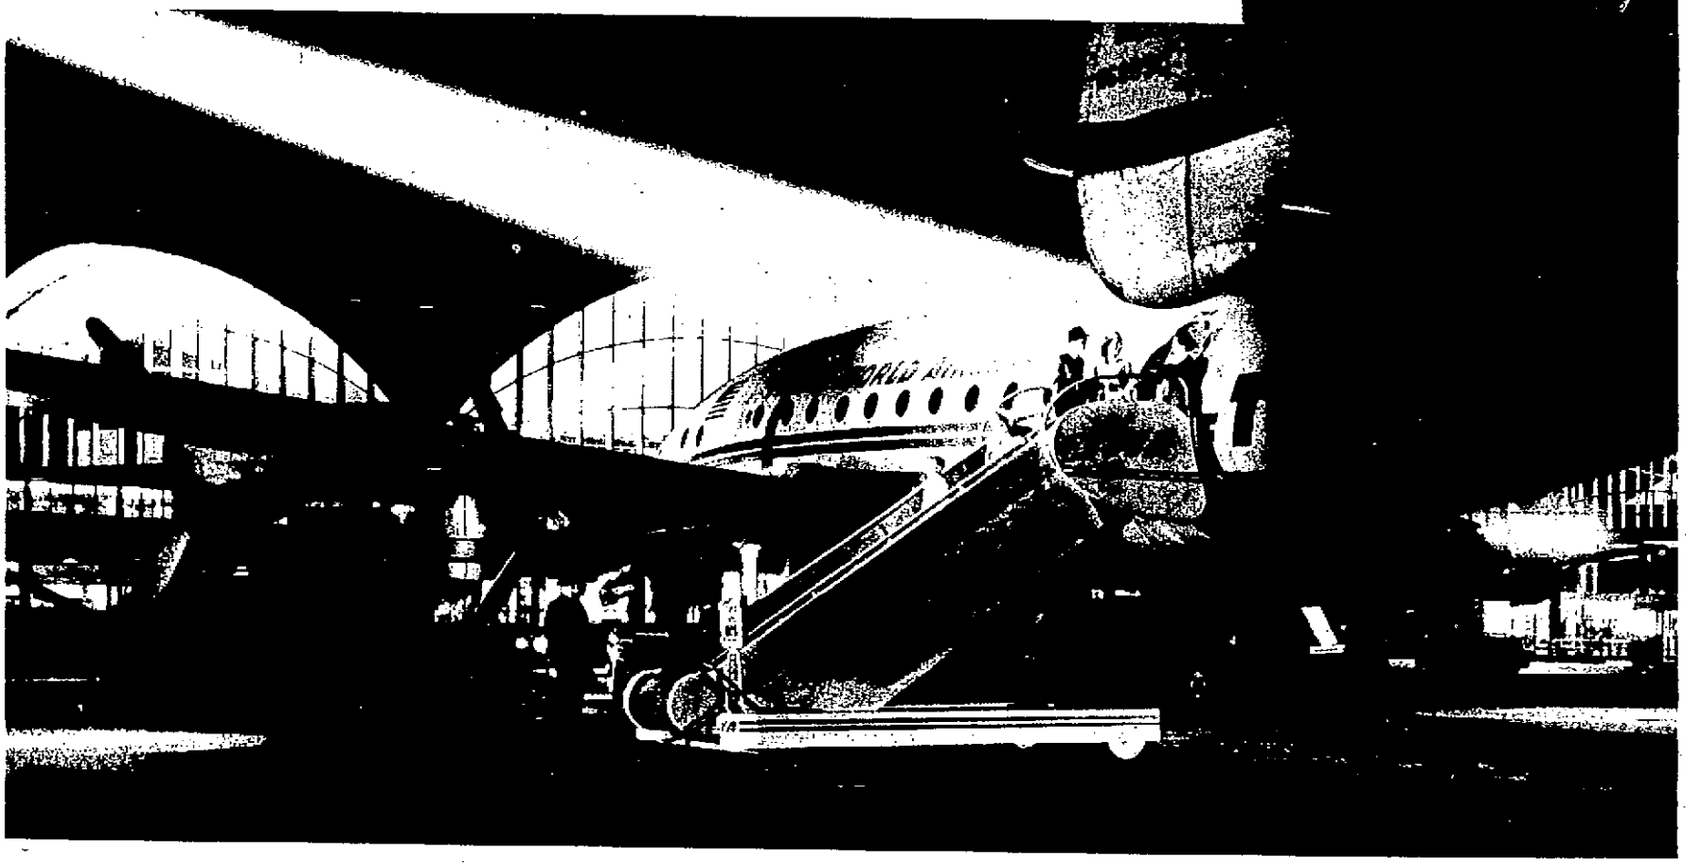

Says Dr. Martin Grotjahn, professor of clinical psychiatry at the University of California: "In contrast to men, who usually like looking backward, women are in love with the future. They are always looking for the frontier, the new experience, the new baby, the new dress."

Says Mrs. Ella Echard, a Miami housewife: "I bought a chemise-type dress because psychologically it gave me a great big lift. That's why women buy clothes. We're always afraid of being left behind. A new dress, no matter how crazy it may look, gives us the feeling that life isn't passing us by."

So long as women are women, no amount of male logic will be able to prevent their susceptibility to such fads as the wasp waist, the bustle, bobble skirts and, of course, today's sacks — just so long as all of these are offered under the name: high fashion. In short, women are suckers for anything — if it's absolutely new. ■

War orphans remain a Korean problem. Here President Rhee and his wife (r.) are seen visiting a group of them.

We're still fighting in Korea

Five years after the truce, President Rhee reports to Parade readers

by SYNGMAN RHEE
President, The Republic of Korea

To the outside world, the war in Korea may have ended five years ago, on July 27, 1953, when the truce was signed. For us the war still goes on.

The northern half of our nation remains under the oppression of the foreign Communist invaders. The Red Chinese speak of an "intention" to withdraw a few miles to the northern shore of the Yalu River. They say nothing of the hundreds of thousands of Communist Chinese laborers, farmers, miners and technicians who have dispossessed our own northern people from homes and jobs. These, they expect, will remain — with the support of the puppet regime in Pyongyang and the Chinese Red army.

And the depredations of the invaders continue against us in the south. One day a Korean commercial airplane flying from Pusan to Seoul is hijacked by Communist agents. Another day a military plane, on reconnaissance near the demilitarized zone, is shot down.

The Red Build-up

Repeatedly our fishermen off the coasts are threatened by Communist gunboats. Meanwhile, the military force of the north has been built up — in absolute violation of the armistice terms — by over 850 fighting planes and by the newest weapons of war, including guided missiles and atomic cannon.

Militarily, our position remains precarious. We must maintain a standing army of 700,000 men for self-defense. The great body of allied troops that once stood by our side has been largely withdrawn. An unannounced attack is a constant possibility.

Economically, our nation is handicapped much as an individual would be if one arm and one leg were tethered to an iron stake. We are cut off from the enormous hydroelectric-power installations of the Yalu River, which supply abundant power that should be used to run our factories and to manufacture the fertilizer needed for our agricultural lands. We have lost the use of the iron and coal and gold and timber resources of our northern provinces. Hundreds of thousands of our people were impoverished by the seizure of their properties in the north. Our economy is further strained by the 3 million refugees from Communism whom we must support.

Nevertheless, I remain firm in my faith that in my own lifetime I shall see all Korea once again united and independent under our own democratic government.

The basis for this faith is the great, hopeful fact that the free world seems to have fully awakened at last to the awful danger posed by the Communist conspiracy of conquest. We have passed through and beyond the years when many voices were raised to advocate appeasement.

Meanwhile, the Communist position is far from safe. To the aroused antagonism of the entire outside world is now added the growing rebelliousness of their satellites and their own people. Among the 900 millions enslaved by Communism, we have many friends — and their weight is not to be despised.

Add the fact that modern weapons leave "no alternative to peace" for either side, and I am hopeful that — if only the great Western powers stand firm — a day of rectification will come.

Meanwhile, despite the great handicaps imposed by the division of our nation, our living conditions in southern Korea are gradually improving. The upward spiral of inflation has been checked. Many new factories are being erected. Our fisheries and agricultural production are increasing.

Most important of all, our people are attaining the means that were denied them by the Japanese for the past full generation of standing on their own feet. Democratic rights and civil liberties have been fully established. In the course of a series of national elections, our people have welded themselves into two strong, balanced political parties. Ninety free newspapers are avidly read.

Victory over Illiteracy

Our greatest single triumph lies in the field of education. At the time of Japan's defeat, 80 per cent of our people were illiterate. Today, illiteracy has been reduced to less than 8 per cent.

With an informed, educated and democratically committed population, the future of Korea rests on the best foundation a nation could ask. When we suffered from the worst devastation ever endured by a modern nation, the patriotism of our people was tested and proved. They endured 2 million civilian casualties and the loss of their homes and employment. But still they said, "Here we stand."

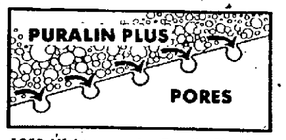

We have earned our place as partners in the free world alliance. We have earned the inalienable human rights of liberty and democracy. There is no power in Communism that we shall not eventually defeat. ■

Two Florida brothers are rich because . . .

They saved their

by DON SIDER

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

When the rampaging Yankees overran them in 1865, the Confederacy's printing presses had turned out better than a billion dollars in bills. Little more than a decade ago, you could have bought the whole load for the price of yesterday's newspaper.

Today a $5 note from one of those presses might get you $1,000 in U.S. money. A $10 bill now sells for as much as $1,800. Why? Mainly because two brothers, Grover and Clarence Criswell of Pass-a-Grille, near here, saved their Confederate money.

Their stock, most complete anywhere, has a face value of $20 million. Many of their more common bills are worth little, but others — like rare $10 and $20 notes printed in Richmond as an experiment in 1862 — come as high as $2,500. In four years, when that 10 and 20 (below) are 100 years old, Confederate-money collectors — now as avid as stamp chasers — probably will value them at over $10,000.

The Criswells' private collection of some 10,000 notes (not for sale) is insured for a quarter-million dollars. "We set that figure," says Grover, "but most of our collection could not be replaced. Where are you going to find the mate to the only printing plate saved when a plant was destroyed?"

The brothers first got interested in Confederate money as children, says Grover, now 24. (Clarence is 22.) "Daddy, who was born in Tennessee, used to tell us about our great-uncles who fought in the War Between the States. We kept after him to give us some souvenirs of the war that had been handed down through the family. There were some letters, a few coins and about 15 or 20 Confederate bills. Daddy said he'd give us the bills since 'they're worth the least of anything.'"

The bills aroused the brothers' interest and they cast about for more. Attending military school in Chicago, they advertised for bills in coin-collecting magazines. People were happy to answer the ads, either passing on the bills for nothing or accepting trifling sums for notes they considered worthless.

"We were the only kids in the school who never had ice cream," says Clarence. "We'd spend all our allowances on Confederate money."

While attending high school here, the boys gradually realized that their ads apparently were exciting others to collect. Coincidence or not, there was a definite boom in Confederate money. "Suddenly," says Clarence, "we were being offered what seemed like fabulous amounts for our notes."

Young Tycoons

Their business was strictly by mail. "We wouldn't deal with any customers in person," says Grover, grinning. "We were afraid they wouldn't do business with us if they knew we were just kids."

By the time they got to college (The Citadel), they had a thriving operation. "We figured," says Clarence, "we were making more money in our spare time than some of our professors."

The spare-time business now is full-time, run from an air-conditioned office suite in a small building next to Grover's home. (He is married, has a 22-month-old son.) They have a full-time secretary, four part-time researchers and a horde of agents around the country buying and selling on commission.

The Criswells get dozens of letters and phone calls each day. Some turn into sizable sales. On one sale, for instance, the brothers pocketed $10,000 in U.S. currency.

But they've got to keep their eyes open for "money" as worthless as a Confederate bill used to be. During 1954 and 1955, a cereal company included reprints of Confederate money in its packages. Though the bills were stamped "facsimile," sharpies still are sending them to the Criswells.

"Their letters always start: 'I found this money in Grandpa's trunk and I know it's genuine . . .,'" says Clarence. "But usually they're pretty clumsy about erasing the 'facsimile' stamp. Another point they miss is that most Confederate notes were hand-signed in brown ink to prevent counterfeiting. Still we've been flooded with that cereal money. The company must have printed 10 times as much as the Confederacy did."

Despite their youth, the Criswell brothers are considered authorities on the Confederacy and its finances. The Smithsonian Institution has come to them with queries. So

RARE BILLS — one $10 and one $20 — are among the few Confederate notes to bear printed signatures, sell for $2,500 the set. Ten sets now exist.

Confederate money

have several museums and historical societies. Their book, Confederate and Southern State Currency, published in 1957, is considered the bible of its field. A second, Confederate and Southern State Bonds, will go into print in a few months. The plan is to follow it with 38 more books covering all paper money ever issued in the U.S.

As the Criswells' reputation has spread, so has their business. The brothers have customers in England, France and nine other foreign countries. And they expect more, since the demand for Confederate money is growing steadily. Right now this demand is keeping Grover working day and night, since Clarence is on active Army duty.

Meantime the boys manage to mix pleasure with business — though sometimes their practical jokes with Confederate money backfire. About a year ago, dining in a Georgia restaurant, they paid their $8 tab with a common Confederate 20, worth about 50¢. Without a word the waitress accepted it and brought back $12 change in U.S. bills.

Laughing, the Criswells offered her a U.S. 20, pointing out she had been slipped a Confederate bill they would take back.

"No sir!" snapped the waitress, obviously a Criswell-made collector of Confederate bills. "I put a real 20 of my own in the cash register — and I'm not giving this one up for anything!" ■

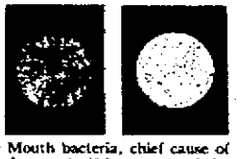

MONEY TO BURN: Clarence Criswell lights his brother's cigar with a bill. String ties and notes spilling over Grover's shoulders are part of the gag.

FORECAST: COOL COOKING

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Do these hot dishes the cool way—in an electric skillet, saucepan or cooker...

NO MATTER WHAT the weatherman says, you can have a cool kitchen. The secret? At least one electrical device to take over the cooking.

Today there are various such appliances on the market, ranging in size from electric saucepans and skillets (above) to the versatile ovens (p. 19) that bake, roast and broil or barbecue. Use any of those above to cook one hot dish as the main course of a whole meal — without raising room temperature.

The electric skillet (left in photo) contains a delicious shrimp dish straight from the Deep South. To complete a wonderful meal, all you need is a tossed green salad, honeydew melon and cookies.

In the electric saucepan (right) is an easy variation of an elaborate French dish called cassoulet that tastes every bit as good as the original. Serve a salad with it — and, for dessert, seedless grapes and blue cheese.

The electric cooker (center) can double as a fryer. Here it holds a delightful chicken-vegetable stew. Have lettuce wedges with it, watermelon for dessert.

Skillet: NEW ORLEANS SHRIMP AND SPAGHETTI

- ½ cup salad oil
- ½ cup chopped scallions
- 2 lbs. cooked, cleaned shrimp
- 2 tsp. grated lemon peel
- Salt and pepper
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- ½ cup sliced ripe olives
- ½ lb. thin spaghetti, cooked

Heat salad oil in skillet, using medium heat; add scallions; cook about 5 minutes. Add shrimp, lemon peel, salt, pepper. Cook until heated through. Stir in lemon juice. Add olives and spaghetti; mix well. Set heat for serving temperature. Serves four to six . . . NOTE: A big electric skillet will hold 1½ times this recipe.

Saucepan: CASSOULET AMERICAINE

- 2 cups diced left-over roast meat
- 2 tbsp. salad oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 garlic clove
- 2 cans (1 lb. each) baked beans in tomato sauce
- 4 frankfurters, sliced in ½" pieces
- ½ cup chili sauce

Brown diced meat (lamb, beef, pork, veal or ham) in salad oil in electric saucepan; push to one side, add onion and garlic; brown lightly; remove garlic. Add beans (do not drain), frankfurters and chili sauce; mix well; heat to serving temperature. Makes six servings.

Cooker-Fryer: CHICKEN STEW

- 1 stewing chicken (3 to 4 lbs.), cut up
- 4 cups boiling water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 No. 303 can (2 cups) tomatoes
- 2 cups shelled lima beans
- 2 cups corn cut from cob
- 2 cups cut green beans
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Cover chicken with boiling water; set control dial at 300°; when water boils again, add salt and onion; lower heat to 200°; simmer 2 hours. Lift out chicken; remove meat from bones, keeping it in fairly large pieces; return meat to cooker. Add vegetables; simmer 1½ hours longer, or until vegetables and chicken are tender. Add pepper and Worcestershire sauce. If desired, thicken with ¼ cup flour mixed smooth with ½ cup cold water. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Serves six . . . NOTE: Cooker can hold twice this recipe. Canned or frozen vegetables may be used instead of fresh; add during last half hour of cooking.

...in an electric rotisserie-oven

With an electric rotisserie-oven (r.) you can bake, roast or barbecue with equal success. The oven is big enough for an entire meal — just select dishes that need the same temperature, even if the time periods vary. Or, if you prefer, bake a dessert in the morning and use the rotating spit attachment later for the meat — as in the recipes below.

Electric Rotisserie-Oven Dinner
Pineapple-Glazed Picnic Ham
Potato and Vegetable Salad
Sliced Tomatoes
Lattice-Top Peach Pie

Pie comes from the oven first — then ham. Salad (above) and tomatoes complete meal.

PINEAPPLE-GLAZED PICNIC HAM

1 fully cooked picnic ham (4 to 6 lbs.)
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
¾ cup canned pineapple juice
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

Run spit rod through center of picnic ham; skewer securely. Start motor. Cook 1¼ to 2 hours, depending on weight of ham. Combine remaining ingredients; heat until sugar dissolves. Use to brush ham often during last hour of cooking.

LATTICE-TOP PEACH PIE

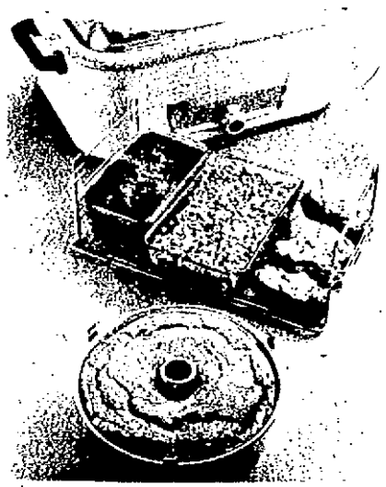

4 cups sliced fresh peaches
1½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
¾ to ¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Pastry for 2-crust pie

Combine peaches, tapioca, sugar and lemon juice. Line 9" pie plate with pastry. Fill with peach mixture: Cut remaining pastry in long strips, 1" wide, and arrange lattice-fashion over peaches. Fold ends of strips under lower crust. Bake early in the day in the rotisserie-oven (preheated to 425°) 40 to 45 minutes.

...in an electric roaster-oven

An electric roaster-oven will do your roasting and baking, cook an oven meal to perfection or, with rack removed, cook a stew, chili or hearty soup for a crowd. There is a broiler attachment, too, that fits inside the cover, while the foods to be broiled are placed on the adjustable rack beneath.

In using any electric cooking appliance anywhere outdoors, be sure the wiring is adequate to take the load. Check with your electrician.

The angel food cake is baked first, then the rest of the meal goes on the rack.

Electric Roaster-Oven Dinner
Meat Loaf
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Corn and Tomato Scallop
Angel Food Cake
Raspberries and Cream

MEAT LOAF

Prepare any favorite meat-loaf recipe. Bake in loaf pan (part of roaster-oven equipment) in roaster-oven preheated to 375°, for 1½ hours.

CORN AND TOMATO SCALLOP

4 to 6 fresh tomatoes
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, finely diced
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (1 lb.) kernel corn, drained
Salt and pepper to taste

Slice tomatoes. Cook onion and green pepper in butter or margarine until onion is soft; add corn, salt and pepper; mix well. Arrange tomato slices and corn mixture in alternate layers in uncovered baking dish (part of roaster-oven equipment.) Place on rack with meat loaf and potatoes for last 45 minutes of cooking time.

BAKING DIRECTIONS

Early in the day, bake the angel food in a 10" tube pan in the roaster-oven (preheated to 350°) for about 1 hour. Bake potatoes on rack with meat loaf. Fifteen minutes before meat is done, remove potatoes; scoop out pulp; mash; season; refill shells; return to oven to brown.

How a crippled girl gave me strength

by LILLIAN ROTH

It seems to me that sometimes the good Lord holds Himself back from helping us too soon or too often because He doesn't want us to turn to Him for the solution to every problem. I think He looks at us and says to Himself, "Well, now, the answer to her problem is right there in front of her. How much better if she can find it all on her own than if I point it out to her."

I didn't understand this all at once, of course. It was a gradual revelation, and at first sparked by a girl named Jean Thoney who had been in a wheel chair for almost 20 years with multiple sclerosis. Each year, each month, she wasted away a bit more, but she had an unquenchable spirit. She had found the tools God had given her. We entered into correspondence and I found myself looking forward each week to her letters.

Jean was 20 when the disease struck her, in October, 1937. Twenty years old! What a magic age for most girls, on the threshold of life. For Jean it was the threshold of death. She was living in her home town, Marquette, Mich., and working in a bakery. Here's what happened, in her own words.

Terror in a Cemetery

"Usually the first multiple-sclerosis symptoms are in the eyes, double vision and such, but with me the tips of my fingers got numb. I complained about it for a week and the family thought it was because I worked with cellophane at the bakery.

"Then, on a Monday morning, my feet were both asleep, you know that prickly sensation, and I kept banging them against the bakery counter to try and wake them up. During the next few days the prickly sensation began to climb up my legs and by the end of the week it would race up to my knees. Whenever that happened I'd just fall down.

"Friday I staggered to work. I was cranky, hadn't slept well. At the end of work I wrapped up my dirty uniforms and set out for home, taking a short-cut through the cemetery. There was a hill, but I thought I could make it.

"The prickles were half-way up to my knees when I entered the cemetery and I hurried, staggeringly, desperate to make the hill and be free of the dead. I had gone about a hundred yards when I felt my knees begin to give way. I grasped a tombstone and slumped against it. It was marble and cold as death itself and it sent a shiver through me . . . but I could not let go. I didn't want to spend the night in the cemetery alone and I was half bawling, half laughing at myself and saying over and over, 'This is ridiculous . . . this is ridiculous.'

"Fear can do wonderful things, I guess. I managed to pull myself erect, stiffen my legs, and teeter on out of that cemetery. I fell several times on the way home, but I got home.

"Before the week was out I was on my way, on a stretcher, to the University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Michigan."

When Jean arrived, her disease was diagnosed as multiple sclerosis. This meant that she was doomed to a long, slow, declining invalidism while her muscles wasted away.

Tears — and Good Advice

And how did Jean react to all this? Like any 20-year-old caught in helplessness and terror; she wept for hours on end, she became resentful and full of self-pity. She was so uncooperative with the medical staff that the doctors sent for her mother, who made the 500-mile trip to see her.

Jean's description of her mother's visit reveals a good deal about that remarkable woman.

"Most mothers, I should imagine, would walk into a room, see their child in such a terrible condition, and burst into tears. But there were no tears for my Mom.

" 'We've got to have a little talk,' she said. 'They've diagnosed your case and you're going to be here for a long time. Everyone here wants to help you. If you're nice to them, they'll be nice to you and everyone's life will be a lot easier. I don't want any more bad reports about you, about your not eating and not cooperating. This isn't the end of the world for you, it's just a little detour.'

"Funny thing, but at that moment I was proud of my Mom. I began doing what I was supposed to and started my new life. As it turned out, my upper extremities were not affected much. I've never had garbled speech, never been blind; my sense of smell and taste have never gone. My hands have been paralyzed three times but they've come back, though the feeling in them is not too good. The doctors were able to stop the fast rush of paralysis and prevent my limbs from becoming deformed, but there's been permanent damage to the bowels, bladder and lungs.

"Each year I am a bit more incapacitated than the year before, but live in the hope that science will soon find something to help me. In the meantime I live in a wheel chair and with a family that fortunately has a fine philosophy of life.

From Beyond My Worth ©1958 by Lillian Roth. Published by Frederick Fell, Inc., New York ($3.95).

LILLIAN ROTH

The ex-alcoholic who wrote 'I'll Cry Tomorrow' pays tribute to a remarkable woman — and to the power of belief

"When I finally came home they treated me as they always had, making light of the fact that I looked like a mechanical man with a corset for a back, hip-length braces and crutches. God had things for me yet to learn and perhaps even things for me to do."

All that happened 20 years ago. Today Jean is no longer a young girl in a wheel chair, but a middle-aged woman in a wheel chair. She is home alone much of the time — when she could feel sorry for herself, if that were her nature. But listen to excerpts from her letters:

"I am, my dear Lillian, sitting on top of the world, and I mean that literally. Callouses, you know. And what a place to have them! So the doctor taped airfoam pads over the callouses. I'm sitting on an airfoam pillow plus a rubber ring. Bouncy, to say the least. Anyway, I feel swell . . .

"I just happen to enjoy life, even from a wheel chair, and if it's God's will that I be in one, the least I can do is meet it the best way I know how. And after all, I have so much to be thankful for — a wonderful family and friends like you . . .

"Deep down I know I have no chance for recovery. Each year I lose a little ground. But then, don't we all? I just remember your advice to pray to God and keep smiling . . ."

There's a portrait of Jean Thoney in her own words. Her letters are very precious to me. She says that I have helped her. It is the opposite.

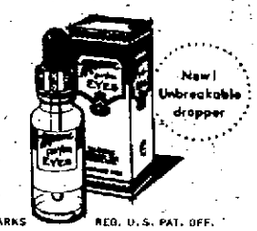

I feel shy before her strength, goodness and beauty. ■

She first took care of the Pope's health in 1912, when he was the Rev. Eugenio Pacelli and she attended him at a rest home in the Swiss Alps. Later she became his regular nurse. Today she makes the Pope adhere to his daily schedule of work and rest. She reminds him to remove the ink stains from his fingers after writing — and to disinfect his right hand and ring, kissed by hundreds during audiences. She also is the only person in the Vatican who can interrupt a Papal discussion and, with smiling authority, show visitors out.

Sister Pasqualina boasts one more distinction: she is the first typist a Pope ever had. ■

HOPE BENNETT talks with teenagers

How do I get him back?

A question I keep getting in various forms from young teens, over and over, is summed up by J.T., Detroit: "I am desperately in love with a boy. He once was in love with me but we broke up. What can I do to catch him again?"

Frankly, older teens — to whom I turn on many of the practical problems the younger ones send in — aren't terribly hopeful about rekindling a dead flame. But their advice is worth something nonetheless.

Joan Tarrant, 18, talked the matter over with friends in Arlington, Va. She says, "The question of how to 're-catch' a boy started some violent debates. The boys were mad at the idea they'd been 'caught' in the first place. Even the girls muttered about that. But we finally agreed on these suggestions:

"If you dropped the boy, chances are he'll keep after you for a while. If so, encourage him. Go out with him when he asks you and gradually get back in the old swing. Hint that you realize how wrong you were and how glad you are that things are OK again.

"If he doesn't keep trying, you may have to help him along. Be at the right place at the right time. Show that you're interested. If you've hurt him deeply, you may have to take the initiative.

"On the other hand, if the boy dropped you, never, never moon over him, write him notes or suggest you can't live without him. Do be seen with other boys and do try to enjoy yourself. It may make him jealous and he may come back."

"If not, forget it," says Virginia Null. "The harder you try, the less chance you have and the bigger fool you'll make of yourself."

"If the break seems beyond repair," adds Candy Johnson, "chalk it up to experience. Each mistake you make will — or should — help you avoid making it again."

So accept the loss and learn from it. Stop mourning. Stop trying to revive it. Cold romances, like cold oatmeal, aren't very good warmed up. Moping around won't bring the boy back nor help you get a new one. Hard though it may be at first, circulate.

"Stop interrupting your mother's interruptions!"

Every dad has his day

The day can offer headaches — as per these cartoon samples — but the wise father just smiles. After all, tomorrow may be worse

"Do as your mother says — before she makes me do it!"

"How much?"

"Here are the 10 jobs we've got to do today. Pick any seven."

EDITOR'S EYEWITNESS REPORT OF IRAQ REVOLT

Army's 'Remarkable' Control Cut Casualties

By TALBOT PATRICK
Editor-Publisher of the Evening Herald, Rock Hill, S.C.

ROME (AP) — The death list of the Iraq revolution totals several dozen instead of thousands—and perhaps I am alive to write these words—because of the remarkable control taken over Baghdad's million people by the army group which put through the revolution.

And I believe one reason the army could maintain such control was because the mass of people apparently welcomed the revolution.

On the morning of the revolution I woke to hear in the distance the sound of rhythmic shouting. It was as if someone arriving late to a college football game heard outside a stadium the sound of a cheering section. Then the sound died away in the morning noises of a city where business starts in hot weather at 7.

At 8:30 a knock at my door. Half-dressed, I cracked the door open. It was an Iraqi newspaper friend. Excitedly he burst in.

"You got here the right time," he almost shouted. "There's been a revolution. It started at 4:30 this morning. It's all over now. A group of army officers did it. The king is dead. The crown prince, his uncle, is dead. You better stay here in the hotel. I'll come back later for you."

I had him repeat. Just the afternoon before, my first day in Baghdad, I had had a long talk with the director general of the Information Ministry. This same morning, he had told me, the king and various ministers were to go to an international conference at Istanbul.

"He's out now," my friend said. "All the old government are out. I think some of the ministers may be dead. People are crowding in the streets. I think you better stay inside until I come for you."

He left. Finishing dressing, I went to the lobby of the hotel. Strangers, Americans and Europeans, were standing around. At the reception desk the clerk said, yes, there had been a revolution. It was announced over the government radio. Everything in Baghdad was closed. The telephone system was dead. Stay in the hotel.

A tall American carrying a small camera came up the steps from the street floor entrance. "When I stepped outside," he told a friend, "a man pointed at my camera, shook his head, and then pointed his two hands toward me as if he were holding a submachine gun and waved them back and forth across my stomach."

Little by little strangers began to speak to each other. A small gray-haired American woman said, "I woke up early and when I looked out I saw soldiers on the roof of the four-story building across the street. They seemed to be searching a couple of small penthouses on the roof. Then one of them came and looked over the side of the balcony of the floor below. Then the soldiers went away."

Hearing shouting, I looked out. Up about a quarter of a block the hotel street ended at one of the city's main streets. A group of shouting men walked past. Later more came by truck.

I ventured out onto the sidewalk. The few people on my street paid little attention to me. I drifted cautiously toward the corner. More people were on each side of the street.

Another crowded truck came by. Held high at the front of it was a big photograph of Egypt's Nasser. The shouting men in the truck were mostly young. People along the street clapped.

None of the usually numerous white-uniformed police with white spike-topped helmets were in sight.

Along came a group on foot, young men, older boys, carrying a picture of Nasser. They stopped at the intersection as one of their number shouted a short talk, then waved their arms in the air, shouted and went on.

On the sidewalk I saw apparent friends meet each other, beam with smiles, sometimes embrace and kiss each other on the cheeks.

Another group of young men and boys came dancing down the street. Groups of spectators who had climbed onto the second and third floors of a reinforced concrete building began a rhythmic clapping of their hands for the dancers.

Up the street, horn blowing, came rushing a private car with women leaning out the windows from the back seat and the seat beside the driver. They were Iraqis, dressed in European clothes, their faces wild with delight, shrieking out to all who might hear.

One crowd, bigger than most, had been dragging something dark along the pavement. Not until the next day did I realize it may have been what was left of a human body.

After a while what evidently was a celebration of great emotional intensity for the walking and riding groups, for the women in occasional automobiles and even for the onlookers began to grow a bit monotonous for me. I went back to the hotel, and was there when my friend returned at noon.

"Everybody is going to have to get off the streets," he said. "There is going to be what you call a curfew from one o'clock this afternoon until five o'clock tomorrow morning.

"Yes," he answered a question from me, "there is a whole new government. Maybe tomorrow I can take

Hat's Off to Queen

'Space' Pilot Perishes in Jet Crash

Test Flier, Ace Had Been Chosen to Fly Secret X15

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — Capt. Iven Kincheloe, chosen by the Air Force to be one of the first pilots to fly into space, was killed Saturday when his jet fighter crashed while on a routine flight.

His F104 Starfighter slammed into the ground and exploded shortly after taking off from this air base in the Mojave Desert.

Kincheloe, who held the American altitude record of 126,000 feet, ejected himself a moment before the impact.

The Air Force said the ruggedly-handsome jet ace apparently was trying to turn back to the field after a low-altitude flameout.

* * * *

"IT LOOKED LIKE he was gliding in for a landing on the desert," said Steve Michel, a nearby rancher.

Just before the plane hit and exploded, Kincheloe catapulted from the cockpit. His body was badly burned from the explosion's fireball, sheriff's deputies said. Wreckage was spread over a half mile area.

Kincheloe, 30, had taken off to fly as "chase" plane for another jet being tested, the Air Force said. It was considered a routine hop for the Korean war hero, who flew many such flights as one of the United States' top test pilots.

* * * *

KINCHELOE, AN aeronautical and mechanical engineer, was a member of the select three-man Air Force team training for flights into the fringe of space in the secrecy-shrouded rocket plane—the X15.

The X15 was described by the secretary of the Air Force as "a step toward a manned satellite."

Kincheloe entered the Air Force from the Air ROTC program at Purdue University. He received his wings at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., in 1949. In Korea during 1951-52, Kincheloe flew 101 combat missions. He completed the course in the School of Aeronautics, Empire Test School, Farnborough, England.

In September, 1956, he flew

New, Heaviest U.S. Moon 1st to Fly Over Russia

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The Army's Jupiter C rocket has put an American moon over Russia. Explorer IV was swinging around the earth once every two hours Saturday night on a "Cook's tour" course that would cover its most populous areas.

The new and heaviest of U. S. satellites at 38.43 pounds carried aloft the most delicate instruments ever devised for radiation detection to help prepare man for space travel.

Late Saturday, it was learned that the low point in the satellite's orbit is 177 miles above the earth and the high point, or apogee, is 1,368 miles up. It circles the globe once every 110 minutes and its lifetime is estimated at "a few years."

* * * *

PROF. GEORGE LUDWIG, head of the University of Iowa team which designed special instrumentation tucked inside the little moon, said it attained a "very large elliptical orbit" which would enable it to make a much more complete measurement of the intense radiation outside the earth's atmosphere.

"The general indication is that we have a good orbit," announced Dr. James A. Van Allen, State University of Iowa scientist representing the International Geophysical Year committee in Washington. He commented after Explorer IV had completed two circuits of the globe.

It was to make its first pass over southern Russia about 10 p.m. and would cross Russia four or five more times before its course slanted away.

* * * *

IN ITS VERY first circuit the new moon passed over American soil in Southern California and Texas and also covered Mexico and Newfoundland. It sent forth a steady beep on two frequencies, 108 and 108.3 megacycles. Its passage was recorded by the tracking station at Temple City, Calif.

The new Explorer will be the first U. S. satellite to fly over Russia. The others were put in orbits which covered a broad band of the earth's middle between latitudes 34 north and 34 south.

The new orbit was picked to give Explorer IV's delicate instruments an opportunity to measure radiation in space over a larger part of the planet.

* * * *

EXPLORERS I and III had run into a belt of radiation, starting about 600 miles up, 1,000 times more intense than expected. Their instruments

West at Odds on Summit Parley Plans

LONDON (UPI)—The Western powers differed Saturday night over where and how to hold a summit conference with the Soviet Union on the Middle East crisis.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French Premier Charles De Gaulle both sent letters to Russian Nikita S. Khrushchev on the proposal to hold the summit meeting within a United Nations Security Council framework and Khrushchev's suggestion that the council meeting be held in New York.

* * * *

MACMILLAN WAS all for the New York location. De Gaulle opposed it.

President Eisenhower, in his letter to Khrushchev this week, reluctantly went along with the British position.

In a terse, three-paragraph note, Macmillan said he would "certainly be ready to go to New York" for a council meeting at the summit on the Middle East.

De Gaulle said he wanted the meeting held at Geneva "or any other town of our continent." He opposes New York.

De Gaulle also said he preferred a regular summit parley as originally planned which would mean it would be held outside the U.N. But he did not refuse to go along with a council meeting if that was the only way, and provided Israel, Turkey and Iran were represented.

* * * *

MACMILLAN JOINED President Eisenhower in demanding that the council determine under its own rules the date of the meeting and what other states should attend.

Khrushchev had proposed next Monday—a date now impossible to keep—and the presence of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and "rep-

'IT IS LIKE A DREAM'

'Too Tired to Think,' Says Miss U, but She's Happy

By BRYAN HODGSON

A very pretty, very happy and very tired teenager from Colombia still was trying Saturday to get over the shock of being named Miss Universe.

"It is like a dream — I can't believe it," said Luz Marina Zuloaga, 19-year-old winner of the coveted beauty crown.

Her brown eyes glistening with excitement and fatigue, Luz confided her joy in rippling Spanish through an interpreter during her first press conference as the world's reigning beauty.

"I am so tired I cannot think," she said. "But who could sleep on such a day?"

For Luz, "such a day" meant a farewell to a sheltered life in which she never has been kissed and never has been out on a date, according to her mother, who accompanied her here. It also meant $11,000 in prize money, a brand new convertible, and contracts worth $6,000 from pageant sponsors.

Saturday, the full-bosomed Latin beauty was mobbed by crowds of newsmen and spectators and was surrounded by a flying wedge of muscular policemen as she trotted through an exhausting schedule of appointments.

* * * *

BETWEEN ROUNDS, she managed to give some charming answers to a great many rather trite questions.

What were her first thoughts on awakening after the two-hour nap which followed her coronation?

"I thought that I must dress very quickly because there was so much to do," she said.

And the man in her life?

"There is no man—yet," she replied. "But he must be an ordinary-looking man, and neat. A good man, and a hard-working man."

Asked if she knew that her country had exploded into such wild celebration of her victory

Sharp New Battle Erupts in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP)—Sharp fighting broke out Saturday night between Lebanese security forces and opposition rebels near the presidential palace and government buildings in the heart of Beirut.

U. S. troops who landed in Lebanon last week were not involved.

The security forces and the rebels exchanged mortar and machinegun fire across Capitol Square where the postoffice is located.

Small arms fire and the chattering of machineguns also broke the quiet in the Sinayeh quarter, just three blocks from the presidential palace.

In the Zarif sector, there was small arms fire from three directions. The Associated Press' building was in the center of lines of fire.

Early reports said the only casualty in two hours of shooting was a girl wounded by a stray bullet.

Youth, Stricken at Party, Dies

A 17-year-old youth died mysteriously Saturday night after being stricken at a birthday swimming party at the home of friends, police reported.

Pronounced dead at St. Mary's Hospital was Edward R. Howard, of 1060 Redondo Ave. Police said he had been swimming with 20 other persons in a pool at the home of Dr. Leonard L. Crowley, 5401 El Cedral Ave.

Yarborough, Gov. Daniel Renominated

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' conservative Democrats Saturday renominated Gov. Price Daniel. Liberal-backed U. S. Senator Ralph Yarborough also won nomination. Conservatives dominated the precinct conventions.

At 10 p.m. the vote for governor gave Daniel 220,817 votes, State Senator Henry Gonzalez 61,225, former Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel 69,391, and Tom Irwin, Dallas businessman, 8,584.

A vote of 1,300,000 was expected to be cast out of Texas' 2,050,000 potential. A poll tax receipt is a Texas voting requisite.

The 10 p.m. count in the U. S. Senate race gave Yarborough 57 per cent of the vote tabulated and a total of 199,870 ballots. His opponent, William Blakley, oilman-industrialist, had 149,613.

Balloonists 'Televise' Space at 80,000 Feet

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP) — A pair of cheerful balloonists floated high above the edge of a thunderstorm area Saturday night, chiding tracking crews who were waiting out a severe weather forecast.

Navy Cmdr. Malcolm Ross and M. Lee Lewis, a former Navy balloonist, were lofted to 80,000 feet by the balloon launched near Crosby, Minn., before dawn. In their glistening gondola, they floated across quiet Minnesota skies sending back to earth America's first stratosphere television pictures.

By 9:30 p.m., CDT, the balloon had drifted 130 miles west of the launching site.

Ross and Lewis are carrying out a maze of technical experiments aimed at paving the way to space travel.

The gleaming white aluminum gondola, is a round ball about seven feet in diameter. It is equipped to provide them with ground level pressure, a facility called a necessity for future space travel.

Riding quietly with them were 10,000 insects, sent up for cosmic ray tests.

Plans called for the balloon to stay up all night and descend near Aberdeen, S. D., about noon today.

L.A.C. Says:

Comprehensive Medical Insurance

In a series of three articles the Saturday Evening Post has outlined the latest development in over-all medical insurance. It tells of the rapid growth in such insurance over the past several years. The new plan for Long Beach city employes is an example of the way medical insurance has changed the past five years.

Some of our readers will recall that over 10 years ago this writer advocated a deductible medical insurance plan—like deductible insurance on an automobile. We suggested policies which provided that the insured family pay the first 5 per cent of its income in any year for its medical bills and that all above that be covered by a comprehensive policy. There were no such policies available then.

Now the Post articles show many of our best insurance companies are offering deductible policies. Broadly they provide that each person insured pay up to $50 a year of total medical bills and thereafter the insurance would pay 80 per cent or 85 per cent of all costs above that. The insured can use any doctor or hospital.

Under the Long Beach plan provided by local doctors and the CPS fees are set for all doctor charges. It is estimated over 85 per cent of all local osteopathic and medical doctors are members of this plan. The system of setting fees for all categories of medical treatments is spreading from the initial system set up by Long Beach doctors.

The Post articles give instances where insurance is misused by some doctors and patients. It tells of doctors who raise their rates when they know the patient is insured. They tell of patients insisting on unnecessary medical care and hospitalization because they say "I have paid for this insurance for five years and intend getting some of my money back." The length of time in hospitals for insured is longer than for those without insurance. It is pointed out that very seldom is it found a person sets his house on fire to collect for insurance. But there are many instances of misuse of medical and unemployment insurance.

These are factors which have caused the cost of such insurance to be continually raised. Under a plan submitted to the city employees the comprehensive policy would cost annually $81.36 for the employee—$178.68 for the employee and one dependent and $210.36 for the employee with two or more dependents. Thus, the cost for the coverage of three or more in a family would be more than 5 per cent of a $4,000 income. The city can pay only the portion for the employee—not his dependents.

This type of insurance written by many companies is protection against catastrophic illness or accidents which have impoverished many families. It is not available to individuals at present. Only groups can secure such coverage. But as the plans are perfected and experience gained it is reasonable to believe such plans will soon be available to all individuals who are insurable.

The great danger is that government will attempt to provide plans which will in effect mean socialized medicine. Plans are now before Congress to provide medical care for all who are on old-age retirement. The cost would come out of reserves of the OASI funds which are now running short of meeting old-age pensions from annual social security taxes. It could mean the start of regimented medical services which very few Americans would like. However, plans must be provided to cover the retired people before we can say the problem has been solved.

The growth of present comprehensive plans has been spectacular. It is doubtful many people realize how they have progressed the past five years. It is a challenge to insurance companies, doctors, hospitals and patients. Unless the plans are honestly and wisely used they will collapse because of their cost. If they are properly used the goal of protection from catastrophic medical bills will soon be reached. This can be done under free enterprise and the freedom of the patients to choose their doctors and hospitals—which does not apply under state medicine.—L. A. C.

New Yorker Inherits X15 Flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (UPI)—The death of Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe in a plane crash Saturday places the burden of being the Air Force's first man in outer space on a dark-haired, 34-year-old flier from New York City.

He is Capt. Robert M. White, an eight-time winner of the Air Medal.

White was the "back-up" pilot behind Kincheloe in the Air Force's outer space training program being conducted here.

There were only three men in the program. The third is Capt. Robert A. Rushworth, 33, of Madison, Me. He was until Saturday the "follow-on" man, according to an Air Force spokesman.

* * * *

THE SPOKESMAN said that White, as Kincheloe's successor, will try to crack outer space with North American Aviation Inc.'s X15, which has not yet been tested.

The initial test will be made by North American Pilot Scott Crossfield, who, according to the spokesman, will "demonstrate its performance in the known regimes of flight."

Then it will be up to White to crack the barrier.

Born in New York City, White was graduated from New York University in 1951 with a degree in electrical engineering.

He joined the Air Corps in 1942 and flew on 52 combat missions in Germany and France during World War II with the 355th fighter group.

* * * *

IN FEBRUARY, 1945, he was shot down and spent the remainder of the war in Stalag 7A in Muesberg, Bavaria, Germany. Freed at the end of the war, he left the service in December, 1945, but was recalled to active duty during the Korean conflict in May, 1951.

In January, 1952, he was sent to Japan, where he remained until July, 1953, flying with the 40th Interceptor Squadron. He came back to the United States in 1954 to attend the Air University of Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

He was graduated from the experimental flight test pilot school here in January, 1955, and has been a test pilot ever since.

* * * *

HE IS MARRIED and has one son, Gregory, 3.

Rushworth, a veteran of 14 years in the air force, saw duty in the China-Burma-India theater in World War II. He is a graduate of the University of Maine, holds a degree in mechanical engineering and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal twice.

A graduate of the U. S. air force institute of technology in Dayton, Ohio, in 1955, he is married and has a daughter, Cheri, 1.

Jet Crash Kills AF 'Space' Flier

the X2—a forerunner of the X15—to 126,000 feet, higher than any other American plane has flown.

Kincheloe had said many times that he wanted to be one of the first men in space.

* * * *

"THE X15 WILL BRING back data for orbital flight," he once said.

When asked about someday flying around the earth in orbit like a satellite, the big blond jet ace said:

"I definitely want to be part of orbital flying."

Kincheloe, born in Detroit, Mich., lived near the base with his wife and year-old son, Robert Carl. His wife is expecting another child.

Kincheloe, whose face was once described as belonging on an Air Force recruiting poster, became the United States' 10th jet ace in Korea. Before his combat tour ended, he destroyed 11 Communist planes.

His medals included the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster and four Air Medals.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Iven C. Kincheloe, live near Cassopolis, Mich.

* * * *

KINCHELOE WAS a member of a three-man team of space pioneers training to take the X15 into the inky never-never land on the fringe of space.

The others are Scott Crossfield of North American Aviation Corp. and Joseph Walker, senior pilot for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

They were the "first team" in the United States' project to send a manned aircraft into the mysterious void beyond the earth's atmosphere.

CAPT. IVEN KINCHELOE

* * * *

AT CASSOPOLIS, MICH., Kincheloe's father, Iven, said his son always was "more or less fatalistic about the danger of flying." He said he did not know what funeral arrangements would be made but added that his son had expressed a wish to be buried in the family plot at Cassopolis.

The elder Kincheloe said his son took his first airplane ride when he was four years old after talking his father into letting him go up with a stunt flyer who had landed on the family farm.

By the time he was 14 Kincheloe was taking flying lessons.

He was Michigan's only jet ace.

Golf Clubs Stolen

Golf clubs, caddy cart and golf balls, valued at $205, were stolen from the patio at the home of Jack E. Fairbanks, 3110 Studebaker Rd., Saturday, police reported.

Von Braun Delivers Rush Job

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—The Army's successful launching of Explorer IV was another rush job.

Dr. Wernher von Braun told reporters after Saturday's shoot that the Army received the go-ahead on the special radiation experiment for the satellite late in April.

"We were given permission to dig deeper after Explorer III relayed back some surprising data on an intense field of radiation some 600 miles in outer space."

"We had to come up with an entirely new instrumentation system for this satellite, and we did it in eight weeks."

HE ALSO announced that the Army has been authorized to work on three more satellite projects — another radiation test, a balloon flight and a cosmic ray experiment similar to Explorer I.

Dr. William R. Lovelace, a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and a pioneer in man's space research, said the Explorer IV test should show medical specialists how to protect man from the severe radiation.

America's newest satellite contained two geiger counters and two scintillated instruments which should give scientists a complete picture of the radiation phenomena at different intensities.

The instrumentation system was conceived, developed and built in the short span of time by Dr. James Van Allen's physics department at the State University of Iowa.

U.S. Explorer IV Flies Over Russia

were not "sophisticated" enough, however, to provide certain identification of the radiation.

Extremely small recorders will report for the first time just what the radiation hazard is.

Scientists said Explorer IV's orbit is the steepest (farthest north) that is possible to achieve in firings from Canaveral, although the "ideal orbit" would be over the poles.

On its first flight around the earth, Explorer IV's radio broadcasts were recorded at Woomera, Australia; San Diego, Calif.; Temple City, Calif.; Pasadena, Calif.; Huntsville, Ala.; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Fort Belvoir, Va., and Blossom Point, Md.

* * * *

THE NEW moon's orbit will carry it over the lower quarter of Russia, all of the United States, and most of the Southern Hemisphere.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German scientist who helped develop the Jupiter C Missile, said "all indications" are that Explorer IV is operating normally. Von Braun told a news conference held several hours after the launching that the missile was pointed in the northern-most course possible without sending it over the United States immediately after firing.

It traveled in an orbit ranging from 51 degrees north to 51 degrees south, covering all of the United States, most of South America and parts of Canada, Africa and Australia.

* * * *

AFTER RISING above its launching pad on the banks of the Atlantic Ocean here, the missile turned northeast. It passed just east of Cape Hatteras, N. C., and the New England coast.

Explorer IV joined the United States' Vanguard I and Explorer I—both on a more equator-hugging orbit — and Russia's Sputnik III in circling the earth.

Dr. W. R. Lovelace II of Albuquerque, N. M., a medical member of the National Advancement Committee for Aeronautics, told newsmen that his group is trying to figure out the hazards a man will have to undergo in space. He said we could not go ahead with the design of a space survival capsule for living creatures until we know what is involved in the radiation problem."

Big Morongo Canyon Ablaze

MORONGO VALLEY (AP) — A brush fire broke out Saturday at the 4,500-foot level of Big Morongo Canyon in San Bernardino County and quickly burned up steep walls to 6,000 feet.

Forest Ranger W. W. Skinner said 300 acres of brush and scattered light timber had been consumed by evening.

Because of difficult terrain, he estimated it might take two days to control the blaze. The area is desolate and no structures were endangered.

Boy, 16, Recalls 10 Burglaries, Then Loses Count

Police have arrested a 16-year-old youth who recalls burglarizing about 10 West Long Beach homes and then "losing count."

The boy was taken into custody on a tip supplied to officers who found he was linked to as many as 19 burglaries. He was booked in Juvenile Bureau for investigation.

Detective Insp. Charles C. Sullans said the youth may have worked with a man on almost all the burglaries.

Miss U Girls Packing Today

Miss Universe contestants—some with aching arches—today begin packing to go home.

The frantic, but joyful, 10 days of the seventh annual beauty competition ended in a swirl of pretty dresses, rhumbas and fox trots at the Miss U Coronation Ball Saturday night at the Lafayette Hotel.

Prettiest girl at the ball—according to the judges Friday—was Luz Marina Zuloaga (Miss Universe 1959).

The new Miss Universe and the 79 other girls who competed in the biggest beauty extravaganza in the world were escorted to and from the ballroom by Naval Air Cadets from Pensacola, Fla.

* * * *

MISS UNIVERSE, object of the judges' searching glances before winning her title Friday night, Saturday got down to studying a few figures herself.

The dollars - and - cents kind, that is.

Pageant officials reported the brown-haired, brown-eyed beauty has agreed to a $6,000 contract to travel for Max Factor, Hollywood, for six months in South America, and a $5,000 contract to tour the United States for Catalina, Inc., next year.

That's a few dollars above the minimum contract wage guaranteed the new wearer of the Miss Universe crown. About $2,500 more, in fact.

Eurlyne Howell (Miss U.S.A.) was said to have been offered movie screen tests and Geri Hoo (Miss Hawaii) was said to be considering a possible contract with Max Factor for personal appearances.

Miss Universe also will receive a $2,500 cash award from Max Factor and a Chevrolet V-8 convertible from the Long Beach Chevrolet dealers.

* * * *

ADALGISA COLOMBO (Miss Brazil), who was named first runner-up, will receive $1,500 cash plus an additional $1,500 contract for a personal appearance outside the United States, from Max Factor.

Miss Hawaii, second runner-up, will receive $1,400 cash from Max Factor.

Miss U.S.A., third runner-up, receives $1,000 cash, from Max Factor, and Alicja Bobrowska (Miss Poland), fourth runner-up, will get $600 cash, also from Max Factor.

The other 10 Miss Universe semifinalists will receive $100 cash each from Max Factor.

Miss U.S.A. runners-up also are taking home cash.

Marcia Vallbus (Miss Florida), first runner-up, gets $500; Judith Carlson (Miss Alabama), second, gets $400; June Pickney (Miss Illinois), third, $300, and Diane Gail Austin (Miss Georgia), fourth, $200, all from Max Factor.

KISSED ONLY ONCE!

That prettiness runs in the family of Luz Marina Zuloaga (Miss Universe) is shown here. The 19-year-old dark-eyed beauty is pictured with her mother who was present when judges ruled her fairest in all the world. Mrs. Zuloaga told newsmen the new Miss Universe has never had a date and never been kissed—except by actor Hugh O'Brian when the contestants toured the 20th Century Fox film studio last week.—(Staff Photo).

New Miss U Can't Believe It--'It Is Like a Dream'

that many thought another revolution had occurred, she laughed and said:

"I am glad they are so happy. It makes me very proud."

From her mother came these details of Luz's past:

She is one of five children from an upper-class family. Her father, a cattle and sugar-cane rancher, died 10 years ago. Until a month ago, she was a student at the Colegio de la Presentacion in her home town of Manizales.

"She is also an excellent cook and housekeeper, a very good equestrienne and tennis player," said Senora Zuloaga.

* * * *

"AND IT IS TRUE that she has never been kissed—except by that actor last week."

"That actor" was TV Westerner Hugh O'Brien, who merely brushed her cheek for a publicity picture.

Luz ended the interview when pageant officials became impatient with newsmen's question's But before she left, she turned, stretched out a hand, and spoke her only words of English:

"Thank you veree much," she said.

* * * *

THEN SHE FOLLOWED her armed guard to the Lafayette pool to display her beauty for photograhers.

And as she posed, another beautiful girl climbed onto the diving board at the other end of the pool to survey the milling crowd of cameramen and spectators.

There was a sound of freedom in Gladys Zender's voice as she waved and called out, "Hello, Miss Universe!" before diving gracefully and disappearing beneath the cool water.

1-Hour Strike Hits Mexico Railways

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's government-owned railway system was paralyzed Saturday by a one-hour nationwide strike. The strike was called by rebellious labor leaders to force the ouster of union officials recognized by the government.

Demetrio Vallejo, who headed the rebellion, said the one-hour strikes will continue daily until his group is recognized as the legal representative of the railroad workers.

$284 Loot in Compton Robbery

COMPTON—A bandit wearing a silk-stocking mask held up the woman manager of a Western Union telegraph office here Saturday night and looted a cash drawer and safe of $284.

Jinx Swoboda, 27, night manager of the office at 207 W. Compton Blvd., said the man pulled out a small - caliber pistol.

When she offered him the money in her purse, he ordered her to open the cash drawer and safe. After collecting the money the robber ordered her into a back room and told her he would kill her if she didn't remain there for 10 minutes.

Miss Swoboda described the bandit as 25 to 30 years old, six feet, one inch tall, and weighing 190 pounds.

Six Injured in Collision of Three Cars

HUNTINGTON BEACH—Six persons were injured, one critically, in a three-car collision here Saturday afternoon at Highway 39 and Adams St.

James W. Orr, 34, of 16879 A St., Huntington Beach, one driver, was tossed from his car. He was taken to Hoag Memorial Hospital in critical condition.

Also hospitalized was Mrs. Mrs. Marjorie Siefkin, 24, of Yorba Linda, who was in a car driven by her husband, Henry, 26. Siefkin and Paul J. Richards, 17, of Whittier, driver of the third car, and two of Richards' passengers, Phillip Kirk and Michael Stover, both 16, of Whittier, all were treated and released.

Police said Orr's automobile ran a boulevard stop and crashed into the side of the Siefkin's car. The impact pushed the second car into the path of Richards' auto.

Yugo Beauty Doesn't Get 'Miss' Title

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia Saturday night elected its most beautiful girl of the year but she will not be known as "Miss Yugoslavia."

This Communist country disapproves of the western custom of "Miss" contests, and it will call its queen simply "Lepotica 1958," meaning "Beauty 1958."

A jury of 11 men and women, including theater stars and sculptors, had the job of picking the beauty from 16 girls who paraded before them in bathing suits and evening gowns.

A majority vote gave the title to 20-year-old Sasha Dabetic, a raven-haired Zagreb student.

Postpone Thrift Shop's Opening

Opening of Community Thrift Shop at 7th St. and Pine Ave. has been postponed two weeks until Aug. 11 to allow employes to sort and shelve merchandise.

The shop is a project of Community Rehabilitation Industries, 1438 E. Anaheim St., nonprofit organization which trains handicapped persons for jobs in industry.

Profit from sales of used merchandise at the Thrift Shop will be used for expansion of the job-training program, according to Dr. Harold B. Warren, president of the board of directors.

West Powers at Odds on Summit Talk Details

resentatives of the Arab states concerned."

Macmillan proposed that the permanent council members—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Nationalist China—begin work "without delay" on a date and the makeup of a summit parley. This work should be in close cooperation with U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, Macmillan said.

DIPLOMATS AGREED after a survey of the Macmillan and De Gaulle notes that differences between the Anglo-American and French positions were mostly "procedural."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who arrived in London Saturday night for Baghdad Pact talks with Britain, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan heads of government, discussed the Mideast crisis in Bonn with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

According to a high Communist source in London, Russia is working on a summit proposal to "neutralize" parts of the Middle East through a small, international supervisory body.

KHRUSHCHEV REPLY DUE

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev is expected to fire an outraged reply to President Eisenhower's latest note on a summit conference within the United Nations.

The tone of Soviet reaction to Eisenhower's note was indicated by Tass News Agency, which accused Eisenhower of trying to back out of a summit conference.

Simultaneously, the official news agency accused the Western press of trying to scare Khrushchev away with stories of possible hostile demonstrations if the Soviet premier goes to New York.

In a report from its New York correspondent, Tass said Eisenhower wants to back out of a summit conference "in such a way that blame for the breakdown falls on the Soviet Union."

U.N. CIRCLES SEE N.Y. MEET

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — U.N. Security Council delegation sources expressed belief Saturday night the council will hold a summit meeting in New York on the Middle East crisis despite French Premier De Gaulle's preference for a big power conference in Europe.

Some said the meeting may start in a week or two.

Two such sources, talking with a reporter, pointed out that in stating his preference Saturday to Soviet Premier Khrushchev, De Gaulle did not rule out a high level meeting of the 11-nation council.

Oil Rights Granted

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Enrico Mattei, president of the Italian Petroleum Group, signed an agreement with the Moroccan government Saturday for oil prospecting rights and exploitation and the construction of an oil refinery in Morocco.

Beach Bird Not Florida Flamingo

Note to Florida: the flamingo reported seen near Tin Can Beach here is not one of the pair presented to Long Beach Mayor Raymond Kealer by Miss Florida last Saturday.

The long-legged red bird was reported seen in the marshes near the Bolsa Chica Gun Club today by Seal Beach Police.

A check revealed the two birds given Mayor Kealer had been turned over to Marineland of the Pacific. Both are thriving and apparently happy at the Palos Verdes aquarium, Marineland officials said.

Where the Orange County flamingo came from is anybody's guess. The birds are natives of the semi-tropical Florida everglades.

Symington Riles Democrats

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington's campaign billboards have irritated city Democratic leaders and they have decided a big fund-raising dinner here Sept. 20 will not be in his honor, as first planned.

The campaign signs include a large portrait of the Missouri Democratic senator and the terse message: "Re-elect Senator Symington." His party affiliation isn't mentioned.

Several members of the Democratic City Central Committee protested heatedly against the billboards in a meeting. The committee then adopted a carefully-worded resolution, redrafted several times, specifying the dinner shouldn't be in honor of any "national candidate."

The $25 and $100-a-plate dinner was first announced as a testimonial to Symington, boomed in some quarters as a possible candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

The committee chairman, City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, said Saturday that when the matter of the senator's billboards came up, "I had to agree that when a man runs as a Democrat he ought to say he's a Democrat."

NEW YORK (AP)—Those tireless preachers—Jehovah's Witnesses — blanketed New York City Saturday, and turned two huge baseball parks into idyllic gardens of trees, flowers and streams.

On many a street corner, you could hear a sermon.

And at Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, both of which are being used for the organization's mass international assembly opening today, the ball fields look more like Elysian fields.

From this country and abroad, the proclaimers of the "New World Kingdom" flooded the city—approximately 150,000 of them.

Busloads rolled into terminals at an overwhelming clip of 120 buses an hour much of the day. Sixty-five chartered planes, in addition to regular flights, landed at airports.

* * * *

THOUSANDS came by ship, including two transatlantic vessels chartered especially for the affair—the Swiss liners Arosa Star and Arosa Kulm. They docked Friday.

Eight entire chartered trains brought other contingents, and a caravan of 18,000 automobiles threaded its way into Manhattan. The influx packed hotels, and overflowed them.

Convention spokesmen said about 60,000 participants were lodged in hotels, and more than 70,000 quartered in private homes.

Sticking to their year-around evangelistic pursuits, the visitors lost no time in going to work on the big city.

Every full-fledged member is considered a minister, and in the style they've made a trademark, they fanned out to declare their message on street corners, in plazas and parks.

* * * *

WHEN THE curtain rises this morning on their gigantic "divine will" convention, it will be an arresting display—not only in numbers but in stage effects.

Both baseball parks, linked by an elaborate sound system, have been transformed into scenes of pastoral splendor.

In Yankee Stadium, a waterfall splashes down from an artificial mountain range and flows into a lake over third base. A rustic bridge arcs over it. White columns stand behind the brick-like main stage.

In the Polo Grounds, a simulated marble wall, 26 feet high, runs along the park-like setting, with its leafy arbors, smooth pink benches and large outdoor vases like something out of the palace grounds of ancient Rome. There's a pool, and an old-fashioned well with a bucket and rope.

Colorful native costumes blended with western dress among the delegates, who come from 120 countries, about 36,000 of them from overseas.

THE ORGANIZATION, legally constituted as the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, has about 716,000 active ministers, 208,260 of them in this country in 3,718 congregations, or "Kingdom Halls."

The society's president, Nathan H. Knorr, is the lifetime successor of Judge Joseph F. Rutherford, who died in 1952, after serving from 1916, when the founder, Charles Taze Russell, died. The organization dates from 1878.

Followers are avid students of the Bible, and also have various distinguishing beliefs. They spurn such titles as "reverend," "father" and rabbi" as unscriptural.

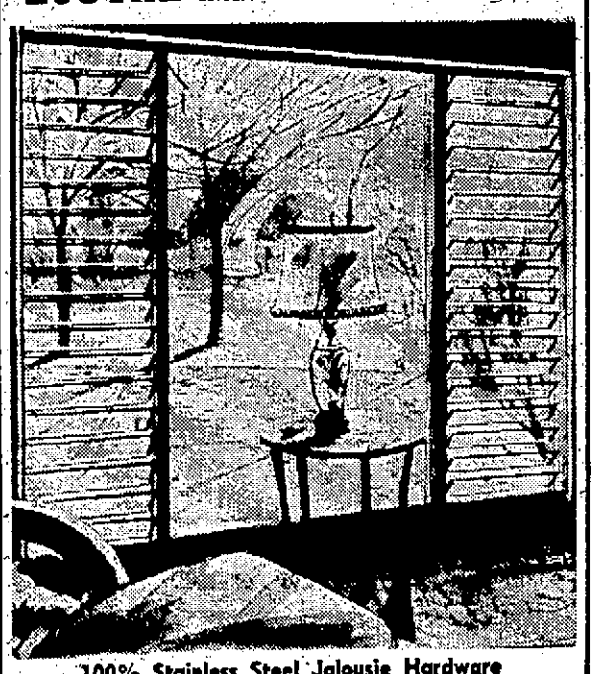

Because of their conviction that they owe allegiance only to God, they repeatedly have come into conflict with the law, as in their refusal to bear arms or salute the Flag.

Waxworks to Get Premier at Last

LONDON (UPI) — London's famous Madame Tussaud's waxworks may at long last have a model of a postwar French premier on display.

"We are making a model of premier Gen. Charles de Gaulle," a spokesman said. "He may be the first in exhibition since the war. None of the others has lasted long enough. If we had tried to keep with the changes, we would have had no time for anything else."

Nixon Won't Campaign for California's GOPs

By BILL BROOM
of I.P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Vice President Nixon has ruled out a big campaign tour in behalf of Republican candidates in California. He believes he can do more good by raising funds and masterminding from headquarters here than by fighting from the trenches.

The Vice President's plans are outlined in a confidential memo prepared for the guidance of GOP candidates, obtained exclusively by The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau.

While Nixon believes it imperative for the party to reverse big gains made by the Democrats in the primary election, he will confine his assistance to a major fund-raising effort. His goal is $1 million. Appearances at $100-a-plate dinners in early October at San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego have been scheduled.

The Vice President is said to feel that he personally cannot be decisive in the California campaign because he will not be on the ticket as a candidate.

In his analysis, the party's candidate for governor, Sen. William F. Knowland, is the key to GOP fortunes. And Nixon has prepared a blueprint for the Knowland campaign, even to the extent of outlining a "basic speech" for the senator.

Nixon also plans to work on Gov. Goodwin Knight in an effort to heal his personal breach with Knowland and thus restore harmony to Republican ranks. The Vice President has consistently hammered at the "unity" theme in frequent conferences with members of the state's congressional delegation since the June 3 primary.

NIXON
He'll Raise Money

The confidential memorandum, prepared by one who has been in close and intimate contact with Nixon for the past two weeks, maps out a campaign emphasizing the personal shortcomings of Knowland's opponent, Atty. Gen. Edmund (Pat) Brown, and the "ultra-liberal" background of California Democratic leaders.

It calls for Knowland and other Republican candidates to destroy "the public image of Brown as a safe man" who can attract support from conservative Democrats and liberal Republicans. As a corollary, the memorandum concludes that Brown should be challenged to "repudiate fanatical left-wingers in the CIO-ADA crowd who control the Democratic party and wish to socialize California."

The Vice President is also said to believe that Knowland has won all the support he is going to win from the "right to work" issue. This should now be soft-pedaled, it is said; and emphasis placed on the senator's 13-point program for "union democracy" through new state labor laws.

Staying above the battle, so to speak, would be a new role for Nixon. As the party's most dynamic spokesman, he led the attack on Democrats by taking the stump in the 1954 off-year elections.

His decision was said to have been influenced by the large number of appeals for help from Republicans all over the nation and by the necessity to remain close to Washington throughout the Middle East crisis. Invitations have come in from 18 states. Wherever possible, Nixon will attempt to help in the same way as in California—through fund-raising efforts.

Newsboys Will Visit Pacific Ocean Park

Pacific Ocean Park in Santa Monica, the new multi-million-dollar family outdoor entertainment attraction, is preparing to roll out the red carpet for Independent, Press-Telegram newspaperboys.

Non-subscribers may help boys qualify for an all-expense paid trip to this "oceanic wonderland" by subscribing to The Independent or Press-Telegram. Give your order to the newspaperboy on your block or call any of the four regional offices and tell the circulation department to credit the carrier with the subscription.

Arriving by chartered buses, the boys will visit 40 attractions ranging from a sea circus and a flight to Mars to a south sea island. Trips on the Ocean Skyway Ride in transparent bubble cars and on the Ocean Highway Auto Ride will be other highlights of the day.

Boron Smuggled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department Saturday named boron as the U.S.-produced strategic commodity most often diverted to Communist countries in violation of the export-control law.

The Bureau of Foreign Commerce said this item, used in rocket fuels, has been illegally shipped behind the Iron Curtain in the form of borax and boric acid.

Editor Reports Revolt Details

you to the Ministry of Information and you can get news to send to The Associated Press. But I must go now because of the curfew."

That afternoon the strangers who were cooped in as fellow guests began exchanging the reports and rumors they had heard:

The British Embassy had been burned out; British, Americans, some other foreigners had been killed. Some of the reports came from the Iraqui government radio, whose continuous statements about the revolution were translated by the Iraquis who had the less-skilled jobs in the hotel and whose English was rather inadequate; some came from European members of the hotel staff who had been outside part of the morning; some came from guests who had seen Iraqui acquaintances or people at other hotels.

* * * *

THE BIG UNCERTAINTY was whether the army division which had taken control of Baghdad and begun the revolution would receive support or encounter opposition from the greater part of the army, most of it to the north. Some of us with experience in other countries realized only too well that a fight between different units of the army, or anything else which lifted army control from Baghdad, would result in the lowest elements of the city running wild in an orgy of looting, murder and destruction. Foreigners would be prime targets.

The streets emptied gradually that afternoon. Individuals and small groups up to three or four were seen long after the one o'clock curfew. The radio announced that the next day everything was to be business as usual. But in the hotel the night was uneasy.

The next morning, the vacant lot across the street from my room was a tangle of parked cars. Many people were on the street. But the people stood talking together, often with excited gestures, instead of moving about normally. About 9:30 my friend came in his automobile for me.

"We'll see if we can get to the Ministry of Information," he said. Several blocks along we came to a traffic circle, where a street coming from a bridge over the Tigris River intersected the one we were on. Two tanks were parked at the circle: Crew members sat on top of the tanks and sprawled on the grass of the circle nursing sub-machine guns and rifles.

* * * *

UP AHEAD of us, several men started running in the direction we were headed. In a moment, it seemed, the movement spread our way. Hastily, my friend turned up a narrow side street.

We got onto a street parallel with the first one, to try to continue in the direction we wanted. Once again something beyond our sight started the formation on the run of another crowd. Again my friend took to a narrow side street.

"I don't think we better try to go to the ministry now," he said.

"We'll go to a newspaper office." I followed him into a winding lane so narrow that if I had spread my arms wide I would have touched the walls on each side at some places. From the corner of my eye I watched nervously the people we met. But, as they seemed to pay no particular attention to me, I relaxed. "This is a part of the old city," my friend explained as we turned off into another lane in which overhanging enclosed balconies almost met at places.

* * * *

THE NEWSPAPER office was in small rooms on the second floor of an old building. My friend took me into one office where I met a couple of men who could speak a little English. One was a sports editor, another some sort of departmental editor. I was asked to sit down. From time to time other men came into the office, several of them apparently connected with the papers but others not.

I was offered an American soft drink. The editors settled down to work, one writing Arabic with a pen from right to left on coarse copy paper. My friend said it would be all right if I just stayed there while he went off on an errand.

Interruptions came frequently for the working editors. Men who came in beamed, sometimes embraced those already there. One newcomer and a man in the room kissed each other noisily on the lips. The feeling between them seemed to be of intense jubilation, perhaps somewhat quieted since the day before but still intense.

* * * *

ANOTHER ROUND of soft drinks. In pauses, men talked to me about the government that had been overthrown, of corruption and "thieves" in high places, that the rulers of the Hashemite family had been imposed on Iraq by the British after World War II when Iraq supposedly was to be a free nation.

"It was a police state," they said again and again. "They had spies on the people. A report by even an unimportant policeman against you could mean a stop to your business, maybe you would be put in prison. Our written constitution has in it the same freedoms you have in America; but the people who controlled the government did not carry out what was in the constitution."

The radio had offered a 10,000 dinar ($28,000) reward for information leading to the capture of Nuri Said, former prime minister.

* * * *

"I THOUGHT HE was supposed to be an honest man," I said of this Iraqi, who had been the strongman of his country. "Perhaps so," was the answer, "but he defended and kept in high places men he knew were crooks."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because he needed them to keep his power," was the answer.

Another editor came in with a small camera. "The pictures in here are worth a million dollars," he said, as he slapped the camera. He took out the film and gave it to someone to be developed. Then he took out of a drawer a picture which he passed to those in the office and which caused much talk in Arabic. I finally held out my hand.

* * * *

IT WAS A PICTURE across the heads of a crowd in a small plaza, apparently taken from the second or third floor of some building in dim light. "What is it?" I asked.

"The naked body of the Crown Prince Abdul Ilah is hanging there on the other side."

"I couldn't see where, until it was pointed out to me: a darkish thin oval whose lower end was about even with heads of the crowd hung from a rope attached to an upper balcony.

Explorer IV Expected to Live 5 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. scientists estimated Saturday that on the basis of preliminary data, America's newest satellite, Explorer IV, might remain aloft four or five years.

From satellite radio signals monitored by stations on earth, scientists estimated Explorer IV's orbit at between 80 and 100 miles at the lowest point and approximately 1,300 miles at the highest.

Defense Department scientists said an altitude range of 120 to 1,300 miles would mean a five-year life for the new satellite — an 80-inch tube weighing 38.43 pounds.

Dr. James Van Allen of Iowa State University, one of the new satellite's leading developers, said, however, there is a possibility it could be short-lived—depending on the orbit finally achieved.

* * * *

EXPLORER IV was launched at an agle intended to give it an orbit ranging from a minimum distance of 180 miles to a maximum of 1,200.

Van Allen said initial data indicated the satellite is circling the earth in approximately 112 minutes at speeds ranging from 14,000 to 18,000 miles an hour, depending on the altitude.

At a news conference shortly after the launching at Cape Canaveral, Van Allen said the launching angle would assure much wider geographic coverage of the earth than by previous U.S. satellites. This, he said, is highly important in the satellite's No. 1 task—collecting data on deadly radiation in outer space.

Other scientists at the news conference said the particular launching angle used was as steep as could safely be made from the East Coast. But Dr. Herbert York of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency said that eventually satellite and other launchings will be made from the West Coast. However, he added "I can't say whether these will take place this year or not."

Van Allen and others said they would have preferred an even steeper orbit for Explorer IV as an aid toward more extensive study of the radiation. But they said the one chosen was the steepest they could employ from the Cape Canaveral site.

* * * *

WHILE EARLIER Explorer satellites had shown the presence of the strange radiation, Van Allen said a good deal more needs to be learned about it, including the energy of the radiation particles and their intensity—meaning the number of rays that strike a given area in a given time.

He said newly devised instruments aboard the new satellite would be capable of recording intensities between 1,000 and 5,000 times greater than those in the previous Explorers.

One of the devices aboard Explorer IV, Van Allen said, consists of a pair of radiation counters, one unshielded, the other protected by lead one millimeter thick. The difference in readings is expected to provide a measure of lead's effectiveness against the strange emanations.

UTAH CITIES INVADED BY STINK BUGS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Hordes of foul-smelling stink bugs invaded Utah cities and towns Saturday from nearby desert regions.

The bugs first were reported in Tooele, about 40 miles southwest of here, but later began moving into Salt Lake City and other areas of north central Utah.

Policeman Lynn Henwood said the bugs arrived about 2 a.m. and within an hour the main street of Tooele was crawling with the green-tinted insects.

SALVATIONISTS IN CAMP MEETING

5,000 'Soldiers' Invade L.B.

An old-fashioned revival camp meeting—almost a thing of the past in this generation—is under way at Municipal Auditorium.

Sponsoring the meeting is the Salvation Army. An estimated 5,000 "soldiers" has invaded the city—on a mission of peace and good will.

Delegates to the sessions, which end Aug. 2, are here from every state and Canada.

Meetings are scheduled daily, 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., in the auditorium Concert Hall.

Featured are such well-known Salvation Army officers as the national commander, Commissioner Norman S. Marshall; eastern territorial commander, Commissioner Holland French; western territorial commander, Lt. Commissioner Samuel Hepburn; divisional commander for Southern California, Lt. Col. William J. Parkins; Mrs. General Albert Orsborn, wife of the Army's former general, and Col. Albert Dalziel, Toronto, Canada, evangelist.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHT of the opening weekend services is the appearance of the New York Staff Band of the Army. The all-brass group, believed to be finest of its kind in the country, will play at a Festival of Music at 3 p.m. today.

Holiness meeting is set for 10:30 a.m. and a salvation meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Monday night, a program billed as a Great Music Festival featuring the New York Staff Band begins at 8 p.m. The band, which appeared earlier at Disneyland, returns to the East Tuesday.

A women's rally is slated Tuesday night. Speaker will be Mrs. Orsborn, of London, England.

A youth rally is slated for Wednesday night and speaking will be Sr. Capt. Robert McNally, dynamic young Salvation Army officer of New York City. He has won acclaim for his boys' band in the metropolis.

REVIVAL MEETINGS AT AUDITORIUM

Sounding the call for the Salvation Army's annual old-fashioned revival camp meeting, under way at Municipal Auditorium, are Marjorie Deeth and Tom Petersen, both of Long Beach. The nine-day meeting will feature internationally known religious speakers and music by the well known New York Staff Salvation Army Band, one of the finest brass groups in the nation.

Congress Aspirant Rips Ike's 'Mideast Blunder'

By BOB HOUSER

Dr. Harry S. May, Democratic nominee for Congress in the Long Beach-Lakewood 18th District, attacked the Eisenhower Administration's "Middle East blunder brawl" Saturday.

"Today we are in the awkward position," May said, "of begging Great Britain and France to prop us up while we sit uncomfortably on the Middle Eastern powder keg. Today we rationalize and try to justify military actions, which we condemned in our allies in 1956.

* * * *

"IT MUST BE deeply embarrassing to the men around Ike to admit today that they should have acted two years ago during the Suez crisis, and acted resolutely and firmly when there was an opportunity to stop Dictator Nasser of Egypt who had written a Hitlerian blueprint for the entire Arab Mediterranean basin. At that time, via an ultimatum no less, we forced Great Britain, France and Israel out of Suez while Nasser's head was already on the block. We reprieved him and saved his neck. Today he has become a pain in the neck."

May charged that Eisenhower's "vacillation and indecision on domestic issues, his lack of international vision, have created a situation that can end only in disaster. Both 'modern Republicans' and Knowland dissenters, with the present congressional incumbent numbering among them, share in the blame for this present impasse of our global dilemma.

"Regardless of whether we back our hastily conceived overseas adventure, we must formulate a foreign policy that will salvage American prestige abroad, that will renew efforts of collaboration between real and sincere friends and democratic peoples everywhere.

* * * *

"IF WE HAD BEEN honest for the last six years, we could have saved the Middle East for the democracies; through our Point Four and technical assistance programs we had a chance to encourage Arab nationalism of the kind Bourghiba, a friend of the West, represents in Tunisia, and other democratic elements to escape the shackles of semifeudalism.

"Instead we courted and coddled the wrong few potentates, the harem keepers, slave traders, dictators and would-be tyrants.

"Our appeasement, indecision and makeshift blunderings have only been signs of weakness which gave aid and comfort to all those Middle Eastern aggressors who flirt with Communism and make a shambles of the Eisenhower Doctrine and our traditional alliances."

Relief Offered Wearers of Thick Lensed Glasses

Thousands of people who are wearing unpleasant appearing, thick lensed glasses can now enjoy improved vision and freedom from the burdensome weight of the spectacles, according to vision authorities. They explain that extreme far- and near-sightedness, astigmatism, keratoconus (swelling of the cornea), and postoperative cataract are conditions for which contact lenses are especially good. The field of vision is much greater, and the vision is keener with contact lenses. The thinness and lightness of the new plastic lenses have tremendous cosmetic and functional value, and the psychological effect on the wearer cannot be overemphasized. With a diameter no larger than an eraser tip, modern plastic contact lenses are easy to apply, and they are designed to be worn around the clock. Easy terms. Come in, or write for fascinating booklet. DR. J. M. SOSS, Optometrist (32 years in Long Beach). 37 Pine Avenue. HE 5-6219; HE 6-6739. Offices in Wilmington and Torrance.

POST-PAGEANT PATTER: Latin America continues its conquest of the North. The neighbors down there are just passing the Miss Universe crown around.

Three years ago there was some bitter complaining south of the border, where it was felt their dark-haired beauties weren't getting a fair shake at Long Beach. Now lovely Miss Luz Marina (light of the sea) Zuloaga makes it two in a row for Latin America, which ought to take care of that . . .

It evened the score with the Far North, too. Two from the north Europe (Finland and Sweden), two from South America (Peru and Colombia), two from the U. S. (Carolina and Iowa) and one from France—that's the Miss U record so far . . .

As for me, I wouldn't have minded a victory for Miss Japan this time. She was not only a worthy aspirant—as were all the girls from over the Pacific—but I drew her name in one of those pools. Oh well, I also had half of Miss Colombia, so I'm not complaining. . . .

It would seem what has happened in Long Beach ought to build some improved relations in South America. They'll have to admit their girls were treated better here than our VP was down there . . .

* * * *

BY THE way, the international good will aspect of the Miss Universe event, so much in evidence to observers close at hand, hasn't really gotten through to other parts of the USA yet. It's really a United Nations of Feminine Beauty, and it does a lot better along the lines of international amity than does the UN operation at New York. Making that evident to other areas calls for a good selling job in behalf of the Long Beach pageant.

Some people from the Northwest, here this week, attended the pageant and watched on TV. They reported they had no idea it was anything more than a glorified bathing beauty contest. They're going home, singing the praises of the event as something that carries a real international goodwill wallop . . .

* * * *

BY AND large, it seemed to me that this year's pageant was more smoothly and efficiently operated than any so far—which, I suppose, is the result of experience. More careful supervision from the standpoint of the rules prevented any such blowups as occurred last year, when one girl was disqualified after winning a title, and another title was in jeopardy for a while.

Every detail of the operation was carried through smoothly this time, and the shows, both for the audience in the auditorium and that for TV, were great. The favorable L. B. publicity, of course, is terrific.

* * * *

A CARAVAN has the proverbial "follow the leader" qualities of a band of sheep, a fact that was never more admirably exemplified than by what happened here the other day. In that case, however, it followed the wrong leader.

It was right after they opened the Long Beach Freeway. When the ceremonies closed, a long line of cars formed, carrying various state and city officials and other dignitaries into Long Beach for a luncheon sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Kealer was in the lead car. Right behind him was a car carrying Harbor Commission President Joe Bishop and Harbor Mgr. Charles Vickers. The others were strung out behind.

As the second car came into Ocean Blvd., Bishop told Vickers, who was driving, to break out of the caravan and take him to his place of business. The press of other affairs made it impossible for him to go to the luncheon.

Vickers swung out as requested and was heading for Bishop's office when he happened to glance into the rear-view mirror.

"Do you see what I see?" he asked Bishop.

Sure enough, there was the whole danged caravan, following Bishop-Vickers car. There was nothing to do but to change signals and guide the caravan over to the Lafayette for the luncheon.

When they arrived, Mayor Kealer and companion were standing at the entrance of the parking lot, scratching their heads.

"Where'd everybody go?" the mayor asked.

LIFE CAN BE BRIGHT . . . Even Without Sight

By LOU JOBST

There's a world of brightness outside the darkness around Mark and Marcia Stokes, 9-year-old twins, and they want to live in it.

Mark found it in his first awkward dive from a swimming-pool board, and Marcia in the promise she can learn to rock-and-roll when she's old enough.

"Dad calls doing these things 'shelter-busting'," explained the freckle-faced Mark.

"You know how people always say we live a sheltered life," added Marcia, tugging on a white bathing cap with a pink carnation pinned to the strap.

Their swimming instructor, Mrs. Anne Simkins, shouted, "Come down to this end, kids!"

The sister and brother paused uncertainly, felt for the edge of the wall and headed off toward the voice.

Mark and Marcia are blind.

But you'd have to be told to believe it.

And that's a tribute to the Blind Youth Activities Club, a Long Beach-area organization dedicated to adapting sightless children to a normal society.

The BYA was formed a year ago by the Parents of the Blind, a local organization of adults that grew out of the need for group discussion of the problems faced in rearing blind children.

"We soon discovered that the need for physical exercises and recreational activities for normal, healthy bodies and a way to give the children a sense of belonging were repeated concerns," explained Dr. Roy Stokes, president of the parents' group and father of Marcia and Mark.

"Society views the blind with pity, but is reluctant to accept the sightless on an equal basis," added Norris Anderson of 4614 Lavante St., Long Beach, a professional soldier who gave up his military career and moved to Long Beach when he learned that his son, Wayne, 9, was going blind. "Since we can't change the culture, we decided to adapt our children to it."

The results have been amazing. By capitalizing on the keen development of the other senses—hearing, touch and smell—the BYA has been able to teach sightless children a wide range of normal and complicated activities such as dancing, swimming, archery, charm-school modeling and softball.

The latter is typical of the ingenious innovations. An oversized ball with a bell attached is used and each player is given a wooden stick to rap on the wooden bases with. Fielders and runners must yell when moving.

Realizing the wide differences in interests in pre-adulthood years, the 105 members of the BYA have been divided into two groups, one for pre-teeners and another for teenagers.

Counseling is the key to both programs. One adult instructor is needed to each three children as compared to the 1-to-30 ratio for sighted youngsters. Most of the counselors and instructors are parents of blind, but several are volunteers from outside the organization.

One such volunteer is Mrs. Anne Simkins of 3209 Studebaker Rd., the mother of two normal boys and director of the BYA swimming program. Although she had taught swimming for years, it was necessary to devise an entirely new means of instruction.

Mrs. Simkins uses sound and touch extensively. For instance, children are told to whistle into their hands to communicate the idea of bubbles caused by breathing in the water.

Many obstacles must be overcome and the process is often slow. The inherent fear of water is accented when children have no visual conception of what causes the pressure around their bodies.

"But they have their own advantages," explains Mrs. Simkins. "They don't mind being jostled in a crowded pool. They're used to being bumped into."

For the patient and persistent student there is the reward of independence when he becomes competent enough to swim in a public pool without direct supervision.

Summed up Counselor Simkins:

"These children have a remarkable desire to excel and a heart-touching need for recognition and acceptance.

"When I approve of their performances they won't just take my word for it.

"They have to feel the smile on my face."

1,500 Southland Reservists Train as Army Logisticians

Special Unit Solves Problems of Supply for Defensive Force of 400,000 Soldiers

By JAMES ALLEN
I, P-T Military Editor

Fifteen hundred Southern California Army reservists have been solving problems of supply—the bugaboo of military commanders for 2,000 years—in a huge summer exercise during the past two weeks at Camp Roberts.

The reservists, many of them from Long Beach, are attached to the 311th Logistical Command, largest Army headquarters reserve unit in the nation. Their training is part of a specialized logistics program which the Army has conducted since 1949 to avoid supply errors which have plagued armies in the past.

* * * *

THE LOGISTICAL problem assigned this year by the Continental Army Command was concerned with providing complete support for a combat army of 400,000 men which was repelling a European aggressor force.

Long Beach units which took part in the exercise are the 207th Field Press Censorship Detachment, commanded by Lt. Col. Bill Wray, manager of the advertising plans department of The Independent, Press-Telegram; the 889th Quartermaster Company (Petroleum Depot), commanded by Capt. Robert S. Walling, Anaheim, and the 736th Transportation Company, commanded by 1st Lt. Casey N. E. Shim, Midway City.

Nineteen Southern California industrial and business leaders were briefed on the mission and capabilities of a logistical command in a one-day visit to Camp Roberts last Thursday.

Brig. Gen. F. C. Mencaccy, commanding general of the 311th, told the visitors that the logistical command, in wartime, would obtain, store and issue about 940,000 separate items required by a field army.

These would include all subsistence items, clothing, fuels and lubricants, ammunition, engineer construction materials, signal equipment, vehicles, ordnance materials and medical supplies.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, he said, it would operate general supply depots, railroads, seaports, petroleum pipelines, general hospitals, convalescent centers, communication centers, training areas, recreation areas and decontamination centers.

Today's field army consumes 8,500 tons of supplies daily, Brig. Gen. Mencaccy said. Moving this mountain of material would require 195 railroad cars, 660 12-ton cargo trucks or 990 C123 air transports.

Taking a look at military history, Brig. Gen. Mencaccy said that the Battle of Hastings in 1066 was "a glaring example of complete disregard for the importance of the relationship of supply to combat."

* * * *

HE SAID THAT William the Conqueror fooled the English king into waiting four months for the cross-channel invasion of the Normans. At the end of that time, English supplies were exhausted and Harold's army was disbanded and sent home. William made a desperate gamble and crossed the channel with 7,000 men and three days' supplies. His timing was perfect. It was Sept. 27 and local crops were abundant. The English king rallied his forces, but it was several weeks before they were organized for battle.

* * * *

"THE OPPONENTS met Oct. 14, three weeks after the Norman landing," Brig. Gen. Mencaccy related. "By nightfall, the English king had lost the battle, his country and his life. If Harold, the English king, had properly related his supply requirements to his tactical plan, which included surprising the Normans immediately upon landing, he should have continued to maintain his forces intact until the Normans appeared. He should have known that the fall crops would soon be harvested."

The general said that in Napoleon's Russian campaign, "accurately planned suport for the combat soldier was lacking and the French eventually were defeated by lack of communications, hunger and fatigue."

* * * *

"IN OUR OWN Civil War," Brig. Gen. Mencaccy said, "almost every campaign developed a supply system of its own. The only conspicuous lesson was that the preponderance of industrial capacity in the North overwhelmed the enthusiasm of the South."

In World War I, the general said, the staging system was found more effective in positional warfare than in mobile combat and the German supply system was re-examined. He said litle progress was made by either side in developing supply systems, with the exception of the huge overseas shipments made by the United States. This became the blueprint for overseas shipments in World War II.

THE GENERAL told his guests that the U. S. Army's pentamic concept of combat units, designed to concentrate on attack, rapid dispersion and regrouping, plus the introduction of thermonuclear weapons, has further complicated the logistician's problems.

"However, U. S. Army planners propose to avoid the supply errors of the past 2,000 years by training individuals and having available logistical commands capable of supporting conventional or atomic tactical situations," he said.

Chest Sets 'Austerity Goal'

An "austerity" goal of $953,953 has been set for the United Neighbors Campaign, James G. Craig Jr., president of the Community Chest, announced Saturday.

"Despite an obvious need to provide more services in our growing communities," said Norbert W. Dean, budget committee chairman, "the Chest budget committee has had to recommend that additional personnel and greater allowances for repairs, replacements and new equipment be cut out of nearly all budgets."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH agency statistics show nearly every other family in our four communities (Lakewood, Signal Hill, Dominguez and Long Beach) is receiving direct services from one or more Community Chest agencies, the higher basic operating cost necessitates cuts in agency requests," said Dean.

"The budget committee was given a total of $1,111,563 in agency requests—$244,867 more than was allocated for this year and over $267,000 more than was raised last fall," Dean said.

Dean reminded budget committee members that it has been necessary to use part of the Chest reserve funds for family-child agencies, emergency financial aid and medical assistance, because the community failed to contribute sufficient money for agency operations in the last drive.

* * * *

THE AUSTERITY "minimum goal" this year represents 12.9 per cent more than was raised previously, Craig noted.

"It is apparent that hundreds of firms and employes not contributing in past drives must be shown how Chest services benefit them."

Now under way is a compilation of agency reports on places of employment of persons receiving agency services. The information will be used to prove to businesses, emloyes and their families how the various health, welfare, community and youth services are provided them and the cost.

A Hair-Raising Drama of the Lower Depths

By HARRY KARNS

IT'S HARD TO find duller words than "repressurization" and "unitization."

Yet, every day for the past three years an average of 2,200 persons have streamed eagerly into the Richfield Oil Corp. show at Disneyland to see and hear these terms explained.

"The World Beneath Us" rates without doubt as the simplest, most fascinating, and most instructive explanation offered.

* * * *

THE SHOW HAS SPECIAL attraction for Long Beach viewers.

The central action takes place in—or more precisely, under—their city.

Long Beach wants to apply to oil operations in its harbor area the same sane principles illustrated by "The World Beneath Us."

The city wants to prevent land sinkage and promote conservation of a vital natural resource—and engineering experts think "repressurization" under the "unit" plan will accomplish both aims.

The Richfield show is in two parts.

The first part, a Walt Disney animated cartoon-documentary film in technicolor, traces the geological history of the earth to the present.

The second part continues the story, focussing down on the subject of oil and problems involved in its production.

The latter part, produced by La Brea Productions, Inc., of Hollywood, features an oil dome beneath the city and harbor of Long Beach.

In this "Hole-in-the-Ground Theater" the Professor, acting as stage manager, presents the story, highlights of which are illustrated in the panels reproduced herewith. In this "typical oil pool deep in the earth" the Professor introduces three members of his cast: Mr. Salt Water, Mr. Oil, and Mr. Gas.

All three are prisoners. Sluggish Mr. Salt Water doesn't care any more, and Mr. Oil has been overcome by heat and pressure. Mr. Gas has a lively interest in escaping, but can't find a way out.

Some new actors are introduced to relieve the situation. They are property owners. They drill wells. Mr. Gas rushes out and carries some Oil along with him, backed up by Salt Water. But after all the Gas has rushed out, there are still a lot of the Oil brothers left in the trap. The oil pool is sick.

* * * *

THE PROFESSOR CALLS in Dr. Unitization, who examines the patient—the oil pool—and intones gloomily: "Enemia of the hydrostatistics . . . incipient porosity . . . low pressure areas overlying the adiabatics . . . virus W . . ."

The only hope, warns Dr. Unitization, lies in cooperation among the property owners. They must restore pressure to the oil trap. He prescribes that ALL the land owners take part in the program of repressurization by pumping Gas and Salt Water back into the oil pool to lift Oil up to the wells.

The land owners take the prescription. The oil pool gets well again and produces. Everybody is happy.

"COOPERATION BY THE OWNERS," the Professor concludes, "added to the work of Gas and the support of Salt Water will result in getting about three times more oil out of the trap than would have been possible without such cooperation.

"Nature made an oil pool a single unit, and Nature says it should be operated as a single unit.

"It's wise to unitize."

* * * *

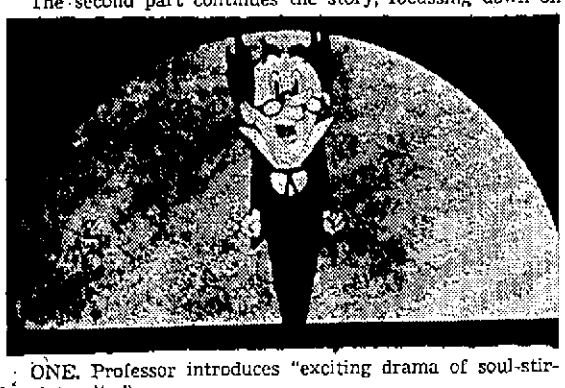

FROM THE STANDPOINT of Long Beach the wisdom of unitization lies not only in the good it does as an oil conservation measure, but also in the hope it offers for ending the nightmarish problem of subsidence in our harbor area.

Reduction of underground pressures due to oil production has caused as much as 25 feet of land sinkage in the harbor, creating a threat to lives, property, and the economic health of the area.

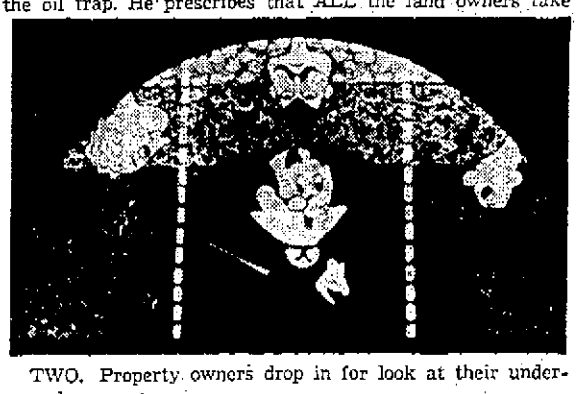

To halt this sinkage, pressures must be restored, not piecemeal but by cooperative action among all the operators.

In the absence of unitization, the world beneath us is going to sink even farther beneath us.

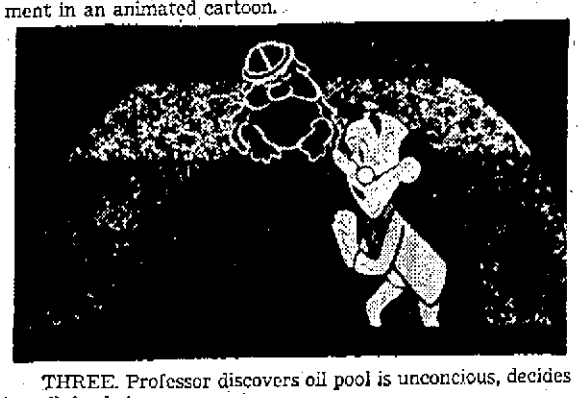

The sequel could be something hardly suitable for treatment in an animated cartoon.

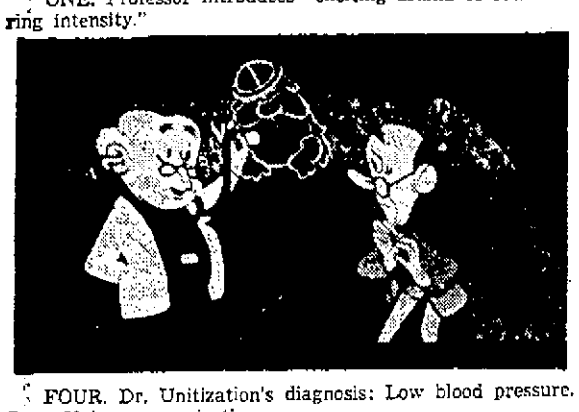

ONE. Professor introduces "exciting drama of soul-stirring intensity."

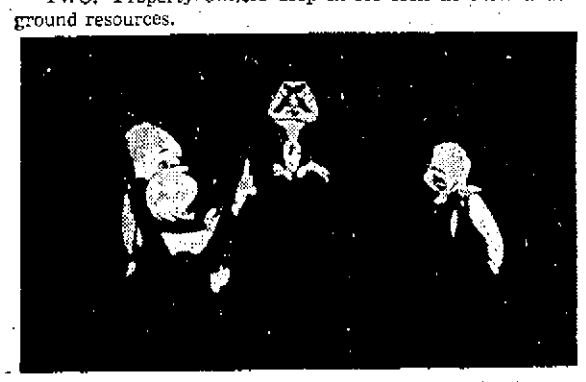

TWO. Property owners drop in for look at their underground resources.

THREE. Professor discovers oil pool is unconcious, decides to call for help.

FOUR. Dr. Unitization's diagnosis: Low blood pressure. Cure: Unit repressurization.

FIVE. Professor points to villain of the piece—uncooperative property owner.

SIX. After villain is converted, magnifying glass shows life stirring again in oil pool.

L.B. Should Shed Timidity, Seek Legal Settlements

TWO YEARS HAVE PASSED since the California Legislature approved Assembly Bill No. 77—a compromise bill designed to hasten settlement of questions of state and municipal rights in the Long Beach tidelands.

Did or did not the bill mean what it said?

Here, to refresh memories, is a passage from that legislation, now Chapter 29, Statutes 1956, First Extraordinary Session:

A purpose of state-wide interest and benefit will be served by the determination of the respective rights and interests of the city and the State in and to past and future hydrocarbon revenues derived from the Long Beach tidelands. Such determination will so fix and clarify the respective entitlement of the State and the city as to permit the early termination of the pending litigation by means of stipulations between the State and city and, so far as necessary or appropriate, through the entry of court orders, decrees and judgments. Such a disposition of the litigation will permit early liberation and utilization of the impounded sums for urgently needed public purposes and will avoid the public detriment incident to protracted litigation between the State and one of its major municipalities.

Despite the clear meaning of that passage, which provides for early settlement of problems, very little progress has been made.

Of the numerous undetermined questions, the city has initiated litigation on but one—the propriety of financing the construction of the Armed Services YMCA building from the tidelands oil fund. Superior Judge A. Curtis Smith ruled on Dec. 2, 1957, that the city may legally use tideland oil funds for the purpose. The state appealed the decision. Now, almost eight months later, the outcome of that case remains in suspense.

MEANWHILE, THE CITY has not even started legal action on other problems that cry for settlement. What are our rights with regard to spending tidelands oil money for:

—Construction of marina bridge approaches.

—Construction and repair of seawalls in the Alamitos Bay area.

—Construction, repair, and maintenance of beach facilities including bath houses, parking lots, beautification, comfort stations, roadways, and other public conveniences.

—Construction of the auditorium annex.

—Beach cleaning and maintenance, lifeguard protection, and beach patrol services and special beach policing?

At present the general purpose fund of the city finances $500,000 yearly for operation and maintenance of tidelands beach facilities. A favorable decision on the question of using tidelands funds for this purpose would greatly relieve the general purpose fund. Long Beach should request such a decision, pointing out several precedents for such use of tidelands funds. Tidelands revenues are spent, for example, by Newport Beach for payment of lifeguard services on tidelands. Can't we do the same? Let's find out.

BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL now is the question of whether to start immediate litigation on the numerous undecided questions.

We believe it is time for the city to quit being timid in these legal matters and to act boldly to secure what it is entitled to—prompt decisions on how and whether it can spend money which this city has produced on its own initiative from local tidelands.

Every day of delay increases the danger that covetous outsiders will seek again to slice into the tideland fund, which grows temptingly larger because of lack of authority here to spend it on badly needed projects of public benefit.

It is time to act positively and aggressively.

The City Council should establish a policy ordering immediate action to settle all of the diverse legal questions. It has the authority; it has the responsibility.

The City Attorney should carry out that policy promptly and vigorously.

The California Attorney General should, in the spirit of AB 77, give the city all possible cooperation in granting or in expediting determination of Long Beach's requests.

Too much time has been lost already.

R-W Issue Threat to GOP Harmony

THE STATE Republican Convention must make public by 6 p.m. one week from today its platform stand, or lack of one, on right-to-work.

Although many political observers belittle R-W as a campaign issue, there is no doubt that it has posed the greatest threat to GOP party harmony throughout the state ticket.

HOUSER

When State Treasurer A. Ronald Button stated his opposition to R-W last week, he joined the club of go-it-aloners which already included Senate aspirant Gov. Knight and incumbents Lt. Gov. Powers, Controller Kirkwood and Secretary of State Jordan. Only attorney general nominee Patrick Hillings remained as an advocate of a campaign of unity behind Sen. William Knowland.

Delegates to the state convention Aug. 2 and 3 in Sacramento include state officeholders, nominees for those offices, the state's senators and congressmen and members of the State Legislature. Each of these delegates appoints three persons to be members of the State General Committee.

The last convention platform in 1956 favored the union shop. Considering the presently indicated sentiment against R-W by this year's delegates linked with the urgent need for a harmonious party front in November, the likelihood of adopting a "hands-off" plank on R-W is great.

* * * *

CONVENTION endorsement of R-W would be a vote of confidence for Knowland. But at the same time it would provoke a promised minority report from Gov. Knight who opposes R-W. It would also run counter to the positions already assumed by other state incumbents and who were strong on the GOP ticket in the June primary.

Despite the breach in attitudes on R-W among office seekers, Republicans are generally agreed that it need not be a hassle at the convention. They say the measure's qualification on the November ballot has put it in the hands of the voters, outside the realm of platform.

Convention leaders attach far more importance to the selection of a chairman of the State Central Committee. Since the retiring chairman is Alphonzo Bell, of Los Angeles, the new chief must, by law, be from the North. He is important because of the challenge the GOP faces in the wake of its primary vote deficits.

Progress Report on the Summit

DAVID LAWRENCE

Talking Better Than Fighting

WASHINGTON — It's better to be talking than fighting. Nor does America have any good reason to fear a battle of words. So, the more "summit" conferences, the better. For the United States will thereby have an unexampled opportunity to tell the whole world just why international peace is threatened not merely in the Middle East but everywhere else.

The widespread idea that a "summit" conference really means a serious "negotiation" is fallacious. The machinery of informal, private negotiation through diplomatic channels has long been available but has lain dormant because the Soviets don't want to negotiate. They are confident that they can win by threats and propaganda manuevers.

LAWRENCE

The single and all embracing issue is whether free governments shall be preserved or whether totalitarian governments shall continue their conquests by infiltration and subversion.

Nikita Khrushchev can make all the grandstand plays he wishes, but he cannot by ostentatious gestures or honeyed words erase from the minds of the people of the world his record of murder and assassination inside the Soviet Union and inside the neighboring captive states.

To confine the security council discussions to the problems of the Middle East would be to deal with a manifest symptom rather than the disease itself—totalitarianism on the march.

* * * *

THE MEMBER nations of the Security Council should do their utmost to bring about a meeting with Khrushchev but should not humiliate themselves by accepting his dictation on procedures or rules about attendance.

It is most important that Khrushchev come to New York. It will afford the many nationalities represented in this country a chance to express themselves through their spokesmen and to say openly what it would be fatal for any of their kinsmen living in the captive countries in eastern Europe to say out loud.

A great opportunity lies ahead to do a constructive job of explaining to the whole world that it is Communist imperialism that is threatening peace.

Letter of the Week

Better Way to Spend the Money

TO THE EDITOR:

In your paper we find this item:

"U. S. Almost $3 Billion in Red for Fiscal Year."

We also find this item:

"$7,500,000 to Be Spent in Philippines by U. S. on Hero Tribute."

To common people, whose husbands, brothers and sons have been through World War II, it would make more sense to spend the $7,500,000 to prevent World War III and the necessity of erecting another monument for those who are dear to us.

We need no monument to remind us of loved ones gone, but we do need stable government which thinks of the needs of those now living and of those yet to be born.

We say apply that money to preventing another clash and to caring for the present living.

Insurance Money Joins Tilt Against Gore of Tennessee

WASHINGTON — There's an interesting illustration down in Tennessee right now of what happens to some of the money people put into insurance policies. It also illustrates why it's difficult to get some senators to fight for the public interest rather than big business interest.

IN MARCH, Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee had the courage to oppose a special tax concession for the insurance companies. He argued that with 5,000,000 people unemployed and the government certain to go into the red heavily for defense, there was no reason why the insurance companies should get a special retroactive tax cut of $124,000,000.

So he waged a tough battle against the insurance companies, demanded they be given the same tax treatment as other groups.

"Are the senators aware," Gore asked his colleagues, referring to Metropolitan Life, "that one insurance company has assets equal to those of General Motors, the Ford Motor Co., and U. S. Steel all added together?

"We always hear about the widow who has a policy. The president of one company draws a salary of $134,500," said Gore, referring to L. W. Dawson, president of Mutual Life of New York. "I suppose that is approved by the widows who hold policies. The 10 largest insurance companies have total assets of more that $62 billion."

Gore then proceeded to show that these 10 would get a tax benefit of $81,400,000 under the tax law which Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, the multimillion-dollar oil man, was trying to rush through the Senate.

In the end, the big insurance companies and Sen. Kerr won. Sen. Gore lost. And today insurance money is being spent in Tennessee to defeat him. The insurance moguls know that if Gore stays in the Senate he will lead another fight next year to prevent any more special tax concessions.

The campaign against Gore is bitter. It is also well-heeled. It is so well-heeled that Tennessee highways are littered with billboards urging votes for Gore's opponent. However, the people of Tennessee are getting suspicious of so much money spent against one man. The campaign against him may re-elect him.

$24 Million in Public Works

KITTY WINS CUPCAKE

Robbie Cobb, 7, nestled his kitty, a docile little thing with the ferocious name of "Tiger," in a miniature sombrero and won a first place at a pet show on the Barber City playground Friday. The prize? A cupcake for Robbie.—(Staff Photo).

City Sets One-Year New High

By GEORGE WEEKS

Public works valued at $24,546,535 were processed through city offices during the fiscal year that ended June 30, a report just issued by City Engineer Jess D. Gilkerson revealed.

It was by far the busiest year in the citys records for public improvements. The highest figure for any previous year was the 1956-57 total of $13,139,056.

Last year's volume was swelled by the contract-letting and construction stages of many of the major improvements authorized in the $29,219,000 bond issue approved by the voters in February, 1956, Gilkerson pointed out.

Of the $24,546,535 total, $13,340,702 was allotted for the financing of 28 buildings and structures.

* * * *

LARGEST PROJECT on this list was the $6,308,350 Memorial Hospital, which also was the biggest contract ever awarded at city hall.

It was bond financed, as were two other major contracts awarded during the year—the $3,075,200 Public Safety Bldg. and the $2,352,146 Community Hospital addition.

Acquisitions of right of way and real property accounted for $2,985,764. Most of these were for the Memorial Hospital, the Long Beach Freeway Terminus and east beach lots.

* * * *

SIXTEEN water-front projects came to a total of $2,884,330. Most extensive of these was a $1,873,285 contract for a boat basin and other shoreline improvements incident to the permanent Navy Landing at the foot of Magnolia Ave. A second contract in the same project involving an offshore fill amounted to $692,170.

Miscellaneous materials and services contracted for by the Engineering Dept. totaled $1,252,207.

Improvements valued at $1,504,895 were financed by private interests with city supervision. The largest category was pipeline installations, for which 36 permits were issued. The estimated cost was $621,289.

* * * *

A SEPARATE section of the report gave this summary of progress on the bond-financed improvements:

Municipal Airport runway extension—New runway opened to a length of about 9,300 feet, and additional land acquired for extension to 10,000 feet.

Hospital projects — Work in progress on the new Memorial Hospital and addition to Community Hospital. Preliminary plans for the Osteopathic Hospital addition have been prepared but are being withheld pending a solution of legal problems related to a lease agreement between the city and the osteopathic group.

Branch libraries—Bret Harte, Ruth Bach and Dana Branches completed and dedicated. A small branch in MacArthur Park is scheduled for early completion, and a contract will be awarded soon for the Bay Shore Branch.

Long Beach Freeway Terminus — Negotiations are complete, or virtually so, for 76 land parcels required for right of way. The city has obtained possession by court order of the balance of the 81 needed parcels and is proceeding to demolish buildings in the line of the freeway extension. The major portion of the project lying between Broadway and 7th St. is scheduled for completion in May 1959.

Public Safety Bldg. — Work started on Feb. 24, 1958, and is proceeding on schedule.

Park and recreation improvements—Development has been completed as planned at 12 parks and is in the final stages at four others. In addition, the Blair Field Stadium has been constructed and is in use. More than 60 per cent of the $4,900,000 bond issue has been encumbered for engineering and architectural services and for construction contracts.

Wins Second

Second place trophy for bands in Saturday's Ranchero Days celebration at Torrance went to the Long Beach Youth Band, directed by Don Hern. Rita Lynch is head majorette. Forty musicians made the trip to Torrance.

School Band's Loss Revised Upward

Sixty-nine musical instruments were taken in Friday's burglary at the Woodrow Wilson High School, 10th St. and Ximeno Ave., according to a revised loss list given to police Saturday.

Alfred M. Ash, special officer for the Board of Education, said total value of the instruments—enough to equip a complete band—is about $7,000.

The thieves broke a glass door to gain entrance.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Charles Named Prince of Wales

CARDIFF, Wales (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth Saturday named her son, Prince Charles, the Prince of Wales, the royal title last held by the present Duke of Windsor. The 9-year-old future king of Britain heard the news over the radio at his boarding school.

PRINCE CHARLES
Heard It on Radio

The queen announced her decision in a tape-recorded statement to thousands of Welshmen attending the final day of the Empire Games in Cardiff. The audience greeted the news with cheers and burst into traditional songs.

Prince Philip attended the games in place of the queen, who is suffering from sinusitis. But he made no mention of the elevation of their son in his address. He left that to the queen's recording.

"I intend to create my son, Charles, Prince of Wales today," she said. "When he is grown up, I will present him to you at Caernarvon."

No P. O. Grace Period

WASHINGTON (UPI)—New postal rates enacted by Congress go into effect at 12:01 a.m. local time next Friday. Mail postmarked after that time must carrying the following postage:

Four cents instead of three on first class letters, seven cents instead of six on air mail letters, three cents instead of two on postcards, and four cents instead of three on airmail postcards.

The department repeated a warning issued earlier. There will be no period of grace for letter-writers who put only a three-cent stamp on their letters.

The post office has no alternative but to collect postage due when the new rates go into effect," an official said. But the department will defer until Oct. 31 collection of a new five-cent penalty for handling mail with insufficient postage.

Warner, 76, died Friday night of a heart attack at his home in this fashionable Hollywood suburb.

Services will be at 2:00 p. m. in Wilshire Boulevard Temple, with some of the leading film personalities of the past half century attending. Rabbi Edgar Magnin will preside.

Warner's death followed those of Louis B. Mayer, Harry Cohn and Jesse Lasky, all within the past year. All were major figures in the development of the motion picture industry.

'Clean' H-Test Canceled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Saturday canceled a "clean" H-bomb test which had been specially planned for foreign observers and American news and cameramen.

The test had been scheduled for next month at the Eniwetok proving ground in the Pacific. A "clean" bomb is one in which dangerous radio-active fall-out is supposed to be reduced to a minimum.

The State Department announcement said delays in the current testing series caused by poor weather were to blame for the cancellation.

Almanac Shows N.Y. Top in Beer Making, Drinking

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York topped all 48 states in the making and drinking of beer and ale in 1957, the Brewers Almanac said Saturday.

New Yorkers consumed 10,421,700 barrels of beer and ale and breweries here turned out 11,900,000 barrels of suds. The latter figure gave the Empire State an edge over Wisconsin, the 1956 champion, which brewed 11,700,000 barrels of malt beverages.

Pennsylvania placed second in consumption by downing 7,240,360 barrels of the foamy stuff and Californians were third with 6,559,636. In production, New Jersey was third at 7,600,000, followed by Pennsylvania, 7,300,000; California, 7,000,000; and Missouri, 6,600,000.

Mystery Woman Bests Men in Space Tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An effort to determine why ladies appear to be leading the way into space turned up the disconcerting fact Saturday that Wickie, the last space traveling mouse, was male instead of female.

At the same time, however, it was learned, despite Air Force secrecy, that a mystery woman who cannot be identified has far outdone more than three dozen male volunteers in certain tests to determine suitability for space travel.

The woman stayed in a completely blacked-out chamber for seven days in a "sensory deprivation" test. The Air Force said this "far exceeded" the endurance of the men. The sub-rosa information was that none of the males remained in the chamber more than three days.

This appeared to give the female sex a clean sweep, since the first two space rodents were lady mice and the Russian satellite dog was of the same sex. But at the last minute Wickie's designation had to be changed. The reason proved to be a story in itself.

It seems that the star performer and passenger for this week's 6,000-mile Thor-Able rocket shoot from Cape Canaveral, Fla., was to have been a lady mouse. She was deprived of her place and her name, and a male alternate got aboard in an inadvertent sequence of events.

First, Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates held a news conference at Cape Canaveral to brief reporters in advance on the Thor-Able firing.

Wickie, the real female Wickie—was wheeled out during the conference to be shown off and photographed. The mouse had a couple of wire electrodes attached to the back of her head for recording her heartbeat. Although these are no more painful than the connections to an electrocardiograph, Yates thought they might not look good to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

So the general cut the electrode wires before any photographer could close his shutter. This discommoded that particular mouse setup, and a substitute was required.

Wickie the female consequently got her picture in the papers, but Wickie the male got the ride through space.

Dr. Al Heatherington, technical adviser to the directorate of life sciences in the Air Research and Development Command, was inclined to share Yates' view that the switch in mice made no difference. He commented, however, that females are usually preferred for laboratory experiments because they are less ferocious and more easily handled.

He said this is true of mice, and even more true of monkeys. He stopped short of discussing human beings.

The mystery woman, said to have been a civilian, underwent her "sensory deprivation" tests at Wright Air Development Center in Dayton, Ohio, last spring. The chamber in which she spent a full week was built to stimulate conditions that might be encountered on a space ship.

Word of her achievement got out at the time but not until Saturday did the Air Force say that "38 to 40" male volunteers preceded her in the chamber for much shorter periods.

The Air Force said the woman cannot be named because "the case study of the experiment in which this volunteer was involved has not been completed." In addition, identifying her would jeopardize the findings.

CONSCIENCE TRAPS HIM

Bar Killing Told by Tormented Man

PORTERVILLE (AP)—A slim haggard man walked into the sheriff's substation at Porterville Saturday and said he wanted to confess a killing.

Russell Eugene Roberson, 35, an Inglewood aircraft worker, told Sgt. Lawrence Johns he shot a man in the Bomb Shelter Bar in Inglewood the night of July 10.

Johns said Roberson handed him a gun and a note which read:

"I find it very hard to try and convince myself I have killed a man. I always thought a murderer was something I read about in the papers but now I find I am one. It happened so fast I'm not sure of the details. When the two of them came at me, I saw red. I wish to God now that it had never happened but it is too late."

* * * *

ROBERSON SAID the note had been intended as a suicide message but he changed his mind and decided to give himself up.

Johns said Roberson claimed he had an altercation with two strangers at the bar and then shot one of the men with a .45 caliber service revolver.

Roberson said he left Inglewood the next day but was tormented by his conscience. "I couldn't eat, I couldn't sleep. I've been going crazy," he said, "so I decided to give myself up."

ROBERSON WAS taken to the county jail in Visalia where he was held for Los Angeles County police.

Sheriff's Homicide Detective Sgts. George Walsh and Jim Wahlke went from Los Angeles to Porterville to return Roberson.

They said he is wanted for questioning about the slaying last July 11 of Henry J. Deragon, 31, who was shot to death in an Inglewood bar after an argument.

REVOLUTIONIZES THE WORLD OF SOUND!
What is stereophonic hi-fi on records? Till now, true stereo sound was only available on tape (at very husky prices). Now—the record industry has developed an amazing new stereo disc. It looks like the old LP record, but has two complete sound tracks. Your Telefunken record changer combined with Kaiser and HI-FI and stereo mate in turn has a special pickup that receives music from each track. These two separate streams of sound go to two separate speakers. The sound combines in your room to give you the most brilliant, 3-dimensional music you've ever heard!

*STEREOPHONIC SOUND Stereophonic reproduction creates the illusion that the orchestra is in the room playing just for you and your guests. It offers a wonderful spatial dimensional quality which completely envelops the listener—it seems as though the whole room is producing music—not because of volume, but because of realism in recording. You have to hear it to believe it!

NOTE...
You will never want to buy any other Hi-Fi after you once hear full dimensional stereophonic. Come in to any Dorn's Store for a demonstration; listen to the history of recordings for 50 years, now perfect High-Fidelity with Stereophonic.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Dear Hank:

In answer to a recent question of yours comparing my fight Aug. 18 (Floyd Patterson vs. Roy Harris) with the fistic promotions of Rademacher-Folley and Basilio-Aragon, my first inclination would be to accept the assignment with avidity and alacrity.

But would it be fair to the others?

I am presenting a world champion, the best fist-fighter in the whole wide world, a man who has won 33 of his 34 fights, 24 by knockout, against a man who is untied and undefeated as a pro.

How can I compare such a promotion with others in which nothing is at stake, save winner and loser? But you have seen the statement in print, many a time and oft, that comparisons are invidious. Even odious.

Rather would I devote this space to stressing the importance of my own promotion. To make comparisons would of necessity detract from or denigrate the others.

THERE IS NO SPORTS EVENT in any field, Hank, which in point of interest—international interest—tops a world heavyweight championship battle. I have already received requests for press coverage from overseas: half a dozen from England, two from France, and even one from Mexico City, where the aficionados are reportedly interested only in Mexican fighters. Obviously this is untrue in the case of a heavyweight title.

It took a heavyweight title fight to create the million-dollar gate—something no other weight division in boxing has ever done. Heavies have topped the million mark EIGHT times, and I'll list them for you:

1921—Dempsey vs. Carpentier	$1,789,238
1923—Dempsey vs. Firpo	1,188,603
1926—Dempsey vs. Tunney	1,895,733
1927—Tunney vs. Dempsey	2,658,660
*1927—Dempsey vs. Sharkey	1,083,530
*1935—Louis vs. Baer	1,000,832
1938—Louis vs. Schmeling	1,015,012
1946—Louis vs. Conn	1,925,564

Two of these—those with asterisks—were non-title affairs. Over 12 million dollars in eight fights. Need I say more?

Here we have Floyd Patterson, who has lost but one of his 34 pro fights, and that one bitterly disputed, against a kid who has had 22 scraps, won 22—9 by knockout.

Who has Harris beaten? Well, Willie Pastrano, then regarded by many as the foremost contender for the crown; Bob Baker, long a member of the "top ten"; Willie Besmanoff, the German who whipped highly regarded Pat McMurtry a few months ago in Seattle; Charley Norkus, the man who wrecked Charley Powell's fistic career; Claude Chapman, of the Al Weill stable, who holds a win over Julio Mederos; and Joe Rowan, who holds a win over Wayne Bethea.

THE WHOLE STATE OF TEXAS has gone gaga over the Cut and Shoot battler. Recently, the town of Conroe, 4½ miles east of Cut and Shoot, and some 40 miles north of Houston, got out a "Cut 'N Shoot, Texas, Special Edition" of the Conroe Daily Courier, which boasts a circulation of 14,188, in which every one of the 16 pages carried either a story, picture, or ad concerning Harris—the ads welcoming a junket of 20 New York scribes who attended Roy's workout.

This same town of Conroe bought $6,100 worth of tickets for the Harris-Pastrano fight in Houston last year, which drew a gross of over $46,000 to set a new Texas record for receipts.

This same boy is now fighting for the world heavyweight title.

Why, this town of Los Angeles will be a sea of 10-gallon heights on the night of August 18.

As you know, the Diners' Club, which has 120,000 members in the Southern half of California, is furnishing members with the opportunity of buying tickets and charging them. We have, in two days of this sale, disposed of nearly 600 $30 seats. That's our top price; then we have the $20 and $10 seats, reserved, and a few thousand general admission tickets which go on sale the day of the fight, at $5.

My show is geared for a $600,000 gate.

ONE OTHER POINT I'd like to drive home, which shows clearly the relative merits of the three attractions above listed.

My deal with TelePrompTer is this: a minimum guarantee of $210,000 for the closed-circuit telecast. The Basilio-Aragon rights for TV were sold for $35,000, according to a report in one of the papers.

In other words, the heavyweight title fight was rated SIX TIMES as important as the other.

Please, Hank, do not think of my fight as a purely local attraction. We'll have hundreds of newspapermen here from all parts of the United States.

I could go on like this for three or four more pages, but I think I've made my point.

My sincere thanks to you for this opportunity to present my side of the situation.

Sincerely,
BILL ROSENSOHN

Lemon Posts First Coast League Win

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Bob Lemon, late of the Cleveland Indians, received credit for his first Pacific Coast League victory Saturday night as San Diego defeated Sacramento 6-2 in the first half of a doubleheader.

Lemon went seven innings, allowed six hits and two runs, then retired after batting in one run with a line single in the first half of the eighth inning as the Padres came from behind by scoring five runs.

Sacramento gave Bud Watkins a 2-0 lead over Lemon in the seventh inning.

But Watkins' lead lasted no longer than the time required to change sides.

BURDETTE LEAPED MIGHTILY, BRAVES DROPPED SLIGHTLY

Braves Fall to Tie for NL Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, backed up by the tack-sharp relief pitching of Marcelino Solis who hurled four-hit, shutout ball for 6⅔ innings, beat the Milwaukee Braves, 7-4, Saturday.

The loss, coupled with San Francisco's 1-0 decision over Pittsburgh, dropped the Braves into a tie with the Giants for the National League lead. Each team has an identical 51-41 record.

A County Stadium crowd of 31,450, including Braves' owner Lou Perini, watched the 28-year-old Solis register his first major league triumph in relief of starter Dick Drott.

The loser for the sixth time without a victory was Gene Conley, who spelled starter Lew Burdette in the second and gave up the Cub's final three runs. Conley clipped Drott for his first major league homer in the second. Bobby Thomson hit his 12th for the Cubs.

The Cubs mounted a 20-hit attack against Burdette and Conley, but left 15 base runners high and dry. Tony Taylor, Alvin Dark, Lee Walls and Ernie Banks — the first four hitters in the Cubs' linenup — and Dale Long collected three safeties apiece. Banks drove in three runs.

Antonelli, Grissom Cool Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The San Francisco Giants, shut out in their last two starts, turned the tables on the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday with a 1-0 triumph.

Southpaw Johnny Antonelli got his 11th victory against eight defeats but needed help from veteran Marv Grissom. The loss ended a four-game Pirates' winning streak.

Singles by Bob Schmidt and Antonelli, a sacrifice and a long fly ball by Willie Kirkland produced the lone run for the Giants in the third.

* * * *

IN THE seventh, Hank Foiles led off with a double and moved to third on a sacrifice. Antonelli got Billy Virdon on a grounder but was yanked after he walked Bob Clemente.

Grissom promptly struck out rookie home-run slugger Dick Stuart. The veteran right-hander faced seven batters and struck out three.

Rams Start Two-a-Day Workouts

Los Angeles Ram rookies get down to serious business today as they start two-a-day drills at their University of Redlands training site.

Coach Sid Gillman indicated workouts would be held at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. and the rookies can expect contact drills with their very first workout today.

However, assistant coach Jack Faulkner said Saturday that he had never seen so many football players that appeared to be in such good shape this early.

"There's not a paunchy guy in the lot," said Faulkner.

* * * *

MEANWHILE as the rookies step up drills, the Ram veterans, an expected 26 in number, are due to arrive Monday. They'll be processed the first day, photographed Tuesday and start battling for their jobs Wednesday.

Six rookies, those participating in the All-Star game in Chicago, will not join the Rams until the night of the annual charity game with Washington. They are Lou Michaels, Bill Jobke, Jim Phillips, John Baker, Jim Jones and Clendon Thomas.

Among Ram stalwarts of past seasons who have been traded or decided to quit and will not be reporting are Norm Van Brocklin, Bob Boyd, John Hock, Bob Dougherty, Tank Younger, Jesse Whittington and Corky Taylor.

Coach Gillman announced the first Ram scrimmage will be held next Saturday night with the public invited.

THE WINNER, ridden by jockey George Taniguchi, covered the six furlongs in 1:09 3/5 and paid $14.40, $4.10 and $3.10. Father John returned $2.60 and $2.40 and Times Ace $3.20.

Johnny Longden was aboard Father John and Louis Leon rode Times Ace.

Father John was made the heavy favorite at 60 cents to the dollar after The Shoe and Aliwar were scratched.

IN FLATBUSH, 'L.A.' MEANS LOST ARTICLES

PHILADELPHIA — The Dodgers still have some rooters in Brooklyn and a few of the Flatbush faithful come to Philadelphia when the Dodgers play the Phillies.

A group of girls most of them between 18 and 22, has followed the Dodgers to Philadelphia for the last three years. "We're still Dodger fans," one of them said. "But not Los Angeles fans. To us, L. A. stands for only one thing—Lost Articles. And the Dodgers are just that—lost."

Hodges Collects 4 Hits, 5 RBIs in Snapping Slump

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

PHILADELPHIA—Gil Hodges got started Saturday night.

The big Dodger first baseman did what manager Walt Alston had hoped for all year. Hodges started to swing and he swung with authority. When it was all over, he had connected four times in five trips, driven in five runs and made southpaw Sandy Koufax an easy 10-4 winner over the Philadelphia Phillies.

It was the first time this year that any Dodger knocked in five runs in one game and the first time in 1958 that Hodges had four hits. His first inning single provided the Dodgers with their first run, he belted a two-run homer in the sixth, a single in the eighth and a two-run double in the ninth.

Quite an evening for a guy who, before the game, took a lot of ribbing about his "freshman jinx" in the Coliseum. But Gil isn't discouraged easily. He was benched for almost four weeks and since June 30 had only four starting assignments.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH he had never been benched, Hodges took it in stride. He was subjected to eye tests and his vision was found to be perfect. His main trouble, Alston believed, was that he was taking too many pitches. He was standing too far from the plate and the pitchers began to feed him a steady diet of outside pitches.

Friday night, Alston decided to have another look. Gil went 0-for-5, struck out once, but went down swinging. In his last at-bat Friday, he was robbed of a hit when third baseman Willie Jones speared his line drive.

* * * *

SATURDAY morning, Alston was satisfied with the result. "Gil looked much better. His swing was improved, but his timing was off just a shade," Alston commented.

Saturday night, his timing was perfect.

A four-run first inning started the Dodgers toward their 10th victory in 17 games with the Phils. They made short work of Jack Sanford, last year's "rookie of the year," who had never lost to the Dodgers as a starter.

Sanford retired only one batter and dragged his glove to the dugout a loser for the fourth straight time and 10th time this year. He has won only six games after breaking in with a 19-8 record.

Jim Hearn followed and held the Dodgers in check, save for Hodges' homer in the sixth. It

McDOUGALL 'GREAT PRO,' KNOX COULD BE

Miss U Judge Football Boss

By JERRY WYNN

"Most women don't know anything about football," asserts J. G. (Jake) Gaudaur of Hamilton, Canada, a man who has the remarkable distinction of being called an expert on both women and football.

President and general manager of the Canadian national professional football champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Gaudaur has just completed a nerve-wracking week in Long Beach as a judge in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Can one compare the streamlined figure of the beauty contestant to the granite build of the gridder?

"I guess not," he replies with a smile, "however I can vouch that it as difficult to eliminate these girls in the contest as it is to cut a good player from a team's roster."

While a comparative newcomer to beauty judging, Gaudaur has long been one of Canada's leading sports figures.

A national champion rower, a standout lacrosse and hockey player, and an outstanding 13-year veteran of professional football as an annual all-league center, the handsome 6-3, 245-pound Princeton graduate became Tiger-Cat president in 1953 and general manager in 1956.

"I suppose I was the only club president ever to be an active player when I had to return to the field in 1953 because one of our U. S. imports did not show up."

Under Gaudaur's direction, Hamilton has never finished lower than second while winning two Grey Cups, symbolic of the national championship.

The sparkplug of the 1958 title team was Gerry McDougall, the Poly High, Long Beach City College and UCLA product who Gaudaur calls "undoubtedly one of the greatest backs in pro football, U. S. as well as Canada."

"There's no doubt at all that Gerry would be just as outstanding in the National Football League as he was for us last year when he led the league in rushing even though he missed the first three games."

Earlene Toast of Sports-Mad Russ

MOSCOW (AP)—Earlene Brown, 220 pounds of joy, is the toast of Moscow just as she was the most widely known of U. S. athletes in the Olympic Village during the Melbourne Games in 1956.

JOE GORDON
Uses 20 Players

Mrs. Brown, 23 and the mother of a three-year-old child, was surrounded by a throng of autograph seeking, sports-mad Russians Saturday on a Moscow street. It is a thing that happens every time the U.S. girls do a bit of sightseeing.

Saturday her companions became impatient when she was stopped again.

"Now just wait a minute, honey, I'm making friends for Uncle Sam," she answered their pleas to hurry.

* * * *

AT MELBOURNE the Compton, Calif., housewife was the unofficial rock 'n' roll instructor for the 5,000 athletes in the village.

In practice this week she has been throwing the 8-pound shot well over the listed world record of 54 feet, 11¾ inches.

Meanwhile, an epidemic of light colds and sore throats among U.S. male athletes has been stopped.

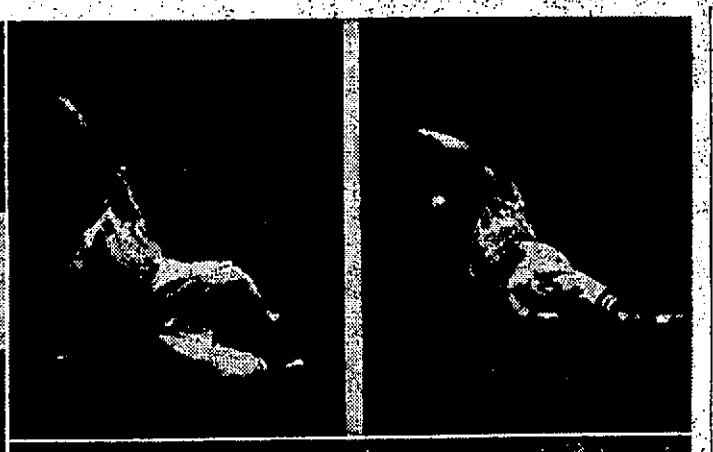

* * * *

TRAINERS discovered that the 42 athletes living in one dormitory were sharing four glasses at the drinking faucet. The four glasses also were doing double as containers for soft drinks.

"The fellows were passing germs around faster than batons in a relay race," said head coach George Eastment.

Several athletes were given penicillin shots. Shotputter Parry O'Brien of Los Angeles spent Saturday in bed and Tom Courtney, former Fordham half-miler, had a slight temperature. Both are expected to be in tip-top shape today.

MAJOR LEAGUE GYMNASTICS: ONE SUCCEEDS, OTHER FAILS

Reds to Use Own Scoring System

By ROBERT MUSEL

MOSCOW (UPI)—The United States meets Russia today in the most important track and field meet since the Olympic Games, with the Soviet team insisting on counting points its own way—a method certain to give the largest crowd ever to watch a dual meet a chance to cheer a hometown victory.

Already worlds apart politically, the American and Russian teams turned out to be just as far apart in their ideas of what constitutes a dual meet as they inaugurated an annual series which may—politics willing—become the "Little Olympics" before a crowd of 102,000 at Lenin Central Stadium.

Spokesmen for the world's two leading track and field powers smilingly agreed to disagree before the colorful opening ceremony this morning.

THERE ARE 22 men's events and 10 women's events in the two-day program. The United States is heavily favored to take the majority of the men's events and Russia's amazons the bulk of the women's events.

Although Americans disagreed, Russian officials issued notice that points in all events, both men's and women's, would be tallied together to decide the winner of the meet.

Coach George Eastment of Manhattan College, who heads the U. S. track forces, said:

"This will be a lot closer than most people expect. The Russians look very good and we're not underestimating them.

The Yanks are expected to win every event up to the distance races.

Bob Richards, former Olympic pole vault champion who watched the team work out, said:

"Everybody thinks this is more important than the Olympics and it will be a terrific fight."

N.Y. Hikes Lead to 15½ Games

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The New York Yankees swept to their seventh straight victory and stretched their American League lead to an outlandish 15½ games Saturday by crushing the Cleveland Indians, 8-3.

Cleveland manager Joe Gordon used 20 players and tied a major league record by employing five pinch hitters in the seventh inning.

Duke Maas was credited with his first victory since coming to the Yankees on June 15 although he was lifted in the seventh inning.

Harris Works Three-Rounds

ARROWHEAD SPRINGS, (UPI)—Heavyweight contender Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., entertained a crowd of 500 fans with fast three-round boxing drill Saturday at his training camp here.

Harris worked two rounds with a new sparring partner, Tony Borton, of Los Angeles. He also boxed one heat with Hewie Turner, his regular spar mate.

The Texan was very pleased with his sparring session with Burton and said he planned to keep him at camp for the rest of the training sessions.

Harshman Hurls, Bats Oriole Win

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Jack Harshman notched his eighth win of the season Saturday night for the Baltimore Orioles who made it seven straight over the Kansas City Athletics 4-3 with Harshman's fourth homer this season the deciding factor.

Baltimore opened the scoring off Bob Davis when Bob Boyd walked, was forced by Gene Woodling, and Gus Triandos hit a home run. That was the only hit off Davis until the fifth when the Orioles put together singles by Billy Gardner, Harshman and Boyd for a run.

Kaline Bengals Awaken

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers ended a five-game losing streak Saturday, beating the Washington Senators, 9-1, behind rookie pitcher Herb Moford's first American League victory and Al Kaline's lusty hitting.

Kaline drove home three runs with his 11th homer, a single and a double.

The side-arming Moford won one game in a brief 1955 stint with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dressen's Sunday Sermon: 'Modern Players Too Soft'

By GEORGE LEDERER
I, P-T Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Nothing, not even a mosquito bite, gets under Charlie Dressen's skin more than the manner in which modern day major league ball players are coddled and the courtesies they extend to opposing teams.

The pet peeve of the Dodgers' third base coach is the habit of some batters to pick up an opposing catcher's mask after fouling a ball into the stands.

"They not only pick it up," roars Dressen, "but they wipe it off on their clean white uniforms before handing it back.

"Nuts to that! All clubs should make a rule to fine a player if he picks up a mask. In the first place, the idea of this game is to get the other team exhausted. Let the catcher bend over to pick up his mask. Besides, I tell the guys that it costs $2.50 to get a uniform cleaned.

"When I played ball, a batter was likely to kick a mask half way down the first base line while the catcher wasn't looking. And when it was common to leave gloves in the field, we used to throw the second baseman's glove into right field.

"YOU DON'T PICK up a guy in football after making a tackle. That's the way this game should be played. There isn't enough fire and competitive spirit today."

It is usually Sunday when Dressen gets on one of these "back in the good old days" kicks and Jolly Cholly puts on quite a show in the Dodger dugout.

Most of the players sit back and enjoy the performance, others will kid him about living in the past, that the old timers drank, weren't in shape and didn't obey curfews, if there were any.

"Yeah, Charlie, everything has improved except baseball and it's sliding back all the time," said Gil Hodges, trying to swallow a smile.

"I didn't say that," countered Dressen. Then he pointed to the diamond and said, "Look, Doubleday laid this thing out 120 years ago and it hasn't changed a bit. The bases are still 90 feet apart and it's 60 feet, six inches from the plate to the pitching rubber.

"But you guys." And he indicated with a sweeping motion that he meant the entire bench. "You aren't as tough as the oldtimers and you don't last as long because life is made soft for you.

"Air conditioning in the dugouts (in Cincinnati). No wonder you pitchers get sore arms."

Cushions on the bench! Brother, I'd like to see Ty Cobb sitting in one of those."

DRESSEN'S ACT GAINED momentum as he paced in front of the bench, picked up a couple of gloves and said:

"Here, look at these big nets. How can you miss a ball?

"And that rabbit ball they use today. That thing takes off like it's got a hydrogen bomb in it."

Hodges interrupted. "Didn't Ruth hit a rabbit ball?"

"Maybe so," Dressen shot back. "But he didn't need a rabbit ball. When Babe Ruth hit a home run it was out of any park in the country."

Dressen paused for air, surveyed the other team taking infield practice, then turned back to the bench.

"LET'S GET ON these guys a little today. Let's have some noise. I haven't seen a good bench jockey in years. (Dressen and manager Walt Alston agreed that the Dodgers' best bench jockey in recent years was Dick Williams, an outfielder now with the Baltimore Orioles.)

"Now, you talk about vitamins. You get what, eight dollars a day meal money? Yeah, and you go out and spend $2.50 on asparagus spears. Eat plenty of meat and potatoes. That's what'll make you strong.

"Let one of the modern day pitchers match (Walter) Johnson. He pitched (and Dressen counted on his fingers) Friday and Saturday. They let him go to church on Sunday and he pitched again on Monday.

"How do you like that?"

And Jolly Cholly trotted to his third base coaches station, ready to direct traffic in the modern manner for another game.

Pro Gridder Livingston in Shape With Volleyball

By AL LARSON

Who said volleyball was for girls only? Cliff Livingston, hawking linebacker for the New York Giants, credits volleyball as the best leg conditioner ever.

The former UCLA star, who calls Belmont Shore's beach courts his home during the early summer months, expects to report in the best shape of his career when he leaves Monday for the Giants' camp at Salem, Oregon.

Livingston will be playing his fifth year of professional football with the Giants after four successful campaigns at UCLA and Ft. Ord. The giant 6-3, 215-pounder, gained his first fame when he was converted by Red Sanders from fullback to end in 1950-51. The next two years he starred at Ft. Ord. In 1953, he was the key lineman as Ollie Matson and Co. won the national service championship.

For the past two seasons Cliff has been troubled with pulled thigh muscles. He feels he didn't check into camp with his legs in good enough shape. But this year he's been playing volleyball in the sand nearly every day and figures this should solve his injury problems.

Livingston, whose real home is Montebello, had the greatest performance of his pro career against the Rams last season when he blocked two Van Brocklin punts in the Coliseum. He's looking forward to playing before another Southland audience Aug. 22 when the Giants meet the Rams in exhibition play at the Coliseum. Of course, the 1956-NFL championship game stands out as his most memorable game.

The 27-year-old veteran lineman looks for the Giants to be stronger this season, due to several important backfield trades and the return of Roosevelt Grier from the Army in September.

* * * *

ASKED IF the Giants let down last year after sweeping to the division and playoff titles the previous season, Livingston didn't think so.

"When you're the champions, everyone is gunning for you, and naturally it's hard to be up for every game."

Cliff comes from a renowned football family. His older brother, Howie, played 10 years in the NFL with the Giants, Redskins and 49ers. He has two younger twin brothers now attending Arizona State. He says they both look like excellent end prospects.

As an added leg conditioner, the deeply-tanned Livingston has been peddling a racing bike 40 miles a day between his volleyball rendezvous at the Bay and Montebello. Friday, a motorist cruised along side him and yelled:

"Do you know you're going 25 m.p.h.?"

"Certainly," Cliff replied. "That's the speed limit, isn't it?"

Volleyball may never replace night baseball, but its great for building up legs. Just ask a pro, like Livingston, who knows.

Cowboy Star to Pilot Boat in Marathon

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Cowboy star Roy Rogers, Jack Ward of Compton, Jack McBeath of Long Beach and Ray Leger of Paramount headline a topflight field of over 125 stock outboard runabouts for today's 100-mile marathon race off the Long Beach strand.

Each runabout will carry a crew of two men and starts will be flights (two minutes apart) from Pacific Landing. First crew is slated to go at 8 a.m.

The race will consist of 10 trips around a course to a point off the Alamitos Bay jetty and back.

In the recent Avalon to Long Beach race, Ward set a record while nipping 1957 winner Leger by a slim, 10-second margin.

EDDIE LEACH 64 POUNDS OF TENNIS CHAMP

Little Eddie Leach, who at 10 years old stands just 4 ft. 6 inches tall and weighs only 64 pounds, is a man among men today.

Eddie turned in a convincing 6-0, 6-4 victory over Bill Davidson of Bakersfield Saturday to win the 11-years and under boys' singles tennis title in the Metropolitan Tennis Championships at Griffith Park in Los Angeles.

The Long Beach youngster is a product of net pro Clyde Walker, who has tutored such up-and- coming local stars as Billie Jean Moffitt and Jerry Cromwell.

HOPPS MEETS BROWNING IN NET FINALS

SEATTLE (AP) — Janet Hopps of Seattle, ninth-ranked in the nation, and Barbara Browning of Los Angeles stroked their way Saturday into the women's singles finals of the Washington State Tennis tournament.

Miss Hopps, a member of the U. S. Wightman Cup team, defeated Pat Yeomans of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-1, and Miss Browning won from Pamela Davis of Anaheim, Calif., 6-4, 6-3, in the semi-finals.

They will meet for the women's title today. Miss Hopps is top-seeded, Miss Browning No. 3.

Canadian Grid Champs Seeking NFL Exhibition

lege player while at UCLA, McDougall set the Canadian pro league on fire in his first season by gaining 1,053 yards in 11 games for a 5.9 average.

How come the startling transition?

"It isn't always possible to say what makes a great pro," answers Gaudaur. "For one thing, Gerry is a fullback and not a halfback. He has all the physical requirements of the great player . . . 225 pounds, bulging legs and a great pair of hands.

"He has the unique ability o staying upright. Linebackers hit him, but he doesn't go down. Right there is the mark of the great fullback."

Gaudaur feels its difficult to compare one player with another but rates McDougall the superior runner to Alex Webster, who was a Canadian sensation before going to the Giants with which team he has been one of the NFL's top rushers.

* * * *

"STRANGELY, one of the best things we discovered about Gerry is that his father was a Canadian who never dropped his citizenship. Under the laws of our countries, that gave Gerry dual citizenship and he was automatically eligible to become a Canadian citizen, which he has. This strikes him off the 12-man list of U. S. imports a team is allowed."

Turning from runner to passer, Gaudaur was the man who signed Ronnie Knox to a Hamilton contract when the headline kid was still on the UCLA campus in 1956. Knox's stay in Canada was a short but typically exciting one, and his departure in mid-season as sudden as his arrival.

Why did he leave?

Gaudaur's face lit with a grin.

"It happened that before one game I was instructed by — what else can I call him besides Harvie—that Ronnie would be our starting quarterback or else. The else was the result."

* * * *

GAUDAUR'S evaluation of Ronnie is on the ecstatic side, but the appraisal is always marred by the word potential.

"He had more pro potential than any player I have ever seen. Don't let that baby face fool you. He's a big, strong boy with great coordination and a real desire to win. He was an outstanding tackler as a defensive halfback for us, and I've never seen a more accurate long and short passer.

"Moreover he's an electrifying player and the fans filled our park to see him. It's a shame if a boy with that potential does not play professional football."

Why hasn't this potential ever been fulfilled?

Gaudaur paused, smiled, laughed, replied:

"No comment. That should speak volumes."

* * * *

GAUDAUR'S observations on other players in Canada:

Bob Davenport of Winnipeg (the former Jordan High and UCLA fullback star) is an excellent runner and an outstanding back.

. . . Hal Patterson, a Montreal offensive end and defensive halfback from the University of Kansas, is the greatest two-platoon player and finest all-around athlete in pro football today, U. S. as well as Canada. A 17th draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles three years ago, he could not be bought today by an NFL team at ANY price.

. . . Sam Etcheverry, veteran Montreal quarterback from Denver U., could be a first stringer on almost every NFL team.

. . . Paul Cameron, Pete O'Garra, Hardiman Cureton and Lou Elias are among other successful former UCLA players in Canada. Red Sanders has an uncanny ability to turn out the tough, two-way type of player perfect for Canadian pro football.

* * * *

GAUDAUR'S comparison between Canadian pro and NFL competion:

Hamilton would probably lose to an NFL team by two to three touchdowns.

. . . However, a picked all-star team from Canada could play a similar NFL squad even.

. . . The NFL would be wise to install the Canadian single point scoring system for punts into the end zone that are not returned. It would bring back the emphasis on punting.

Gaudaur's comments in general:

. . . Hamilton is very willing and anxious to play an NFL team in an exhibition in the U. S. (Ed. note — Hear this, Pete Rozelle!)

. . . The stories about fabulous salaries offered U. S. players in Canada are exaggerated. The highest ever paid was $15,000 to George Ratterman by Montreal.

Relaxing by the Lafayette Hotel pool as some of the Miss U girls frolicked in the water, Jake Gaudaur — the beauty judge—seemed a universe apart from the world of football.

PETERSEN, SHIRK AMONG 'IRON MEN' FOR SHRINE GAME TEAM

Five South Stars to Go Both Ways

By JACK TEELE

Fullfilling their promise to go with their absolute best at all times, coaches of the South team have named five players as starters on both offense and defense for Wednesday night's battle with the North in the seventh annual Shrine High Game.

Two of the 1957 prep stars who will go both ways for the revenge-bent Southerners are from the Long Beach area.

Wilson end Kent Petersen and tackle Marshall Shirk of Anaheim have been so impressive in scrimmages that they will stay on the field when the ball changes hands.

The other "iron men" will be Manual Arts lanky Jim Bates, who will start at offensive end and defensive halfback, San Diego's Cal Fackrell, who goes at offensive guard and right line backer and center Ronnie Hull of L. A. Wilson.

Poly's 230-pound Jim Smith will start as middle guard on defense and Excelsior's Harold Gray as right end. Both are expected to see duty with the offensive team too as is Banning's fleet Lynn Gaskill, who will open at defensive safety.

The Long Beach area will be strongly represented in the backfield where Downey's Pete Yoder will practice his special brand of slight-of-hand at quarterback and Mater Dei's Henry (The Horse) Enriquez will open at fullback.

Enriquez has been one of the most pleasant surprises in the first week of drills. South coaches Gus Headington, Rollie Eilerts and Paul Huebner claim the Mater Dei man-handler is the strongest runner in camp.

The South, which will be out to avenge a 32-0 upset loss in 1957, has only one injury of note. Coronado's Hal Tobin, a 200-pound fullback, is nursing a hamstring in his right leg and will see little if any action.

Tobin's loss could be a big one. The border star converted 25 of 28 extra points for his team last fall on runs up the middle. With extra points going two for the price of one on a pass or a run, Tobin might be sorely missed.

Tickets for the game are available at all Shrine offices.

Player Holds Lead in Eastern Open; Snead, Littler Hot

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Young Gary Player, the smooth invader from Johannesburg, South Africa, fired a par 72 over lengthy Mount Pleasant course Saturday to maintain his lead in the $20,000 Eastern Open.

The 22-year-old scrapper has a 54-hole total of 208, one stroke better than three veteran circuit riders, Art Wall, Jr., Jack Burke, Jr., Bob Rosburg.

Right behind these four was Sam Snead. Putting brilliantly, Sam stroked in six birdies on the front nine to set a course record of 30 for the front side.

Two of Snead's putts were 50-footers during his birdie run but he cooled off on the home half with one birdie and two bogeys for a 67. Matching Snead's 67 was Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif.

* * * *

PLAYER, who had put together two 68s earlier, lost the lead when he went two over par 4 on No. 15, which he alone had birdied the previous two rounds. Trying to recover with a No. 4 wood after driving into the rough, he lost his ball in a stream protecting the green of the 447-yard hole. He dropped a new ball for a one-stroke penalty, chipped onto the green and two putted.

He later said he had considered playing a safe shot out of the rough but discarded this possibility.

"I'm always attacking," he chuckled.

* * * *

WALL WHO WENT one stroke up at the 15th, bogeyed the 16th to throw the issue back into a deadlock.

After both he and Player also bogeyed the par-3 17th when both their drives were trapped, Player's 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole made the difference.

The 23rd annual flight of the Snowbirds will be sailed over a six-mile course in Newport Bay today starting at 1:30 p.m.

Dick Ward of Newport will be defending his title against 163 competitors, largest in the event's history. Awards will go to the youngest and oldest as well as first girl skipper to finish.

BERRY WINS LEGION MAIN

Berry, 138, was too fast and too slippery for Firpo, 138¾. The 28-year-old Indiana fighter fired a steady barrage at Firpo's face and by the end of the seventh had opened up cuts under both eyes. Referee Charlie Randolph scored it 99-90 and Judges Joey Olmos and Costello Cruz had it 99-93 and 99-90, respectively.

Bob Kelley Says---

Columnist Hollingworth is still looking for a fat lip, I see.

Before departing on his vacation, Henry revealed he would have a glowing list of guest columnists in his absence. Then he made a crack something to the effect that Art Aragon and Harvey Knox would not be among them.

Not letting it go at that, Hollingworth referred to me as their ghost writer. Which steamed me.

But I'll guarantee Henry a lot more people read a column about Knox or Aragon, whether it burns them or not, than chew their way through one of those nifty "guest" columns he arranged in his absence.

He calls them guest columns, I call them publicity handouts.

Why, he had every press agent in town on his "all-star" list—one guy was pitching his racetrack, another pitching his ball club, etc. I was terribly dsappointed, in fact, that Hank didn't work the press agent for Marineland into his lineup somehow.

I'VE TRIED to make peace with Hollingworth, but it does no good. He's always sniping at me. And a guy has to protect himself, even if he's armed with nothing but a typewriter.

Last time I saw Hollingworth was at Hollywood Park.

"What's with all these cracks about me in the column, Buster?" I asked him.

He tried to soft soap me. "Aw, come on, Bob," he said, patting me on the shoulder and giggling self-consciously.

"Sure, I take a few pokes at you in the column. I kid you. I make you look like a bit of a boob. But you know why I do it?"

I shook my head.

"Because," Hollingworth explained gently, "I don't like you!"

I wept softly and sympathetically and turned away. He had been a man about it.

GETTING back to the other thing, 'people always ask me why I talk and write so much about Aragon and Knox. Do I really like them that well? Or do I do it because they're good copy?

I tell them honestly it's a combination of both. Although if Harvey doesn't stop popping off about wrecking the NFL (that's the game I love) I'm not only going to drop him from the column, but also right off the Malibu pier.

One of the most widely-read columnists of all time was Westbrook Pegler. I never missed him. Yet he used to vilify regularly one of my idols, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It burned me to read it, but Pegler did write provocative copy, and I never missed him. Neither did millions of others.

I have pretty much the same theory about Aragon and Knox. It steams people to read about them, but they read it. Of course, what else can I write about?

I don't have an "in" with those press agents, like Hollingworth.

Hagge Ties Pung With 4-Under 70

FRENCH LICK (UPI)—The battle for the Women's Open golf title was thrown into a five-day fight Saturday when rotund Jackie Pung, who had led the field by three strokes, soared to a three-over-par 77.

Little Marlene Bauer Hagge, who tips the scales at less than half Mrs. Pung's 225 pounds, fired a four-under par 70 to go into a first-place tie with the San Francisco swinger. Each had a 225 total for 54 holes in the 72-hole tourney which ends tomorrow.

MRS. HAGGE might have broken Mrs. Pung's course record of 69 if she hadn't had a double bogie on the par 13 and a bogie on 17 as she toured the back nine in one-under par 36 following a three-under-par 34 at the turn.

Elliott 'Breezes' to 3:59 Mile Win

CARDIFF (UPI)—Australia's Herb Elliott broke the four-minute mile barrier for a record seventh time Saturday in winning the feature event of the British Commonwealth Games, but poor weather and a spike wound kept him from breaking the world record.

Elliott, 20-year-old clerk from Perth, eclipsed fellow Aussie John Landy's mark of six sub-four-minute miles when he blazed home 20 yards ahead of Merv Lincoln in 3:59.0.

That was two-tenths of a second off the meet record of 3:58.8 set four years ago by England's Roger Bannister at Vancouver. And it was a full second behind Landy's accepted world record of 3:58.0. A steady drizzle of rain and gusty winds helped make it one of Elliott's greatest triumphs, despite the failure of his record plans.

Here are Elliott's seven "miracle" miles:

Time	Site	Date
3:59.9	Melbourne	Jan. 25, 1958

Althea Whips Moore for Penn Tennis Title

HAVERFORD (AP) — Althea Gibson, New York's U.S. and Wimbledon champion, won the Pennsylvania Women's Lawn Tennis title Saturday and teamed with Karol Fageros, Miami, to win the doubles championship at the Merion Cricket Club.

She defeated Sally Moore, Bakersfield, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4, for her second state title. She last won it in 1956.

Miss Gibson and Miss Fageros outstroked the veteran pair of Mrs. William duPont Jr., Wilmington, Del., and Margaret Varner, El Paso, 6-3, 6-2. The duPont-Varner combination was runner-up in the Wimbledon doubles.

In a men's semifinal, Peru's Alejandro Olmedo surprised Sam Giammalva, Houston, 6-1, 6-2, to enter the finals today against Barry MacKay, Dayton.

Miss Gibson staved off a Moore rally in the third set to wrap up her title. Miss Moore fought from a 4-0 deficit to trail 5-4. The U.S. champion finished the game with a drop shot to the right side. The 18-year-old Miss Moore is Wimbledon Junior titleholder and was seeded seventh in the tournament.

MISS FAGEROS, who shucked her famous gold lace panties for more commonplace garb, played an outstanding hand in the double triumph. She and Miss Gibson broke through Mrs. duPont's service for a 5-2 lead in a duece game of the second set.

Bold Ruler Beats Only One Horse as Cohoes Romps

NEW YORK (AP)—Bold Ruler found 136 pounds and six of seven lightly-weighted opponents too much to handle Saturday and ended up badly beaten as Greentree Stable's Cohoes won the $57,000 Brooklyn Handicap at Jamaica.

The Ruler, giving from 22 to 31 pounds to his rivals in the mile and three-sixteenths test, defeated only one horse in going down to his worst defeat in a 32-race career. The 1957 horse of the year previously had finished out of the money only three times. Saturday, however, he was beaten by 15 lengths.

Bold Ruler was bothered some by Sharpsburg a quarter mile from home but, although the interference cost Sharpsburg second money, it wasn't bad enough for Eddie Arcaro, aboard Bold Ruler, to claim a foul.

"We were pretty well beaten when it happened," said Arcaro.

Cohoes ran the mile and three sixteenths in 1:55⅗ and pair $25.70, $10.80 and $8.70. Third Brother, awarded second, paid $10.30 and $7.20. Inside Tract returned $11.30 to show.

Watch Your Step Snares Sapling

OCEANPORT, N. J. (UPI)—Watch Your Step gained a four and a half length triumph over previously unbeaten Intentionally Saturday to take the $58,900 Sapling Stakes at Monmouth Park.

Watch Your Step paid $11.40, $4.80 and $2.20 for his 1:10⅘ triumph. Intentionally returned $3.60 and $2.20, while Restless Wind paid $2.20.

Swoon's Son Pads Bankroll With Win

DETROIT (UPI) — Swoon's Son moved from seventh to fifth place among the top money winners in racing Saturday by capturing the $50,000-added Michigan Sweepstakes. Mister Jive was second by a head and My Night Out was third.

Swoon's Son now has lifetime earnings of $851,000. He ran the mile and one sixteenth in 1:43⅘ and paid $4.60, $3.80, $3.20. Mister Jive paid $7.20, $5.20 and My Night Out returned $3.80.

Longshot Scores at Arlington

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Dragon Killer, a bay 3-year-old who never before won a stake, dashed out of a pack of 12 in the final 16th Saturday to win the $146,575 Arlington Classic by a nose in a photo finish with Talent Show.

A Dragon Killer, ridden by James Combes, was a 17-1 shot, overlooked by the crowd of 28,513 in preference to Calumet Farm's Kentucky Pride and Claiborne Farm's Nadir.

But Kentucky Pride never was a factor, running no better than third at any time, and Nadir, making a bid at the head of the stretch, barely took third in a photo over William H. Bishop's Discordant.

A Dragon Killer paid $36.20, $16 and $7.60, and Talent Show, half of the Mrs. Ada L. Rice entry, returned $12.40 and $6.20. Nadir paid $4.60. Time for the mile was 1:36 2/5 and the winner's share was $101,100.

Delaware Handicap to Endine

STANTON, Del. (AP) — The Christiana Stables of Wilmington, Del., kept the big money at home Saturday when Endine captured the $143,562 Delaware Handicap in an exciting finish which saw the King Ranch's Dotted Line miss by a bare nose.

This is the richest race in the world for fillies and mares, and 16 of them took off in a cavalry charge that produced a surprising result after a hectic mile and one quarter gallop. Third place went to Mrs. William H. Veeneman's Woodlawn, with the Mooring Stable's Tempted fourth.

* * * *

THE WINNER, carrying 111 pounds, was clocked in 2:03 compared with the record of 2:02⅘ set by Parlo in 1955. Endine paid $24, $8.80 and $6. Dotted Line, packing 116 pounds, paid $8.80 and $6.60, after taking second place by a length over Woodlawn.

The latter, with 108 pounds, was a length ahead of Tempted, and returned $22.40 to show after starting as the longest shot in the race at 60-1.

Dodgers, Phils Play Two Today

landed in the upper deck in left field and was his 14th of the year. Lefty Seth Morehead pitched the last two innings and took his lumps. He gave up four runs and seven hits.

While Koufax limited the Phils to seven hits to gain his eighth win; the Dodgers erupted with a 13-hit barrage, their best showing since a 14-hit binge against the Phils last Sunday.

Before Sanford knew what hit him, he walked Don Zimmer and John Roseboro, saw this speedy pair work a double steal, and then hit Norm Larker with a pitch to fill the bases.

Up came Hodges. Pow—right in the kisser. A sharp single to center scored Zimmer. Roseboro had a notion to come in but held third until catcher Carl Sawatski threw the ball away. Roseboro scored and Charlie Neal followed with a two-run single to chase Sanford. Neal's hit gave him 16 RBI's in his last 15 games.

* * * *

HEARN CAME in and served a harmless single to Gino Cimoli, then got Dick Gray to bounce into an inning-ending double play and went on to retire the next 12 Dodgers.

Hearn was lifted for a hitter in the seventh and the Dodgers found Morehead a welcome sight in the eighth.

After singles by Elmer Valo and Hodges and a fielder's choice, Cimoli tripled to right-center for two runs. It was the 40th three-bagger of the year for the Dodgers, who lead the league in that category.

HODGES' double, after singles by Junior Gilliam and Zimmer and a sacrifice by Roseboro, delivered the last two runs in the ninth.

ROBIN ROBERTS (9-9) bids for victory No. 199 this afternoon when he faces Dodger rookie Stan Williams (6-5) in the first game of a doubleheader. Phil southpaw ace Curt Simmons (6-9) will pitch the nightcap against rookie Dodger lefty Bob Giallombardo (1-1).

DODGERS DIS AND DATA—Johnny Podres reported he lost 10 pounds in his seven inning pitching performance Friday night when the temperature was in the mid-80s and humidity in the 90s . . . Podres does not believe in the theory that lefthanded pitchers have better luck against lefthanded hitters. He shouldn't, either, because four of the Phils' five hits off Podres Friday were by the lefty swingers . . . Podres says "a good hitter will hit all types of pitching." . . . trainer Doc Wendler rubbed Podres' sore left elbow between innings Friday . . . but Podres did not blame the elbow on his failure to finish. "I just ran out of gas."

Dodgers manager Walt Alston will use Gil Hodges in the outfield and Steve Bilko at first base against Curt Simmons in today's first game, if Carl Furillo is able to play. Hodges will be in left field and Furillo in right. Furillo has been out of the lineup more than a week because of a strained right shoulder. It bothers his swing as well as his throwing . . . Hodges will remain in the lineup at least for a week. Alston still hopes that Gil will regain his batting form of old . . . Alston said Hodges has not lost his reflexes, but that his reaction time has been a little slower than some of the others. "We tested his reflexes three years ago," Alston said. "An electronic device showed that Hodges has quick hands, but it takes him longer to react."

All the Dodgers, except pitcher Don Drysdale, will make the trip to St. Paul for an exhibition game with the Dodgers' American Assn. farm club Monday night. Drysdale is due to open the Milwaukee series Tuesday night . . . Dodger coach Rube Walker took great delight in needling Phils catcher Carl Sawatski in the batting cage Saturday. Commenting on Sawatski's batting form, Walker said, "He looks like a turtle with arthritis." . . .

Duke Snider's left knee was worse Saturday. He played only two innings as defensive insurance Friday. Alston feels that, even on one leg, Snider is better defensively than Junior Gilliam or Wayne Larker . . . Both Gilliam and Larker are converted infielders.

Casals Asked to Play at Brussels

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pablo Casals, the famous cellist, has been invited to play at the Brussels World Fair in honor of his newly-adopted homeland, Puerto Rico.

If he accepts, the 81-year-old musician would give a substantial fillip to the much-criticized U. S. program at the fair.

* * * *

THE PUERTO RICAN exhibit is part of this country's although it was set up independently by the island's state department, symbolizing the home-rule relationship it enjoys with the United States.

Puerto Rico's music-loving Gov. Luis Munoz Marin recently wrote Casals suggesting his appearance at the fair would be a major contribution to the prestige of Puerto Rico and the United States. Munoz himself plans to attend the fair in September and proposed that the two be there together.

Officials here feel that a recital by Casals would go a long way to help this country match the massive array of musical talent assembled by the Soviet Union. Such renowned soloists as violinist David Oistrakh and pianist Emil Gilels teamed with top Russian orchestras for weeks of concerts, and the Bolshoi Opera and Ballet dazzled capacity audiences with outstanding performances.

* * * *

BECAUSE OF LACK of funds, the United States was limited to only a few concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra, with violinists Isaac Stern and the Juilliard School of Music's youthful ensemble.

Munoz had this uneven display of talent in mind when he wrote Casals. But he deliberately left the invitation sufficiently vague so that Casals may comfortably decline should he be tied up through previous commitments or too tired to make the trip.

Reserve Troops Leave for Camps

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Some 1,800 Reserve Officers and enlisted men left Los Angeles Saturday for two weeks of training at Camp Roberts.

The reservists boarded trains at Union Station in the first major railroad troop movement from the Southland since the Korean war.

Commanding the 2,500-man 63rd Infantry Division is Maj. Gen. Henry K. Kellogg of Hollywood. The "citizen soldiers" return Aug. 9.

It Happened Last Night

By Earl Wilson

A PICNIC WITH SOPHIA

NEW YORK — There's a Hollywood in Paris, and a Hollywood outside London and Rome — and after I'd visited all three a couple of times, I came at last to Hollywood-in-the-Bronx.

It was about a $3 cab ride up to the Gold Medal Studios, and when I got there, the building looked like a school, but the trip was worth it, because there I saw one of my heroines, Sophia Loren.

SOPHIA

Before I finished my visit, Sophia was lying on the floor of her dressing room.

Her husband, Carlo Ponti, was sitting on a chair, bending over her, talking to her.

Sophia was resting. I suspected she was about to have a siesta.

For Sophia had just played hostess to a big Italian-type luncheon in this same dressing room, with the cast as her guests.

It was a feast. "Hollywood was never like this," said Barbara Nichols, one of the performers in the picture, "That Kind of Woman."

"Rome was never like this, either," Sophia said, yawning.

* * * *

IT SEEMS that a couple of days before, the cast had gone out to various restaurants in the neighborhood. It was probably Keenan Wynn who thought of it—that they should have kind of a box lunch — a picnic — right in the studio.

"Do you know any place around here where we can get some Italian bread?" he asked a boy in the neighborhood.

The boy knew just the place.

Chianti, salami, sliced ham, cheese and more chianti were aquired. When I arrived in the dressing room, strictly as a reporter, I found a table groaning with all those edibles—and everybody applying the well-known boarding-house reach to get a portion before it was all gone.

Sophia had as long a boarding-house reach as anybody.

Also pretty good was director Sidney Lumet, who in levis, and a strange floppy old cap that he considers a good luck omen, didn't remind you a bit of his wife, Gloria Vanderbilt.

"CAN I MAKE you a salami - and - cheese sandwich?" asked Sophia, who was on the floor on her knees, wolfing down the vittles pretty enthusiastically.

"You certainly can," I replied courteously.

"Can I pour you some chianti?" asked Keenan Wynn.

"You certainly can," I answered.

"Can I make you another sandwich?" asked Barbara Nichols, whose two French poodles were running around the dressing room.

"You certainly can," I glub-glubbed.

"Can I pour you some more chianti?" inquired Jack Warden.

"You certainly can — and may I say you're not only a wonderful actor but a gentleman . . . and also a great wine-pourer " I said.

I cannot remeber that Sidney Lumet, Carlo Ponti or Tab Hunter served me anything . . . but then there's a lot that I don't remember about that luncheon. I do recall that at one point Sidney Lumet said, waving his cap, "I will kindly request all my cast to sober up and get back to work!"

* * * *

IT WAS ABOUT that time that Barbara Nichols reported one of her dogs was lost.

People got down on their knees and looked for Hi-Fi, who, however, remained elusive so long that people began hoping that he hadn't made himself a part of the luncheon by mistake.

"Hi-Fi is one of my boy friends," Barbara said gloomily. "I would hate to lose him. Boy friends are very hard to find nowadays."

"You should come to Italy," Sophia said. She was now lying down on the floor, stretched out very comfortably.

"Would you find me a boy friend?" asked Barbara.

"Of course!" Sophia was looking up at Carlo, her husband, who was looking adoringly at her.

Barbara, who was down on her knees, searching for Hi-Fi, suddenly said, "You don't have to. I just found my boy friend." He was hiding under the table, afraid he was going to be devoured.

Sophia looked so siesta-like that I decided I'd better leave. I did with the fondest recollections of Hollywood-in-the-Bronx.

THE WEEK-END WINDUP "DON'T PRINT THAT!": A famous singer described his latest million-record seller: "I hated it when I made it and I hate it even more now —it's the worst piece of trash ever put out!" . . . A big-name athlete is trying to hush the fact his ex-wife was admitted to a mental hospital.

Dorothy Lamour, appearing on B'way in "Oh, Captain," got this opening night wire: "Glad we're not appearing with you. You've stolen enough scenes from us. — Bing and Bob" . . . A forthcoming show, "Nine O'Clock Theater," will serve its audience after-dinner coffee before curtain time and drinks during intermission. . . . Gene Kelly recommended his pal, comic Jack Durant, to play the Mayor of Chinatown in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Flower Drum Song."

ACTRESS EVA BARTOK —who is reported due to wed the Marquis of Milford-Haven — will be here next month to ballyhoo her sexy new film, "Circus of Love." . . . With the Latin-American dances still the rage, they tell of the cafe owner who dashed into the street, shouting, "Help, my place is on fire, cha cha cha!" . . . A singer complained to the boss of a Manhattan cafe that her salary check had bounced, and he snapped, "Well, why not? Everybody else here got one!"

Edsel Visits Las Vegas Strip

Gay Town Still Reigns as Nation's Fun Center

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

The word "Vega" translates into "star of the first magnitude . . . brightest star of the constellation." Las Vegas, then, is aptly named with many scintillating stars a-twinkle night and day in this greatest of entertainment constellations. For, recession or no, Las Vegas still reigns as undisputed queen of the world of fun and fantasy, high-style pleasure center of America.

Whether you want to lie poolside in the sun, nightclub in formal attire, or cavort around the tables of chance in levis or shorts, fabulous Las Vegas still is your best bet for a multi-thrill vacation.

Take that word "fabulous." Certainly it's greatly overworked as applied to supermarket openings or dollar-day sales, yet there's no other adjective to so aptly describe this glittering entertainment spa where thousands of $$$ change ownership on the capricious bounce of a numbered cube, where the greats of show business perform for picayunish salaries of up to $50,000 a week, and where curvaceous chorus cuties perform wearing no more than a smile north of the equator. Small wonder it's fabulous, fabulous Las Vegas.

And Lost Wages, as some are prone to call this city of glitter—and grief—was the scene of our latest I. P-T motorlog which saw us traveling via a brand new 1958 Edsel, a car which impressed us considerably on the 600-mile round trip.

Harbor Lincoln-Mercury of 1633 American Ave. is the new Edsel dealership in Long Beach so it was Chan Simonds, genial general manager of the place, whom we approached for the loan of the Edsel. Chan agreed immediately to the use of the car with this proviso, "You can take the Edsel all right, but the pink slip stays right here. After all, hitchhiking can be most unpleasant in that fiery desert sun." And having been up Vegas way before, we knew exactly what Mr. Simonds meant.

Talking to Chan in a more serious vein while the big white Citation was being made road-ready for our tour, we queried the general manager as to the future for Edsel.

"Well, I'll tell you this, Art," Simonds enthused. "Edsel has put 50,000 cars on the road in the first 10 months of production and that's a new record for any first-year car in this price class. And if you don't think there are a lot more Edsels on the road, while you're on this Vegas trip, just notice how many of those distinctive fronts you'll see coming at you along the highway."

And I must admit Chan had a point; we did see a good many Edsels on our motorlog trip. And although one has a tendency to spot the same make of car you're driving, we noticed more Edsels than on any of our previous motorlog trips. Of course, you can spot the cars a mile away with that unique front-on view, which is just what the designers had in mind.

Leaving Long Beach at an early 6 a.m. to escape the desert heat (next time, Chan, air-conditioning, please) we turned our brand new Edsel, only 44 miles on the speedometer, toward the San Bernardino freeway and Fontana. Here a left turn took us over the mile-saving Devore Cutoff, onto Highway 66 through Cajon Pass where the early morning temperature was cool and pleasant. Soon we had bypassed Victorville and shortly after eased to a gas-stop in Barstow's 100-degree heat. Here we left 66 for State Highway 91, next lemonade stop, Baker, sun-scorched oasis in the center of the Mojave Desert.

Now as we rolled along we could observe some of the qualities of our big Edsel. I had driven the car once before in Detroit last August when the newcomer was introduced to the press, but only for a few miles at the Dearborn test track. Here, cruising along the desert floor, our motorlog party universally agreed on two things—the feel of extra roominess and comfort in the car. Of course, this was the Citation, the top of the Edsel line. It was a big, big car and it did give us a luxury ride as we sped toward never-never land.

And we noticed other little things exclusive to the Edsel. Like the very practical gear-selector buttons located in the center of the steering wheel, the radio dial-type heat and cool-air selector which lets you select your inside weather with the flick of one dial instead of fumbling around with several different knobs, and the easy-to-read, airplane-type instrument panel.

As to engine performance, the car was practically new and I took it fairly easy on the accelerator but now and then, in passing a grade-climbing truck, I would give the throttle a healthy shove and you could feel there was plenty under the hood as the four-barrel carburetors flashed the word to the 345 horses below.

But the Edsel wasn't the only thought as we neared the Nevada border. Here, over the monotonous desert highway was the time for more basic thoughts. Like... this time I'll play the don't pass line, I'll go along with the house.... no, I'll stick with blackjack and stand on 12 or over and let the dealer go bust ... or why not roulette?... why not wait till red comes up three times then chunk it on the black... why not this, why not that, till suddenly we're in Vegas and Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn, six hours and 50 minutes from home.

Several years ago when the Mobilgas Economy Run took us to the Grand Canyon via Las Vegas, we were guests at the Desert Inn, and with memories of their lavish hospitality we decided to again make this swank hotel our stopping place for the two-day jaunt. A few minutes saw our party settled in two adjoining rooms, tastefully decorated in desert motif, air-conditioned, of course (it was 110 at three in the afternoon), complete with piped-in music and telephones. And the best part was the tariff of only $7 per room. Believe me, this plush comfort has to be the biggest bargain in Las Vegas.

When on these tours I usually try to meet the hotel operators, mentioning our motorlog, etc., so while other members of our troupe languished poolside after the hot desert ride, I chatted with Eugene Murphy, public relations director of the Desert Inn, who pointed out the many recreational facilities of the famed Strip resort.

Ed Sullivan and his entourage were headlining the Desert Inn entertainment that weekend and after suggesting to Mr. Murphy we would like reservations for the show that evening that genial gentleman fixed up our party with a ringside table, and I do mean ringside. You know, it's rather hard to keep your mind on your shrimp cocktail when a line of chorus cuties kick up their heels a foot or two above your head, but then again, that's fabulous Las Vegas.

And Sullivan did put on a show. Nine stellar acts from busty singers to mystic magicians kept the Desert Inn patrons away from the gaming tables for more than an hour and a half and that means the entertainment has to be good.

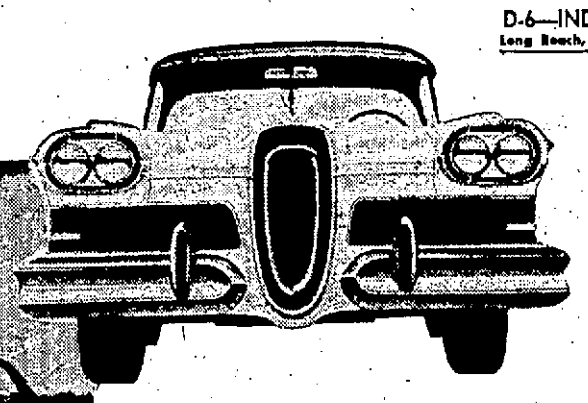

Next day I introduced myself to Mr. Sullivan as he was strolling through the casino, suggesting he pose before our Edsel for our motorlog page. However, "Smiley" declined politely, noting that even though Edsel was a member of the Ford family, he was sponsored on TV by Mercury dealers and he felt he'd better not drape himself over an Edsel. The TV tycoon did mention he has a cousin in Long Beach, Emmet Sullivan, one-time member of our Board of Harbor Commissioners, so if you read this, Emmet, Cousin Ed says hello from Las Vegas.

Time never lags on the Vegas Strip. Besides intermittent trips to the casinos (good thing Chan didn't give me the pink slip) we ogled Jack Benny over a steak at the Flamingo, dug the Louis Prima-Keely Smith show at the Sahara, and got a big laugh at the antics of Pinky Lee at the Dunes where the near-nude showgirls perform a la Minsky, complete with sparkler. (This you have to see to believe.)

And one of the highlights of our Vegas voyage was an interlude at the Desert Inn's new Sky Room Lounge, high above the hotel. Opening at dusk, this is the lovliest place in Las Vegas to watch the distant mountains change into soft shades of blue and purple as the fiery sun slips into the desert. Here, tall cool one in hand and soft piano meanderings in the background, a man can almost forget what happened at the blackjack table a half hour before.

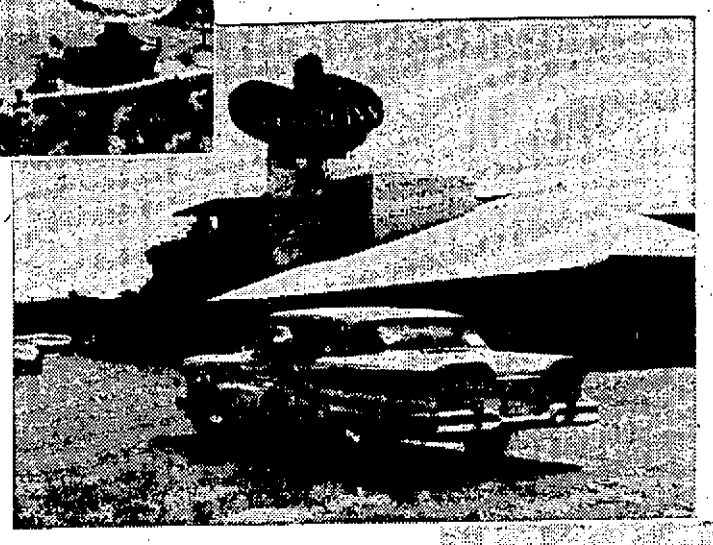

Suddenly our two days in Las Vegas were gone. Tuesday evening found us once more back in the Edsel, beach-bound. And as the big Citation purred along in the hot desert night we couldn't help but muse . . . Las Vegas is fun, fantastic . . . and for the seventh or eleventh time . . . fabulous!

Tele-Vues by TERRY VERNON

"The Purple People Eater," in person, is billed for the "Ed Sullivan Show" (2) at 8 p.m., or at least the most reasonable facsimile in the person of Sheb Wooley. He wrote the song and made the hit record.

All is not peace and quiet in Wooleyland. Long before he made the big hit song he signed for a role on "Rawhide" and agreed to help exploit the show by personal appearances. Now he has to clear everything he does with CBS, even appearances to sing his famous song.

Other acts billed tonight include such topliners as Ernie Kovacs, Mickey Rooney, Gisele MacKenzie, Gordon MacRae, The Goofers, George Givot, Bobby Van, the San Francisco Four and a Grandmothers' Orchestra.

Show originates in Hollywood's big TV City of CBS.

Big Home Building Boom Nearly Ready to Launch

By KEN CHILCOTE
Independent, Press-Telegram Business Editor

Southern California is near another gigantic housing construction period, declares Leo J. Volk, president of the Building Contractors of California.

"And," said the builders' chief, "this upswing in construction will pull the general economy of the area along with it into a new era of prosperity."

Dormant for months, housing construction in the Long Beach-Orange County area has been slow to get renewed this summer although thousands of homes are on the planning boards of major building firms.

* * * *

FINANCING PROBLEMS, an earlier pinch on money, government demands for heavier down payments and big increases in building costs have been the barrier confronting the tract developers.

A survey of the nearly 2,000 members of the Building Contractors Assn., reveals that plans are being completed to get many housing projects under way shortly and the construction will be in full swing early in 1959.

However, warns Volk, that with the increase in home building will come higher prices and many of the new homes will lack the extras found in the new homes now on the market.

* * * *

GEORGE TOLL, manager of the Long Beach office of the State Employment Service, said an early revival of home construction would be a welcome cut in the unemployed rolls. He estimated there still are 4,000 persons in the building trades out of work.

Heavy construction has taken some of the unemployed in that group but housing tracts always provide far more jobs for carpenters, plasterers, roofers, painters and similar trades, than heavy construction, he added.

Toll reported that for the past three weeks his office has received several large orders for skilled workers and he expects to show 1,200 such placements for the month. Jobs for youngsters are showing a big gain with at least 300 being put to work this month, he added.

* * * *

AMONG THE BUILDING TRADES the brightest picture this month has been the call for many painters, said Toll.

Volk in speaking for the contractors, pointed out that although construction economists have generally predicted that the next housing boom in Southern California will occur sometime from 1960 to 1962, evidence is emerging that indicates it may get under way shortly. He reported that a survey of the members revealed an almost universal trend to accelerate their building operations.

Many builders will concentrate on lower cost housing in suburban areas achieved largely by the elimination of many so-called "extras" that are commonly included by builders today, Volk said.

"They will attempt to hold the line or possibly lower prices of new homes without reducing construction quality by returning to the practice of having the buyer add extra conveniences as he can afford them rather than compelling him to assume their cost in the original price," Volk predicted. "These extra conveniences will still be available but will be optional to a greater degree than in the recent past."

* * * *

COSTS OF LAND, materials, labor and financing will become somewhat higher as the new housing boom gains momentum, he warned.

"It is entirely possible that these increases may offset or more than offset any cost reductions achieved through elimination of non-structural "extras," he said.

"It is obvious under these conditions that the prospective home buyer who can make his purchase now will receive substantially more for his building dollar than he will if he waits for the boom to hit," Volk asserted.

The builders chief predicted that the upswing in construction would pull the general economy of the area along with it into a new era of prosperity.

MORE PARKING COMING

Two Long Beach landmarks will be torn down to make room for a parking lot, at W. 3rd St. and Cedar Ave., near the new civic center. The old frame structure at 226 W. 3rd St., built more than 50 years ago, will be demolished at once. Recently, it was sold by Mrs. Lora V. Outhier, of 232 Belmont Ave., who had owned the property since 1922. The buyer was B. Everett Gobel, of 835 E. Carson St. Gobel also purchased the adjoining property at 256 W. 3rd St., on which there is an old frame structure. The sellers were Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Ferry, of Waterloo, Iowa. Charles H. Blaylock was the realtor in the two transactions. Gobel, a member of the National Parking Assn., will convert each property into a parking lot.

Home Builders Eye $100 Week Workers

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UPI)—The housing industry is turning its attention once again to low-cost homes that fit the budgets of the nation's average wage earners.

Industry spokesmen say the man making between $70 and $100 a week has become the almost "forgotten" market of housing.

In recent years, the housing industry has been concentrating on homes in the higher price brackets — $20,000 to $40,000 and higher.

The $100-a-week man can only look at $25,000 split levels and $35,000 ranch homes. He just can't afford to buy.

* * * *

THE AVERAGE wage earner is able to purchase a home in the $14,000 or under class. He could meet the monthly payments without too much strain.

David O'D. Kennedy, president of Kentile Inc., a leading manufacturer of floor tile, said surveys showed that plans for low-cost housing projects are rising sharply this year.

"According to government and private statistics," he added, "present indications are that homes in the $7,000 to $13,000 range will hit 400,000 this year—a more than 50 per cent jump over 1957."

He said it is likely that a minimum of 600,000 homes will be built in the $13,000 to $20,000 bracket.

Kennedy said "ample mortgage money, lower down payments and the adjustment of interest rates to the reality of today's market are helping to get the housing industry back on its feet."

* * * *

IN RECENT YEARS inflation has played havoc with the average wage earner's dream of owning his own home.

A spokesman for F. W. Dodge Corp. estimated that the cost of the average home has more than doubled in the postwar period. Rising prices which threaten to price the indufry out of its biggest market still constitute one of the major problems facing builders today.

However, housing starts have begun to perk up and this has been one of the important factors cited by economists as evidence the nation is coming out of the recession.

Sol Vista Homes in Santa Ana Appeal

Heavy attendance at the Grand Opening of Sol-Vista Santa Ana Homes with the sale of 18 homes in first 10 days, was reported by Al Solomon of Alco-Pacific Construction Company, Inc., builders.

Combination of moderate price, ($13,500), sturdy construction, and customized features of Sol-Vista Santa Ana Homes, presents an excellent home-value, according to Solomon. No down payment is required of veterans; impounds only. FHA terms require $450 down, plus small impounds.

* * * *

SOLOMON LISTS prime features of Sol-Vista Santa Ana Homes which include 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, with stall showers and colored fixtures, large 2-car garage and laundry space, plenty of wardrobes with sliding doors, and forced air heat. Mahogany paneling, natural finish mahogany doors, sculptured wood room dividers, sliding glass patio doors, old and ruffled brick fireplaces with log lighter, and professional color styling add to desirability of these homes. Family-size kitchens provide convenient breakfast area, Formica counter tops, Vinyl floors, natural finish ash cabinets, and garbage disposals.

Furnished models are open for inspection daily on Park Drive, one block south of Delhi.

TWIN LAVATORIES

Luxurious bathrooms are a popular feature of Bellehurst Homes. Twin lavatories, ample lighting, and ceramic tile are seen in this model home, open daily for inspection. Bellehurst Homes are one mile north of Santa Ana Freeway on Hwy. 39.

Announcement of the $300,000 recreation center at Bellehurst has given sales a tremendous impact, according to Bill Clark, Bellehurst sales agent. Featuring three swimming pools, tennis and badminton courts, picnic area, teenage center and a nursery, the area will make the Bellehurst Community unique in the southland.

Bellehurst features homesites which surround the Los Coyotes Country Club, affording scenic views among the rolling hills of the area. The immediate adjacency of the country club, plus the recreation center to delight teenagers and youngsters, creates a prestige community for family enjoyment and gracious entertaining.

* * * *

A VARIETY of model homes, now open for inspection, includes 3, 4, nad 5 bedrooms. An unusual feature of Bellehurst Homes is the fact that they are completely landscaped with sprinklers innstalled for easy maintenance. In addition, the handsome innteriors are complete with carpeting and draperies.

The Bellehurst location, one mile north of the Santa Ana Freeway on Hwy. 39, affords privacy, yet is close to all points of interest and within easy commuting distance to all points in the Southland. Prices on the quality homes begin as low as $29,770 with 10 per cent down needed for financing.

Prop-Driven Trains Seen

WOOD-RIDGE, N. J. (UPI)—Propeller-driven trains that could hurtle from New York to Washington in two hours are being discussed on a hush-hush basis by the Pennsylvania railroad and the Curtiss-Wright Aeronautical Corp.

Spokesmen for both firms admit they have been talking over the "possibility" of a "high speed train," but refuse to clarify reports that an aircraft engine would be used to power the train.

However, it was learned that the use of a 3,700-horsepower airplane engine made by Curtiss-Wright formed the starting point for discussions in Philadelphia.

The engine—a turbo-compound manufactured here—is used to power giant commercial aircraft such as super constellations.

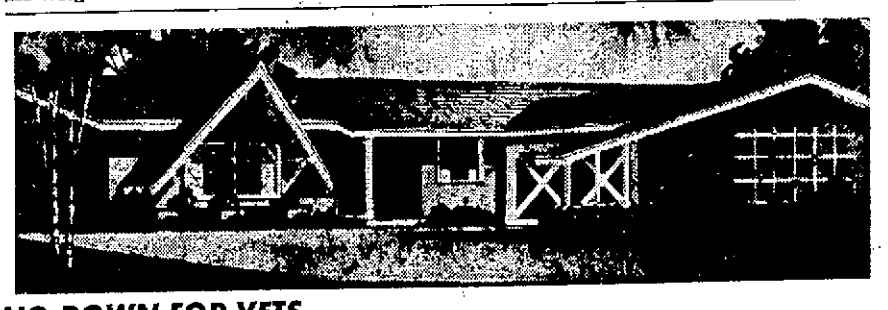

Its use on a train, it was reported, could clip 85 minutes from the three hour and 25-minute trip between New York and Washington.

NO DOWN FOR VETS

Priced from $14,100, the new Stardust Homes Coronation Series is expected to see rapid sales because of the terms. Vets need no down payment and non-vets may use FHA terms.

New Stardust Sales Are Started

Called "the crowning achievement of Stardust Homes," the Coronation Series of 3-bedroom family room and 2-bath dwellings are open now to what is expected to be record sales. Veterans pay nothing down to move into their new Coronation Stardust home, while non-vets may purchase for FHA terms. Prices in the new Robert H. Grant development start at $14,100.

Built-in Pioneer gas range with space-saver top, built-in oven with eye-level controls and disposal unit are features of the kitchens. Cheery rooms with good lighting and maximum daylight as well, the kitchens have fully formed Formica counter tops, Zolatoned cabinets with raised panels and scuff-proof easy to maintain floors. Kitchens are adjacent to family rooms and overlook the rear yard and patio of the homes.

* * * *

OVERSIZED LOTS generously invite a number of outdoor living activities. Swimming pools can be easily accommodated, leaving room to spare for such facilities as play-courts, patio-barbecues and gardens.

Sliding glass doors easily give access to the patio areas of the home, with kitchens, family rooms and master baths located at the rear of the homes where family activities are centered. There is richly grained mahogany paneling across wardrobe walls in the bedrooms enclosing the closets and offering textural contrast with the acoustic ceilings. The master bedroom has the convenience of the second bath.

* * * *

THE LUSTROUS oak hardwood floors long associated with Grant developments are again seen in Coronation Homes, it was noted, with superior quality evident in flooring laid over 2x6 tongue and groove subfloors and 4x6 girders. Other features of the homes are forced air heat with thermostat control, rock and shingle roofs, two-car garage and sliding aluminum doors.

Coronation Homes are easily accessible to shopping, churches, new schools and many recreational facilities in Orange County. Models are on the north side of Cerritos, half-way between Knott and Western Aves.

IN LEMON HEIGHTS WEST NO. 2
High light of today's grand opening at Lemon Heights West, Schwartz-Yedor's new community of luxuriously appointed custom residences in the exclusive Lemon Heights district of Santa Ana, is a display of four furnished models.

Lemon Heights West Opening Second Unit of Luxury Homes

Today's grand opening of Lemon Heights West Unit 2 in Santa Ana will be highlighted by the first public showing of four furnished models with decor by Newton S. Leichter, creator of interiors of homes in the $100,000 bracket, according to Schwartz-Yedor, builder-developers.

"Pre-opening response has been nothing short of terrific," reports Tom Yedor. "Even before this formal opening, one-third of the homes have already been sold."

Today's opening introduces the "Custom Series," expressly designed for those who require a minimum of 2,200 square feet of living space. Architect George Vernon Russell designed these spacious residences in a wide variety of diverse architectural stylings and highly individual floor plans with 3 and 4 bedrooms and 3 baths.

* * * *

ALL OF THE CUSTOM detailing and luxurious appointments that won Schwartz-Yedor the 1958 "House and Home" award of merit, have gone into the planning and construction of these homes.

Fully priced from $32,750, these homes offer sunken playrooms, spacious family rooms, separate dining rooms as well as separate dining areas, powder rooms and master bedroom suites with private baths.

Completely appliance-equipped kitchens, with each appliance selected from the best in its field, are included in the price of the homes. These list built-in wall oven, counter rangetop, sink-installed disposer, automatic dishwasher, washer and dryer and combination refrigerator freezer.

* * * *

OTHER TOP QUALITY components include custom fireplaces each styled to the home's individual decor, indoor barbecues, built-in custom bars, Hi-Fi wiring and properly engineered heating and air conditioning systems.

Furnished models are reached from Long Beach by taking Pacific Coast Hwy. to Bay Blvd. (at Seal Beach), north to Westminster Ave. (becomes 17th St.) and east through Santa Ana to Hewes Ave. Turn north on Hewes to Spaulding and left to Lemon Heights West Unit 2. Or take Garden Grove Blvd. to Main St., Santa Ana. Jog right, then left on 17th St. and follow above directions.

Sunshine Home Is Appealing

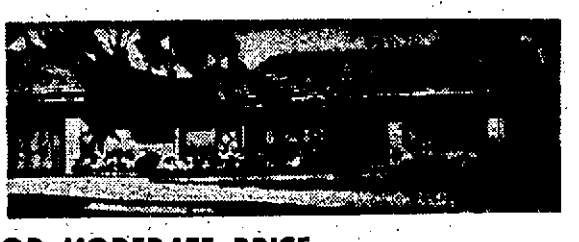

Ideal climate with cool, smog-free air adds to appeal of Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, in the opinion of builders, S. V. Hunsaker & Sons.

Located on Bowen St. and Woodbury Rd., Garden Grove Sunshine Homes are within easy driving distance to fine beach resorts and also convenient to the business centers of Santa Ana, Anaheim, and Long Beach.

These attractive 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes are sturdily built and provide choice of front or rear living rooms, forced air heat, steel sliding windows, Maticork floors, acoustical ceilings, and abundant closet space. Kitchens have a convenient snack area, Vinyl tile, Formica sink decks, garbage disposal, and natural birch cabinets.

Furnished models are open daily. Buyers may take immediate occupancy.

Total down payment is $95, with monthly payments said to be less than rent.

FOR MODERATE PRICE
Magnolia Manor Unit 7 offers homes such as this on exceptionally low terms and all are priced from $12,200 to $12,500.

New Magnolia Manor Unit Attracts Growing Family

Families needing larger homes are being attracted to the Laramore Construction Co.'s Magnolia Manor No. 7 houses, featuring 3 and 4-bedroom homes of over 1300 sq. ft. plus double garages, salesmen report.

The homes, with 3 or 4 large bedrooms and 1½ or 2 baths, all have survey-tested designs which include big airy central hall plans with front and back living areas, and comfortable dining space adjoining ultra-modern labor-saving kitchens with mellow hardwood cabinets, garbage disposals, and plenty of utility room.

A REPUTATION for high value at reasonable prices has been maintained through more than 5,000 Laramore Company homes built and sold in the Southern California area. This shows definite buyer approval, according to Frank H. McFarland, sales agent.

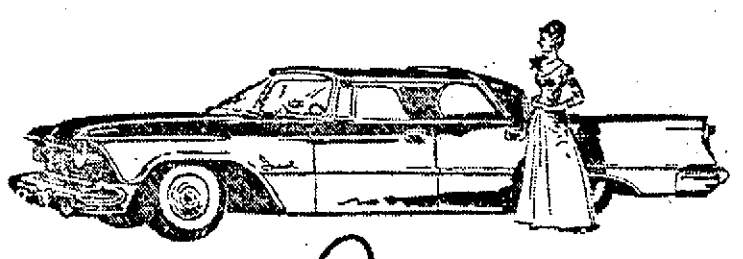

The homes are offered on terms of only $195 down plus $90 costs. The moderate $12,200 to $12,500 price range contains no balloon payments or due dates.

Driving from the Long Beach area go east on 7th St.-(Garden Grove Blvd.) to Huntington Beach Blvd., south to Westminster then east to Magnolia Manor models. The models are open daily from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Nylon's tremendous wearing ability (from 5 to 15 times that of wool by actual scientific tests), plus its excellent resilience, stain resistance and ease of cleaning, make it the best buy in carpets.

Nylon is also moth-proof, allergy-free, non-inflammable and has no more static electricity than wool.

All nylon, however, is not alike. For example, there is waste nylon, discarded nylon, nylon from cord tires, nylon adapted for hosiery, etc., all of which are not recommended for carpet use. The carpets offered by us are virgin nylon with no waste or unsuitable nylon used.

Assistance Leaguers Hold Key to Teen Hearts

COOKIE AND MILK time is observed at the Girls' Club every afternoon at 1 o'clock with Mrs. William B. Eastmaan, league Girls' Club chairman, doing the honors in the above picture. A part of the $1-per-year membership fee goes to defray snack expenses, and snack time also gives members working for "camp points" an opportunity to serve. Points are given for numerous chores around the clubhouse and go toward week's vacation at summer camp.

Girls Club Boasts Membership of 450

By JOYCE KENT

Junior High School age girls, informally attired in shorts, slacks and Capris, stream in a ceaseless flow to the contemporary exteriored building at 2640 Santa Fe Ave.

The girls are members of the Assistance League of Long Beach sponsored West Long Beach Girls Club participating in a full summer program of sports, crafts, cooking, sewing, first aid, drama, charm, music, dancing, television and reading.

Open to all junior high school age girls, more than 450 today enjoy one-dollar-a-year membership in the club, an increase of more than 100 per cent since the club moved from Truman Boyd Manor to its handsome new quarters in late April.

An average of 118 girls take part in activities from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays, and from 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday. During the school year the club is open from 3 to 5 p.m. each afternoon and on all school vacations.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to daily activities, special events also dot the club's large calendar. Included are a roller skating party sponsored by Rick Rackers, the league's junior auxiliary; a 9th grade beach party given by the Harold G. Appletons at their 25 Laguna Pl. home; monthly dances and mother-teacher parties.

Mrs. Madeline Goldsmith, the club's amiable and alert executive director, has been with the organization for six years and has seen many of her "girls" grow to womanhood. In addition to her directing duties, she is looked upon as second mother and dearest friends to many of the girls who go to her with their problems and successes.

Aiding in the program are Coni Dandrew, assistant director, League, Rick Racker and community volunteers. Many of the Girls Club "graduates" go back to the club as high school counselors, helping with the program and with the homework of younger girls.

A popular function at the center is its monthly cloth-

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

SOMEWHERE there's a river bank a-waitin' with a big rock in the sun just right for lazy sitting. Going hunting for it now. Time to trade this rock 'n roll rhythm of parties 'n people for that somewhere else. Hankerin' to glide awhile to a wind in the willows waltz. In other words, this river rat's going on vacation!

"River Rats Farewell"

No matter how much hullabaloo we make at midnight every Dec. 31, it always seems vacation time cleaves one year from another more deftly than the surgery performed by a calendar. Reminiscing comes kind of naturally right now.

In the welter of memories both sentimental and humorous we recall reporting such events as when the sophisticated crew of the So. California Symphony Assn. met at the old Petroleum Club one cold early morning last January only to find that the heating system had taken French Leave sometime during the night. There was one warm spot in a frosty world and chairman Vivian Yunker found it for her committee! She lead them all right out to the club's kitchen range and they planned what had to be planned to the tympani of pots and pans.

THEN CAME THAT sad day when Dick Zehms (and still our favorite redhead) retired after 33 years as a P-T Sports Dep't wheel to accept the offer of Another Paper and we couldn't have been more jealous if it had been Another Woman! That, sigh, was in January, too. Just for the record, we keep track of him through his wife and our Women's Editor, Mary Lou, who says he's sleek and sassy and minds the commuting not one bit.

OR OUR MIND harks back to March 11 and Assistance League's truly gala world premiere of "Long, Hot Summer"—and the happy smiles that night of Dorothy Dunlap, chairman, and Mildred Wing, then president, Polly Chace, and every other leaguer.

ANOTHER night we'd like to re-live—being at Florence and Ed Iliff's first open house and cocktail buffet in their just moved into new manse during the holidays and hearing Ann Ratliff sing again as she did that evening, informally, beautifully.

AMONG FEBRUARY'S don't miss dates was Alpha Phi's Table Topics Tea which Betty Lou Hayter chairmanned at Virginia Country Club on the 27th. Oh, lucky timing! Not only did the sun shine but it was a positively balmy day (that's polite for hot!) marvelous contrast to the 1957—and first—tea when the Chamber of Commerce boys hid their heads in shame during one of the wildest wind and rain storms of a decade.

HOW COULD we forget the horror of having to be honest and report Doris and Vern Brinkman's dastardly reaction to Florida when they visited there. They liked it!

DID SHE get a medal? Don't know. But Georgia McCord should have for that time in April when she recruited 33 volunteers for the door to door Cancer Fund Drive, rounding them all up in less than 24 hours!

REMEMBERING, too, the big buildup followed by the sodden let-down when a group of newly banded together Long Beach Marina yachters planned their grand maiden voyage and the day turned up so foggy the cans of pea soup in their boats kept calling the sky "Mammy." Among sailors who groped their way to the sea to see if they could see the sea and wound up feeling like Columbus about the 58th day before they could even find their boats were Joan and Dr. Ed Beebe, Marjory and Mossie Kent, Eleanor and Art Howard, Lucille and Conrad Lueke, LaNelle and Ray Fosholdt and many other misty-eyed mariners.

BUT OF ALL the past year's stories none have been more exciting to write, from both a personal and reporting standpoint, than putting in print details of the surprise (although not unanticipated!) marriages of Mary Tullis and Ralph Smith—Marge Sawyer and "Bud" Young—Frieda Owens and Dr. Mike Garver!

A THINKING CAP is preferred headdress this summer for each of the Headdress Ball committee women. Geneva Weiss, wearing the biggest thought chapeau of all because she's general chairman for the big, big annual soiree sponsored by the L. A. Philharmonic Assn., and in lesser but nevertheless very wise hats are such right hand helpers as Irene Woodruff, Marian Groshong, Beverly Lockwood, Millie Vessels, Vivian Yunkers, Florence Cole, Emily Persons, Doris Richards, Luba Kadvany, Betty Ann Rauch and Martha Gould.

Although the ball won't take place until Nov. 8 these gals are working like it was going to be Aug. 8 and Elizabeth Rex had promised to compete wearing the Crown of England. Geneva has had three in a series of "work" luncheons already—two at the new Petroleum Club, where the ball will take place, and one at Victor Hugo's.

THE BARON AND Baroness William T. Von Guilleaume of Johannesburg, So. Africa, and Natal, are distinguished guests in Long Beach this week and loving every minute of the freedom of good, old informal Mr. and Mrs. America living. The titled couple are guests of Marilyn and Doug Graham who are thoroughly enjoying repaying the hospitality the Von Guilleaumes lavished on them when they entertained them in their home in Johannesburg. This weekend the four good friends and the Grahams' daughter and son-in-law, Mardel and Tom O'Brien (here from Austin, Texas), are exploring local sea lanes and ocean currents aboard Marilyn and Doug's sleek cruiser, "Mardel."

"DOWN TO the Sea in Sunglasses"—or—"Return of the Native"—or—"Gee Whiz, It's Good to Have You Home!" The title isn't important but the plot of this story is because it concerns Nancy (Lower) Lobdell who is here from Poland, Ohio, visiting her mother, Marion Heedwohl, for the first time in a year and a half. Naturally she has the youngsters with her: Teresa, 5 years old, and John, 3 years old. Big excitement yesterday with Nancy's husband, Bob, arriving to vacation visit, too, until time to head back for Poland mid-August. Big excitement Thursday as well when Marion entertained at luncheon for Nancy and gathered about 30 of her former school friends from all over Southern Cal. for the merriest reunion since their pledging days.

THE FUNNIEST thing any adult ever said or wrote is topped every day by some little kid under six. This week's prize at Dorothy and Jim Baker's house was 2-year-old daughter Susie's wise observation when she saw her first really bald-headed man. She looked the stranger's shiny pate over carefully and then confided in her mother, "Dat man broke his hair!"

WITH A HUSTLE and a bustle and a tug and a pull Sue (Merritt) and Tom Morrison finally got everything loaded into their car Wednesday late (or Thursday early, take your choice!) and off they went for San Francisco where Tom is to report to the Presidio for Army duty for the next two years. Fine assignment, apparently. He's been placed in topography work and nothing in the small print in his orders indicates it won't be permanent.

HOW COME those TV cameramen during the Miss Universe telecasts this week, all supposedly experts at keeping the world's most beautiful girls in the center of their cameras, kept goofing. Why else would they let a video view of Bob Reid, chairman of the judges committee, sneak into focus every once in awhile? For contrast? There's one thing to be said for Bob, though. He's no ham. Not once did he ogle back at the camera. He was always too busy ogling the beauties!

Predict Party Will Be Real Confection

What double chocolate malted milks with whipped cream and maraschino cherry toppings do for the small fry set, Helen (Mrs. Edson) Davis' parties do for her friends. They love em!

"Hmm, yummy!"

And we do, indeed, intend to infer that Helen's parties are real confection type fun. She's having just such a "double chocolate malted milk" on Aug. 14 at her Country Club Drive home. But because her guests, about 125 of them, are somewhat beyond the corner soda fountain age she'll serve brunch (double good even if not chocolate) from 10:30 until 1 p.m.

Guests will be able to chat over tables in the garden, as pretty a city glade as you'll find. The hostess is asking Virginia Mitchell, Katharyn Edwards, Ruth Cree, Ruth Rowan, Ann Settle and Della Lewis to assist her.

THAT FASHION BRIDGES international boundaries is evidenced in these two gowns worn by Miss Universe contestants—either of which might easily invoke the comment, "Why, it's just what we wear here!" At left is Miss Norway in an Oslo-designed gown of rich brocade satin fashioned on princess lines while Miss Cuba wears an Angelita of Cuba, extremely bouffant dress of silk organza.—(Staff photos by Skip Shuman.)

Stylish, These U Girls!

By JEAN MOORE AND JOYCE KENT

Fashion speaks an international language. Even the casual observer would acknowledge that after seeing gowns chosen by foreign contestants in the Miss Universe Pageant Thursday night.

Where the foreign contestants differed in facial structure and figure proportion, the elaborately beautiful gowns they selected for their pageant roles could make a dramatic entrance at a ball anywhere in the world.

Fabrics were beautiful — heavy satins, gossamer sheer silks, delicate cottons, rich taffeta, flowing chiffons, classic crepes.

Lines, whether from the sketching board of a designer in Scandinavia or South America, were similar, leaning toward the bouffant in Europe and the sleek in the Latin counties.

Dutch cap and wooden shoes were NOT worn by Miss Holland, but her blond loveliness conjured up that illusion as she paraded down the runway in a gown of green crushed taffeta. The scalloped hemline disclosed an underskirt of tulle, and a darker shade of green velvet traced the strapless neckline and was repeated in the cummerbund sash which tied in back, falling into long streamers. At the bow in back were two pink roses and she also wore pink elbow-length gloves. Her gown was American made, loaned her for the pageant.

One look at Miss Hawaii's gown, and you felt like rushing to the nearest reducing salon. Well, not the gown, but what was in it. Svelte, streamlined. Side poufs that could make anyone slightly hefty eligible for the fat-lady-in-the-carnival role merely accented Hawaii's curves poured into white brocade.

Miss Peru wasn't going to be caught short. She brought three evening gowns, designed for her by Peru's top couturier. One, a handsome coral draped number, had a shoulder panel which she kept swathed casually about her throat until, at a dramatic moment when she was alone on the runway, it was released to flow in sweeping elegance.

Noted Cuban designer Angelita took silk organza, bits of lace and iridescent sequins and came up with a show-stopping gown for her country's lovely entry, Miss Cuba. By far the pageant's most bouffant gown, the silk organza was sheared at the bustline and held by tiny spaghetti straps. It nipped into a fitted waistline, poufed out into a voluminous tier, pulled in again with a band of lace, and ended in a sweep of diagonal tucks. Scattered over the waistline and poufed tier were intricate patterns of lace, traced with iridescent sequins.

Hard to say which sparkled the most — the sequins and rhinestones in the contestants' gowns, or their eyes. Speaking of jewels, it was dangly earrings versus none at all for the majority of contestants.

Miss Germany's strapless gown of puckered platinum white satin brocade drew male nods of approval. Nods? They nearly shook their heads off!

Elsie Margaret, leading fashion designer of Oslo, Norway, would have been delighted to see the poise with which Miss Norway wore the

It's Golden Year for Mr., Mrs. Case

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Case, who have lived in Long Beach all their married life, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Monday, noting the day with a quiet dinner at home for members of their immediate family.

Seldom in the annals of any city has one couple helped mold the civic and cultural history of a community through so many long years with the unselfish zeal and dignity which has marked the Cases' contributions to Long Beach.

It is with true pride and admiration the Independent, Press-Telegram joins their hundreds of friends and acquaintances at this memorable time in expressing gratitude for their part in building this city and extending warmest greetings to them on their 50th anniversary.

* * * *

MR. AND MRS. CASE were married in Los Angeles on July 28, 1908. Their three sons were born here and all grew up in the family home at 3102 Vista St. where the couple has lived for almost 40 years. Their children are Nelson, nationally known television and radio announcer of New York; Roger T. Case, who conducts his own advertising business here, and Walter Case Jr., who resides with his parents. They have four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren: Elizabeth Case Zwicker of Hollywood and her two boys, Walter and Keith; Nelson Case Jr. of New York; Roger Case Jr. and Dennis Case of Long Beach.

Mr. Case was born in Kansas and is a graduate of Baker University where his father, Nelson Case Sr., was president of the board of trustees for many years. A newspaperman all his life, he worked on the Kansas City Star before coming to Long Beach in 1905 to join the staff of the Daily Telegram as a reporter and then progress to become its managing editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Case

* * * *

HE THEN WAS editor of the old Long Beach Sun before and after its merger with the Press-Telegram and remained on the editorial staff of the Press-Telegram until his retirement in 1947. For many years he authored a widely read column in the local papers titled, "Did You Know That—", which recorded the early pioneer days of this city. For this as well as four history books of Long Beach he wrote (now used in all the junior and senior high schools as reference textbooks) he became known as the historian of Long Beach. In addition Mr. Case served on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and was a member of the city book committee for the public library.

Mrs. Case, nee Ethel Christine Thompson, was born in Iowa but spent most of her girlhood in Salt Lake City where she was graduated from the normal school of the University of Utah. She taught for two years in Salt Lake before moving to Long Beach in 1906 and subsequently taught in both El Centro and Los Angeles schools prior to her marriage. Before their first child, Nelson, was born, Mrs. Case remained a careerist as a society news reporter for the old Telegram.

* * * *

SHE JOINED Ebell Club in 1911 and was among its most active members serving as president in 1929-30 in addition to many other elective and appointed posts including yeoman work with the building committees both for the original clubhouse and for the rebuilding of the structure after the 1933 earthquake.

From 1941 to 1948 Mrs. Case was volunteer service chairman for the Red Cross and contributed a gargantuan amount of volunteer time—a total of 14,000 hours—during the hectic, difficult war and postwar years. After this she served as secretary of the Red Cross board of directors for an additional four years, retiring from active volunteer work in 1952. Another major civic contribution was her service on the mayor's committee for public improvements for two terms, a total of six years.

* * * *

THE LONG and continuing success of the Long Beach Day Nursery is due, in large part, to the staunch, steady work of Mrs. Case who served on its board of directors for 45 years and held many offices including those of president and treasurer.

As great as her civic contributions have been perhaps Mrs. Case is best and most fondly known for her part in the cultural growth of Long Beach through the Long Beach Community Players. A charter member, she literally has been the group's backbone since 1929. She was vice president of the board and business manager from 1931 through 1934 when she went into the presidency to remain in that post for 23 consecutive years, retiring this year to devote her full time to the players as administrative business manager. In addition to her local little theater affiliation, she organized and was charter president of the League of Southern California Little Theaters and has been regional director of the National Association of Community Theaters.

This, in part at least, is their record and stands as a testimony not only to Mr. and Mrs. Case but to all others like them who have worked with faith and industry to build big and prosperous cities, nurturing them from infant village days to strong and knowledgeable maturity. A city is what its citizens make it. We can be proud of Long Beach.

Gamma Phis Get Out Picnic Baskets

The scene is similar in hundreds of homes throughout Southern California this week. Picnic baskets are being checked, thermos bottles brought down from shelves; hot dishes will bubble in the oven later in the week and chilled watermelon will be taken at the last minute from their icy homes for a ride along the freeways to Griffith Park.

There, on Aug. 5, on the lawns surrounding the Greek Theater, Gamma Phi Betas, their husbands and guests will sip and sup in early evening prior to strolling into the open air amphitheater to see the lilting operetta, "La Perichole," starring Cyril Ritchard.

Many Gamma Phi alumnae in Long Beach are enacting the scene above. Some are taking the easy way out in transportation and have chartered buses to whisk them theaterward.

* * * *

USING such a mode of getting from here to there are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Drew, whose guests that night will be Messrs. and Mmes. Jack Green, Richard Berry, John Kolyer, Bruce Nelson, Lee Davis and John Curtis.

Box lunches tied with pink ribbons will be placed on a pink tablecloth strewn with confetti at the Drew picnic table on the greensward. Pink carnations, the sorority flower, will be at each place setting, to be worn later at the premiere. Mrs. Drew is president of the Long Beach alumnae.

Another chartered bus will bear guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Lovell. Around their picnic table, set with beige and brown place mats that night, will be Messrs. and Mmes. Carl Spath, Edwin Wilcox, George Hedley, Ken Derryberry, John Walker, Don Spring, Jules Brady, Kenneth Walker, Al Beach, Jack Fawson, Robert Bailey, George Richards, William Bennett, Charles Van de Water and Robert Wood; Messrs. Fred Hudson Jr., Robert Risman and Waugh Smith, and Miss Elizabeth Tucker.

* * * *

STEAKS SIZZLING over a hibachi will spell appetizing enchantment for Dr. and Mrs. John Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cullen. Their "bewitchers" are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. F. Cullen, whose idea it was to transport outdoor cookery from Long Beach to Griffith Park.

A birthday cake will dominate the center of the table occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Johnson's guests, for the premiere benefit performance falls on Mrs. Johnson's birthday anniversary.

Sharing the box lunches with the Johnsons will be Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Axtell, Ralph Graffi and E. F. Newton.

Among the other Long Beach alumnae planning to attend the operetta are Mr. and Mrs. James V. Shirley, who have asked Dr. and Mrs. Geza Krempels to accompany them.

Miss Joanne Schumacher will arrive on the mainland in the nick of time to see the operetta. She will fly in Aug. 4 after an exciting summer's stay with Keiki Payne of Honolulu. Both are Gamma Phi Betas at the University of Arizona. Joanne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Schumacher, 3913 California Ave.

Tickets in the Long Beach area may be obtained from Mmes. Edward Lovell, 3916 Pine Ave.; Walter Drew, 3375 Iroquois Ave.; H. W. Newman, 5573 Sorrento Dr., or Dale R. Leisy, 3171 Oak Knoll Dr., Los Alamitos.

* * * *

SO MUCH concentration on the gala night, which will benefit the Gamma Phi Beta Nursery Guild of Good Samaritan Hospital, calls for a certain amount of relaxation, so on Tuesday Long Beach alumnae and actives will have a luncheon, swimming and bridge party at the University Club.

Swimming will be the diversion at noon, and luncheon will follow at 1:30 p. m. Actives invited to the alumnae function are Mrs. Philip T. Clock (Gayle Andrews, UC, Berkeley); Marie Bell and Carol Crosby, UCLA; Cathy Cottrell, University of Colorado; Jennesse Thompson and Martha Brightman, USC; Carolyn Gibbs and Joanne Schumacher, University of Arizona; Linda Hossom, UC, Berkeley, and Virginia Crager, San Jose State.

FORECAST: CHUCKLES, STARS AND PICKLES
Situations befalling Cyril Ritchard in "La Perichole" amuse Long Beach Gamma Phi Betas and their husbands who will attend the operetta Aug. 5 at the Greek Theater, Los Angeles. Discussing the plot and planning picnic fare preceding the show are, from left, Mrs. H. L. F. Cullen, Walter Drew, Mr. Cullen, Mrs. Drew, president of Long Beach alumnae, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale R. Leisy. Gamma Phis and friends from throughout Southland will patronize the pre-premiere benefit.—(Staff photo.)

Fete Marilyn Sherman at Bridal Showers

Marilyn Sherman, who will become the bride of Bill Jensen Aug. 1, has been feted at a number of showers during recent weeks.

The engaged pair was feted by 25 young couples at a Hawaiian buffet supper and kitchen shower given in the clubhouse of the trailer park home of Bob and Nadine Kirkpatrick, 6541 Atlantic Ave. Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Kirkpatrick were co-hosts; Mr. and Mrs. Don Hodges and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Williams assisted.

* * * *

NASTURTIUMS AND garden flowers combined with decorations of turquoise, yellow and copper to harmonize with colors of shower gifts. Special guests were the Roger Shermans and Carl Jensens, parents of the couple; Roberta Sherman and Nancy Jensen, their sisters, and Mrs. Irene Unmack, an aunt.

A tea and surprise shower was given at the home of Marilyn's aunt, Miss Elma Sherman, 2490 Olive Ave. She was assisted by Mrs. Lee Sherman and Mrs. Bill Powder., artist cousin who handpainted invitations in a fan motif.

* * * *

MRS. RONALD HAMBLEN, who will be matron of honor, entertained 24 young school and church friends at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Watt, 1601 E. 65th St. Gifts for the bride-elect spilled from a pink tulle parasol placed in a picture window.

When Mrs. Ernest Forsythe, 3732 Lewis Ave., entertained neighbors at luncheon, each brought favorite recipes and presented Marilyn with a group gift, an electric mixer.

Women members of the staff of First Baptist Church and close friends were bidden by Mrs. Aldo Molinari, 1291 Taper Ave., to a personal shower for the bride-to-be.

* * * *

SOME 80 GUESTS, including First Baptist Church choir members and many friends of both mothers, were entertained at an evening garden party and dessert given by Mrs. Lewis Van Winkle, 4218 Linden Ave. Mmes. Charles Barber, Harvey Bradney, Sam Davis and Orlo Rolo were co-hostesses. Several milk glass pieces, favorites of the honoree, were among gifts at the miscellaneous shower.

Marilyn shared honors with Judy Grimm, who also will be married in August, when Mrs. John Farrow, 1032 Amelia Dr., assisted by her young daughters, Linda, Jean and Bonnie, entertained 35 girls of the World Fellowship Guild at a swimming party which became a surprise pantry shower.

* * * *

A FINAL SHOWER Thursday honored both Marilyn and Barbara Swanson, whose marriage to Jack Jensen will take place in mid-August. Relatives and friends of the three families brought miscellaneous gifts to the garden buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Martin Erickson, 517 W. 9th St. Yellow birdcages with lovebirds decorated the outdoor tables. Mmes. Richard Clements, Al Saunders, Paul Walker, Don Loucks, Don Pratt, Hubert Crozier, Frank Morris, Walt Arrowood and James Maddux were co-hostesses.

LBSC Zeta Graduates Entertained

Recent Zeta graduates of Long Beach State College were guests of Long Beach alumnae of Zeta Tau Alpha at a summer buffet supper and garden party in the home of Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, 3845 Lime Ave.

Mrs. Joseph H. Shoemaker, vice president and program chairman, was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Harry Lee McCumber Jr., president, announced committee appointments for the coming year, and each member was assigned as a "volunteer" on one or more committees. Mrs. Shoemaker reported that the group will meet the first Thursday evening of each month in Ebell Clubhouse, September through May, climaxed by installation of officers at a dinner meeting.

Moeller-Owens Vows Sealed

Picturesque Wayfarers' Chapel nestled in the hills above Portuguese Bend was setting last Saturday evening for the marriage ceremony uniting Diane Louise Owens with Alvin Chris Moeller.

The double-ring ritual was read by the Rev. Andre Diaconoff and was followed by a reception for 350 guests at the Wilton Hotel which the bridegroom serves as manager.

* * * *

THE ATTRACTIVE bride, daughter of Mrs. N. J. Garver, 4421 Myrtle Ave., and Len Owens of Rio Vista was given in marriage by her father. She wore a bridal gown of pale pink peau de soie with embroidered lace bodice outlined in tiny seedpearls. A headpiece of embroidered peau de soie held her veil of bridal illusion and she carried gardenias on a prayerbook.

Costumes of pink satin and organdy with insets of embroidery were selected for Mrs. Donna Dumn, maid of honor and Mmes. Thomas Moyer and Donald Harcourt, bridesmaids. Their ensembles were completed with bouquets of pink spider chrysanthemums. Candles were lighted by Miss Diane Rene.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. A. C. Moeller of Chicago, Ill., asked David Tallichet to serve him as best man and ushering duties were assigned to Dennis Moore, Larry Lennon and Hy Leff.

* * * *

MR. AND MRS. Art Rene hosted the reception which followed. Assisting were Mmes. Bertha Jaques, Velma Hair and Brook Horace and Messrs. and Mmes. Marvin Davis, Harold Beckley, Don Berry, Elmer Decker and William Abrams.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Las Vegas and will establish residence this weekend at Wilton Hotel. They plan a trip to Honolulu in September.

The new Mrs. Moeller was graduated from Progress School and attended Occidental College. Her bridegroom received his schooling in Chicago and serves as president of the Hotel Assn. of Long Beach.

Affairs Honor Miss Israel

Lovely Mariam Hadar, Miss Israel in the 1958 Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, is being presented to the community by her sponsors, Long Beach Chapter of Hadassah, at seven post-pageant affairs for paid-up Hadassah members.

Miss Hadar is a law student at Hebrew University in Tel Aviv. To enable her to meet the greatest number of local residents, each of the chapter's seven groups has planned an individual party, says Mrs. Martin Wolfson.

Members of the Business and Professional Group opened the round of events with a brunch last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kolsky, 1031 Amelia Dr., arranged by Miss Marion Goldman, president, and Miss Marian Smith, membership chairman.

HENRIETTA Szold Group will entertain Miss Israel Tuesday at a tea and fashion show at 1 p. m. in the Wilton Hotel Pageant Room planned for its paid up members by Mrs. Max Stotland, president, and Mrs. Sam Roska, membership chairman.

The pool at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Arthur, 12012 Montecito Ave., in Rossmoor, will be setting for an aquacade Wednesday evening, according to the president, Mrs. Marvin Arthur, and membership chairman, Mrs. Sidney Sharzer.

Mrs. Stanley Goldin, president of Aviva Group, announces they have planned a discussion and demonstration on beauty culture at 8 p. m. Thursday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Cohn, 1480 Marshall Pl. Mrs. Harry Wolfe is membership chairman.

Saturday evening has been selected by Elenah Group to entertain the Israeli beauty at a poolside champagne party in the Santa Ana home of the president, Mrs. Fred Berkowitz, and Dr. Berkowitz. Mrs. F. Gabler, membership chairman, is assisting with plans.

* * * *

CONTINUING into next week, Hadara Group has planned an evening social Aug. 5 at the Palms Restaurant in Anaheim under the direction of the president, Mrs. Jerome Rubin, and membership chairman, Mrs. Jerome Gurevitch.

Concluding the party whirl for Miss Hadar will be a garden party Aug. 6 in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Tarre, 1118 Burlinghall Dr., arranged by Mrs. Pearl Surlow, president, and Mrs. Wilson Gittleman, membership chairman.

The party series is being coordinated by Mrs. Al Katz, Hadassah membership chairman.

Newlywed Pair in Lancaster for Summer

Newly married Mr. and Mrs. Grady F. Paine (Elinore Joanne Calkins) are spending the summer months in Lancaster prior to establishing their home in Long Beach this fall. The bride is a teacher at Emerson Elementary School.

The pair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Calkins, 5349 Monlaco Rd., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady C. Paine of Lancaster, exchanged wedding vows in a recent ceremony in Lakewood Village Community Church with the Rev. Wallace Benson officiating.

Escorted to the flower-banked altar by her father, the bride was gowned in Chantilly lace and nylon net over taffeta. A headdress of lace and pearls held her illusion veil and her bouquet was of white glamelias, stephanotis and ivy.

* * * *

BALLET-LENGTH dresses in mint green chiffon and lace were chosen for bridal attendants, Rosemary Calkins, maid of honor; Barbara Harrison, bridesmaid, and Janet Hewitt, junior bridesmaid. They carried cascade arrangements of pink carnations.

Dr. Eugene Cahill was selected to serve as best man and ushering duties were performed by John McGee, Bernard Griffith and Jack Williams.

The new Mrs. Paine received her early education in Fillmore and was graduated from Long Beach City and State Colleges. Her husband is a graduate of Whittier and Iowa State Colleges.

Late Afternoon Ceremony Unites Young Local Pair

A late afternoon ceremony in Lakewood Community Methodist Church united in marriage Shirley Ann Weston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Weston, 2360 Heather Ave., with Ronald T. Hagerman. The Rev. Marvin Johnson officiated before 150 guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a bouffant skirted gown of misty tulle over ruffled tulle enhanced by Chantilly lace. Sequins studded the lace bodice and V neckline and were repeated in the headpiece holding her net veil. She carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a white Bible.

Mary Johnson, maid of honor, wore a blue chiffon gown with satin cummerbund and carried feathered pink carnations on a pink fan. Bridesmaids Pat Rolph and Betty Kennedy were attired similarly in pink chiffon gowns and carried tinted blue carnations. Gloria Rudosky was flower girl.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Hagerman of Lakewood, asked Mal Kennedy to serve him as best man and Richard Weston, Frank Deverley and Rod Lien to usher.

Mrs. Frank Perfield was hostess at a reception which followed in the church hall, while Mrs. Marvin Hamley and Mrs. Richard Young entertained close friends and family members who gathered later at the bride's home.

Summer Art Shows Abound

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

The Museum Collection of work by 57 Southern California artists and an exhibition of paintings by Dorothy Brown of Santa Barbara will close at 5 p. m. today in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Many reservations have been made for Art Loan through August and reservations will be accepted through Monday. The paintings, drawings and prints reserved by residents may be picked up Tuesday and kept until Sept. 16.

The Museum will be closed for repairs during August and will reopen Sept. 14 with "Arts of Southern California—IV: Indigenous Indian Art" and an exhibition of work by internationally known artists.

BATIK silk pictures and Japanese crest designs in wall scrolls by Vernice Vickery (Ve-Vi) Adam, 431 E. Broadway, are displayed in the California Gift Show in the Brack Bldg., Los Angeles.

The silk pictures, no glass over the picture, have grass cloth matting. The crest designs, on grass cloth, have designs in black, gold, red and metallic green.

The crests represent a wide range of subjects from crabs to dragons, from waves to bamboo. Many of the subjects have symbolical meanings. The pine tree, for instance, denotes stability of character; the bamboo, constancy; the tree peony, wealth; the tortoise, longevity.

* * * *

A VARIETY of mediums and approaches is used in 20 paintings exhibited at Bret Harte Branch Library, 1595 W. Willow St., in the 18th one-woman show by Fran Soldini, Long Beach artist.

The new show includes "Metamorphosis," an encaustic which hung in the regional show of Los Angeles artists and vicinity at the Los Angeles County Museum. This painting is a free form of iridescent grays with scriffito through to brown masonite. A melted encaustic is on an off-white luminol base. Its quality of patina gives some resemblance to the ancient look of the aged Egyptian fresco. Other paints are casein on glass, opaque media, pressed color, water colors and collage.

Seven of the paintings have received honors in museum juried shows.

An exhibition by 35 artist students of Mrs. Soldini will be at the Ruth Bach Branch Library, 4055 Bellflower Blvd., until Aug. 9.

KARL SEETHALER, director of the Long Beach Academy of Art, has 10 paintings and monotypes at The Hacienda, 301 S. Western Ave., San Pedro, through Aug. 3. The exhibition includes recent works done since his return from Europe, where he had one-man shows in Frankfurt and Vienna.

Seethaler was born in Austria, studied in Vienna, Budapest, Bremen and Pola. He became a U. S. citizen in 1931 and has taught, painted and lectured in Southern California since 1942. He has participated in many group and one-man shows, local and foreign. His academy, founded in 1946, has exhibited locally and in Japan (through UNESCO) and in Mexico, Honduras, Guatemala and in the Dominican Republic through the Pan American Union in collaboration with the National Academy.

FOUR THOUSAND years of art are spanned in the Pageant of the Masters, nightly feature of the Festival of Arts in Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach. Twenty-eight "living" pictures and sculptures are presented, from a 2000 B. C. Egyptian mummy cloth production to Salvador Dali's "Madonna of Port Lligat."

Howard (Hap) Graham is producer-director; Russ Potter returns as narrator and script writer, and Cleo Allen Hibbs, for the 18th year, brings background music to the pageantry.

Grounds chairman Mogen Abel and supervisor Virginia Wooley are responsible for the six acres of art displays. Painters, sculptors, ceramists, photographers and handicraft artisans show their wares and many demonstrate art techniques.

The Festival of Arts opens daily at noon; the Pageant of the Masters is given at 8:30 p. m. The Festival and Pageant will run through Aug. 17.

TWENTY THOUSAND persons are expected to see the sixth annual three-day Los Angeles All-City Art Festival, which closes at 7 p. m. today in Barnsdall Park, Vermont St. and Hollywood Blvd. More than 2,000 paintings, drawings and sculptures comprise the exhibition.

Fifty paintings from the fourth international Hallmark Art Award Competition will go on exhibition Aug. 8 in the Municipal Art Gallery in Barnsdall Park. The exhibition, open to the public without charge, will be on display in the gallery through Aug. 31.

Selected for the first prize of $2,000 is a watercolor by Edward Hopper, New York artist, whose entry, "California Hills," presents a view of the Pacific Palisades.

—Millard Sheets, director of the Los Angeles County Art Institute, is represented by a religious painting, "The Gift Bearer."

TO APPEAR IN BOWL

Marilyn Horne, Long Beach soprano, will sing the role of Marguerite in "Damnation of Faust" Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. in Hollywood Bowl. Roger Wagner will conduct the orchestra and his famed Chorale. Appearing with Miss Horne are David Poleri and Harve Presnell.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

In listening to the wonderful soprano, Jennie Tourel the other night at Hollywood Bowl, I fell to reminiscing about the few really great singers I have heard in recital through the many years of concert going.

The first that leaped to my mind was Elena Gerhardt, the greatest Lieder singer of my day, and I think of any day.

She still lives and teaches in London. Born in Germany, she had a magnificent training at the Leipzig Conservatory. She also had the rare good fortune of an early meeting and a life-long friendship with Arthur Nikisch, the famous conductor and pianist.

He played the accompaniments for her first recital at the conservatory. This was indeed an honor as Nikisch was not only the head of the conservatory, but was also the conductor of the famous Gewandhaus Symphony Orchestra.

* * * *

THEREAFTER HE played for her concerts all over the world, and she sang with his orchestra. It was a rare and wonderful combination.

I had the good fortune to hear them both in a recital in Berlin. It was the first time I ever heard her but I missed few of her concerts thereafter. The only other recital that even approached it was one I heard in San Francisco in the Opera House not so many years ago when Lotte Lehmann sang a Lieder program accompanied by the famous conductor and pianist, Bruno Walter. But in this concert there were two great soloists dividing our attention. With Gerhardt and Nikisch there were two in one!

* * * *

ELENA GERHARDT was a huge woman, but well proportioned. As she placed herself before the grand piano there was not much left to be seen of the piano. She always dressed in black velvet with simple lines and wore exquisite jewels. The jewels that poured from her throat carried one far beyond the visual! Not only was the voice rich, warm and vibrant of mezzo quality but the personality behind it lovingly embraced all mankind. She was my favorite recital singer.

Another German who thrilled me to the core was the tenor, Richard Tauber. I heard him first in Berlin after World War I in a musical operetta, "Land des Laechelns" (Land of the Smiling Ones).

What a lover he was on the stage and how the German frauleins swooned when he sang that still popular song "Thine Is My Heart Alone."

Later I heard him often in Town Hall in New York City in recital. He was wounded in the first World War and wore an artificial leg. But he came on stage in true Prussian fashion, like a soldier! He had a thrilling tenor voice of luscious quality. His art was impeccable. He died suddenly of pneumonia in London only a few years ago.

* * * *

THE RUSSIAN basso, Feodor Chaliapin, stands out in my memory as a never-to-be-forgotten recitalist. He was equally great in opera and his performance of "Boris" in "Boris Goudonoff" as I heard it at the "Met" has never been even approached by other bassos.

On the recital stage he stood like a god. He was over six feet tall, had a magnificent carriage, and his head with its blond wavy hair was not more stunning or arresting than the very blue eyes that held one magnetically. He was the quintessence of charm. And when that deep sonorous voice rolled out in ear-caressing sound you were on your knees before him.

In conspicuous contrast was the tenor Edmond Clement. Small, dark and handsome, this Frenchman had all the suavity of his race. He even wore white kid gloves when he sang! But on one occasion when I listened enraptured as he sang, as no other tenor ever will, "Le Reve" from "Manon" by Massenet, there were demands for not only one encore of it, but three! This is an experience unique in my annals.

* * * *

BIDU SAYAO, the Brazilian coloratura, is an exquisite bit of Dresden, vocally and physically. But her art is great and her singing intensely moving. Lily Pons is another great coloratura recital singer, who has a warmth unusual in that type of voice.

John Charles Thomas, baritone, was the greatest baritone recital artist of my time. He hard a rare gift of communication, the art of making you live with him the events of the song.

And now, Jennie Tourel has made me live again these sublime moments of musical memory. How rare is great singing!

Settle Back, Listen to Records-Ah!

The delight of early western music is being discovered through many longplaying records today. Recent discs the Public Library has made available for lending are: Boccherini, "Concerto in D Major for Violincello Obligato"; Buxtehude, "Cantatas" (Helen Boatwright with the choir of St. Thomas's Church, New Haven); "Harpsichord Music" (old dances of the 17th and 18th centuries, played by Alice Ehlers); Lassus, "Eight Latin Motets"; Marenzio, "Six Madrigals"; "Music of the Medieval Court and Countryside"; Praetorius, "Eight Geistliche Tricinien" and Purcell, "Songs by the Counter-tenor Russell Oberlin."

* * * *

OTHER MUSIC for summer listening is Arlen, "Jamaica" (original New York cast starring Lena Horne); "Banjo in Hi-Fi" (Paul Martin and his Old-Timers); "Belmonte Plays Latin for Americans", "The Heart of Havana" (Orquesta Aragon); "Bon Voyage" (Al Nevins and orchestra); Rodgers and Hammerstein, "South Pacific" (original soundtrack and also the Al Goodman orchestral version).

Recording may be borrowed from the Main Library in Lincoln Park.

Why Not Take a Vicarious Trip to Japan?

An unusual glimpse at the art and music of Japan will be offered at dusk Thursday at a 70-minute Patio "Pop" Concert at Burnett Branch Library, 560 E. Hill St.

"The Japanese Koto," a recording by Shinichi Yuize, will open the program.

Films scheduled are "Arts of Japan," showing scenes from Noh and Kabuki dramas as well as traditional arts and crafts and "Japan" a color film by Julian Bryan showing major aspects of the social and economic life of Japan today.

The public is invited. No admission.

Fashions Win at Miss U Fete

princess style gown she had designed for her. Telling a "fabric story" the gown was in richest heavy powder blue satin brocade, set off by pleated powder blue satin in halter effect neckline and back streamers.

Miss Denmark confessed her white strapless gown with scattered bead trim was from Sweden; but red-tressed Miss Canada dreamed up her own design of layers of chiffon petals falling from a shirred bodice. She didn't make it, herself, but did sew on the sequin trim. ("Sounds very farm girlish, doesn't it?" she commented.)

Miss West Indies, following the dictates of centuries of fashion in her own land, appeared in a Navy blue mandarin gown of silk crepe with intricate hand beading in light blue and silver forming an interesting pattern down the gown front from high neckline to hemline. Leg room was given the slim skirt by slits to the knees which disclosed the skirt's lining of light blue satin.

Took a little poll of male opinion during intermission. Full skirts or sheaths preferred in formal attire? Straps or sans straps? Long Beach State collegians were quick to answer, but not to agree. Said Richard McEwen: "I like the full skirts." Said Ennis Fairchild: "I'll take the form-fitting ones." Richard likes strapless gowns; Ennis doesn't care.

Said another observing gent, twice the age of the college lads: "Some of the gowns are too sophisticated for the girls. But take Miss Louisiana—she looks like a southern belle. She wears what you'd expect her to. If a gown fits a girl's personality, she rates 25 points higher with a man."

Like an exotic butterfly, Miss Korea floated onto the runway in anthurium pink silk embossed with flowers of silver threads. Looked as if it were so fragile it could dissolve at the touch.

It was a gown a Long Beach bride might cherish—in traditional bouffant lace and net—and it was designed in Alaska for Miss Alaska who represented her country for the last time as a foreign entry. Highlighting the entry's raven tresses was a white fur shoulder piece and a tiny crown.

Remember Jayne Mansfield's wedding gown? Sort of a mermaid effect. Miss Costa Rica was decked out in something similar. Pink, sequins, fish tail of net. Swish!

Miss Sweden, looking like the girl next door all ready for the senior prom, was delightful in an empire gown of white organdy traced with rose centered white daisies. The rose shade was duplicated in the strapless bodice, circling to the back. By a Swedish designer, the gown's hemline was ankle length in front, dipping to floor length in back. And just as the girl next door might do, she wore a single strand of dainty pearls at her throat, and tiny pearl button earrings.

Using our extensive knowledge of Spanish, we said "Buenos noches" to Miss Uruguay?" "Hm?" said Uruguay. "Ask her if her gown was made in Uruguay," we appealed to the hostess. "I don't know how," said she.

We tried again. "Hecho in Uruguay?" we queried, plucking at the heavy oyster satin gown, calf length in front, sweeping to a train in back. A panel of satin, almost a cape, streamed from just below the shoulders the length of the train. Pink lining of the skirt was picked up again in gloves and shoes.

Uruguay nodded in sudden understanding. "Si! Hecho in Uruguay!" "Oh - ree - jheenal?" we attempted again. Once more the quick look of comprehension. "Yes. Si. Original. Adios."

Svelte orange sculptured velvet showed to good advantage the charms of Miss Surinam, whose figure-hugging, floor-length sheath gown nipped from strapless bodice to an incredibly thin waistline. A panel of the orange velvet billowed on the right side, marked by a jeweled pin and softening the austerity of the sheath skirt with kick pleat.

Enthusiastic wows greeted Miss Colombia. Little wonder. Diagonal bands of rhinestones accented the skirt of her ivory satin sheath in just the right places, judging from masculine complimentary whistles. Another slim strand of rhinestones semi-circled her neck.

The Latin penchant for form-fitting gowns was epitomized in Miss Mexico's black sheath blazing like a million bonfires with red sequins. Of the south-of-the-border beauties, Miss Brazil, cool and aristocratic, was the only one to choose a full skirt. Hers was a dream in pale blue with sequin trim.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Don't Tell Your Husband

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Should I tell my husband? We fought for 12 months after we were married. He beat me many times until I was black and blue for weeks. So when another man made love to me, I didn't resist. I needed someone.

A year later my husband and I found each other and now we are really in love. We have a small baby and are very happy. But I didn't tell my husband all that happened that night.

I know he would never forgive me and it might break up our home. It happened four years ago and I have suffered deeply for my mistake. He has a temper and a half and might kill the man.—MISTAKE

DEAR MISTAKE:

Let the mistake teach you not to let it happen again and then forget it. You have too much at stake to chance the gratification of confession now.

But let me congratulate you two on finding each other again. Bravo!—M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My father doesn't trust me. He won't even let me look at a boy. I rode home from a drive-in with some and he bawled me out and I've been in the doghouse since.

My friends are allowed to go for rides with boys and invite them to their houses. I am not. I hardly get to go anywhere with the girls. What can I do to make him trust me? — UNLUCKY THIRTEEN

DEAR UNLUCKY THIRTEEN:

A home is not, or shouldn't be, a doghouse. Maybe your dad doesn't mistrust you, but does mistrust teen drivers. Whatever the reason why, at 13, must you go riding with boys? And be away from home?

If your dad will let you invite the gang to the house when he's home, maybe he'd know you're safe and not going to the dogs.—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been married for two years and love my husband madly. Just today I found out I can't have any children. I am beginning to believe my husband doesn't love me any more and to make matters worse is going out on me.

Would you give him up or try to make the marriage last?—CHILDLESS

DEAR CHILDLESS:

I'd make that marriage last with the fertile use of every feminine wile known. So you can't give him a child! He can't give you one, either. But you can give him a bigger portion of everything else.

And if you both really want children, arrange your affairs so you can adopt some. Waifs without homes have a way of sneaking into hearts as readily as the labor-room variety. They're just as cute and just as ornery and just as much yours.

—M. M.

CONSTRUCTION of the clubhouse was spearheaded by determined Leaguers who are not content to rest on their laurels, but continue to prod themselves in developing an ever-increasing scope for their programs of the future. One typewriter is on hand for the girls to do their homework. The committee, headed by Mrs. William B. Eastman, wishes the club had one or two more. Piano teachers have volunteered their teaching services, but there is no upright piano for the music room. These are the program and equipment needs being considered today. Tomorrow will bring new challenges.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

Wire Club Members End Year at Party

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Wire Club members (all women in real estate) closed their club year with a gala evening recently, tabling all but a little "business as usual" in favor of a buffet supper party in the home of Elsie Zoeller, 1425 E. Wardlow Rd.

Clubwise, most important matter on the agenda was the election of new officers. The slate presented and unanimously approved includes Thelma Chigaras, president; Olive Sorensen, vice president; Phyllis Elmendorf, secretary, and Elsie Zoeller, treasurer. They will be installed at a dinner meeting Aug. 26 to be conducted at the University Club. Mary Marotte is chairman of arrangements.

Outgoing president Bess Lyne gave an informal word sketch of activities during her year in office and expressed appreciation for the teamwork of all her officers and committee chairman. In turn those present accorded her sincere and hearty applause for a successful term.

Mae Dixon, chairman of the Harbor Section.

New members officially presented to the membership at this time were Mmes. Ann K. Newton, Thelma M. McCown and Hallie Bridges.

A charming program featuring the Japanese Folk Dancers under direction of Robert Komai was the highlight of the morning. The troupe of six dancers appeared in native costume including the youngest member, little Linda Miyagawa, just 4 years old, who completely won the hearts of all present for her artistry and stage presence.

National BPW

Members and guests of Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club gathered at Lakewood Country Club for their annual midsummer breakfast, traditional event of long standing. President Mrs. John Mundal officiated and introduced such special guests as her own daughter, Mrs. Laure Deeming, Messrs. Louis M. Field, Harry E. Murphy and Dale Potts and

Pick Silhouette You Want for Fall

CALIFORNIA FASHIONS for fall are being previewed this week in Los Angeles and will soon be in your favorite Long Beach department store or dress shop. We predict these three styles will be among the more popular designs for the season ahead. At left, is a checked wool jersey sheath (completely lined) with an easy waist line by Vago, Jr. of California. Here is a new fashion feeling—the deep, deep collar with striped inset. Center, is a new look for evening as designed by Mancini of California. This cocktail dress with slim, slim torso and bodice top is designed to give a pretty, flowing look. It is of Onandaga printed sheer wool. At right, Miss Pat of California creates a two piece double-woven cotton knit that looks like wool. White linen sailor collar is detachable; skirt is set on an elastic waistband.—(Photos courtesy California Fashion Creators).

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Editor

The California fashion story for fall is as exciting and choice as any we've seen thus far. There is silhouette diversification in the sportswear picture and cocktail and evening dresses. Practically any silhouette of your choosing will be found this next season in clothes by our own California designers.

In dress silhouettes you may take your choice of dresses in which the body line is shaped softly to a smaller and higher bustline, given empire underscoring via a high-waisted belt, a bow, or set-in bands of fabric, trim or ribbing; or choose another silhouette that gently follows body contours from shoulder to thigh, then breaks away into a trumpet flare or a flounce. The third is a positive blouson . . . dresses with more natural waistlines, delineated by wider, real belts of leather or self fabric.

Talk of fall silhouettes brings up the word "skimmers," used in describing dresses that skim the body contours. These easy sheaths become a dominant dress trend, with their mere hint of shaping through darts or front seams . . . frequently above the natural waistline to achieve an empire effect. But the two silhouettes which emerge as leaders are the blouson and the empire.

* * * *

IN THE SPORTSWEAR picture you will find pants that are slim and tops that are not. All jackets, blouses, shirts and tops in general are avoiding a tucked-in look. Instead they are noted as loose-back overblouse styles.

News in California-designed pants is not a new shape (popular Capri lengths and trim fit still characterize the pants story), but in the color. You will see pants emerge in an abundance of large and brilliant plaids, rich-toned paisley prints and even gayer, brighter solid colors and stripes have taken over the pants picture. Coordinated to them are tops in solid colors, frequently overlaid with a sleeveless vest or jacket patterned to match these pants.

* * * *

THE TRAPEZE influence is felt strongly in "after-5" fashions. We see it evidenced in evening dresses with a line that conforms slightly to a bustline before spreading downward and outward into a floating look. This effect is carried out in some styles through net panels over a slimmer sheath, but always worn distinctively short. Also for evening wear is the straight, long-torso dress with flounced bottom.

For cocktail dresses, the skirts are short! And harem hemlines are being featured as one of many versions of the puffed or bubble skirt . . . an innovation usually worn even shorter than dresses designed for daytime wear.

* * * *

COATS ARE a beautiful part of the California fall fashion story from the luxurious fabrics to the draped and shaped silhouettes. Styles include the full, rounded shape of the cocoon, with fullness falling from a yoked back then gathered in close at the hemline. There also are slim tapered shafts, reflecting the variable waistline trend with the placement of low, low belt treatments and extra-low or extra-high pocket detailing.

Color runs rampant throughout all California fashion collections . . . an abundance of reds and blues. Fabric creators have put some color combinations together that are described as "wild."

Fabric interest runs to soft wool jerseys, a newly important wool crepe and some textured mohair surfaces. Cottons and cotton blends disguise themselves with silky surfaces. Pleated skirts are pleated to stay and almost all transitional dresses of cotton and blends are able to boast little or no ironing claim.

Something for the Boys

Why Can't Ol' Dad Study for Success?

By TED KREC

We went out to dinner the other night with Dapper Don Culpepper and his charming wife, Lenora. Don, as you know, is the outdoor editor of these newspapers and typifies the well-dressed man.

In fact, Don is so well dressed that he holds the distinction of being the only man ever to land a muskellunge while wearing a full-dress suit and top hat!

Seriously, though, during dinner conversation worked around to men, their habits and what they wear, and Lenora said, "I wish there was some place men could go to learn how to act and dress correctly!"

I couldn't believe my ears when I heard her say this, for it's a thought I've had many times myself. In fact, Mary Lou Zehms, our women's editor, and I were discussing this just last week.

All the emphasis these days seems to be on developing a race of ultra-charming women, which is fine in itself, but nobody gives a thought to poor old Dad.

MAYBE IT'S because men are a funny breed of critters. For example, when they are young, their parents can tell them something for years and the kids won't believe it. But when they go to school and meet a teacher they admire and the teacher tells them the same thing, it's automatically true. The same seems to be the case when they get married. Their wives can talk and talk, and the men won't listen. But if the boss or a co-worker says it, then it's true.

This idea of a school for men isn't as ridiculous as it may sound to you at first, Albert.

Consider, for example, the case of a young man who suddenly lands a junior executive post. It's important that he know the fine points of etiquette if he's going to be a success. In fact, many aspiring young men have lost out in jobs strictly because they didn't have social grace.

If there were a place where these young men could go to learn, for example, how to introduce people correctly, how to take a dinner check gracefully, how and when to buy a drink for a customer, how to conduct themselves when taking a mixed group of men and women out to dinner and which wine to order with dinner, I should think many of these young men would jump at the chance.

In my own field I have seen many businessmen who spend a small fortune on clothing yet always dress incorrectly. These men could be taught how to buy for much less and still be correct under all conditions.

A couple of examples? That's easy. Did you know that a man is correct in wearing a colored shirt in the daytime but not at night? Colored shirts should not be worn after 5 p.m. And did you know that it's bad for a young man seeking a position to smoke a pipe? Most executives seeking capable young assistants will turn down pipe-smokers because they are, by nature, a more contemplative and lethargic lot than cigarette smokers.

* * * *

WOULD YOU hire a man who wore an out-of-style suit or a discordant necktie or a soiled and unpressed outfit if you were looking for a sharp assistant? And would you consider a man if his hair were shaggy? You bet you wouldn't! This man would be YOUR representative to the public. No unshined or run-over shoes, either, please!

It seems to me that this is one thing our culture could use—not a "charm school" for men, but rather a place of dignity where men who aspire to get ahead could hear experts in different fields of grooming and etiquette and LEARN the basic things which would insure success.

Motion picture actor Adolph Menjou started a school of this sort in one of our nearby cities not too long ago, and it was heralded widely. But that's not Long Beach—and Long Beach men could stand some sharpening up and success, too.

You doubt it? Well, Charlie—how long has it been since YOU got YOUR last promotion?

More Than Vanity

Smoothing on hand lotion is more than vanity for women. It actually aids the hand skin which has little natural oil. Creams and lotions, especially those with lanolin, help restore the skin to its natural, protected state.

Mrs. Beth Ryan

Daughters Installation

A ceremony Thursday in Woman's City Club marked the 52nd installation of officers of Long Beach Parlor 154, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Mrs. Mary Lee Flippen of Rio Hondo Parlor 284, Huntington Park, installed Mrs. Beth Ryan, president; Miss Laura Moore, first vice president; Mrs. Margaret Washburn, second vice president; Miss Cecelia Standley, third vice president; Mrs. Lois Durnell, marshal; Mrs. Leola Temby, financial secretary; Mrs. Maxine Boecker, treasurer, and Mrs. Lorna Jewett, recording secretary.

Fifth Ebell Brunch Slated Wednesday

Members of Group U, led by Mrs. Paul S. Doyle, will hostess the fifth in the series of summer brunches given by the Ebell of Long Beach Wednesday in the clubhouse. Brunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. with bridge and canasta following.

Assisting Mrs. Doyle will be Mmes. Arthur A. Knoll, Paul M. Hirth, Irma Wolford, S. W. Watson and Arthur L. Cotham. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Sadie Tippett or Mrs. A. P. Howard or at the door. Mrs. Hazel Reed Weld is general chairman for the brunches.

THE WHIRL of a full circle skirt with a jeweled black velvet tie designed by Sue Webb of Pixie of California, is a real charmer for the teenager figure. The fabric is kitten soft rayon flannel touched with white linen collar. Colors are charcoal, red, blue and green, in sizes 5 to 15.

Hinge Skirts Higher in Italy Shows

By SUE CARDOZO

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—How high is high? How far above the waist, how near to the bosom?

That is the nuance being determined at the Florence fashion shows now that Italian couture has declared itself in favor of the high demarcation line between bodice and skirt.

Veneziani, whose collections received ovations last week at the historic Pitti Palace, hinged her skirts above the level of the second rib.

* * * *

VENEZIANI'S models seconded other fashion trends noted here and in the Rome showings: The high unadorned neckline with sleeveless or cupped shoulder, the back decollete and fullness below, the flattened, foreshortened front.

Skirts are either short or long, with no middle ground between knee and floor. For evening Veneziani makes them long. And wraps to wear with them are of horizontal mink or ermine. Vertical pelts will never do!

FOR AT HOME entertaining, Sir James of California has designed a ruffly, feminine blouse of drip dry dacron and cotton and teams it with slim, tapered ankle length pants of pettipoint embroidered Italian velveteen.

Gay Surprise on Birthday

Long Beach Lancers and Lancerettes staged a gay surprise birthday party for Donald Lehman, son of Capt. and Mrs. Arvery Lehman, after the troop's drill Monday.

A huge cake, resplendent with the shield of the equestrian group done in frosting, formed the centerpiece. Music and games around an outdoor fire, and the opening of beautifully wrapped gift packages climaxed the evening.

Guests included Dr. and Mrs. Albert Molle with daughters, Sonya and Paula; Messrs. and Mmes. Paul Peterson and Cheryl Ann; Wesley Badger and Sherry; Howard Green and Valerie; George Pinkind and Robin; Mmes. Donald Malcolm, William Knapp, Curt Smith, Gerald Pfanstiel, Arthur LeMond, Duchess Domrose; Messrs. Elmer Michaels, Glen Outler; Misses Pat Lara, Beatrice Meany, Madeline Johnson, Martha Peck, Marilyn Morrow, Darlene Trippe and Blanche Collins.

Party Monday

Nazareth Shrine 8, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, will have an elective officers party Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Morgan Hall. Visitors will attend from other shrines within a 60-mile radius.

'Tour Tips' Theme

"Tour Tips" will be theme of the North Long Beach Lady Lions meeting Aug. 5 at Hody's in Lakewood Plaza.

Dear Abby

Better Lose This Brute

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a fellow who said he loved me too.

I have a very jealous nature and I know that he was once in love with a girl and they went together almost two years. He would never let me hum, or whistle, or sing "SWEET SUE" because that was her name and it was "their song." I got mad at him one night and I started to sing "Sweet Sue" He lost his temper and knocked the filling out of my tooth. He left me (we were in a tavern) and I had to hook a ride home. I called him the next day and he said he didn't ever want to see me again. How can I get him back?

BLUE GIRL

DEAR BLUE: If you intend to "get him back" you should take out BLUE CROSS. You asked for it when you sang "Sweet Sue" —but a man who would knock the filling out of a lady's tooth needs to be "filled in" on how a gentleman behaves. Lose this brute.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I recently was a guest in AMERICA and was invited to a formal dinner. The hostess was served first. It appeared rude to me, but perhaps it is your custom. If this is correct in America I would like to know the origin of this custom.

FROM ACROSS

DEAR FROM: The custom of the hostess serving herself before her guests never was "correct" but it was practical and accepted at one time. In the old frontier days when rough and unschooled guests were invited to dinner, the hostess would help herself and eat first in order to show her guests which silverware to use. The need for such a demonstration went out with the Chicago fire.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that my husband just had his driver's license taken away from him for the second time and it is serious as he is a truck driver. The judge was very hard on him because he had had a few beers this time and the charge was DRIVING WHILE DRUNK. He drives OK, beer or no beer, but the judge said he was a danger to the pedestrians. How can he get his license back? His living depends on it.

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: So do the pedestrians. Sorry, but he will have to learn the hard way.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been annoyed for a long time by this, "We're taking up a collection for Mary" business. She is either having a baby, is leaving the city, getting married or has been with the company for 10 years. As far as I am concerned it is way overdone. The "amount" of the contribution is usually set by a committee who think a dollar here or there doesn't matter. They always see to it that the one who "asks" is your immediate superior so you can't refuse. I resent having to donate just so I won't look cheap. What is your opinion? FED UP

DEAR FED: Tell the person who is taking up the collection that your budget doesn't include this kind of giving. Once you take this stand, you will find plenty of others who will admire your courage and follow your example.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister has been having her mail sent to our house so her husband won't know she is writing to a certain married man. I feel like a sneak, hiding the letters away and then slipping them to her behind her husband's back. Would it be wrong to tell her right to her face (in front of her husband) that I am through covering up for her?

TIRED OF COVERING

DEAR TIRED: Tell her privately first. If this doesn't penetrate, let your husband (her brother) tell her to either cut out the extra-marital correspondence or face exposure. Double exposure, that is.

Duplicate Fascinating

"Why don't I give up duplicate?" moaned the unlucky expert.

"Why don't you give up bothering me?" I moaned right back. "Let's hear the tale of woe anyway!"

"I sat West and opened one spade," he said. "My partner jumped to four and South who was vulnerable and had passed originally took a deep breath, sat back in his chair, gulped a couple of times and bid five diamonds.

"Everyone passed and as you can see the club king was in back of my ace and the heart ace and queen in back of my king-ten. He wrapped up his contract."

* * * *

"WHAT'S SO bad about that?" I asked. "Five hearts makes also and counts more for them."

"So it does," he replied. "At all other tables South chose to open with some number of diamonds. Invariably, we got into the bidding and landed at four spades. This time no North or South player carried the ball any further. Some just let us play four spades undoubled for minus 100; some Norths doubled and made the score 300; but no one came near to this lucky so-and-so's score of six hundred for bidding and making five diamonds."

Rear Adm. Walter H. Price

Chef of the Week

Adm. Walter Price Is a Handy Fellow!

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

It could well be concluded that the "do-it-yourself" idea was inspired by him. Today's chief "cook" among the Chefs Anonymous, Ltd. crew, Rear Adm. Walter H. Price (he's the new Naval Base commander) is completely proficient at both conjuring up and executing anything from laying a brick terrace, hoisting a split cedar fence or a cinder block wall: installing a bath, or paneling a playroom. He's a top-flight cement mixer and carpenter, too, but a bit frustrated at present. Redoing a government house has been declared off-limits.

The admiral has some problems, though. When it comes to driving a car . . . well, the "boss man" is much better at guiding the destiny of a ship. The ocean "gives" a bit, you know.

And while he very much enjoys fishing and golfing, both the fish and the low scores seem to elude him. He wouldn't be caught dead eating a banana or an apricot, but calls no halts on any other foods. He has a temper to match his sandy hair —but the explosion, is no more damaging or prolonged than the burst of a skyrocket. And . . . can he dance!!!!

* * * *

ADM. PRICE is fundamentally a Hoosier (Shelbyville, Ind); however, Washington, D. C., became his home port at the age of 2. He completed his elementary and high school education there, then proceeded to Annapolis and the Naval Academy. He decided if "he couldn't beat 'em, he'd join 'em." The girl he was trying to date preferred the Navy, we're told. Graduating with the class of '27, he later completed courses in the post-graduate school at Annapolis and at the Naval War College. He went in for football, but mostly to be assured of a ringside seat on the bench.

His naval career has placed him atop battleships, cruisers and destroyers . . . but mainly destroyers. It also provided him close-up, in-the-middle participation of the South Pacific battles in World War II. As commanding officer of the USS Wilson, he took part in the initial landings on Guadalcanal, the first battle of Savo, the Russell Islands campaign and bombardment of Munda. Completing that detailed assignment, he commanded the USS Morrison in such operations as Palau, Hollandia, Saipan, Tinian and Guam.

Adm. Price also has made a name for himself shoreside. He has served in the office of the governor of Panama Canal; in the office of Chief of Naval Operations, Washington, D. C., and as headmaster of the Mathematics Department of the U. S. Naval Academy. Since World War II, he has commanded Destroyer Flotilla 3, the cruiser Newport News, and Destroyer Flotilla 2. Just prior to reporting to his present duty station, he served as deputy commander in chief, U. S. Naval Forces, Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, with headquarters in London, England.

* * * *

OUR NAVY Department can be proud not only of our "chef," but of his family, as well. Mrs. Price, the former Clarice Brooks Yates, can reminisce about the graduation of both her Dad and her Granddad from the academy —the latter with the class of '63. Their son, Lawrence, is following in his father's footsteps and presently is a midshipman at Annapolis; while their daughter is the wife of a naval officer and currently residing in Hawaii.

Though strictly a seafaring man, Price is eagerly anticipating his duties in the Long Beach Rotary Club, and a few flings over the kettle. Today he's whipping up a Beef Teriaki.

BEEF TERIAKI

½ cup soy sauce
(for 3 lbs. of beef)
Scant tablespoon sugar
Minced clove garlic
½ tsp. powdered ginger
¼ cup sherry

Into this mixture, soak the beef for at least one hour. Then, either broil or barbecue.

Very tender beef which has been marinated in this sauce and broiled makes an excellent hors d'oeuvre when cut into bite-size cubes and served on toothpicks.

Bachelor of the Week

Life in a Whirlwind World

By IOLA MASTERSON

The whirlwind world of politics, public relations and bachelorhood is Dave Crowther's bailiwick. He's so fond of the first two he devotes almost as much of his "free" time to them as he does during working hours.

And the third category? Well, so far he's spent his lifetime investigating its advantages and disadvantages and still hasn't made up his mind just which way to vote. Claims to be non-partisan. Planks in the platform for the Sovereign State of Marriage give promise, he thinks, of a fuller, more companionable life. On the other hand, the Declaration of Independence insures him certain unalienable rights and he isn't sure yet but what the greatest of these is liberty!

* * * *

LET'S SETTLE down to some fact finding. Dave was born in Long Beach in 1930 and has called it home ever since. In addition to owning a public relations firm (Crowther and Associates with offices in the Security Bldg.), he is field representative for Congressman Craig Hosmer, the 18th District GOP leader. Dave won his appointment to the Hosmer staff last year after managing the 1956 election campaign which resulted in Hosmer's re-election. His break-through into working politics began when he was selected for the competive Congressional Fellowship Program in 1955, a protege of the Republican Party.

Personality-wise, Dave is an unusual blend of quiet dignity and warm friendliness. Like many big men (6'3"—185 pounds) he moves at an easy-going rate but with the steady dependability of an electric clock plugged into the main line.

* * * *

HE'S A graduate of Wilson and Long Beach State and has taken additional studies at Long Beach City College and American University in Washington, D. C. State provided him with a tri-subject bachelor's degree in business, economics and political science—known in the educators' lingo as a three-field major. Add his bachelor's degree in bachelorhood and call it a "play the field" major!

If he does decide to matriculate in marriage, the girl most likely to "graduate" with him will be tall, slender, quiet, intelligent and, if she just happens to be good looking, to boot, so much the better.

* * * *

HE MAY BE quite an able orator when it comes to his favorite political beliefs, but about his personal life Dave proved to be second cousin to the clam. You don't serve as a platoon leader in an infantry tank battalion in Korea and win a Silver Star, Bronze Star and Purple Heart without a few notable battle experiences. We soon discovered, however, that if we wanted more information about the lieutenants' war record, we'd have to get it from somebody other than the lieutenant!

Staff Photo
Dave Crowther

Dave and his chow pup, "Rip," live in a bachelor's haven way out east on Ocean Blvd. in the peninsula area. His apartment is the lower level of one of the first big homes built in the area and is right on the beach facing the ocean. It's a beautiful old building, he thinks, and it suits him to a "T" with its rugged, rock-enclosed patio open to sun and the natural airconditioning of brand new sea breezes.

* * * *

THE PREFERENCE for beach living isn't just for the view. Dave has been a swimmer for many years. In fact, he was a lifeguard during his student days. In the winter he trades sand for snow and heads for the best ski slopes, usually Mammoth Mountain near Bishop. For spectator sports he prefers football, especially as it is played by the L. A. Rams.

This brown-eyed, dark-haired lone wolf likes to spend informal evenings with small groups of good friends and while the hours away in conversation—not small talk. A dinner dance or a good show serve fine for those nights when something besides the use of vocal chords is called for.

* * * *

AS HOSMER'S field representative, Dave goes to Washington, D. C., at least twice each year to keep in touch with the capital and its famous people. It's an exhilarating city and rubbing elbows with its famous cosmopolitan and mercurial citizenry never fails to be an exciting and challenging experience.

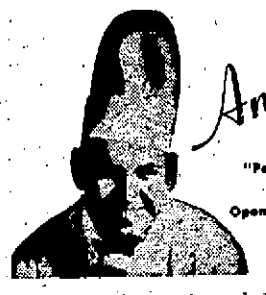

Now a man who feels that way about that town on the Potomac and loves the intellectual wrestling match of politics is, whether he knows it or not, bound to throw his hat in the ring eventually, according to the way we figure. And there's nothing helps a young politician more (whether he knows it or not!) than a young, attractive and diplomatic wife.

* * * *

BESIDES, even if Dave never does aspire to office, eventually he's going to grow too tired of those frozen dinners—the only kind of speciality he knows how to cook. It's a waiting game, girls, but for one of you it will be worth it!

"Particular Food for Particular People"

Old-Fashioned Buttermilk Hotcakes

There are many kinds of hot cakes, pancakes . . . or what-have-you . . . fat ones, thin ones, tough ones, gummy ones, soggy ones, doughy ones, hot, cold or indifferent ones. And they go by many names, blankets, sinkers, disks, doughboys, ringers.

But here at Andy's you get the true old-fashioned buttermilk hotcakes . . . a result of much study, patience and supervision to perfect what we think are America's most famous hotcakes.

Many things make it so . . . we choose the largest, freshest eggs and real churned buttermilk, fresh creamery butter, and a batter that is made from our own recipe in small, measured quantities several times a day to insure freshness and flavor. Andy's hotcakes are cooked on special equipment to insure freshness and perfection and are served with Log Cabin maple syrup and large quantities of butter. If, after eating these hotcakes, you are not satisfied, you'll get your money back! We serve them every day from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Step up for your hotcake treat!

OUR COVER

Rated by many as one of the world's most beautiful and fascinating women, Eva Gabor (Zsa Zsa's "little sister") reaches new acting heights as a lovely and amorous Parisian in MGM's sparkling musical "Gigi" (see Page 12) which will be coming this way soon. Always serious and earnest about her career, Eva has divided her time among films, stage and television. West Coast audiences have seen her in "Strike a Match" and "Present Laughter," stage plays co-starring Noel Coward. Her latest Broadway appearance was in "The Little Glass Clock." She has appeared in half a dozen important movies and on any number of big TV shows. She speaks four languages — German, French, Hungarian and English. Unlike most actresses, she declares she has never visited a beauty parlor in her life. She does have a fabulous jewelry collection but wears only a 15-carat diamond (see cover) which her father gave her when she was a child in Budapest . . . her other gems rest in a safe deposit vault!

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give information on HUGHES—E. M., J. H., Long Beach.

E. M., J. H.,: The ancient Welsh HUGHES lineage traces ancestry back 32 generations to Rhodri Mawr (Roderick the Great), King of Wales, 843 A.D. The family name was taken from the English "Hugh" meaning "of brilliant mind," a Teutonic given-name brought to Britain by the Saxons. The Hughes coat-of-arms is the same as that of Roderick the Great, a black rampant lion on a silver shield. The titled branches of the family lived in Anglesey and Merioneth.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would much like the analysis of FERGUSON—Mrs. S. S., Lakewood.

Mrs. S. S.: The Scotch Clan Ferguson lived many centuries in Argyllshire. This clan descended from a Gaelic chief called Fearghais whose name had the quaint meaning, "finest child of all." The vast clan lands were acquired in the 1300s in Aberdeen, Galloway and Dumfries. King Robert the Bruce granted the Fergusons of Ayrshire their estates by charter in 1307. Annie Laurie of Maxweltoun, one of the most famous women in Scotch history, married a clan descendant, Alexander Ferguson. The clan coat-of-arms has a silver buckle between three gold boar heads on a blue shield, with the motto "Dulcius ex asperis" or "Sweetness after difficulty."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell history on the name Hoffman—B. J., Long Beach.

B. J.: HOFFMAN originated among the nobility of German states in the Middle Ages. It meant "court attendant." An ancestor who achieved a position of high responsibility assumed his title as a surname.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the coat-of-arms and meaning of DUNCAN—Mrs. C. M., Long Beach.

Mrs. C. M.: Duncan the Stout, heir of the ancient Earls of Atholl, was the founder of the Scotch clan DUNCAN. He and his clansmen fought with King Robert the Bruce, defeating the English in 1314. The Gaelic name Duncan meant "brown warrior." The Duncan estates were in Forfarshire, east Scotland. The clan chief in the 1700s was an admiral who won a great naval victory against the Dutch. The Duncan coat-of-arms has on it the gold medal received as an award for this victory, backed by a red shield. The family motto is "Upright in peril and prosperity." Among descendants in America were John, Robert, Thomas and James Duncan of York County, Pennsylvania, 1771.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze the surname JAMES—Mrs. M. C., F. J., Mrs. F. J., Long Beach.

The English JAMES family derived their name from the Biblical given-name James or Jacob meaning "the supplanter." One of the ancestors was Lord Mayor of London in 1479. The coat-of-arms has three golden, standing lions and three black seashells on a chevron across the center of a blue shield. John James, born in Rhode Island in 1743, fought with the Minute Men in the Battle of Lexington, 1775, at the start of the Revolutionary War.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give brief genealogy on the Irish name O'DRISCOLL—E. D., Long Beach.

E. D.: The primordial Irish ancestor of the well known O'DRISCOLL lineage was called Eidirsceol. This was indicative of his occupation, for it meant "the interpreter." The progeny of this talented gentleman assumed the clan name O'Drisceoil. The family owned a large part of County Cork in the Middle Ages, and held several manorial castles.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the analysis of PARKER—C. F., A. L., Long Beach; J. P., Bellflower.

C. F., A. L., J. P.,: A "PARKER" was hereditary custodian of a deer park owned by a nobleman in medieval England. His duty was to protect the forested enclosure. William Le Parker was so efficient that he was granted a Lancashire estate in the 1300s by King Richard II. He adopted as the Parker coat-of-arms three gold leopard heads on a red shield. Among early American settlers was the Rev. Thomas Parker, rector of the church at Newbury, Berkshire, England. He settled in Massachusetts in 1634.

For E. E., Mrs. E. O., the name ESTES was included in this column for July 14, 1957, procurable at the offices of this newspaper.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

BOOK REVIEWS

Naming the Land

FIRST bestowal of a name in the subcontinent now known as Alaska came July 20, 1741, when a Russian ship sailed in among the many islands there. The name chosen was Cape St. Elias, because anchor was dropped on St. Elias' Day. Alaska itself was first called "Alaschka" by the Russians, generally supposed to mean "great land." Naming of the mainland coast really got under way in 1778 when Capt. Cook sailed into the area.

George R. Stewart, a Californian, supplies many new and important facts about the hunk of land twice as big as Texas — which this month was voted a state — in "NAMES ON THE LAND" (Houghton Mifflin, $6) and in doing uncovers little-known episodes in Alaskan history.

The longish chapter on Alaska, plus another on Hawaii, comments on recent events and a number of illustrations, brings up-to-date this reissue of Mr. Stewart's book, first published in 1945. The original text discusses place names from Bangor, Me., to San Diego, from Seattle to Key West, refreshing the reader with historical lore and supplying bizarre anecdotes from the past. How Long Beach, Pasadena and other California cities came by their names is included in a chapter devoted to the Golden State.

Mr. Stewart, who admits to a weakness for names and their meanings, says that writing of the original edition began in 1941 and was completed in 1944. But it would be more like it to believe his confession that "I spent all my life on it." For, in truth, the amount of research that went before the writing must have been astonishingly long and tedious. Readers will say the effort was well worth the result.

"THE SUMMER LOVERS" by Hollis Alpert (Knopf, $3.95): This easy-to-read, sophisticated novel is set at East Nines, a semi-plush summer resort on Long Island. Though other characters weave in and out of the story, it is mainly about Andy Wells, a 43-year-old professor in a rut, his wife, Martha, and Martha's daughter, Sally, Radcliffe undergraduate and voluptuous at 18 who has been in love with Andy since he came to her house to live.

Sally seduces Andy after being intimate with Chris, who's about to go into the Army. Martha senses something's wrong in her house, keeps her thoughts to herself until she learns the truth, while Sally becomes more and more enamored of her stepfather. The climax comes quickly, and as a surprise. Bill Chadburn, an illustrator of children's books who has leased part of the Wells household for the summer, watches developments from the sidelines while renewing a friendship with Louise, from whom he has been divorced six or seven years.

Mr. Alpert has written one of the most refreshing stories to appear during the summer; as refreshing to one, we imagine, as the Long Island climate after being cooped in New York with the heat.

SHORT STORIES: Discriminating readers will like two new collections. "RIVER'S END AND OTHER STORIES" by Anthony C. West (McDowell, Obolensky, $3.50) contains eight compelling tales of a boy's wild, unbridled adolescence, of his attainment of manhood. "THE BRIDES OF SOLOMON" (Atlantic - Little Brown, $3.75) includes 16 fiction pieces by Goeffrey Household. The settings are varied. Each has realistic characterization, and each moves in unexpected ways. The title story tells of the travels of a bishop's representative and an official deep into the jungle to find out how many wives a modern Solomon has. Are they astonished when they learn he has only 89, and not 200!

ASHLEY MONTAGU

A noted anthropologist, Ashley Montague, writes a witty and erudite analysis of the qualities of culture, plus a method of testing the reader's "culture quotient" in "THE CULTURED MAN" (World, $3.95).

"THE CALIFORNIA ISLANDS" by Charles Hillinger; photographs by Howard Maxwell (Academy Publishers, Los Angeles, $5.50): Although 14 million people live in California and thousands of tourists flock to the state each year, only a handful of people have visited all eight of the Channel Islands which lie off the coast of the Southland. Hillinger and Maxwell, reporter - photographer team from The Los Angeles Times, not only visited these islands—Santa Catalina, Santa Cruz, Santa Barbara, Santa Rosa, San Miguel, Anacapa, San Nicholas and San Clemente—they thoroughly explored each and brought back with them little known facts and striking pictures. This informative book is the result of their explorations and research, and Southern Californians interested in our coastal waters will find it very much to their liking.

"NONE BUT THE BRAVE" by Frieda K. Franklin (Crown, $3.95): Kansas was the western frontier in the 1850s. There were Indians and soldiers of fortune, cavalry and early settlers. And there were those who had their own ideas about the issue of slavery, and an underground railroad by which slaves were shuttled out of the South to freedom. These are the elements of this incisive novel, these and a girl friendly with the cause of the North but attracted to two Dragoons—one who believed as she believed and the other a convert to the cause of slavery. A well-

They Live in Germany --and Like It!

By Jane Westover

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY

CAPT. AND MRS. LAWRENCE E. RUFF call Long Beach home. But for two years they've hung their hats in a charming domicile on the vast U. S. Army installation here in Heidelberg.

My SAS plane deposited me at Frankfurt. I journeyed by car on the fast Autobahn, equivalent to our freeways, to Heidelberg. My mission? To see how the Ruffs and fellow transplanted Americans live and like making their home in Europe.

Briefly, they love it.

"We find the German people very friendly and anxious to share their customs and traditions with us," says Mrs. Ruff. "The German-American Women's Club meets once a month in the day time. Four times a year evening parties are sponsored so husbands can participate. One of these is the formal St. Nicholas Ball just before Christmas. It's attended by Americans and Germans from teenagers to elderly people."

Mrs. Ruff greeted me at the door of her home in Patrick Henry Village, Heidelberg, attired in native Bavarian dirndl. The dress had a black background sprinkled with tiny roses. An ample green apron covered the front.

CAPT. RUFF, USN, was relaxed in sport shirt and slacks, it being Saturday afternoon. Although regular Navy he's the Heidelberg representative of MSTS (Military Sea Transportation Service). He explained the integration of the services: "We arrived here May 3, 1956. Our first year was somewhat limited to the Navy. During that time there was a Commander Naval Forces, Germany, with headquarters in Heidelberg. We had 25 Naval officers. The new German Army took over the controls in June 1957, except the Rhine River Patrol which was turned over to the German Army Engineers on June 30.

"Since then there have been only four US Naval officers and two Marine officers here.

"We have been absorbed by the Army, socially—and very pleasantly, too. We entertain frequently in our homes on the base and at the Officer's Club in rather large numbers for honor guests, visiting admirals and generals, for Christmas, various holidays and 'Auf Wiedersehen' parties for departing friends.

"Our life is comparable to life in Long Beach with cocktail parties, luncheons, dinners at our home or in the Officers' Club at Allen Center there."

Mrs. Ruff, the former Mrs. J. Herbert Davies, visits her daughter, Mrs. William H. Winston Jr., and her three grandchildren, Becky, 7, Scott, 4, and Billy, 2, at their home, 3134 E. First St., whenever she and Capt. Ruff are in Long Beach. Capt. Ruff's sons are Rick, college student at Concord, Calif., and Terry, Signalman, third class, USS Washburn, San Diego.

THE RUFFS HAVE A GERMAN maid and enjoy eating German foods in restaurants. Most of their food at home is purchased from the commissary on the base. Much of the milk and butter is imported from Scandinavian countries and flown in by Air Transport.

The differences in languages presents a constant stumbling block. Explains Mrs. Ruff:

"The Germans sometimes have difficulty with English, always the Americans have trouble speaking German. As a result, there's a tendency to speak only to your own countrymen. But we try and make conversation with the Germans, sometimes very successfully. For example, the assistant burgermeister attends many parties with his wife, accompanied by an official interpreter. The burgermeister himself is very elderly, and seldom goes out."

Visiting German homes is always delightful. "If the couple is elderly the Long Beach is their home, but Capt. L. E. Ruff, USN, and Mrs. Ruff are now in Heidelberg, Germany. Here's homecoming greeting in Heidelberg.

And this is Heidelberg, which Ruffs enjoy so much as their European residence. City is steeped in romance and traditions of German people.

Capt. Ruff appears here in the dress of a German hunter; Mrs. Ruff in native dirndl. The historic punch bowl is one Ruffs use in entertaining.

I'M PRACTICALLY 16, WHICH IS GOING ON 17, AND . . .

I Have Problem Parents

By Jill Kane

I WAS BORN JAN. 3, 1943, which means that now in July, 1958, I'm practically 16 which is, of course, going on 17 but most of the time my parents treat me as if I were 12 even though I feel as if I were 18, sometimes even 19.

That's the whole trouble with parents, they're so inconsistent. My mother will say, "Why can't you act grown up? After all, you're not a child. You're nearly 16."

Then, in the next breath she will say, "For heaven's sake why do you think you can stay out until 11? You're only a child."

I ask you. What is a person to think?

I have a small brother who is 12 but who thinks he is smart and acts as if he were at least 15, and I have a sister who is 7. Actually Jan, that's my sister, she's cute and I can tolerate her most of the time except when I have to baby sit with her. (I might add here that my parents are real neat about babysitting and pay me 35 cents an hour so it's not the money I'm complaining about.) Jan, my sister, is, as I said, tolerable. The only thing is when we have an argument like when she gets into my things (like jewelry) my mother interferes with our argument and says that we are sisters and sisters share and share alike. On the other hand when I have to babysit with her I'm told that I should be strict and treat her as if she were my own daughter and she, my sister, still thinks that we are sisters who share alike and I have a heck of a time making her mind due to my mother's inconsistency. But parents are always inconsistent, it seems.

TAKE THE OTHER DAY for example. I asked my father very casually if I could have a cigarette. He nearly flipped. Honestly, he really flipped. Now I don't like to smoke—in fact, I have never smoked but a girl in my club has a boy friend who smokes all the time, at least five a day, and he gave her one the other day and she said it tasted awful and she couldn't understand why anyone smoked.

Anyway, I was curious so I thought that I would see for myself and I figured if I asked my dad for one he would be happy that I tried it at home so I asked him for one. He hit the ceiling as I said. He really did. He said what in the world are you kids coming to and why did I have to be a typical teenager who smoked all the time and no he wouldn't give me a cigarette and if he caught me smoking he would restrict me. I ask you. What is a person to think? Unbeknownst to him I tried one anyway and it was awful and I don't intend to smoke now or any time but I do wish he had understood that I was just curious. I still don't understand how he can smoke a pack a day and seem to like it. Old age, I guess.

And the question about dates. Many of my friends go steady. That's fine for them, I guess. But me—I don't want to go steady because I think going steady should be something you do when you get old—like when you're in college. I like a lot of boys and I like to date different boys for different occasions. For example, I like to go swimming with a boy named Jack because he's a real neat swimmer and looks cool in swim trunks. I mean he has the build for sports and all that. Then I like to dance with this real cute guy named Ken because he's the smoothest dancer I've ever danced with. And as for shows, Jim's the most fun. Like me, he likes those cool pictures that have terrific music and not too much plot but plenty of laughs. So you see I can't go steady really because I'd have to go steady with so many fellows.

But, anyway, as I said, most of my friends go steady. I think some of them are insecure or something according to what I read somewhere not long ago. I'm not insecure, so, in a way, I guess I'm different. I think it was about a week ago when Leo, that's another boy I know who's loads of fun and who has a license so he can drive his dad's car when he has a date, asked me for a date. We went swimming and then to a show and found we had so much in common that he asked me to go steady. I still didn't want to go steady but I thought about all my friends who went steady and figured it might be fun to try it for awhile. When I told mom and dad that Leo and I might go steady because we had so much fun together, they really hit the ceiling, especially my dad. He acted as if we were going to get married or something. I told him not to worry and Leo and I called it off. The only thing is that the very next day almost my mother insisted that I learn how to wash windows properly and how to iron curtains because she said every girl should be prepared for married chores early so that she would make a good wife. I said I didn't plan on getting married early but she said you never know about those things. I ask you. How inconsistent can you get?

DON'T GET ME WRONG. I think my mother and father are tops. In fact they're really swell and not at all old-fashioned in looks. My mother even owns two new sack dresses. But the way they act at times! Mom often talks about manners, which are ok, in fact, pretty important maybe, but sometimes I don't see her point. She'll ask me to say "yes, mother" or "no, mother," instead of "yeah" or "uh huh," but on the other hand when I ask her to do something she frequently says "uh huh" or something like that depending on her mood. I guess that's parental privilege. Besides she's nearly 36 and I realize that people get forgetful when they're middle-aged. I do know one thing. When I have children I'll try to remember not to be inconsistent, especially when I ask my children to have manners I should set an example of.

I have a terrific problem with clothes. All of my friends have cashmere sweaters and just loads of girls I know who are old enough to drive have their own cars. But when I asked if I could have my own car when I'm 16 or even 17 my mother said for heaven's sake we haven't finished paying for the new dryer yet and did I think we were made of money. Since we don't even own a swimming pool as most of my friends do I am sure we must be fairly poor.

And about the sweater—when I asked for a couple of cashmeres my mother said even she didn't own a cashmere and all I ended up with was a lecture. But in the next breath she tells me I should polish my flats each night because people judge you first by your appearance and it pays to look nice. How can a person look neat when everyone else is wearing cashmeres? Frankly, I'm going to have a whole lot more understanding with my children because I realize how important cars and cashmeres can be. Maybe since I know what it is to go without I'll try to give them everything I never had if I'm ever lucky enough to get married which I probably won't since my parents don't even want me to go steady.

ANYWAY, WITH ALL my problems with my parents, it's kind of fun to be a teenager nowadays although I wish you wouldn't hear the word delinquent so often. Actually, I have never known a single delinquent except a boy (and I don't really know him) who went with a girl friend's sister of mine whose name was Sue and even he didn't do anything except drive his dad's car too fast when his dad didn't know he had it. You might know his parents put him on restriction and my dad said he'd even do more than that. But then, only yesterday, my dad came home and waved a ticket to my mother saying "guess what, I finally got picked up in that" (he used a censorable word here) "area where I've driven up to 55 any number of times." My mother laughed with him but I guess that's parents for you. I know what would have happened if I had gotten a ticket.

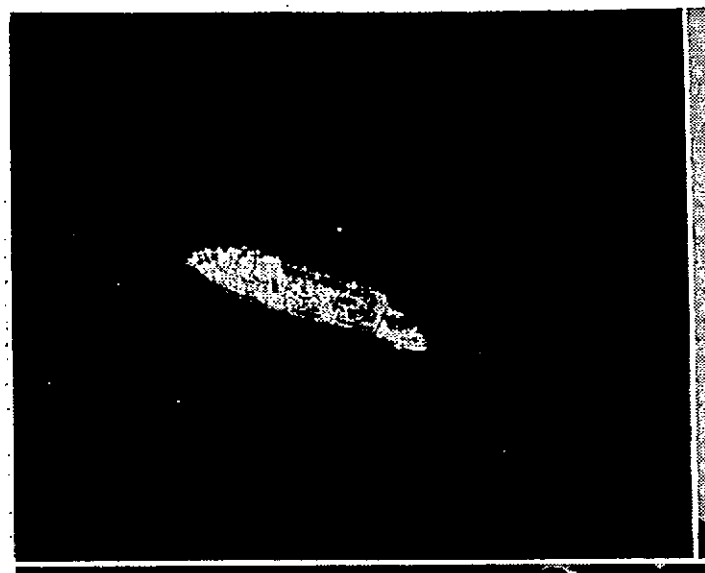

Oh, well, I've learned a lot from my parents. Mainly that I'm going to be very very consistent with my own kids if I'm ever lucky enough to get married. And I'm really not too worried because, believe it or not, I find that all my friends have identically the same problem parents that I have, except, of course, when it comes to cashmeres and cars. And I think that even my parents are gradually maturing in their point of view because my dad has agreed I could have a new formal this fall—strapless at that. How neat can you get!

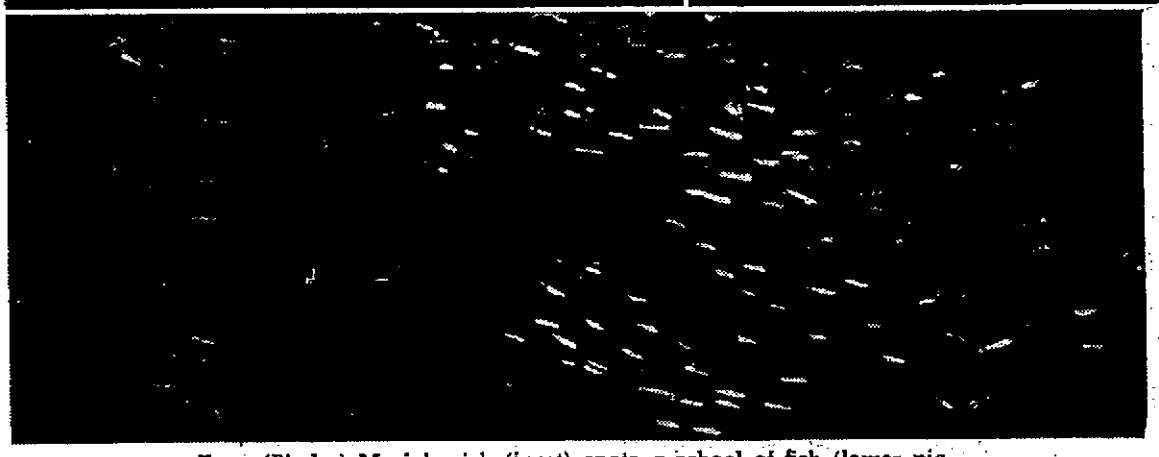

". . . And sometimes my inconsistent Mother treats me as if I were a grown-up adult!"

Now They're Fishing From the Air!

By Donnell Culpepper

Tony (Bimbo) Marinkovich (inset) spots a school of fish (lower picture) from his Piper Cub and then radios its position to anglers in sports fishing boats like that at left. The boat then moves in among the school for a fine catch. Fish-spotting has provided fun for all.

LET'S GIVE a thought to the poor fish! Tempting baits and colorful lures are tossed at him on the surface, spears are fired at him underwater and now, heaven help him, the airplane is diving at him from above!

With all of that, perhaps things are getting a bit out of hand for the fish.

Just how does the airplane fit into a quaint seascape of tangled lines, undersea skin-diving weapons, anchor chains and fins?

It's all very simple for a smart pilot like Tony (Bimbo) Marinkovich, who has been spotting schools of fish for six years and telling boat skippers what to expect—sardines, anchovies, mackerel, bonito, barracuda, albacore, yellowtail and even marlin and broadbill.

UP UNTIL JUST RECENTLY Bimbo's efforts have been strictly for commercial fishermen, but today he's keeping watch for the sportfishermen—those weekend monofilament-crazed lads who toss a 10-dollar bill on the ticket counter and expect a bag full of fish before the day ends.

When thousands of Southern California anglers descend on the ocean landings daily, it isn't always so easy for the boat operators to guarantee one fish, to say nothing of a sackful.

When a fully loaded pleasure fishing boat leaves a landing, the skipper's first job is to obtain bait. Then comes the task of locating fish. He knows that certain fishing banks—the Horseshoe Kelp, Huntington Flats, Rocky Point, various coves around Catalina Island—are places where fish hang out.

BUT FISH ARE VORACIOUS eaters and when food isn't available at the regular eating places, they school up and head for another lunchroom. When they are on the move, it's difficult for a skipper to find them.

True enough, there are certain signs: disturbances on the surface and birds winging overhead to pick up what the fish didn't finish. Mostly, however, a skipper is handicapped in that he can get just so high on a boat and then he is stymied. His vision is impaired by waves. He can climb to the highest place on his boat but he can't see far enough to observe fish that may be moving a few feet under the surface.

That's where Bimbo enters the day's program. Tony comes winging out in his Piper Cub, flying from 500 to 3,000 feet and looking constantly for any disturbance in the water.

WHEN HE SEES a commotion on or near the surface, he drops lower to investigate and determine what kind of fish is there. Tony has been at this business long enough to tell the difference between a school of anchovies and a school of sardines. Rather amazing when you know that the fish vary only an inch in length. He can spot other schools the same way and name each one simply by circling and observing every movement. You'd think that bonito and small tuna would be similar in action, but not to Tony, drifting in a tight circle a few hundred feet in the air.

When Tony decides it's a school of game fish, he radios the nearest boat and tells the skipper to move in slowly. He can watch and tell by the school's action just how the boat's engine is affecting the fish. If the fish start scattering, Tony tells the skipper to cut the engine and drift into the school.

IN A WAY, THE plane pilot is like a general directing the attack, and it works beautifully. Pier-

Eight rooms, including three bedrooms and one and a half baths, are provided in this one-story ranch house. It has two more rooms than houses of comparable size. One of features is a larger bathroom.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Home With a Two-Room Bonus

By John O. B. Wallace

HERE'S A HOUSE with a bonus of two rooms. The extra living space comes at no extra cost because the eight rooms, including three bedrooms, have been designed into the same area usually required for a six-room house.

This "dividend" house was based on a study of many homes of approximately 1,300 square feet—a size that falls into the category of a small, economy priced dwelling.

All homes of 1,300 square feet reviewed by the architect responsible for this House of The Week plan, designated HW-93, invariably contained no more than six rooms.

HOW TO GET two extra rooms into the same area, the architect asked himself. Good design and imaginative use of space provided the answer. The successful plan thus incorporates as many useful rooms as possible into a one-story, in-line ranch house of the modest, 1,300-square-foot size.

In addition to the eight rooms being cleverly shoehorned into 1,300 square feet, the house also boasts of a 40-square-foot front foyer—a luxury not usually afforded in a house of this size.

Overall dimensions of the house are 71 feet by 24 feet 8 inches, including the garage area. A lot 90x100 feet is recommended. Excluding the brick veneer and the garage, the house has 1,299 square feet. Add 39 square feet for the veneer and 282 square feet for the garage.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern, who created this bonus home after long study, points out:

"The room that usually suffers in size, in a minimum

house, is the bath. It is brought on the drafting board to the minimum size of 5 by 7 feet, or 35 square feet—and the tub is placed under the window.

"There is a marked trend today, however, for larger, more luxurious baths—and this design follows this trend. The bath is 9 by 7 feet, or 63 square feet."

THE BATH in HW-93 thus falls only 7 square feet short of being twice the size of a minimum size bath.

The bath has a vanity, a double lavatory, a towel cabinet and a screen in front of the water closet. And the tub is on the side wall, where it belongs.

"Circulation in this home is excellent," Matern adds. "Nothing suffers from its compactness. No room must be used as a passageway."

THERE IS A FULL basement except under the area occupied by the garage. With the exterior basement door, the architect explains, the cellar space becomes a wonderful area to finish later as a rumpus or recreation room.

The 40-square-foot front foyer has a guest closet below the height of the ceiling. This arrangement creates a platform above for plants. The family room has a folding screen partition which permits the foyer to be closed off or opened to provide a 20-foot view to the sliding glass doors and beyond to the rear terrace.

THERE ARE BUILT-IN cabinets on the left wall of the family room and a low planter extends through the rear wall of this room and out onto the terrace.

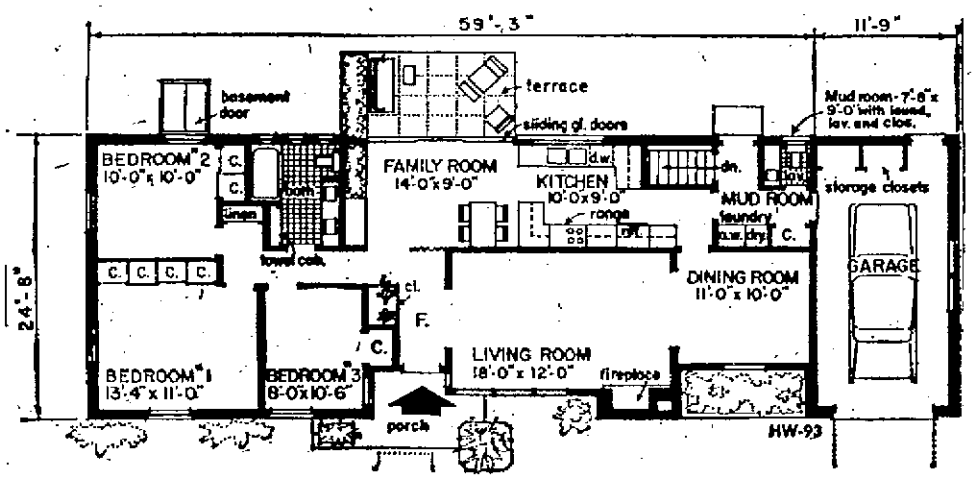

Additional features of the bathroom include picture-frame type windows, large mirrors back of the double lavatory and vanity—and fluorescent-lighted ceiling panels.

Brick veneer has been used as exterior material around the entire house except at the front entrance. Wood finish has been used to flank the front entrance and flush boards have been used at the left with flower pots and brackets hanging from them.

Deep, vertically-grooved plywood is used on the right of the front entrance under the living room windows. The chimney, 7 feet wide, rises to its full height to become an exterior feature. Planters flank the porch and there is another planter under the dining room window.

The rear terrace is of scored concrete. Asphalt shingles are used for the roof and all windows in the house are double-hung aluminum. There is a setback over the dining room and the roof at this point has open rafters to allow natural light to come in.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 35 cents and request House of the Week, Study Plan, Design HW-93.

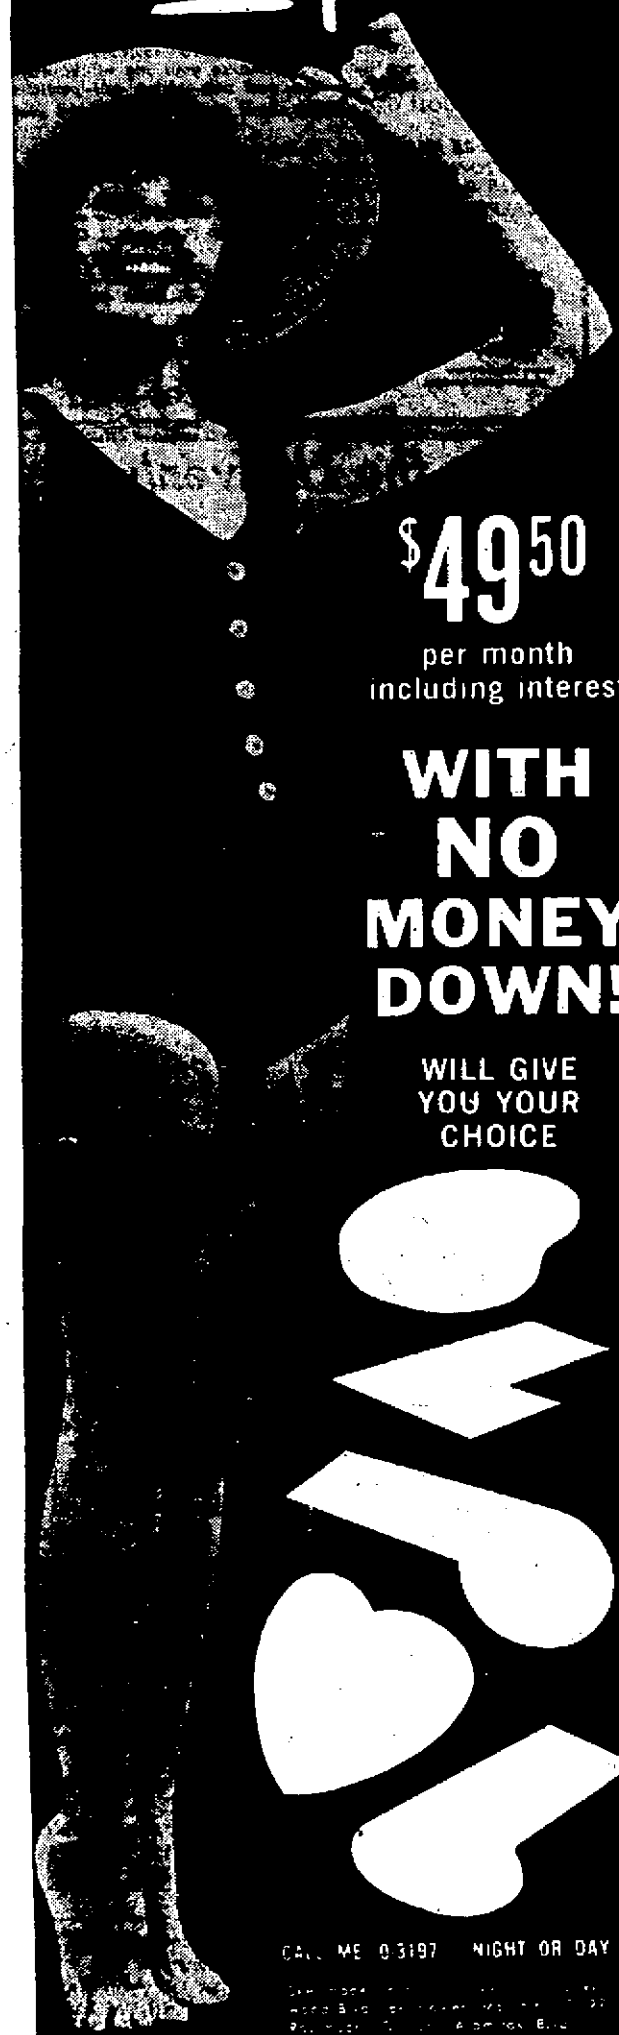

Study this floor plan and you will see that excellent circulation is provided. No single room must be used as a passageway in moving about.

"DOUBLE ARC" Slats

Make All the Difference

Now you can have vertical venetians that look and operate just like draw draperies . . . with all the advantages of venetians, besides! With the new double-arc slats, Eastern's Star has a flowing "one-piece" appearance when closed . . . looks for all the world like the luxurious folds of fine draperies. It opens and closes as a unit, too.

What's more, Eastern's Star verticals are so sturdy they don't need tapes or bottom tracks. And to add to their "drapery-like look," they feature a magnificent textured finish and are available in a galaxy of lovely colors.

Plus all these advantages!

★ Complete control of ventilation, light, view and privacy. Perfected mechanism of turn cord assures even turning of slats. When they are wide open, you have a far clearer view through fewer, wider, stronger slats.

★ Full closure of slats in either direction. The double arc slats don't just overlap . . . they interlock to lock out light, and to give wall-like privacy when used as room dividers.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

House That's Attuned to Milady

Provincial and modified contemporary blend in the living room of the home of Harold Guiver family. Mrs. Guiver enjoys a moment of relaxation here.

By Eileen Ball

WHEN the interior decorator for the Harold Guiver home, 5107 Vista Hermosa, was commissioned to select furnishings and color schemes for this attractive 2,400-square-foot residence, he took into consideration all the usual factors — his clients' style preferences, their mode of everyday living, and entertaining and, of course, their decorating budget. But, beyond this, he evolved the interior plan around still another factor: the personality, stature and coloring of Mrs. Guiver, who, he reasoned logically, should be flattered by the background of her home.

And thus were determined the delicate mauve-to-pink color schemes for the living room, dining room and kitchen. These areas, with their pastel tones, most becomingly complement Mrs. Guiver's petite blondness. Assuming a decidedly more masculine air is the family room, where Guiver and the two youngsters find themselves a more robust decorative theme.

A DELIGHTFUL preamble to the heather tones of the living room and entry is the exterior planting, which is a showcase of lavender and purple flowers. Driftwood board-and-batten siding, a cedar shake roof and an abundance of used brick are attractive exterior specifications for this gracious corner house.

Waxed red tile floors the entry and a lofty, driftwood, open-beam ceiling soars above it. To the left is a large living room with blended French provincial and modified contemporary furnishings. A nutria-toned wool carpet contributes a delicate heather-hued underfooting. Dusty pink walls pay it delicate compliment, while the ceiling of facepowder pink plays a still paler counterpart in this monochromatic scheme.

Standing before a large front window is an oversized Lawson sofa upholstered in dusty-pink linen tweed. Italian silk pillows in jewel tones of turquoise and cyclamen provide brilliant accents. Before the sofa is a large oval cocktail table, its massive top a beveled piece of white imported marble.

A LARGE club chair joins this grouping with mauve damask fabric unusually patterned with tiny charcoal geometric motifs. Facing it from the opposite side of the cocktail table is an Oriental-inspired occasional chair that adds a distinctive note of contemporary simplicity to the room. It comprises a black lacquered teakwood frame with a natural cane back and a cushioned seat upholstered in a Persian silk stripe in tones of Attractive styling of the exterior includes the use of used brick, board-and-batten siding, shake roof.

Game table and bar are included among the comforts of the Guivers' family room, where the inducement is to relax and to entertain on informal scale.

turquoise, pink, mauve and cyclamen.

Dressing the windows are sheer silk slub casement curtains under Italian hand-blocked cotton draperies with stylized floral motifs in charcoal, mauve and gold against a facepowder pink background.

Standing at a right angle to the fireplace are two low, upholstered, armless chairs which flank a simple but handsomely crafted French provincial table in fruitwood. The chairs are covered in a charcoal and mauve damask stripe, the fabric woven to match, identically, the colors in the damask lounge chair across the room.

OTHER FURNITURE for this large room includes several smaller case pieces of French provincial styling in mellow fruitwoods, a regal black grand piano and a small brass-grilled console in black lacquer trimmed with gilt.

In the separate dining room, furniture of French provincial styling sets the scene. This includes an oval table, a magnificent brass-grilled hutch and a company of side chairs. Their upholstery is a silk-and-linen tweed blending tones of turquoise, charcoal and pink.

Above a wainscot of chair-rail height, the dining room walls are papered in Chinese grass cloth — the pale-pink, woven fiber mounted over a deep charcoal paper. The resulting muted mauve tone is absolute perfection for this room that employs the same carpet and drapery treatment as the adjoining living room.

Natural mahogany cabinets distinguish the large kitchen that carries out the color plan of the other two rooms. Here, tile and built-in appliances are petal pink, and sill-length, turquoise cafe curtains are banded in pink to match.

THE FLOOR is a heather-and-beige speckle-patterned linoleum that has been intricately inlaid, as a central motif, with a linoleum inset that portrays a turquoise blue flower pot and pink leaves. This design in the floor repeats the pattern of dinette wallpaper that features the same pink-and-turquoise design against a soft cocoa background. Dinette chairs are upholstered in a turquoise and cocoa tweed. The oval table is pale birch.

A doorway from the kitchen leads directly into the family room — a huge area situated to overlook, through an entire rear wall of glass, the terrace and the garden beyond. This fun-for-all room is where the family spends most of its "at home" hours. No wonder! For this room has been specifically designed for lounging, entertaining, card-playing, dancing and televiewing. The color scheme does a complete about-face with vibrant curry-colored draperies dressing the glass wall and a random-tweed wool carpet in harvest tones to further emphasize the robust scheme. Heavy plank-and-peg floor, birch-paneled walls, massive wood beams and natural wood ceiling contribute the warmth characteristic of wood tones.

Two chairs and a table are placed at right angle to the fireplace in a simple but effective arrangement.

A PROVINCIAL pine game table, captain's chairs, a knotty pine bar and occasional tables are part of the family room furnishings. Above a large, quilted, polished-cotton sofa in chocolate and amber tones hang three of Mrs. Guiver's handmade, cross-stitch samplers, attractively encased in heavy maple frames.

Deep bookcases and built-in storage cabinets flank the handsome — and massive — used-brick fireplace with its raised seat-height hearth.

Kathy, aged 9 years, and Shelly, who is 7, have front bedrooms — each decorated to suit each little girl's specific tastes. Kathy's room is buttercup yellow with cocoa, white and gold-patterned provincial draperies hung in double tiers from gleaming brass rods. Shelly likes pink, so her room assumes a pastel scheme. Walls are dusty pink, her linen draperies match. Narrow, delicate bands of turquoise and cocoa print cotton satin trim the draperies with a discreet touch of pattern and color.

The master bedroom is highly distinctive for the fact that, despite its French provincial furnishings with typical fluid lines, the room achieves a tailored, almost masculine air of simplicity. Certainly, the fault of having a master bedroom far too frilly for a husband's taste is not the case here!

Air Fishing

point and Pacific Landings in Long Beach have been using Tony on a part-time basis for several weeks and there's no doubt that his services have increased the take of yellowtail, barracuda and bonito.

Tony puts it this way:

"Sometimes I fly over a boat and see that there is no action. Yet, within 500 yards there may be a school of fish that would number two or three thousand."

Tony has become so expert at spotting schools of fish that he is planning a weekly service to owners of small boats and cruisers, giving them in map form where fish are migrating and the general area in which they may be found on a certain day.

JUST HOW DID TONY become such an expert in aerial fish spotting when others have tried it and failed?

Tony, now 28 and a bundle of energy, was born in San Pedro. He started his commercial-fishing career in 1946 and became the harbor's youngest skipper in 1950. He operated his father's boat for three years.

It was during that time that he learned the value of aerial spotting. Often, he would climb high in the crow's nest, then even balance himself on the rail to look down upon the sea. He always felt that he was not high enough. One day, while searching the ocean for fish, he decided that a plane would be the only way.

Giving up commercial fishing, he entered training and got his pilot's license the hard way inasmuch as the job he planned for himself called for a commercial license.

HE BOUGHT HIS Piper Cub and went into business, but it wasn't easy selling the oldtime commercial fishermen on the idea. Tony admits he lost everything except his shirt and plane in the first six months, operating at no profit whatever.

One by one, the commercials turned to him until finally even the old salts of the sea themselves were convinced that he had the right idea.

Tony says:

"The commercial fishermen used to get hump-backed from looking down for fish. Now they are getting sway-backed from looking up for the plane."

Tony on many occasions has practically helped a commercial boat wrap up a school of fish, directing every operation from the air, even to telling the men below when to purse the net.

IS THIS TYPE of fishing going to deplete the schools in the ocean? Tony just laughs at such a question. He says:

"Pessimistic fishermen who talk about how the commercial and sports boats are cleaning out the fish should take a ride with me. I've seen a boat lay a net on a school and I have heard the skipper say, 'Well, we have cleaned out that school.' Then is when he should be aloft with me where I am watching the operation. Perhaps the boat has netted 10 tons of fish, but, from the plane, you can see hundreds of tons that kept moving down ahead, far below the net.

"I can't see why any one gets excited over the possibility of depleting the ocean of its fish—not when I can see thousands of them every day that I am in the air. There's nothing unfair about aerial spotting. It's just a modern way of putting the boats in touch with migrating fish. If the fishermen here don't catch their share, some one else will, or predators will take care of them. That's just nature."

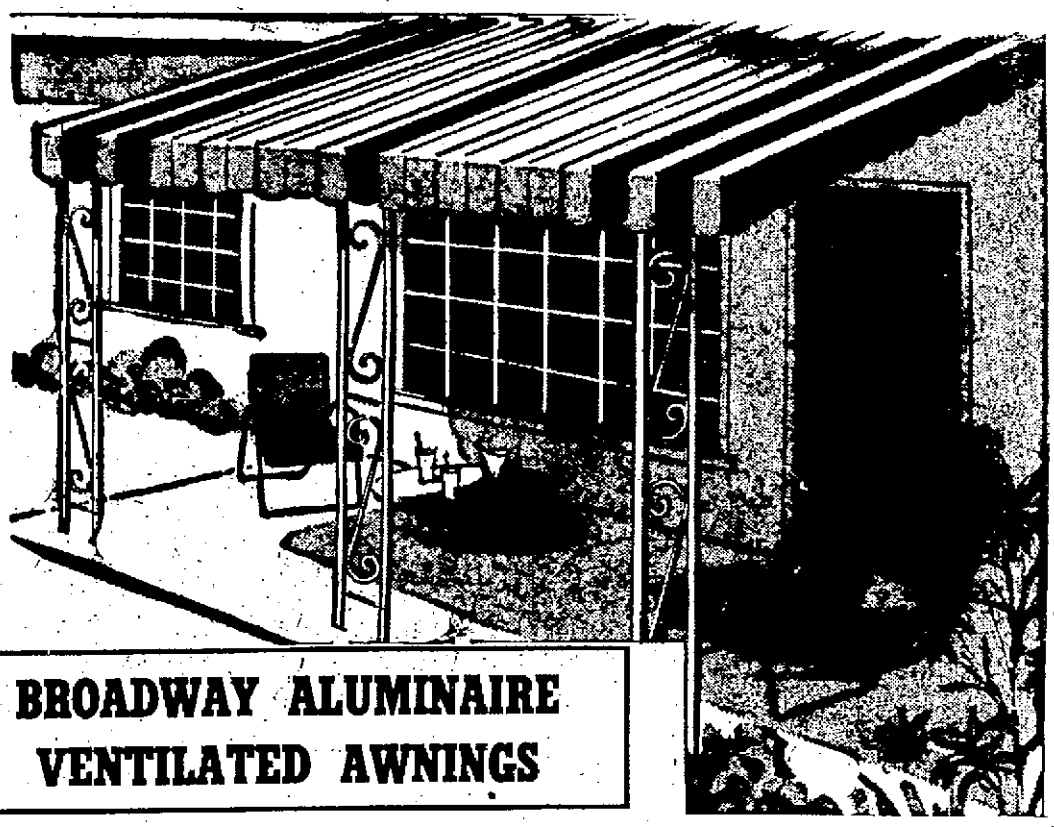

EVEN THOUGH TONY started as a commercial fisherman, he has a warm spot in his heart for the sportsmen. He likes to be broad-minded about what everybody takes from the ocean. He feels that there is room for commercials and sportsmen alike and that together they won't deplete the fish to any great extent.

Tony flies from the Torrance Airport on call from Pierpoint and Pacific Landings, but often he is in the air "on his own," just looking for fish. Often he is in the air for hours and always over water.

He lives at 2409 Faircross, Torrance, is married and has a son, 5, and a daughter, 7. When he's home, he likes to cook, barbecue-style. His favorite for the open spit? Any kind of good ocean fish!

They Live in Germany - - and Like It!

furniture has been in the family for generations, and is beautiful. If the couple is young the home is apt to be very modern and simple. 'The German people we know," says Mrs. Ruff, "are anxious for us to see their homes. They are very prompt with their invitations to their own homes or to some special restaurant or gasthaus to share their hospitality with us."

Living near the romantic town of Heidelberg with its harmonious scenic beauty, open country and artistic creations of man — castle, town bridge and flowering gardens, coupled with the tradition-laden atmosphere — is an experience in itself. Capt. and Mrs. Ruff sighed happily:

"It's such a change of pace. We're glad and lucky to be here."

THE ARMY installation, Patrick Henry Village, where the Ruffs live, houses about 5,000 Americans. Nearby Mark Twain Village has approximately 2,000. Their two-story home has central heating (a rarity in Europe), wall-to-wall carpeting and the latest equipment.

Living, generally, is expensive in Europe. Mrs. Ruff said:

"For the German people the cost of living is very high. For Americans in the military forces it's actually lower than in the United States because of the commissary privileges. We eat much the same food as at home, including grapefruit stamped 'Coachella' and oranges marked 'Sunkist.'"

One stumbling block is the fact that there's no pasteurized milk in Europe.

Capt. Ruff saw service throughout the Pacific theater during the war. He was at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7 on the bridge of the USS Nevada. His many ribbons show that he has seen action practically everywhere. They include two Bronze Stars and Silver Stars and ribbons for Navy commendation, American Theater, Occupation Theater in Japan, China and Korean Service, American Defense. Space doesn't permit

CAPT. AND MRS. RUFF have seen almost every corner of the world. Like all Americans in the overseas forces, Capt. Ruff is entitled to 30 days' leave a year. He and Mrs. Ruff have taken advantage of being stationed in Europe to see much of this part of the world. When he inspected MSTS ports aboard the USS Patch, Mrs. Ruff met him at Leghorn, Italy. They saw Naples, Tripoli, Athens and Istanbul before returning "home." Another time they visited Paris, London, Sweden, Austria, East and West Berlin.

"Every American should see East Berlin," said Mrs. Ruff. "As you walk through the Brandenburg Gate it's like going to a graveyard. We saw only one child. No dogs or cats. It's depressing."

The Ruffs and all Americans believe the words in Hoelderlin's deathless ode about being privileged to live in the beautiful historic town of Heidelberg: "And home it was to all."

Seven of Mrs. Head's lovely young pupils dance the Sea Breeze hula for the visiting Henry Burmesters of Long Beach. Aku (tuna) boat is seen offshore.

School Is Happy in Hawaii

By Vera Williams

A SHORT YEAR ago she was Ruth Head, Bellflower and Artesia school teacher, wife of Lou Head, regional news editor of the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Today, she is sixth grade teacher in the Kihei school on the island of Maui, the only Haole (white) teacher in the school, and husband Lou Head covers the island of Maui for the Honolulu Advertiser.

Henry F. Burmester, retired editor of the Press-Telegram, and his wife, Betty, recently visited the Heads and the school.

"We are Americans!" the brown-skinned, slant-eyed children proudly told the Burmesters. They raised the Stars and Stripes above their little cottage school building on the southwest coast of Maui, overlooking Malaaea Bay and a beautiful tropical beach. They saluted the Flag, and Hank and Betty noted the Pledge of Allegiance resounded, and the hands going to their hearts were not limp!

THEY RECITED their lessons, sang mainland and island songs for the visitors and danced the hula for them.

When the Burmesters left, they gave the children a big box of candy. The young folk sent a thank-you letter to Hank and Betty at their home here, 3751 Brayton Ave., and it was signed by them all.

What is it like to live and teach on the island?

"First," explains Ruth, "there's a casualness on Maui that is not apparent on the mainland or in Honolulu for that matter.

"At first, school was certainly confusing for me. What names—what pidgin English on the playground! I couldn't pronounce the names, couldn't match them up with the faces and couldn't half understand the kids on the playground.

"BEING THE ONLY Haole (white) teacher felt strange. (There are lots of them in the other schools here and the woods are full of them on Oahu.) But the principal, Wallace Tanaka, a native of Maui with Japanese ancestry, and the other teachers were so nice and casual about everything I soon began to feel right at home.

The school, surrounded by palm trees and kiawe (pronounced keave) trees, has an enrollment of 205. Books are the same as those used in Southern California — old friends to Ruth!

Ruth finds the children have a basic kindness and friendliness. School is happy and there is no serious discipline problem, although occasionally a little serious talking must be done!

There are no red apples for teacher—instead she receives a deluge of mangoes, tangerines, lilikoi (passion fruit), kukui nuts and seashell necklaces. And all kinds of flowers and leis — orchids, hibiscus, pakalana, pikaki and plumeria.

Long years ago, Santa Maria climbed the hill and established itself upon level ground, leaving Point Sal (above, circa 1871) to crumble into ruin.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

Once-Proud Port of the Pacific

By Mabel Veatch Hoadley

MODERN MAPS of California show Santa Maria 10 or 11 miles from the ocean. In the 1870s, however, grain, wool and hogs from the Santa Maria and Los Alamos valleys were hauled to Point Sal for shipment by steamer to San Francisco and other points along the coast. At one time this shipping point was the largest south of San Francisco.

Throughout the grain harvesting season a long line of horse drawn wagons could be seen daily on the trek to the wharf, and again homeward bound after unloading the grain into the ships. With less regularity, livestock and other products of the fertile valleys were brought to the wharf all through the year. The crooked one-way road was rutted most of the time.

North of the harbor, Point Sal thrusts a protecting arm out into the Pacific. To the south, Lion Head Point extends out far enough to reduce the force of the wildest of the ocean's fury, for even the peaceful Pacific has its evil moods. In spite of this geographical good fortune, the harbor is rough, and the tides dangerous. Montainous waves come in to crash against the cliffs that tower above them and send spume flying high in the air. The coastal area is a veritable graveyard of ships.

FROM THIS protected spot, privateers once set out to raid Spanish caravels, and the harbor is lined with rusting cannon, presumably captured from them. Many ships have been lost in dense fogs, or driven ashore by high winds and wrecked along the craggy, storm-battered coast. Rusting pieces of broken vessels litter the clean, rocky ocean floor in the shallow water off the beach.

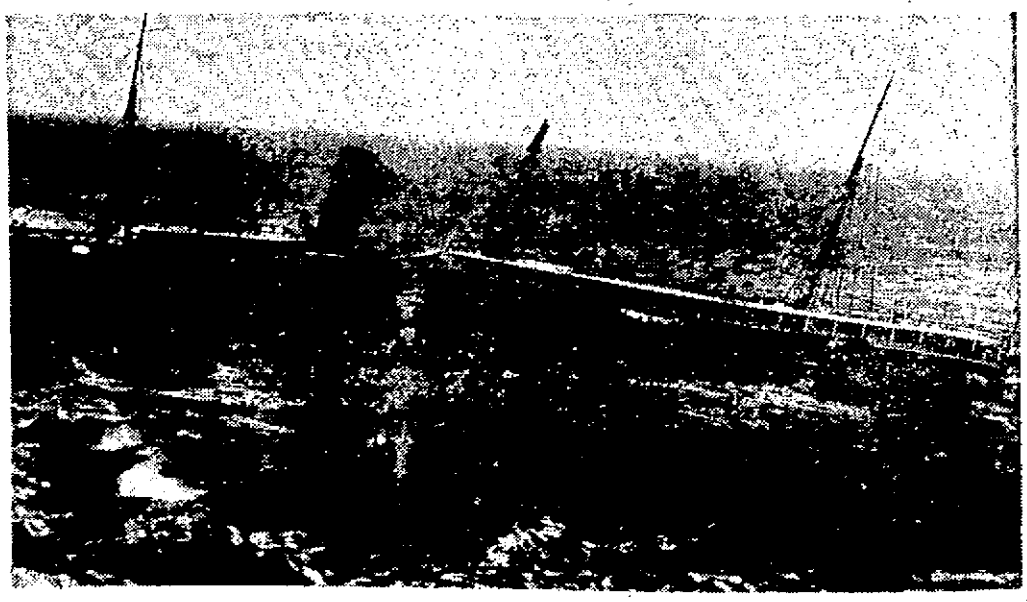

In 1852, the Yankee Blade was boarded by buccaneers in San Francisco. When they reached Point Sal they beached her and carried away $2,000,000 in gold which she had on board. When the wharf was built in 1871, lumber was salvaged from the wreckage of the Yankee Blade and was used for making walks and other improvements. A one-room school house for the children of the little settlement was built from the cabin of the wrecked schooner, Annie Lytle. The Santa Rosa, the Sybil Marston and other ships also were driven ashore and wrecked.

On three occasions, high tides caused by the January storms washed out the wharf. Each time it was rebuilt, and for ten years it was the only outlet for produce from the nearby farming district. Steamship companies charged exorbitant rates for freighting livestock and other farm products. The farmers formed an alliance and built Chute Landing, and so were able to market their produce independently. Later, gypsum, which had been discovered near the chute, was being marketed profitably, and the Pacific Steamship Company bought the landing.

Long years ago Santa Maria climbed the hill to level ground, leaving the wharf and landing chute behind. This move marked a step forward in the progress of the people, and was accompanied by significant changes. As time unfolded, undreamed of social, civic and economic changes took place.

CATTLE MEN moved the little schoolhouse to Schuman Canyon to use as a shelter for cowboys. Outmoded by good highways and modern methods of land transportation, bombarded by wind and wave, rotting and neglected, the wharf, the landing chute and all the houses standing nearby have crumbled to dust or been moved away.

Oldtimers love Santa Maria's old seaport because of cherished memories. Others love it because of the beauty of its surf, the roaring of the breakers and the grandeur of its rugged coastline, as well as for its early historic connections.

Many ships died on the rocks of the Santa Maria coast. This is one, the SS Santa Rosa, wrecked between Point Sal and Point Arguello July 7, 1911.

Engineered for Outdoor Comfort

By Dorothy Jewell

A CIRCULAR roof which seems suspended in space, a cantilevered barbecue brazier, and a brick fireplace mounted on two fat legs—all give this patio a futuristic look that is enchanting. Engineered for dining and lounging comfort, it is completely enclosed for privacy and is merged with the house by use of walls of glass that slide open.

The patio is part of the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Bay, 3247 Karen Ave. Lighting permits use at night as well as during the day.

On cool evenings a fire can be lighted to take off the chill. Evening when the patio isn't in use it creates an attractive view from inside as lighting installed under the ledge of a planter dramatically outlines tropical plantings.

By day, sunlight is filtered through a circular covering of reed matting. This roof consists of a board frame designed like an oversized wagon wheel. Constructed of 1x4-inch strips, the spokes are bolted together where they meet in the center and on the outer rim. This rim is a double thickness of 1x4s, also bolted to form the circular outer edge of the roof.

This roof appears to be floating overhead because there is no center support, instead it is held aloft by three pairs of slender pipes bolted to the roof rim and anchored in concrete off the edge of the paving where they go unnoticed among the plants.

The fireplace which stands off the paving, supported by two pipe legs, has a base of pre-cast concrete on which yellow firebricks are laid. The corrugated pipe chimney draws efficiently.

THE BRAZIER ONCE had conventional legs but these

Seeming to float free, this patio roof has unusual interest. Fireplace is two-legged, brazier is cantilevered.

Recipes With the Miss U Touch

Skillet shoulder chops Hawaiian add zest and novelty to menus. Can be served with rice and a green salad.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

A DIFFERENT note, one from far afield, will be our theme today. It was prompted, quite naturally, by all the lovely Miss Universe contestants.

The most beautiful girls from many lands have been sharing their gracious charms and talents with us this past week. And many have brought with them foods with strange sounding names and spicy flavors. They're exotic and exciting, yet economical, as well. Each is different, yet each is best.

Which brings to mind an around-the-world buffet. With, soup from the Philippines or Spain, and an entree from either Hawaii, China or Turkey, a vegetable from Holland and dessert from Central America. There are many others, of course, and from time-to-time throughout the year we'll take you on another tour to other lands. Today, we'll start with these:

Meat Soup (Picadillo) (The Philippines)

3 tbs. salad oil
3 cloves garlic, minced
4 onions, chopped
1½ lbs. beef, ground
3 tomatoes, coarsely chopped
4 potatoes, peeled and cubed
2 quarts water
1 cup stock or 1 cup consomme
1 tbs. salt
1 tsp. pepper

Heat the oil in a saucepan. Add the garlic and onions and saute for 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the beef and cook over high heat for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the tomatoes and potatoes and continue browning for an additional 5 minutes. Add the water, stock, salt and pepper. Reduce heat to medium and cook for 25 minutes. Correct seasoning. Serve hot.

Potaje de Garbanzos (Spanish Bean Soup)

¾ lb. Garbanzos
1 onion
1 beef bone
1 chorizo (Spanish sausage)
1 pinch saffron
1½ qts. water
½ lb. potatoes
4 oz. wh. bacon
1 ham bone
2-oz. lard
1 tbsp. salt

Soak garbanzos overnight with one teaspoon salt in sufficient water to cover beans. Before cooking, drain salted water from beans and put garbanzos, beef bone and ham bone in 1½ qts. water. Cook 45 minutes over slow fire. Fry bacon and finely chopped onion; then place in pot, adding potatoes, saffron and salt. When potatoes are done, remove from fire, add chorizo sliced thin. Serves four.

Skillet Shoulder Chops (Hawaiian)

6 pork shoulder chops, about ½-inch thick
salt and pepper
1 tablespoon fat
1 can (20 ounces) pineapple chunks
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon flour

Sprinkle pork chops with salt and pepper. Brown slowly in hot fat in skillet about 10 minutes on each side. Drain off fat. Drain pineapple; reserve. Combine pineapple syrup and water; measure ¾ cup of the liquid. Add about ¼ cup of the measured liquid to skillet. Cover and braise over low heat 50 minutes, adding more of the measured liquid as it cooks away. Remove chops; keep warm. Spoon off clear fat; return 2 tablespoons to skillet. Add flour; stir to a smooth paste. Add remaining pineapple-water mixture and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add chops to gravy; top with pineapple chunks. Cover and simmer 15 minutes longer. Yield: 6 servings.

Rumaki (China)

½ pound chicken livers
1 (8-ounce) can water chestnuts
½ pound bacon
Fat for frying

Drain water chestnuts; dry thoroughly between paper towels. Cut chicken livers in ¾-inch pieces. Cut chestnuts in half crosswise. Cut bacon slices in half crosswise. Place a chicken liver and a chestnut half on each piece of bacon. Roll up and fasten with toothpick. (Freeze if desired.) To cook: Heat fat in fryer to 375°F. Fry a few rolls at a time until golden brown about 1 minute. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot as an appetizer. Yield: 3 dozen Rumaki.

Ousen-Kebab (Turkey)

1¼ lbs. beef tenderloin cut 1¼" squares
½ lb. bacon, cut same size

Beef Stroganoff

2 lbs. top sirloin
4 cups chopped onion
1 carton Hampshire Sour Cream
1 lb. fresh mushrooms or 2 cans

Saute onion in ¼-lb. butter very slowly and only until transparent. Place meat, which has been cut into bite-sized pieces, in a paper sack of flour, salt and pepper and add to onions. Cook very slowly, turning occasionally until meat is well browned. To that mixture, add the mushrooms which have been sauted in ¼-lb. butter. Stir in sour cream and cook very slowly for at least 45 minutes or until done. Serve piping hot.

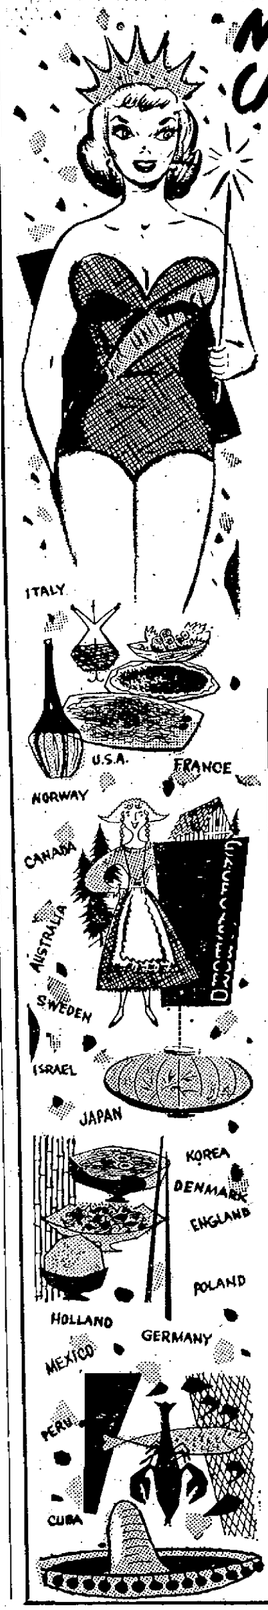

SERVE WITH: Frozen cut green beans which have been cooked to just the crisp stage, a tossed salad, creamed baked potatoes, French bread sticks and your beverage.

She Looks Back 109 Years

Believed to be the oldest living Indian woman in America, Tatzumbie looks back upon 109 full years.

By Margaret Romer

TATZUMBIE, meaning Beautiful Star, is the name of the oldest known Indian woman in America.

Born in 1849, she celebrated her 109th birthday on Saturday. She was a papoose carried on her grandmother's back when the white settlers drove the peaceful Paiutes from their hogans and gardens and out of the Owens Valley that was their homeland. The child's mother had died in an accident only a short time before.

The Paiutes scattered and lived alone or in small groups in the Inyo Mountains, far from the white man. Tatzumbie's grandmother took her deep into mountain country and cared for her. For several years they wandered, always searching for food and a safe place to sleep.

THE FAITHFUL WOMAN finally located a good clear spring in Death Valley and set up a home under some sheltering rocks and planted a garden. There Tatzumbie grew to young womanhood alone with her grandmother. Once a year the older woman went on foot 50 miles to the nearest trading post for supplies. But grandmother feared the white man, so the girl had to remain at home. She learned to be self-reliant, to think, and to take care of herself.

After the passing of her grandmother, Tatzumbie set out alone on foot over the desert trail to the distant village where her father lived. After days of travel, she was almost famished from hunger and thirst. Crossing a white man's ranch, she found his watermelon patch. Here was both food and drink. Thumping the melons, she broke one open and was eating ravenously when the farmer came out and caught her. She tried to run away, but he grasped her by the arm and she could not escape. He led her to his wife — the first white woman she had ever seen.

THE COUPLE WAS kind to her, and there were three little children whom the Indian girl adored on sight. Kindness and understanding dispelled her fears. The farmer's wife took her into the house, made her welcome, bathed her, and dressed her in American clothes. Tatzumbie remained with the family, and learned to speak English and to do housework. She had never been inside a house before, and one terror remained for her — the stairway! At first she climbed it on her hands and knees for fear it would collapse under her weight!

During the next few years, Tatzumbie worked for several pioneer families, and learned to read and write. Then she became ill and was brought to Los Angeles and placed in a hospital. Recovering from her sickness, she remained to work out the cost of her care.

Always cheerful and full of fun, Tatzumbie was so successful in handling patients that the head doctor persuaded her to stay and train to be a nurse. This she did, and followed that profession for more than 30 years.

Meanwhile, she married twice, had five children, twice became widowed — and reared the children alone.

SHE HAD A KNACK for entertaining, and this talent was discovered by Robert E. Callahan who starred her in his series of educational films on Indian life and lore, produced for use in schools and churches. Motion picture producers frequently engaged her talents for Indian parts. She was featured in "Cimarron" and in "Laughing Boy."

Today, Tatzumbie lives in Los Angeles with her daughter. She is still erect and usually walks without a cane. Clear, brown, laughing eyes reveal a keen mind. She talks as well as a woman half her age — and she tells fascinating stories that reveal her beautiful philosophy evolved through 109 years of useful living.

The Girl With Paris at Her Feet

Vivacious Leslie Caron has to rest sometime! She's playing "Gigi" in MGM version of Colette novel. Supporting cast also lists beauteous Eva Gabor.

THEATER-GOERS, music lovers and those who respond to the beauty and the mystery of Paris eagerly await "Gigi," new MGM musical romance that will open soon in Long Beach.

In CinemaScope and color, the picture based on the widely read novel by Colette stars Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier and Louis Jourdan, with Eva Gabor, Hermione Gingold, Jacques Bergerac and Isabel Jeans in co-starring roles.

Leslie Caron, who scored a hit in London in the stage version of the Colette novel, plays "Gigi," the impressionable young girl brought up in Paris at the turn of the century. Taught the "facts of life" by her grandmother and aunt, both of whom have lived rich and full lives without benefit of matrimony, Gigi blossoms from a gawky girl into a knowing woman with Paris at her feet.

GLAMOROUS Eva Gabor plays the role of Liane d'Exelmans, flame of the moment of Louis Jourdan, man about Paris, but who also has an affair with Jacques Bergerac, her ice skating instructor.

When the double romance is uncarthed Liane commits "suicide." How? With an overdose of poison.

The role gives Miss Gabor's personality and talents ample opportunity, and she wears some of the most beautiful, feminine gowns of her career, designed by Cecil Beaton.

Maurice Chevalier is also given starring role for MGM "Gigi" picturization.

Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, hit composers of Broadway's "My Fair Lady," composed the songs for "Gigi."

THE LERNER-LOEWE songs include "Thank Heaven for Little Girls" and "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore," sung by Chevalier; "It's a Bore" and "She's Not Thinking of Me," by Jourdan; "Say a Prayer for Me Tonight" and "The Night They Invented Champagne," by Miss Caron; "The Parisians," a duet by Miss Caron and Jourdan; "I Remember It Well," by Chevalier and Hermione Gingold, and the title song, sung by Jourdan after he falls for Gigi.

Filmed largely on location in Paris, with three-time "Oscar" winner Joseph Ruttenberg behind the cameras, "Gigi" offers a backdrop of the world's most beautiful city, high lighted by scenes in the Bois de Boulogne, the Palais de Glace, Maxim's restaurant, the Tuileries and Place de L'Opera. High light sequences are the Masked Ball and the spectacular "Battle of Flowers."

Mystery of the First Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

IF, ON A visit to the San Diego zoo, you see the wild dogs, you may be inclined to be satisfied with the old theory that the dog is a progeny of the wolf. A number of scientists will be on your side, but a lot of them disapprove, among them Darwin who wrote, "A breed, like a dialect of a language, can hardly be said to have a distinct origin."

The whole picture is very confusing. Bones of various types of prehistoric dogs, some differing from anything we know today and also some that bear a close affinity to certain present-day varieties have been unearthed, and speculation has ever since mounted over what their presence really indicates. Evidence so clearly shows that a number of different kinds of dogs existed in early days. And certainly there are remarkably divergent appearances in today's dogs — the short-faced Oriental dogs, the droopy-eyed bloodhound, the mastiffs, the Irish wolfhound, the fox-like dogs and others.

THESE FACTS would seem to point out that there never has been a common denominator among dogs. Yet the fact that man himself has created new breeds within a relatively few years might just be the evidence that at one time there was a progenitor of all dogs. The pieces of the puzzle have never fallen into place, and undoubtedly all research in the matter will remain in a pretty badly muddled state indefinitely.

One thing that science has proved is that dogs have associated with man thousands of years before the beginning of history, and, for the most of us, this is good enough.

There are some dogs, however, that still live in such a state of wildness that they are removed from the influence and association of mankind. The wild dog that most nearly approaches the domesticated type is the dingo of Australia. He is smaller and more slightly built than the wolf and not as strong. His tail is bushy and his heavy coat is yellowish or soiled-white in color. Often his muzzle is black. Some say he is a mixture of wolf, coyote, and hyena. Others claim there is no reason to believe he is related to the wolf in a closer degree than a German shepherd.

NATIVES have succeeded in taming the dingo for use in hunting, since the dog has a keen sense of smell. A few of these dogs have been shipped to various countries and apparently have proved valuable for herding sheep and cattle. However, the dingo is suspicious of strangers even at an early age, and so he is generally regarded as a rather unpredictable individual, not to be trusted too far.

Possibly the most ruthlessly destructive of the wild dogs is the Cape, or South African hunting-dog. This animal resembles the hyena and is about the size of a large greyhound. He has a short, pointed muzzle and unusually broad, egg-shaped ears.

Efforts have been made to exterminate this fearless dog because of his wanton killing of domestic animals. Since he is nonchalantly curious of man, he makes a fairly easy target for the gunner.

were removed so it could be permanently mounted in place. The one supporting leg is a pipe, set in the concrete paving at such an angle that the brazier appears to be cantilevered out over space. This pipe leg and the other pipes used here have been painted black.

Landscaping enhances the beauty and comfort of this patio. A tree provides shade from late afternoon sun. Plantings of junipers and tropicals are confined to planters where they are easily cared for. A wooden ledge which borders the planting area along one side of the patio provides seating and a cover-up for flood lights attached under it.

Music Took Him 'Round the World

By Charles W. Crutcher

SHOW BUSINESS is a way of life for Gene Conklin, a genial fellow who plays a baritone saxophone and sings with the Long Beach Municipal Band.

His career began in the Franklin High School in Highland Park, Calif.

"They had the ROTC — and I had the choice of lugging a gun or studying music," explains Conklin. "I took music."

After he was graduated in 1921, he played and sang in small bands for three years. Daytimes he clerked in a Los Angeles music store, saturating himself with the music of Paul Whiteman, Herb Weidorf, Rudy Vallee and Marion Harris.

FOR VARIETY, he took a course at Chouinard Art Institute.

"But in a year I got the bad news. I never would make a commercial artist."

He landed his first big job with Earl Burtnett's orchestra, playing and singing in the Los Angeles Biltmore Hotel, recording Brunswick records. He appeared in MGM, United Artists and Warner Bros. pictures and on the Jack Carson radio show.

He appeared in "Patent Leather Kid," and "Sally, Irene and Mary." In the "band playing" scenes of "The Life of Sousa," he made believe he was blowing a clarinet to Philip Sousa's grand marches, which already had been recorded.

GENE CONKLIN and three other fellows sailed around the world on the President Monroe in 1926.

"We called ourselves the 'Dollar Four' because the boat was a Dollar Liner. Another reason was that we each made one dollar a day. We played at lunch, afternoon tea, dinner and for dancing until 11 p.m."

Conklin's first endurance road tour was when he played "one nighters" with Earl Burtnett's orchestra from Los Angeles to Chicago in 1932. Orchestra members drove their own cars.

His wife, Ruth, and their son Gene, Jr., 2½ months old, went along.

"We carried Junior in a basket. In hotels we put him to bed in bureau drawers.

"As soon as the last performance was over, my wife would pick me up in the car. We'd throw the instruments in the back seat, and be on our way to the next city."

ONCE WHEN CONKLIN, playing with the Freddy Martin band, arrived in New York, the American Legion was having a convention, and no hotel rooms were available.

"We searched for hours, found a Turkish bath, and the manager let us sleep in the women's section."

When the band reached Ontario, Canada, the entertainers ran into a peculiar situation. The laws of Canada allowed only a few American band and orchestra appearances each year—and Spike Jones already had used up the quota.

"We rented a theater in Ontario, and put on a show. A quartet of band members, called 'The Martian Men' did a few numbers. There were a few piano offerings. I sang some songs, whistled 'Tea for Two' and for an encore did 'Nola' and played on the sax. We stretched the show to last and hour and a half. We had a large house.

"Freddy's band is a good one,

"ROTC or music," says Gene Conklin. . . . "I took music."

with more melody than most jazz bands. Typical hotel music for people who like music and don't like to get their ear drums blasted.

"But when Freddy's band was playing near a cowboy orchestra the cowboy orchestra would get all of Freddy's business."

AFTER A DETROIT performance, Freddy told the band members: "We made a profit tonight of 50 cents." The band had played near a cowboy orchestra.

In 1957 Conklin made a memorable tour with Martin, heading for New York by chartered bus. "There were 16 of us in the orchestra. We did 60 nights in succession, without a night off and very little sleep."

How does he like playing in the Long Beach Band?

"Fine. It's wonderful to be home with my wife and kids . . . Anyway, I got tired traveling."

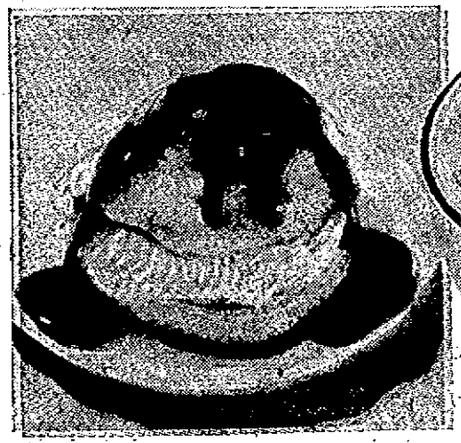

In scene from "Patent Leather Kid," starring Richard Barthelmess (seen at bass violin) and filmed in 1928, Conklin is second from right with a sax.

Lens Laugh: Amusement park trick mirror "does things" for the figure of Sybil Scotford, Broadway showgirl.

CAMERA ANGLES

Let's Go Shoot the Fun Zone!

By the Shutterbug

SHOULD YOU want a fun-filled photo project that can give you some exciting, off-beat pictures, try a day at the amusement park, state fair or traveling carnival . . . and come loaded with cameras, extra film and even a tripod. The setting is ideal for a full picture story in movies and in black-and-white or color stills.

If you have your own youngsters or family with you, you have your personal stars who will be featured in a variety of situations. If you're the lone wolf type of photographer, there are other advantages: You can pick and choose from a wide assortment of real life characters that are always found in amusement parks and whose sole purpose is to have fun. On such occasions, they don't mind having their pictures taken no matter how ludicrous they look. Good spirits are contagious and have a faculty of removing normal inhibitions.

Take the amusement park funny mirror for instance. Where else can you get a good looking girl to show how distorted she can appear? While she's chuckling, along with everybody else, you can take her picture.

KEEP IN MIND, however, the precautions in shooting all mirror pictures. The correct focus for the image in the mirror is the distance of the camera to the mirror plus the distance of the subject from the mirror. If shooting with a flash, the camera angle should be such that the flash doesn't hit the mirror and bounce back at the lens.

As an example of proper mirror focusing, suppose the camera position is five feet from a girl who is five feet from a mirror. Her image is 15 feet from the camera: the 10 feet distance of the camera from the miror plus the five feet distance of the girl from the mirror.

The problem, therefore, is to get everything sharp from five feet (the girl) to 15 feet (her image). The correct focus point is about one-third from the foreground or roughly eight feet. If there is enough light to close the lens down one or two stops, the resulting picture should be sharp throughout.

AN AMUSEMENT park is just the place to try some other shooting tricks that professionals use to catch fast action. You've seen pictures of an auto or horse race in which the speeding car or horse is caught in the peak of action while the background is nothing but a blur.

What the photographer did was to pivot his body and camera to follow the fast-moving object, keeping it centered in the viewfinder all the time, until he clicked the shutter. A speed of 1/100th or 1/200th will stop the action, depending on the distance of the subject from the camera. Closer distances require higher speed.

This principle can be applied to many moving attractions at an amusement park such as the roller coasters, the flying airplanes and even the carousel. A good vantage point for proper camera angle and enough light from the right direction will also help get successful pictures. Strong backlighting will add dramatic zing but requires more exposure . . . open the lens from one to two stops.

YOU CAN'T CALL IT a day on taking pictures even at night. Not with the high speed films available today, even in color, and with the grounds glowing with colorful neon signs and strings of lights.

You might try your own version of the whirling ferris wheel. Put your camera on a tripod and take some time exposures from different angles. Vary the exposures from about 30 seconds up to several minutes and keep a written record of which is which. You'll get some unusual patterns and a satisfying finish to a fun-filled day.

FILM GADGETS and movies were combined interests of Long Beach Cinema Club at its annual hamburger fry at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Everley, 4228 Rose Ave. An experimental roll of new Ektachrome movie film by George Cushman, and movies of the Hancock Oil Co. fire by Jack Loyd, were shown. The club meets every first and third Wednesdays at 8 p.m. at Houghton Park Clubhouse. Anyone interested in making better movies is invited.

Cooked rice with saffron
Bay leaves

Clean mushrooms, if fresh. Arrange on four 12-inch skewers, as follows: mushroom, bacon, beef, bay leaf, until each skewer is about three-quarters filled. Sprinkle the filled skewers with salt and pepper. Pour over a little melted butter. Broil, allowing 7 to 10 minutes for each side. Turn once.

Serve with hot, dry saffron rice, over which is poured fresh tomato sauce.

Roodekool Met Appelen (Holland)

1 small head of red cabbage, shredded
2 tart apples, peeled, cored and sliced
4 tbsps. lemon juice.
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. brown sugar

Boil together until tender, being careful not to let cabbage become too soft. Use very little water — only enough to start the cooking.

Heavenly Bananas (Maduro en Gloria) (Central America)

4 tbsps. butter
6 firm bananas
¼ pound cream cheese
4 tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup heavy cream

Melt the butter in a skillet. Peel the bananas and slice each one lengthwise. Brown quickly in the butter over high heat. Place half of the banana slices on the bottom of a buttered pie plate. Cream the cream cheese until very soft. Add the sugar light and smooth. Spread half of the mixture on the bananas. Place the remaining banana slices on top, then spread with the remainder of the cream cheese mixture. Pour the cream over the top. Bake in a 375° over for 20 minutes, or until almost all the cream is absorbed and the top is lightly browned. Do not allow all the cream to be absorbed, or the bananas will be too dry. Serve hot. If desired, some whipped cream may be served with the bananas.

Timber Farms Hang Out Welcome

Serving tourists and helping to prevent forest fires, free camp sites are provided by Northwest lumbermen.

By Ellen Saunders

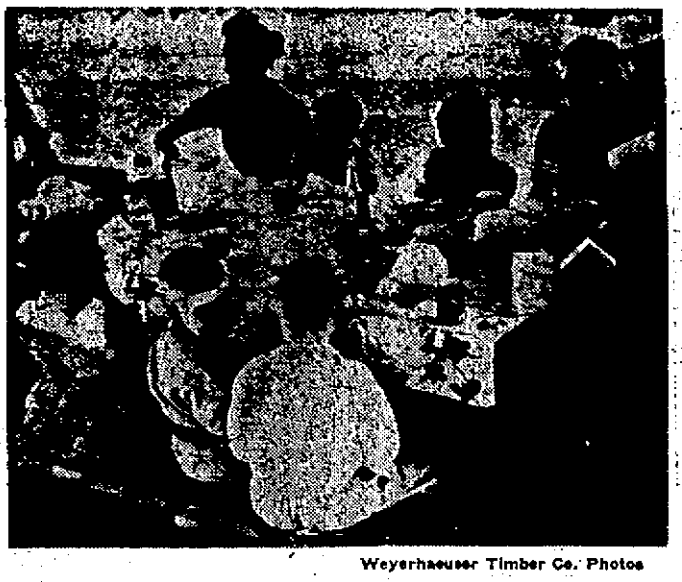

IF YOU are planning a camping trip throughout the Pacific Northwest this summer you can keep your expenses down by making use of the free camp sites provided by one of the nation's largest industries.

Within the past few years many of the great lumber companies of the Northwest have built recreational parks on their tree farms (w o o d e d areas) which are open to the public with no charge whatsoever for any of the facilities. The Weyerhauser Timber Co. alone has 22 of them scattered throughout Oregon and Washington. Picnic tables, restrooms, firewood and such cooking facilities as fireplaces and outdoor stoves are provided at each location. Most parks also have trout streams, a swimming hole, a playground for the children and a baseball field.

However, you don't have to be a camper to enjoy these parks. They are located so near the main highways that they offer ideal places for a picnic lunch and a bit of relaxation from driving.

WHY HAS INDUSTRY gone to the expense of building and maintaining these areas? For one thing, it has been found that these parks help to overcome the fire problem in the forests. By encouraging people to picnic and camp in supervised places the possibilities of fires in remote sections are greatly diminished.

A letter to the Weyerhauser Timber Co., Tacoma Bldg., Tacoma 1, Wash., will bring a complete list of the company's camp sites with detailed information concerning the facilities available in each one. Information regarding parks operated by other lumber companies can be obtained from the West Coast Lumbermen's Assn., 1410 S.W. Morrison, Portland, Ore.

Copenhagen 'Must'

A Copenhagen "must" is the "World Clock" that, among other things, tells time six different ways, show eclipses, the moon's phases, the position of the stars for the next 3,000 years and the orbits of the planets around the sun. Scandinavian Airlines System passengers will find the intricate timepiece in the city's Town Hall. It represents a lifetime of planning by Jens Olsen, Danish clockmaster and astronomer, who died in 1945 before it could be built. Danish craftsmen, working from his blueprints, spent 10 years putting it together.

"We will spend some time driving in Spain, but do not find much literature on it. . ."

BETTER pick up the Michelin Guide to Spain for one thing. This is like the invaluable Michelin restaurant and hotel guide for France. The ratings are in symbols easy to understand.

"Let's Go to Spain" by Frank Howell is good reading. If you can't get it here, you can call Howell and find out where to get it in Madrid. He's the TWA district manager there.

A few places I thought were great: Merida over by the Portuguese border is an old Roman town. The Roman theater they have uncovered is better than anything I saw in Italy.

The uncovered Roman town of Italica near Seville is worth visiting.

You have to see the Alhambra in Granada.

For relaxed reading at night: "The Oldest Confession" by Richard Condon. This is new. A thrillinger. Laid in Spain. I loved it.

"Your advice on two or three top places to dine in Paris and Rome would be appreciated for two people on their first trip. And what local specialties?"

FOR PARIS: I think you ought to go to Maxim's at least one night. Just for the plush. Or in the same bracket, Tour d'Argent. Where each pressed duck is numbered (and they give you little details like his last words).

A favorite of mine is Rámponneau at 21 Avenue Marceau.

And a very small intimate place, Auberge de La Truite at 30 Faubourg St. Honore.

The most elegant place in Rome is the Hosteria dell'Orso and any cab driver knows it.

I also like Passetto's. And a hideaway garden restaurant is Romulo's in the Trastevere section.

The way to handle local specialties all over Europe: Menus are usually hand-written in blue ink, EXCEPT the specialties. Which are written in red.

Peeking Inside a Utah Peak

By Al Krieg

Man-made walks and stairs permit visitors close look at formations made by nature in Timpanogos Cave, Utah.

MAN'S mechanical conveyances will bring you to within a quarter of a mile of Utah's Timpanogos cave, but from that point on Nature names the terms. You walk a mile and a half—up—to comply.

The cave — in Timpanogos Cave National Monument — is in the sharp north slope of 12,000-foot Mount Timpanogos that lies along the abrupt wall of Utah's Wasatch range. It is about 27 miles from Salt Lake City, and there's a 20-mile road around the peak threading through some of the state's best mountain scenery.

The National Park Service pamphlet distributed by Tom Walker, superintendent there, said the cave is reached by a "well graded trail." Just so; it is well graded—steeply. It also said it winds up American Fork canyon for a mile and a half, but it didn't say how far that could be when every step is up. From conveniently located benches for winded walkers we puffed and balefully watched school kids skip up and down the path. At the top, finally, we joined a group about to start through the cave.

TIMPANOGOS is actually three 50-million-year-old limestone caves connected by man-made tunnels. The first, Hansen Cave, is almost devoid of formations. An 85-foot arched tunnel leads from there into Middle Cave, basically a narrow, winding channel with a high, vaulted ceiling. There we got the first real glimpse of the fantastic formations peculiar to a mountain's innards.

Passages, stairs and grilled footways run from one area to the next, and the park service ranger shows the way, explaining how the soft-colored stalactites, stalagmites and delicate helictites were so laboriously formed, drop by drop, over the centuries.

Helictites, we learned, are the white-to-orange macaroni-like formations growing out of the ceiling. Fine, but it's the remembering of the up or down of stalactites and stalagmites, that makes crossword puzzles annoying.

A 190-foot tunnel connects Middle Cave with Timpanogos' Cave proper, the showpieces of the tour. Most of the formations bear imaginative names: Chocolate Falls, like a giant, drippy sundae on a hot day; Father Time's Jewel Box and Giant Comb, for example, but probably the most realistic of all is the Great Heart of Timpanogos. Red-lighted from behind, various degrees of opacity of the stone and the shape of the formation make it look remarkably like an immense laboratory model of a human heart.

OTHER SIGHTS include an underground lake, almost 7,000 feet above sea level, that disappears into inaccessible reaches of the cave.

In all, the trail through the caverns is about a half-mile long.

HOW TO Use Levels And Lines

1. DEAD LEVEL. When bubble in spirit level looks like this, work (horizontal or vertical) is level. Standard carpenter's level has six of these bubble vials—four for plumbing, two for level (horizontal).

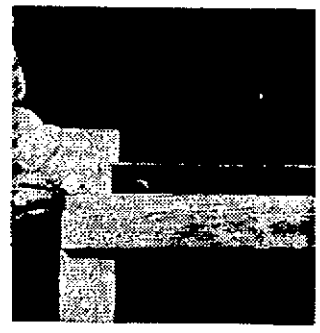

2. TEST FOR ACCURACY. Set level on flat surface and shim one end until bubble is dead center. Then reverse ends. Bubble off now? If so, your level's not accurate.

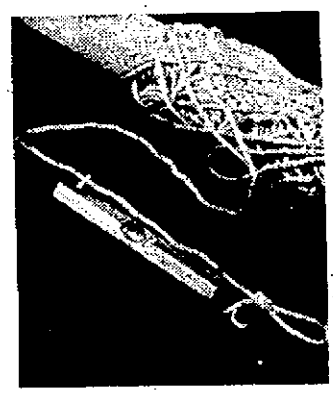

3. PLUMB. Hold level like this and move work until bubbles in bottom vial and vial at the opposite end are centered. Plumb one side from each direction so work is vertical.

4. HORIZONTAL LEVEL. It's as simple as it looks. Put level on work and move work 'til bubble settles to level. Read only bubble in bottom vial. If your level has only one vial, turn it (vial) so curved side is up.

5. LINE LEVEL. For grades, hedges, walls, etc., you need a line level. To use it, stretch mason's cord taut between two points and hang level at center. Adjust cord to level.

6. PLUMB BOB. Where you can't use a level for vertical, suspend bob on cord, and wait 'til point comes to rest. Mark this point and cord suspension point; connect both points.

The 'Up 'n' Atom' Brothers

By Jack Lefler
Associated Press Writer

INGLEWOOD — TWO BROTHERS are stirring a mixture of science and magic into a fantastic business enterprise that could only be a product of the space age.

In five years they've made their boundless supply of ideas pay off in a business grossing $400,000 a year.

Robin Stevens, 30, a magician, and Carlile Stevens, 26, a physicist, are owners of Stevens Enterprises and an appropriately named subsidiary, Up 'n' Atoms Enterprises.

They operate out of a drab building jam-packed with electronics equipment, drawing boards and such gadgets as ray guns and death ray posts.

As Stevens Enterprises they design and manufacture science and science fiction gadgets and machines for motion pictures and industry. As Up 'n' Atoms Enterprises, they put on science shows for schools which this year will be seen by 1,750,000 students in 21 states.

EACH BROTHER is doing what comes naturally to him.

"Robin's always been a theatrical bug," says tall, handsome Carlile.

"The first thing Carlile did as a baby was to throw a light switch," says shorter, dynamic Robin.

Robin stuck to theatrics and got his degree in speech and drama at San Diego State College. Then he became a professional magician. Carlile received his bachelor of science degree at Stanford University.

Their business career started while Carlile was a undergraduate at Stanford and Robin was doing graduate work there.

"I built some weird-looking gadgets and set up a show," says Carlile. "With Robin's help we turned it into a play with a lot of hokum like mad professors making disintegrators."

During the Korean war, the brothers booked their show into West Coast military camps to entertain troops.

THE HIGH POINT came, Carlile says, shaking his head wonderingly, when one camp canceled a Rita Hayworth appearance in favor of the mad professors.

After getting out of Stanford, the boys put together a collection of gadgets and devices and toured California county fairs with their science show.

"Then we had to figure out what we could do to keep busy full time," says Robin. "We felt we could make money exhibiting our science show in schools. We got some bookings and found out there wasn't any competition to speak of."

The school show business multiplied like splitting atoms.

In the first year, the show appeared at 400 schools before 250,000 students. This year five shows will have an audience of 1,750,000 in 2,250 schools. Next year eight shows are scheduled to be seen by three million students in 4,000 schools.

THE BROTHERS FEEL these shows are playing an important part in interesting junior and senior high school students in studying science.

"Many times after the shows," says Carlile, "children come up to our director and say they just didn't realize that science was so interesting. Why, one girl told us: 'If I'd known science was like that I wouldn't be taking home economics'."

The Up 'n' Atoms business is terrific, the brothers say, but it isn't a moneymaker. The special effects firm is having to make up the losses.

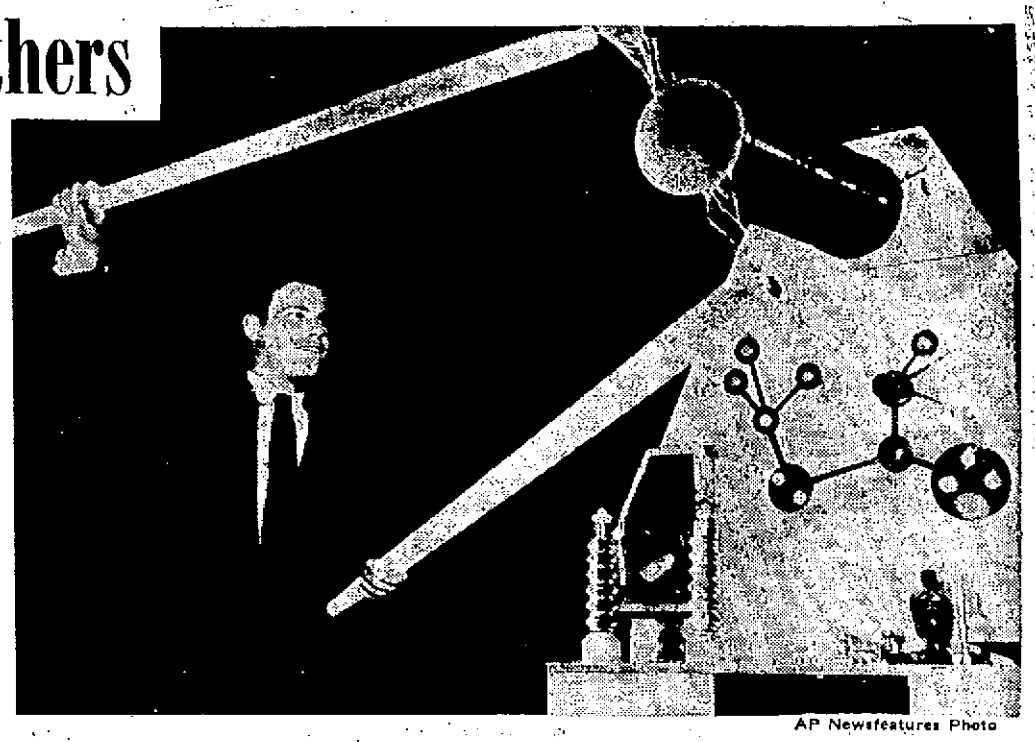

The reason, they explain, is that schools don't have much money to spend on assembly programs.

CARLILE AND the firm's educational coordinator, C. H. Rodger Over, appeared recently before a House education subcommittee in Washington to propose partial government subsidization to enable continuance of the program without loss.

Wading through their cluttered plant, the brothers explain their rapid business rise:

"A lot of Carlile's science rubbed off on me," says Robin.

"And a lot of Robin's magic rubbed off on me," adds Carlile.

Saxifrage Yields Winter Pink

By Joe Littlefield

They call it "Bergenia" now, but saxifrage continues to be an attractive winter bloomer of many garden uses.

VALUABLE as a winter bloomer, saxifrage — now reclassified as Bergenia — has many uses in landscaping and is not too particular about location. It is one of a group of garden favorites that should be divided every three years or so. Iris and agapanthus are two others that need this latter attention.

There are two pink varieties of bergenia, the cordifolia, and crassifolia. Sometimes they are misnamed. Cordifolia variety has clusters of rose pink flowers. The main flower stalks curve downward causing some of the flowers to be obscured by the large leaves.

Crassifolia variety flower stalks are stiff, and bloom earlier in the winter. The color of the flowers may vary somewhat, rose toning to lilac or light purple.

BOTH VARIETIES are "toughies." We've seen some growing as edging plants bordering a cement sidewalk and a dawn. They looked fairly good growing along a driveway. In both instances, plants grew in full sun. They will grow in full shade but half sun and half shade perhaps is best. However, they will tolerate sunny exposures and a considerable amount of cold weather, as well. They'll do well as specimen pot plants, too, for patio or porch. Plant them as edging plants bordering a rose bed or flower bed and in front of shrubs.

However, if the plants are not divided the old growth takes away some of the substance from the new and tends to hold back development and best blooms. If clumps have developed and a woodiness is apparent, if bergenia has not been worked over for the past three years, now is the time to dig them up. Shake off the soil and cut off the old, woody parts. Work some sludge type fertilizer into the soil where plants grew. Replant the younger portions approximately a foot apart. Keep them moist for a week or so. Then water normally.

YOU'RE MISSING lots of winter color from Bergenias, if you don't have any. They're available in tin can containers at your local nursery. plant them out, and you'll have delightful masses of pink-and-rose colored flowers from winter on into spring.

Agapanthus (Lily-of-the-Nile) bloom much better where they get some sun, than in full shade.

When agapanthus clumps become three years old or older, its a good idea to dig them up, divide and replant. But, before you replant the new clumps, be sure to work some sludge type organic fertilizer into the soil.

ALONG ABOUT NOW is a good time to rework the old iris clumps too. Clumps three years old or older, should be dug up, divided and new plants reset. Cut the leaves back to within six inches of the base. In the case of iris, work some bulb food into the soil before replanting.

The thick, horizontal part of the iris is the rhizome. Roots grow down from the underside of this portion. Part of the top rhizome surface should show, when younger growths are replanted.

A Surprise in Every Packet

By Bob Gilmore

Zinnias are among flowers quickly grown from seeds.

THIS is the time of year when seeds germinate rapidly, and seedlings seem to break into flower almost overnight. Certainly the most economical, and frequently the quickest method of growing a garden is to plant seeds of annual plants. The results will surprise you—this is really an adventure in gardening.

What makes growing flowers from seeds such an interesting pastime is that frequently there is a surprise in every packet. This is especially true of mixed packets, in which there may be dozens of shades that you have never seen before. Seedsmen report that the modern trend in growing flowers from seeds is to start the mixed colors rather than separate shades, so start now on your gardening adventure.

ANNUALS ARE PLANTS that complete their life cycle in a single growing season. This means their growth is swift, and you will get flowers in a hurry. Some annuals, such as alyssum and Virginia stocks, seem to burst into bloom almost over night. Growing a garden by sowing annuals is certainly the easiest and least expensive way of gardening.

The most important factor is to use seeds that have a high viability. Patronize reliable dealers, as seeds do lose their viability over a period of years.

Annuals that can be seeded now include: amaranthus, ageratum, alyssum, aster, bachelor's button, balsam, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, carnation, centaurea, godetia, gypsophila, hollyhock, larkspur, linaria, linum, lobelia, lupin, marigold, moonflower, morning glory, nasturtium, nicotiana, phlox, portulaca, salpiglossis, scabiosa, sweet pea, verbena and zinnia.

When California was a land of citrus groves, very particular attention was paid to the exact and proper time to spray the trees. Scale can be killed most effectively while hatching, and black scale, the greatest enemy to citrus trees, hatches in the warm weather. Constant inspection of the groves was made weekly to determine the time when the hatching or "migration" period of black scale was at its peak.

In your back-yard garden, it is almost impossible to be so completely accurate in your timing but you can definitely plan to spray your citrus trees during the summer months. Don't select a hot day when the temperature is in the 90s. Either choose a cool early morning or late afternoon and then spray thoroughly with an oil emulsion and you will afford your oranges, lemons and grapefruit the best possible protection from unsightly scale as well as spider and other enemies.

Part of the huge Flight of the Snowbirds in past competition. They'll sail again today at Newport Harbor.

BOAT TALK

Snowbirds Fly Again

By Bob Ruskauff

IF YOU ARE disinterested in an activity which interests youngsters, aged anywhere from 7 to 77, spare yourself this column. It concerns the 19th annual Flight of the Snowbirds sailing race on Newport Bay this afternoon.

The start will involve (let's guess) 164 little 12-foot sailboats, breaking by one the record made last year of 163 boats, which were led by Dick Ward in No. 457 (one of the newer "birds") in a six-mile race.

The start will be at 1:30 p.m. from that piece of historic property known as the Balboa Pavilion, so it is doubtful that more than half of the youngsters will have even had lunch before the conflict.

FLUTTERING pre-contest stomachs, y'know. Also fluttering sails, unless it's like last year, when boisterous westerly winds prevented 46 of the entries from finishing, mostly because of swamping, capsizing or disqualification.

But, however regarded, the event, which was once just a flutter in the mind of a visionary man, is now as well-established as the seasonal argosies of Canadian geese.

The Flight of the Snowbirds is a symbol for young America.

Despite the oldsters who race in it, which they do (and are wanted), it's primarily an event for pre-teen and teen youngsters.

IT ALL CAME ABOUT via the efforts of two grand people, now deceased, but whose memories will be long enshrined — Jim Webster and Harry Welch.

Jim, whose sons, Tom and Robb, became and remain top-notch sailors, conceived the Snowbirds as a class for youngsters on Newport Bay in 1922. A nucleus of three of the little boats was built. The class grew.

In 1932, when Los Angeles was host to the Tenth Olympiad, the Snowbirds, with a modified rig, were chosen to be the monotype (one-man) boat for yacht racing of the Olympics. The winner was Jaques LeBrun of Paris, France, nephew of then French President LeBrun.

THE OLYMPICS added to Snowbird luster.

And so it came about that Harry Welch, the progressive secretary of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, dreamed up the Snowbird Flight.

All of the several area yacht clubs pitched in to help conduct the event. A splendid perpetual trophy was posted. The Sunday nearest Aug. 1 was fixed as a perpetual date for the Master Calendar.

The rest is history.

The first Flight of the Snowbirds drew 52 entries. Each year the armada increased.

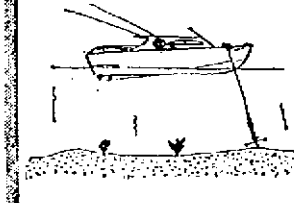

Today, of its kind, it is the greatest event in yachting.

Today, if so minded, drop down and see 'em fly.

BOAT HOOKS: In addition to the Flight of Snowbirds this afternoon at Newport, the boat vista includes, National Skimmer class championships on Mission Bay, with a strong local challenge; United Stock Runabout Assn. 100-mile ocean race off Pacific Landing, 8 a.m.; Mapes Cup meet for Unlimited Hydroplanes, Lake Tahoe.

JACK BASS
Picks 'Em Carefully

ABOUT THE only things lacking at Jack's Corsican Room, 5430 E. 2nd St., Naples, are small, dignified signs over the doors stating:

"THROUGH THESE PORTALS PASS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL STEAKS IN THE WORLD."

Everything else is there—a handsome dining room with deep, comfortable booths, impeccable service by red-jacketed waiters and remarkable entertainment by lyric pianist Frank Day.

Should owners Jack and Rose Bass some day erect such signs, they definitely wouldn't be stretching the truth. The Corsican Room's steaks are indeed things of beauty—beautifully shaped, beautifully charcoal-broiled by Jack himself and beautifully tender.

* * * *

THERE'S A VERY simple explanation for their quality. Regularly, Jack takes time off from his busy duties at the restaurant and visits his beef wholesalers, spending long intervals choosing the exact prime cuts he wants. The cuts are then tagged and aged at the wholesalers for six weeks at a constant 32 degrees in refrigerated rooms which also carefully control the humidity. The steaks are so perfect when they reach the table that many a gourmet patron has been known to go hungry for half a day beforehand so he can more thoroughly enjoy them.

The steaks, of course, are very large, weighing a pound or more each, and they are served on Jack's scrumptious dinner which includes soup du jour (always outstanding), large chilled salad with choice of dressings, huge baked potatoes with cheese sauce or melted butter, beverage and ice cream or sherbet for dessert. The prices, for such quality, are quite reasonable: filet mignon, $4; New York cut, $4.25, and 18-ounce top sirloin, $3.95.

In addition, Jack features such other splendid items as pound-and-a-half cuts of the tenderest prime rib known to man, whole baby lobster, sugar-cured ham, pan fried chicken, trout, shrimp and Triangle Tip a la Jack. (The latter, cooked-in-wine item is only $1.95 on the big dinner.)

Parade's medical editor reports:

I lost 26 pounds without dieting

The boom in Confederate money...

Articles by Lillian Roth, President Rhee of Korea and Lauritz Melchior

July 27, 1958
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Why women wear those crazy clothes see page 11

BEMEDALED AND BEAMING, the author poses (r.) with his "Kleinchen" on their 25th wedding anniversary. The cartoon (above) by musician Xavier Cugat commemorates the Melchiors' unusual meeting.

I'll always remember . . .

An angel in the trees

by LAURITZ MELCHIOR

Frankly, I had no choice in the matter. My wife was sent to me straight from heaven. That's the truth.

The day it happened I certainly wasn't prepared for an angel's visit. First of all, I had no money. Singing in my native Copenhagen, I had had small success. I already was 34 and had spent many years learning to be a baritone. Then I was told I was no baritone at all, but might make the grade as a tenor.

To try to be a tenor I had quit my job at the Royal Opera and begun studying all over again in Germany. A friend had loaned me his house in Munich.

So there I was sitting in the garden, reading a score and feeling rather low, when I first saw my wife — in the sky! She looked more like a man from Mars than an angel. She wore goggles, a helmet, heavy pants and jacket, enormous boots. She had parachuted from a plane, and a strong wind had blown her off course. Now she landed directly over my head in the top branches of a tree.

It didn't take me long, after I got her untangled, to discover that she was a very beautiful girl. We had dinner in the garden that evening. Where I am large— 6' 3½", well over 200 pounds — she was (and is) small — 5' 1" and 107. Because of her size she was called Kleinchen (Little One).

And she was famous. A movie star, she was known as Germany's Mary Pickford. She always insisted on doing her own stunts in films. That's how she came to be bailing out of the plane.

Six months later we were married. She gave up her career immediately and began managing mine. Things improved right away. Soon I came to America to sing at the Metropolitan Opera. At the same time Kleinchen refused a $3,000-a-week Hollywood contract so she could remain with me.

Now it's 30 years later. In that time she has been everything: wife, business manager, hostess, soother of ruffled feelings, amusing companion, critic, even stage prompter. In my thousands of performances all over the world she has missed exactly two.

Kleinchen has done everything but sing for me. So it's true. She is an angel. And I had no choice. ■

On Parade

Eighteen months ago, PARADE medical editor, Robert P. Goldman, was "busting out all over." He weighed 199 and was unhappy about it.

After weeks of wrestling with his will power, he sat down one day and decided to do something about all that "rubber" around his middle.

As the photo on page 8 shows, he was successful. He lost 26 pounds — without dieting. You can shed pounds, too, by following Bob's medically-approved advice.

"When the first few pounds come off and your clothes sag just a bit, you feel good," says Bob. "Then your friends start asking questions. They want the 'secret formula.'

"But the best moment of all comes when someone says (as a PARADE colleague did last week): 'You were never really fat, were you? I just can't picture you as being puffy.'

"That's when you know it's all worth the effort," Bob maintains.

Movie fan Mrs. M. J. O'Leary of Bay City, Mich., writes about the article, (June 1) on Hollywood's new "romantic team," Kim Novak and Jimmy Stewart. Says she:

"I must admit I was more than a little amused at Lloyd Shearer's article on Kim and Jim. It seemed difficult to imagine a more unlikely pair. Out of curiosity I went to see their movie. Now I'm happily looking forward to their next film. Thanks to you for arousing my interest."

More and better education, PARADE believes, is vital to the nation. During the past year this belief took form in no less than 16 articles. Now the articles have won a 1958 School Bell Award, sponsored by eight important national educational groups.

Is this the old man of the sea?

As though stamped out by a giant cookie-cutter, the silhouette above strides behind an oil-company supply boat speeding across the Gulf of Mexico from one offshore drilling platform to another. If you tilt the page back and view the photo at a slight angle, the resemblance to a giant, sombrero'd cowboy, arms upraised and legs widespread, becomes even more striking. It's all accidental, of course. The boat's wake just happened to take this form, and an alert photographer just happened to be present. But by snapping what he saw, he produced visual proof that nature, on occasion, does imitate art. ■

I LOST 26 POUNDS

You can shed weight, too,

THAT'S 26 POUNDS of books being held by writer Goldman. The equivalent formerly was around his middle.

I LOST 26 POUNDS without dieting. That's a fact. A year ago I weighed 199 pounds. Today I tip the scales at 173. I did it without following a formal diet, without pills, calorie counters, "miracle" foods or exercise machines.

It wasn't easy, but it wasn't terribly tough, either. I didn't feel persecuted. I didn't suffer.

In any case, the results were worth it. I went from a size 44 suit to a 41, from a size 16 (neck) shirt to a 15. My old trousers have been taken in 2 to 3 inches — and they're still big on me. Here's how I did it.

Soon-to-be-published medical studies show that the three keys to weight loss are: 1) motivation; 2) rapport with doctor; 3) the food you eat.

What you actually eat is less important than the other two factors. The trouble with most dieting today is that it stresses food intake to the detriment or exclusion of the more important factors.

What do I mean by motivation — perhaps the most underplayed aspect of weight loss?

Motivation simply means that you must have strong and compelling reasons to lose weight — more than just wanting to fit into last year's suit.

My motivation is easy to explain. After 13 years as a science and medical writer, I am convinced that overweight puts you much closer to heart trouble, diabetes, stomach disorders and a host of other ailments. Studies bear out that belief.

Your Goal Comes First

Of course, weight loss does not buy immunity from disease. It does, however, decrease the chances and helps you (in terms of shorter recovery periods) if disease strikes. That's my motivation.

Other strong motives usually relate to physical discomfort resulting from obesity, fear of social isolation, and fear of losing one's spouse.

The latter two fears are common among women. The fat teen-ager or young adult can be motivated by a fear of being "left behind" — that is, of failing to have a normal courtship and marriage. Or, once married, the wife may feel that her obesity makes her unattractive to her husband and thus unloved.

Her extra pounds are a threat to happiness or security.

Thus, if your desire to shed pounds is strong enough, you will not balk at giving up this or that food. The foods themselves will become less important to you than your goal.

The second factor in successful weight loss is rapport with the doctor — or willingness to follow orders.

Weight loss should be supervised by a doctor because you can harm yourself by reckless dieting. You can invite disaster by not eating the right things — or eating them in the wrong quantities.

The final factor in lopping off poundage is food. With good motivation and rapport, what you actually eat doesn't loom quite so ominously. You do not feel

by following the painless 10-step program offered here

deprived. You are willing to act to shed weight.

Where do you go from there? Here's what I did. I said to my doctor, "I want to get down to around 175 pounds." He said, "Fine. It'll take time and effort. I hope you understand why you should do it."

We proceeded to work out a weight loss program. Here it is — in 10 easy-to-digest steps:

1) I tapered off in the fattening food department. I didn't stop overnight. From week to week I cut down. To illustrate: I didn't (and still don't) exclude butter from my daily food intake. I simply stopped eating butter (one pat) at one meal per day. Thus, I saved 80 calories per day. Over a week that adds up to 560 calories, over a year to 30,000 calories. At 3,500 calories to the pound, I kept a potential 8½ pounds off my physique. The same simple arithmetic applies to a slice of bread at one meal (60 calories), cream in coffee (60-90 calories), pie at one meal (300-560 calories) and other fatteners.

The Energy You Use

2) I stopped eating "fat" between meals. Sure, that's easy to say and tough to do. But remember the motivation? To assuage between-meal hunger pangs, I drank or ate non-fattening foods — citrus juices, carrots, celery, and the like.

3) I set up a "food substitution" plan with my doctor's help. I substituted fruits for peanuts and pretzels, carrots, celery and other vegetables for fatty between-meal nibbles. In front of TV, I eat grapes, an orange or an apple. They contain some calories, but far fewer than usual TV snacks, such as potato chips.

4) I started eating one-slice-of-bread sandwiches. This turns you into quite a juggler if the sandwich contains foods that may slip off, but it's worth it.

5) I abide by standing rules for certain foods. I never have potatoes more than once a day. I never have more than one potato at a meal. At cocktail parties I never have more than two of those creamy tidbits. If there's plain celery or boiled shrimp on the tray, I have those instead.

6) I make it a rule to cut off all visible fat on meat. This doesn't mean I've eliminated bacon, ham, pork or other fatty meats from my diet. I simply lean on the leaner cuts.

The high cost of fat

Death rates for fat men (ages 20-64) are 50 per cent higher than death rates for men of normal weight in the same age group.

Death rates for fat women are 47 per cent higher than death rates for women of normal weight in the same age group.

7) When I'm invited to dinner, I play down foods which add inches to the waist. How to do this without alienating the hostess? If she is understanding, she'll accept your effort to reduce. You needn't harp on it. But be firm.

8) Then there's the "quantity switch." Obviously if overweight is the result of too much intake compared to energy output (most doctors agree it is), you must cut down on total intake. In my case, this meant decreased portions. Instead of three pieces of anything, I have one and a half.

9) I have a wife who can make low-calorie meals look and taste interesting. My wife happens to be an extremely creative person who likes to cook and to eat. But she goes along with my weight control program 100 per cent. Result: she goes easy on the calories (with lots of salads, tasty fish, seafood, fruit and meat dishes), and is long on encouragement.

10) There is one more big consideration. You'll recall that overweight usually results from over-intake in comparison to energy output. This was put in focus for me by Dr. Herbert Pollack, chairman of the Nutrition Committee, American Heart Association.

He told me: if you walk a mile a day, that utilizes about 75 calories. Do it three times a week (as I did and still do) and you burn off 225 calories. That adds up to 11,700 per year — or three-plus potential pounds. If you simply stand (without moving about) one hour a day in which you ordinarily would have sat, you knock off about 60 more calories. Multiply that by five (per week), and that's another four-plus pounds over the year.

Of course, I was helped in the energy expenditure department. About 10 months ago, we had our first child. As you know, with a new baby, you find yourself moving about more and more to do chores.

The Naive Diets

Such, in brief, is my weight-loss program. I took off about a pound a week for the first six months and I've maintained my weight ever since.

Nowadays, when I run into old friends, they do a double-take. "C'mon, tell me," they say, "it's a new pill, isn't it?" Or, "Boy, you must be starving yourself." Or, "You're on some new test diet, aren't you?" Obviously, the answer is "no" to all these remarks.

It also should be obvious that I haven't been wearing blinkers while losing pounds. I've learned something about calories and the nutritional values of foods.

But the facts behind my year-long weight-loss success are not mysterious. They're not out of reach. You can use them to shed pounds just as I have.

Between 80 and 90 per cent of people who try to lose weight fail, over an appreciable period, no matter what the diet. They fail because they approach the problem incorrectly. I feel I have learned what it really takes to lose weight.

THREE INCHES or so have rolled off his waist since the spring of 1957. Before that, these trousers were too tight.

Let me emphasize a few points:

1) Actually, I exclude very few foods from my daily eating. One of my typical business luncheons includes soup, a chef's salad (easy on the dressing), a roll and butter and coffee. Dinner will be: a half grapefruit, small salad, meat course (beef, liver, veal, lamb, or poultry), a cooked vegetable or two, coffee. Late evening snack: an apple or other fruit.

2) I have not given up calorie-jammed drinks. I space them better than before and sometimes substitute fruit juice.

3) In learning the nutritional values of food, I have re-angled my eating — a real necessity in keeping weight off. In other words, I watch what I eat all the time. If I fall off the calorie wagon at lunch, I make up for it at dinner.

4) I use a bathroom scale regularly to keep an eagle eye on my weight. Vigilance is important.

5) I'm convinced that nine-day, two-week or one-month "crash diets" are futile and naive. What do you eat after the nine days or two weeks? Also the "one-food diets" (eat only grapes, lettuce, steak) seem worthless to me. They take the joy and expectation out of eating. Is it any wonder that dieters find them so wearing? All these diets fail to provide the necessary lifetime reorientation in eating.

Of course, I still have a job to do — keeping those pounds off. That means careful eating in the future.

I must admit, however, that I'm a little cocky about my success in losing weight. I've been thinking. My doctor says I can safely drop five more pounds.

Maybe I'll do it in the weeks ahead. You don't feel much like eating on sticky days anyhow. ■

EXPERTS TELL WHY...

Women will wear ANYTHING

by LLOYD SHEARER

Parade West Coast correspondent

There are times when women's dresses look too grotesque and outlandish to be true. But extreme examples of today's chemise, bubble, trapeze and balloon (see cover) actually are being worn by otherwise rational-looking ladies. The question is: Why?

A recent PARADE poll (April 27) intimated that women do not dress to please men. If this is so, why are they charmed by the bizarre? Why, in effect, will women wear "anything"?

For the answer, PARADE consulted top designers here and abroad. The Europeans, disagreeing with the Americans, claim that women — far from wearing "anything" — choose clothes with great discrimination. Hubert de Givenchy, who designs clothes for Audrey Hepburn, says: "The chemise and relaxed sheath do so much for a woman's leg line." Says Guy Laroche, another leading French designer: "A woman's hips and legs are really her most appealing features. Today's designs emphasize them."

American designers, however, with no need to apologize for the Paris creations, believe women will wear anything and for a variety of reasons.

Explains Edith Head, dress designer for Paramount Pictures and winner of five Academy Awards: "When it comes to fashion, a woman is objective about everyone but herself. If something is new, she'll wear it. Women by nature are experimenters. They have fashion-courage — in contrast to men, who are fashion cowards."

Helen Rose, who designs clothes for Elizabeth Taylor and Lauren Bacall, says: "Women will wear anything — but not for long. They want to appear chic, and right now they are sacrificing womanhood for chic. Sooner or later they are going to realize how silly they are, spending so much money to get their bodies in shape, only to hide inside these awful new styles."

'A chemise gives me a great big psychological lift'

That American women are exceedingly gullible is the belief of Charles LeMaire, who used to design clothes for Florenz Ziegfeld's famous Broadway shows and now does the same for 20th-Century Fox. Says LeMaire: "Our women are slaves to fads. They're quick to adopt publicity gimmicks as style before they've been accepted as fashion."

Sold Down the River

Ruth Albert, one of California's most progressive designers, believes that women who fall for "freak fashions" just don't have the courage to stand alone, even though the "big sell" is "selling them right down the river.

"The new silhouettes," she maintains, "can be very exciting when modified, but to date, they've been interpreted by designers who apparently dislike women. The more grotesque and less feminine they can make them, the more heroic they become to each other. Unfortunately, most women are naive and cannot see that they are being made dupes in a plot against womankind."

What does it all add up to? Apparently, that U.S. women are gullible, aimless and uneducated in the ways of fashion. They suffer from chronic uncertainty and will follow any fashion trend, no matter how ridiculous, so long as it is originated abroad and given "the big sell."

Women themselves suspect this. Why then do they pursue the "latest clothes" with avid consistency year after year?

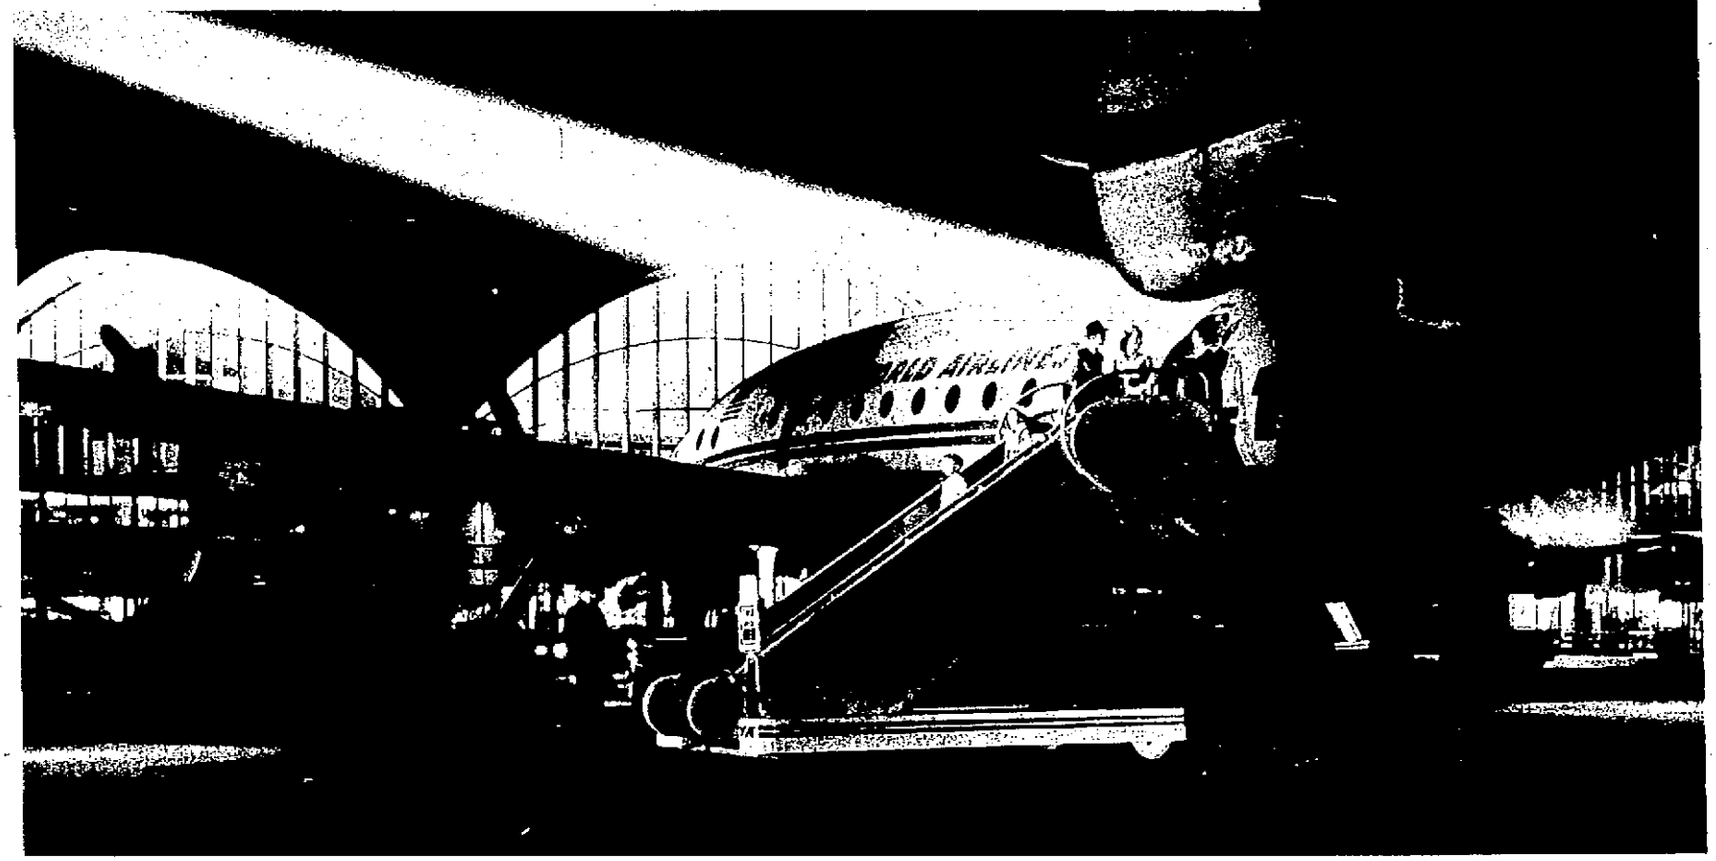

Says Dr. Martin Grotjahn, professor of clinical psychiatry at the University of California: "In contrast to men, who usually like looking backward, women are in love with the future. They are always looking for the frontier, the new experience, the new baby, the new dress."

Says Mrs. Ella Echard, a Miami housewife: "I bought a chemise-type dress because psychologically it gave me a great big lift. That's why women buy clothes. We're always afraid of being left behind. A new dress, no matter how crazy it may look, gives us the feeling that life isn't passing us by."

So long as women are women, no amount of male logic will be able to prevent their susceptibility to such fads as the wasp waist, the bustle, hobble skirts and, of course, today's sacks — just so long as all of these are offered under the name: high fashion. In short, women are suckers for anything — if it's absolutely new. ■

If she dies before you, her insurance becomes payable and then $1,250 additional insurance covers you until age 65. $1,000 coverage for each insured child which continues until his age 22 or your age 65—whichever is earlier—which can then be converted to as much as $5,000 of permanent insurance. New babies automatically are covered for $500 from 15 days old to 6 months—thereafter for $1,000—at no premium increase. What's more, if you die, the term insurance on your wife and children becomes fully paid up!

Premiums are realistically low, too. At age 30, for example, only $12.17 per month for each unit of Family Insurance. Only $11.72 under Check-O-Matic, New York Life's special monthly premium payment plan. And dividends, as declared, can reduce payments. War orphans remain a Korean problem. Here President Rhee and his wife (r.) are seen visiting a group of them.

We're still fighting in Korea

Five years after the truce, President Rhee reports to Parade readers

by SYNGMAN RHEE
President, The Republic of Korea

To the outside world, the war in Korea may have ended five years ago, on July 27, 1953, when the truce was signed. For us the war still goes on.

The northern half of our nation remains under the oppression of the foreign Communist invaders. The Red Chinese speak of an "intention" to withdraw a few miles to the northern shore of the Yalu River. They say nothing of the hundreds of thousands of Communist Chinese laborers, farmers, miners and technicians who have dispossessed our own northern people from homes and jobs. These, they expect, will remain — with the support of the puppet regime in Pyongyang and the Chinese Red army.

And the depredations of the invaders continue against us in the south. One day a Korean commercial airplane flying from Pusan to Seoul is hijacked by Communist agents. Another day a military plane, on reconnaissance near the demilitarized zone, is shot down.

The Red Build-up

Repeatedly our fishermen off the coasts are threatened by Communist gunboats. Meanwhile, the military force of the north has been built up — in absolute violation of the armistice terms — by over 850 fighting planes and by the newest weapons of war, including guided missiles and atomic cannon.

Militarily, our position remains precarious. We must maintain a standing army of 700,000 men for self-defense. The great body of allied troops that once stood by our side has been largely withdrawn. An unannounced attack is a constant possibility.

Economically, our nation is handicapped much as an individual would be if one arm and one leg were tethered to an iron stake. We are cut off from the enormous hydroelectric-power installations of the Yalu River, which supply abundant power that should be used to run our factories and to manufacture the fertilizer needed for our agricultural lands. We have lost the use of the iron and coal and gold and timber resources of our northern provinces. Hundreds of thousands of our people were impoverished by the seizure of their properties in the north. Our economy is further strained by the 3 million refugees from Communism whom we must support.

Nevertheless, I remain firm in my faith that in my own lifetime I shall see all Korea once again united and independent under our own democratic government.

The basis for this faith is the great, hopeful fact that the free world seems to have fully awakened at last to the awful danger posed by the Communist conspiracy of conquest. We have passed through and beyond the years when many voices were raised to advocate appeasement.

Meanwhile, the Communist position is far from safe. To the aroused antagonism of the entire outside world is now added the growing rebelliousness of their satellites and their own people. Among the 900 millions enslaved by Communism, we have many friends — and their weight is not to be despised.

Add the fact that modern weapons leave "no alternative to peace" for either side, and I am hopeful that — if only the great Western powers stand firm — a day of rectification will come.

Meanwhile, despite the great handicaps imposed by the division of our nation, our living conditions in southern Korea are gradually improving. The upward spiral of inflation has been checked. Many new factories are being erected. Our fisheries and agricultural production are increasing.

Most important of all, our people are attaining the means that were denied them by the Japanese for the past full generation of standing on their own feet. Democratic rights and civil liberties have been fully established. In the course of a series of national elections, our people have welded themselves into two strong, balanced political parties. Ninety free newspapers are avidly read.

Victory over Illiteracy

Our greatest single triumph lies in the field of education. At the time of Japan's defeat, 80 per cent of our people were illiterate. Today, illiteracy has been reduced to less than 8 per cent.

With an informed, educated and democratically committed population, the future of Korea rests on the best foundation a nation could ask. When we suffered from the worst devastation ever endured by a modern nation, the patriotism of our people was tested and proved. They endured 2 million civilian casualties and the loss of their homes and employment. But still they said, "Here we stand."

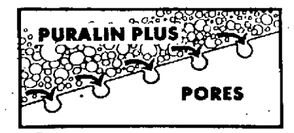

We have earned our place as partners in the free world alliance. We have earned the inalienable human rights of liberty and democracy. There is no power in Communism that we shall not eventually defeat. ■

Two Florida brothers are rich because . . .

They saved their

by DON SIDER

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

When the rampaging Yankees overran them in 1865, the Confederacy's printing presses had turned out better than a billion dollars in bills. Little more than a decade ago, you could have bought the whole load for the price of yesterday's newspaper.

Today a $5 note from one of those presses might get you $1,000 in U.S. money. A $10 bill now sells for as much as $1,800. Why? Mainly because two brothers, Grover and Clarence Criswell of Pass-a-Grille, near here, saved their Confederate money.

Their stock, most complete anywhere, has a face value of $20 million. Many of their more common bills are worth little, but others — like rare $10 and $20 notes printed in Richmond as an experiment in 1862 — come as high as $2,500. In four years, when that 10 and 20 (below) are 100 years old, Confederate-money collectors — now as avid as stamp chasers — probably will value them at over $10,000.

The Criswells' private collection of some 10,000 notes (not for sale) is insured for a quarter-million dollars. "We set that figure," says Grover, "but most of our collection could not be replaced. Where are you going to find the mate to the only printing plate saved when a plant was destroyed?"

The brothers first got interested in Confederate money as children, says Grover, now 24. (Clarence is 22.) "Daddy, who was born in Tennessee, used to tell us about our great-uncles who fought in the War Between the States. We kept after him to give us some souvenirs of the war that had been handed down through the family. There were some letters, a few coins and about 15 or 20 Confederate bills. Daddy said he'd give us the bills since 'they're worth the least of anything.'"

The bills aroused the brothers' interest and they cast about for more. Attending military school in Chicago, they advertised for bills in coin-collecting magazines. People were happy to answer the ads, either passing on the bills for nothing or accepting trifling sums for notes they considered worthless.

"We were the only kids in the school who never had ice cream," says Clarence. "We'd spend all our allowances on Confederate money."

While attending high school here, the boys gradually realized that their ads apparently were exciting others to collect. Coincidence or not, there was a definite boom in Confederate money. "Suddenly," says Clarence, "we were being offered what seemed like fabulous amounts for our notes."

Young Tycoons

Their business was strictly by mail. "We wouldn't deal with any customers in person," says Grover, grinning. "We were afraid they wouldn't do business with us if they knew we were just kids."

By the time they got to college (The Citadel), they had a thriving operation. "We figured," says Clarence, "we were making more money in our spare time than some of our professors."

The spare-time business now is full-time, run from an air-conditioned office suite in a small building next to Grover's home. (He is married, has a 22-month-old son.) They have a full-time secretary, four part-time researchers and a horde of agents around the country buying and selling on commission.

The Criswells get dozens of letters and phone calls each day. Some turn into sizable sales. On one sale, for instance, the brothers pocketed $10,000 in U.S. currency.

But they've got to keep their eyes open for "money" as worthless as a Confederate bill used to be. During 1954 and 1955, a cereal company included reprints of Confederate money in its packages. Though the bills were stamped "facsimile," sharpies still are sending them to the Criswells.

"Their letters always start: 'I found this money in Grandpa's trunk and I know it's genuine . . .,'" says Clarence. "But usually they're pretty clumsy about erasing the 'facsimile' stamp. Another point they miss is that most Confederate notes were hand-signed in brown ink to prevent counterfeiting. Still we've been flooded with that cereal money. The company must have printed 10 times as much as the Confederacy did."

Despite their youth, the Criswell brothers are considered authorities on the Confederacy and its finances. The Smithsonian Institution has come to them with queries. So

RARE BILLS —one $10 and one $20 — are among the few Confederate notes to bear printed signatures, sell for $2,500 the set. Ten sets now exist.

Confederate money

have several museums and historical societies. Their book, Confederate and Southern State Currency, published in 1957, is considered the bible of its field. A second, Confederate and Southern State Bonds, will go into print in a few months. The plan is to follow it with 38 more books covering all paper money ever issued in the U.S.

As the Criswells' reputation has spread, so has their business. The brothers have customers in England, France and nine other foreign countries. And they expect more, since the demand for Confederate money is growing steadily. Right now this demand is keeping Grover working day and night, since Clarence is on active Army duty.

Meantime the boys manage to mix pleasure with business — though sometimes their practical jokes with Confederate money backfire. About a year ago, dining in a Georgia restaurant, they paid their $8 tab with a common Confederate 20, worth about 50¢. Without a word the waitress accepted it and brought back $12 change in U.S. bills.

Laughing, the Criswells offered her a U.S. 20, pointing out she had been slipped a Confederate bill they would take back.

"No sir!" snapped the waitress, obviously a Criswell-made collector of Confederate bills. "I put a real 20 of my own in the cash register — and I'm not giving this one up for anything!" ■

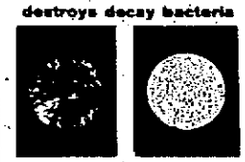

MONEY TO BURN: Clarence Criswell lights his brother's cigar with a bill. String ties and notes spilling over Grover's shoulders are part of the gag.

FORECAST: COOL COOKING

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Do these hot dishes the cool way—in an electric skillet, saucepan or cooker...

NO MATTER WHAT the weatherman says, you can have a cool kitchen. The secret? At least one electrical device to take over the cooking.

Today there are various such appliances on the market, ranging in size from electric saucepans and skillets (above) to the versatile ovens (p. 19) that bake, roast and broil or barbecue. Use any of those above to cook one hot dish as the main course of a whole meal — without raising room temperature.

The electric skillet (left in photo) contains a delicious shrimp dish straight from the Deep South. To complete a wonderful meal, all you need is a tossed green salad, honeydew melon and cookies.

In the electric saucepan (right) is an easy variation of an elaborate French dish called cassoulet that tastes every bit as good as the original. Serve a salad with it — and, for dessert, seedless grapes and blue cheese.

The electric cooker (center) can double as a fryer. Here it holds a delightful chicken-vegetable stew. Have lettuce wedges with it, watermelon for dessert.

Skillet: NEW ORLEANS SHRIMP AND SPAGHETTI

- ½ cup salad oil
- ½ cup chopped scallions
- 2 lbs. cooked, cleaned shrimp
- 2 tsp. grated lemon peel
- Salt and pepper
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- ½ cup sliced ripe olives
- ½ lb. thin spaghetti, cooked

Heat salad oil in skillet, using medium heat; add scallions; cook about 5 minutes. Add shrimp, lemon peel, salt, pepper. Cook until heated through. Stir in lemon juice. Add olives and spaghetti; mix well. Set heat for serving temperature. Serves four to six . . . NOTE: A big electric skillet will hold 1½ times this recipe.

Saucepan: CASSOULET AMERICAINE

- 2 cups diced left-over roast meat
- 2 tbsp. salad oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 garlic clove
- 2 cans (1 lb. each) baked beans in tomato sauce
- 4 frankfurters, sliced in ½" pieces
- ½ cup chili sauce

Brown diced meat (lamb, beef, pork, veal or ham) in salad oil in electric saucepan; push to one side, add onion and garlic; brown lightly; remove garlic. Add beans (do not drain), frankfurters and chili sauce; mix well; heat to serving temperature. Makes six servings.

Cooker-Fryer: CHICKEN STEW

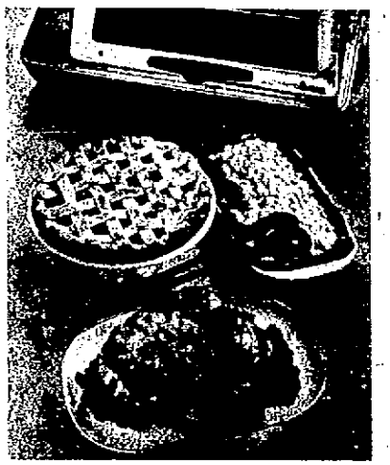

- 1 stewing chicken (3 to 4 lbs.), cut up
- 4 cups boiling water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 No. 303 can (2 cups) tomatoes
- 2 cups shelled lima beans
- 2 cups corn cut from cob
- 2 cups cut green beans
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Cover chicken with boiling water; set control dial at 300°; when water boils again, add salt and onion; lower heat to 200°; simmer 2 hours. Lift out chicken; remove meat from bones, keeping it in fairly large pieces; return meat to cooker. Add vegetables; simmer 1½ hours longer, or until vegetables and chicken are tender. Add pepper and Worcestershire sauce. If desired, thicken with ¼ cup flour mixed smooth with ½ cup cold water. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Serves six . . . NOTE: Cooker can hold twice this recipe. Canned or frozen vegetables may be used instead of fresh; add during last half hour of cooking.

...in an electric rotisserie-oven

With an electric rotisserie-oven (r.) you can bake, roast or barbecue with equal success. The oven is big enough for an entire meal — just select dishes that need the same temperature, even if the time periods vary. Or, if you prefer, bake a dessert in the morning and use the rotating spit attachment later for the meat — as in the recipes below.

Electric Rotisserie-Oven Dinner
Pineapple-Glazed Picnic Ham
Potato and Vegetable Salad
Sliced Tomatoes
Lattice-Top Peach Pie

Pie comes from the oven first — then ham. Salad (above) and tomatoes complete meal.

PINEAPPLE-GLAZED PICNIC HAM

1 fully cooked picnic ham (4 to 6 lbs.)
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
¾ cup canned pineapple juice
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

Run spit rod through center of picnic ham; skewer securely. Start motor. Cook 1¼ to 2 hours, depending on weight of ham. Combine remaining ingredients; heat until sugar dissolves. Use to brush ham often during last hour of cooking.

LATTICE-TOP PEACH PIE

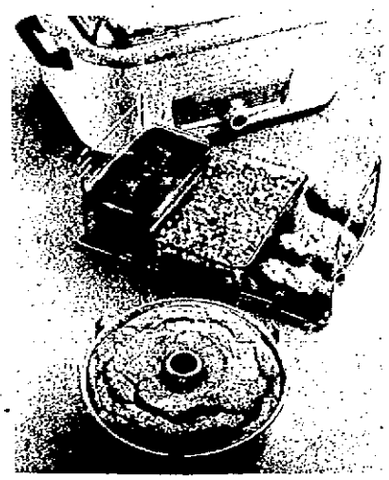

4 cups sliced fresh peaches
1½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
¾ to ¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Pastry for 2-crust pie

Combine peaches, tapioca, sugar and lemon juice. Line 9" pie plate with pastry. Fill with peach mixture. Cut remaining pastry in long strips, 1" wide, and arrange lattice-fashion over peaches. Fold ends of strips under lower crust. Bake early in the day in the rotisserie-oven (preheated to 425°) 40 to 45 minutes.

...in an electric roaster-oven

An electric roaster-oven will do your roasting and baking, cook an oven-meal to perfection or, with rack removed, cook a stew, chili or hearty soup for a crowd. There is a broiler attachment, too, that fits inside the cover, while the foods to be broiled are placed on the adjustable rack beneath.

In using any electric cooking appliance anywhere outdoors, be sure the wiring is adequate to take the load. Check with your electrician.

The angel food cake is baked first, then the rest of the meal goes on the rack.

Electric Roaster-Oven Dinner
Meat Loaf
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Corn and Tomato Scallop
Angel Food Cake
Raspberries and Cream

MEAT LOAF

Prepare any favorite meat-loaf recipe. Bake in loaf pan (part of roaster-oven equipment) in roaster-oven preheated to 375°, for 1½ hours.

CORN AND TOMATO SCALLOP

4 to 6 fresh tomatoes
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, finely diced
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (1 lb.) kernel corn, drained
Salt and pepper to taste

Slice tomatoes. Cook onion and green pepper in butter or margarine until onion is soft; add corn, salt and pepper; mix well. Arrange tomato slices and corn mixture in alternate layers in uncovered baking dish (part of roaster-oven equipment.) Place on rack with meat loaf and potatoes for last 45 minutes of cooking time.

BAKING DIRECTIONS

Early in the day, bake the angel food in a 10" tube pan in the roaster-oven (preheated to 350°) for about 1 hour. Bake potatoes on rack with meat loaf. Fifteen minutes before meat is done, remove potatoes; scoop out pulp; mash; season; refill shells; return to oven to brown.

How a crippled girl gave me strength

by LILLIAN ROTH

It seems to me that sometimes the good Lord holds Himself back from helping us too soon or too often because He doesn't want us to turn to Him for the solution to every problem. I think He looks at us and says to Himself, "Well, now, the answer to her problem is right there in front of her. How much better if she can find it all on her own than if I point it out to her."

I didn't understand this all at once, of course. It was a gradual revelation, and at first sparked by a girl named Jean Thoney who had been in a wheel chair for almost 20 years with multiple sclerosis. Each year, each month, she wasted away a bit more, but she had an unquenchable spirit. She had found the tools God had given her. We entered into correspondence and I found myself looking forward each week to her letters.

Jean was 20 when the disease struck her, in October, 1937. Twenty years old! What a magic age for most girls, on the threshold of life. For Jean it was the threshold of death. She was living in her home town, Marquette, Mich., and working in a bakery. Here's what happened, in her own words.

Terror in a Cemetery

"Usually the first multiple-sclerosis symptoms are in the eyes, double vision and such, but with me the tips of my fingers got numb. I complained about it for a week and the family thought it was because I worked with cellophane at the bakery.

"Then, on a Monday morning, my feet were both asleep, you know that prickly sensation, and I kept banging them against the bakery counter to try and wake them up. During the next few days the prickly sensation began to climb up my legs and by the end of the week it would race up to my knees. Whenever that happened I'd just fall down.

"Friday I staggered to work. I was cranky, hadn't slept well. At the end of work I wrapped up my dirty uniforms and set out for home, taking a short-cut through the cemetery. There was a hill, but I thought I could make it.

"The prickles were half-way up to my knees when I entered the cemetery and I hurried, staggeringly, desperate to make the hill and be free of the dead. I had gone about a hundred yards when I felt my knees begin to give way. I grasped a tombstone and slumped against it. It was marble and cold as death itself and it sent a shiver through me . . . but I could not let go. I didn't want to spend the night in the cemetery alone and I was half bawling, half laughing at myself and saying over and over, 'This is ridiculous . . . this is ridiculous.'

"Fear can do wonderful things, I guess. I managed to pull myself erect, stiffen my legs, and teeter on out of that cemetery. I fell several times on the way home, but I got home.

"Before the week was out I was on my way, on a stretcher, to the University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Michigan."

When Jean arrived, her disease was diagnosed as multiple sclerosis. This meant that she was doomed to a long, slow, declining invalidism while her muscles wasted away.

Tears — and Good Advice

And how did Jean react to all this? Like any 20-year-old caught in helplessness and terror; she wept for hours on end, she became resentful and full of self-pity. She was so uncooperative with the medical staff that the doctors sent for her mother, who made the 500-mile trip to see her.

Jean's description of her mother's visit reveals a good deal about that remarkable woman.

"Most mothers, I should imagine, would walk into a room, see their child in such a terrible condition, and burst into tears. But there were no tears for my Mom.

" 'We've got to have a little talk,' she said. 'They've diagnosed your case and you're going to be here for a long time. Everyone here wants to help you. If you're nice to them, they'll be nice to you and everyone's life will be a lot easier. I don't want any more bad reports about you, about your not eating and not cooperating. This isn't the end of the world for you, it's just a little detour.'

"Funny thing, but at that moment I was proud of my Mom. I began doing what I was supposed to and started my new life. As it turned out, my upper extremities were not affected much. I've never had garbled speech, never been blind; my sense of smell and taste have never gone. My hands have been paralyzed three times but they've come back, though the feeling in them is not too good. The doctors were able to stop the fast rush of paralysis and prevent my limbs from becoming deformed, but there's been permanent damage to the bowels, bladder and lungs.

"Each year I am a bit more incapacitated than the year before, but live in the hope that science will soon find something to help me. In the meantime I live in a wheel chair and with a family that fortunately has a fine philosophy of life.

From Beyond My Worth ©1958 by Lillian Roth. Published by Frederick Fell, Inc., New York ($3.95).

LILLIAN ROTH

The ex-alcoholic who wrote 'I'll Cry Tomorrow' pays tribute to a remarkable woman—and to the power of belief

"When I finally came home they treated me as they always had, making light of the fact that I looked like a mechanical man with a corset for a back, hip-length braces and crutches. God had things for me yet to learn and perhaps even things for me to do."

All that happened 20 years ago. Today Jean is no longer a young girl in a wheel chair, but a middle-aged woman in a wheel chair. She is home alone much of the time—when she could feel sorry for herself, if that were her nature. But listen to excerpts from her letters:

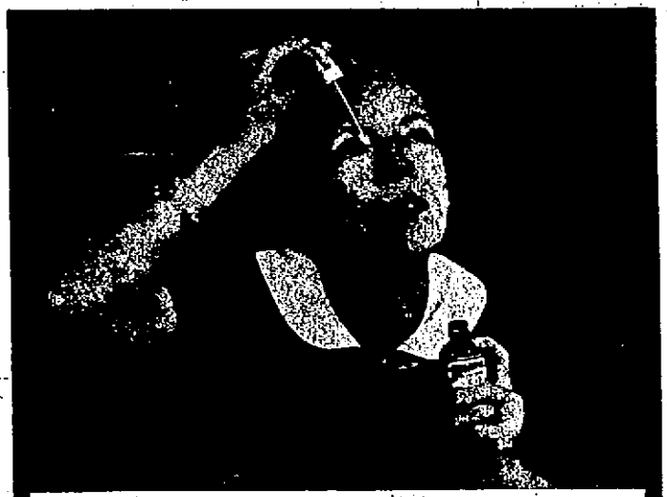

"I am, my dear Lillian, sitting on top of the world, and I mean that literally. Callouses, you know. And what a place to have them! So the doctor taped airfoam pads over the callouses. I'm sitting on an airfoam pillow plus a rubber ring. Bouncy, to say the least. Anyway, I feel swell . . .

"I just happen to enjoy life, even from a wheel chair, and if it's God's will that I be in one, the least I can do is to meet it the best way I know how. And after all, I have so much to be thankful for — a wonderful family and friends like you . . .

"Deep down I know I have no chance for recovery. Each year I lose a little ground. But then, don't we all? I just remember your advice to pray to God and keep smiling . . ."

There's a portrait of Jean Thoney in her own words. Her letters are very precious to me. She says that I have helped her. It is the opposite.

I feel shy before her strength, goodness and beauty. ■

No-iron sheets: Here's another "first," cotton sheets and pillowcases with a new finish that eliminates ironing no matter how they're washed and dried — and also reduces wrinkling on the bed. There a considerable saving in laundry bills or plain hard work. In muslin or percale, white or striped: $2.69-$3.69. Indian Head, 111 W. 40th St., New York, N.Y.

Sanding aid: Now there's a ball-joint sanding attachment for your power drill that finish-sands without leaving swirls or gouges. Flexible joint always keeps disk flat, prevents running off surface. With three disks and lambswool polishing bonnet: $4.95. Stanley, 111 Elm St., New Britain, Conn.

See-through storage: Transparent boxes (above) make stored hats, shoes, other items easy to find. Collapsible, too (walls and base snap apart), they fit in little space when not needed. Hat box, 11" in diameter: $1; rectangular shoe box: 89¢. Swartz, 215 Washington, Dorchester 21, Mass.

Instant brush cleaner: A new, reusable liquid is said to remove paint and varnish from brushes in just seconds. You dip brush into wide-mouth can of liquid, rinse with water. It also reconditions old, paint-caked brushes after several days' soaking. 79¢ a pt. Enterprise, 2841 S. Ashland, Chicago 8, Ill.

THIS NUN HAS A BIG JOB

She's the Pope's nurse

ROME.

Giving orders to the man whose word is religious law to millions throughout the world is the rather awesome prerogative of the gentle little German nun shown above. She is Sister Pasqualina Lehnart, nurse to Pope Pius XII.

She first took care of the Pope's health in 1912, when he was the Rev. Eugenio Pacelli and she attended him at a rest home in the Swiss Alps. Later she became his regular nurse. Today she makes the Pope adhere to his daily schedule of work and rest. She reminds him to remove the ink stains from his fingers after writing — and to disinfect his right hand and ring, kissed by hundreds during audiences. She also is the only person in the Vatican who can interrupt a Papal discussion and, with smiling authority, show visitors out.

Sister Pasqualina boasts one more distinction: she is the first typist a Pope ever had. ☒

HOPE BENNETT talks with teenagers

How do I get him back?

A question I keep getting in various forms from young teens, over and over, is summed up by J.T., Detroit: "I am desperately in love with a boy. He once was in love with me but we broke up. What can I do to catch him again?"

Frankly, older teens — to whom I turn on many of the practical problems the younger ones send in — aren't terribly hopeful about rekindling a dead flame. But their advice is worth something nonetheless.

Joan Tarrant, 18, talked the matter over with friends in Arlington, Va. She says, "The question of how to 're-catch' a boy started some violent debates. The boys were mad at the idea they'd been 'caught' in the first place. Even the girls muttered about that. But we finally agreed on these suggestions:

"If you dropped the boy, chances are he'll keep after you for a while. If so, encourage him. Go out with him when he asks you and gradually get back in the old swing. Hint that you realize how wrong you were and how glad you are that things are OK again.

"If he doesn't keep trying, you may have to help him along. Be at the right place at the right time. Show that you're interested. If you've hurt him deeply, you may have to take the initiative.

"On the other hand, if the boy dropped you, never, never moon over him, write him notes or suggest you can't live without him. Do be seen with other boys and do try to enjoy yourself. It may make him jealous and he may come back."

"If not, forget it," says Virginia Null. "The harder you try, the less chance you have and the bigger fool you'll make of yourself."

"If the break seems beyond repair," adds Candy Johnson, "chalk it up to experience. Each mistake you make will — or should — help you avoid making it again."

So accept the loss and learn from it. Stop mourning. Stop trying to revive it. Cold romances, like cold oatmeal, aren't very good warmed up. Moping around won't bring the boy back nor help you get a new one. Hard though it may be at first, circulate.

"Stop interrupting your mother's interruptions!"

Every dad has his day

The day can offer headaches — as per these cartoon samples — but the wise father just smiles. After all, tomorrow may be worse

"Do as your mother says — before she makes me do it!"

"How much?"

"Here are the 10 jobs we've got to do today. Pick any seven."

EASY RULES

1. HOW TO ENTER Send in your solution on one of the Entry Coupons below . . . let a friend or member of your family enter on the other. First trace out a route from "Your Ship" to "Home Port" on the puzzle diagram. Trace your route only along white ship lanes from island to island. Visit no island (white squares) more than once—and travel on no ship lane (white lines between islands) more than once! Collect all the treasure indicated on each island you visit. On one coupon, list in the order you visited each island, the amount of treasure you found on each island plus the total amount of treasure you found! Collect no treasure from islands you did not visit!

2. PRIZES Contestants finding the most "treasure," in accordance with the official rules, will win the prizes, which will be awarded in order of relative scoring rank.

4. TIES Ties are to be expected, in which event tied-for prizes will be reserved until ties are broken. Such tied contestants will compete in as many additional FREE puzzles as required to break ties, but not to exceed eight more, after which if ties still exist, duplicate prizes will be awarded. Tie-breakers will be similar to the entry puzzle but more difficult. Each tiebreaker puzzle will be required to be solved and judged only if ties still exist after the judging of the preceding puzzle. No payments or purchases of any kind will be required with tie-breaking submissions to compete for the $1000 First Prize and the other prizes listed in the headline, including the Bonus Prize. At least 3 days will be allowed for the solution of each mailed tiebreaker. If necessary, tied contestants may be required to do one or more tie-breaking puzzles under supervision and without assistance in a 1-6 hour period per tiebreaker. Sponsor has right to make such further rules as sponsor deems necessary for proper conduct of contest.

5. DATES Entries must be postmarked not later than Aug. 31, 1958. Everyone in the family may enter — but only one entry per person.
